An exhortacyon to the studye of thee holye Scrypture gathered oute of the Byble.

Christ unto the people. John v

Searche the Scryptures: For they are they that testyfye of me.

Paul to Tymothy. ii. Tymothy. iii

Al Scryptures geuen by inspiracyõ of god, is profitable to teache, to improue, to amend & to instruct in rightwesnes, that the man of god may be perfect & prepared to all good workes.

The same to the. Romay. xv

What thynges so euer are wrytten, are wrytten for our learnyng: that we thorow pacience and comforthe of the scrypture, myght haue hope.

Salomon. Prouerbe. xxx.

All the word of God is pure and cleane, it is a shyld unto them that put their trust in it. Put nothynge unto hys wordes, leaste he reproue thee and thou be founde a lyar.

Moses to the people. Deu. xii.

Ye shall not do euery man what seameth hym good in hys owne eyes: But whatsoeuer I commaunde you, that take hede ye do: and put noughte therto, ner take oughte therfrom.

The Lorde unto Josua. Josue. i.

Let not the boke of thys law depart out of thy mouth: But recorde therin daye & nyght, that thou mayest be circumspect to do accordyng to all that is wrytten therin. For then shalt thou make thy way prosperous, and then shalt thou haue understandyng. Turne therfrom nether to the ryght hande, ner to the left: that þ mayest haue understandynge in al that thou takest in hande.

The same to the people. Exodi. xiii.

And thou shalte shewe thy sonne at that tyme, sayinge: Thys is done because of that whyche the Lord dyd unto me when I came out of Egypte. Therfore it shal be a sygne unto the upon thyne hande, and a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, þ the Lordes lawe maye be in thy mouthe. For wythe a stronge hand the Lord broughte the oute of Egypte.

Moyses. Deutero. xxxi

Se that thou reade thys lawe before all Israell in theyr eares. Gather thee people togeather, bothe men, wemen, and chyldren and the strangers that are in thy cyties: that they maye heare, lerne, and feare the Lorde youre God, to kepe all the wordes of thys lawe.

The summe and contente of al the holy scripture, both of the Olde and Newe Testament.

Deute. vi. I. Timo. ii. Gen. xvii. Exodi. xv. Genesis i. Psalm. x. Exodi. xxxiiii. Jeremy. x. Roma. ix. Esay. lxiiii. Jeremy. x.

FIrst the holy writinges of the Byble teache vs, þ ther is one god, almyghty, that hath nether begynninge ner endyng: which of his owne goodnes dyd create al thynges: of whom al thynges procead, and wout whom ther is nothyng: which is ryghtewes & mercyful: & which worketh al thinges in al after his wil: of whō it may not be demaūded wherfore he doth this or þ.

Gene. i. Sapi. ii. Roma. v.

Then that this very God did create Adam the first mā after his owne Image & similitude, & did ordene & apoint him Lord of al the creatures in þ erth. Which Adā by the envy of þ devel, disobeyng the commaundemente of his maker dyd fyrst synne, & brought sinne into this world, soch & so great, þ we which be sprong of him after þ flesh, are subdued vnto sinne deeth, & dānaciō, brought vnder the youck & tyranny of the devel.

Ephe. ii.

Gen. iii. xii. xxii. Esaie.

And further that Christ Jesus his sōne was promesed of god þ father, to be a saviour to this Adam, Abrahā, Isaac, Jacob, David & the other fathers: which shuld deliver thē frō theyr sinnes & tyrannye of the devel, þ with a quyck & lyvyng fayth wold beleve this promes, and trust to this Jesus Chryst, hopyng to have this delyveraunce of & by hym. And truly thys promes, is very oft rehearsed in þ bokes of the old testament, ye & þ old testamēt is this promes, as it is called the newe, whych teacheth that thys promes is fulfylled.

And that in the meane seasō whyle the fathers loked for saluacyon & delyveraunce promesed, because mānes nature is soch that he not onlye cannot, but also wil not cōfesse hym self to be a synner, & specially soch a synner þ hathe neade of the sauyng health promesed, þ law was gevē were through men might know syn, & þ they are sinners: whē they se that they do none of the thynges that þ law cōmaundeth, wyth so glad & wyllynge a mynde as God requyreth: but rather agaynst their wylles, wythout affectyon, & as thoughe they were cōstrayned wyth the feare of that hel whych the law threatnethe, sayinge: Cursed be he that mayntayneth not al þ wordes of this lawe to kepe them. And þ this law was geven, to thyntente that synne & the malyce of mens hert beig therby þ beter knowē, men shuld the more fervently thyrst þ cōmyng of christe, whiche shulde redeame them from theyr sinnes: As it was fygured vnto the Jewes by many ceremonyes, hostes, and sacryfyces: whych were ordeyned of God, not to thyntente to take awaye synnes, but to shewe & declare that they shuld be put away by fayth in the saluation promesed thorowe Chryst and whych now are put awaye by the comynge of that Chryste, whych is the very hoste of the father that taketh awaye all synne.

Last of all by the Bokes of the newe Testament, we are taught, that that Chryst whych was promysed & shadowed in the olde Testament, is sente of the father, at soche tyme as he had determyned wyth hym selfe, at soche tyme (I saye) as all wyckednes florysshed. And that he was sent not for any mans good workes (for they al were synners) but to thyntent þ he wold truly shew the aboūdant ryches of hys grace, whych he had promysed.

¶ In the newe Testamente therfore it is most evydently declared, þ Jesus Chryst the true lambe and hoste, is come to thyntent to recōcyle vs to the father, payinge on the crosse the punyshment due vnto our synnes: & to delyver vs from the bondage of the devyl (vnto whom we served throughe synne) and to make vs the sonnes of god, syth he hath gevē vs the true peace & tranquylyte of consciēce, that we no longer do feare the paynes of hell: which feare is put away by the fayth, confydence and assuraunce that the father geveth vs drawinge vs vnto his sonne. For that fayth is þ gyfte of God, wherby we beleve that Christ is come into thys worlde to save synners: whych whych is of so great pyth that they whych haue it, desire to performe al ye duties of loue to al mē, after the exāple of christ. For faythe ones receiued god geueth his holy ghost, wherwith he tokeneth & marketh al yt beleue: whyche is the pledge & earnest, that we shal surely possesse euerlastyng lyfe, & that geueth witnes vnto our sprete, and graffeth thys faith in vs yt we be the sōnes of god: powryng therwith that loue into our hertes which paull

To conclude, he came to thintēt yt we beyng cleansed frō our synnes, and sanctyfyed vnto god the father: that is halowed vnto the vse of the father to exercyse good workes, renuing & forsaking ye workes of the flesh, shuld frely serue hī in ryghtwesnes & holynes al our lyfe lōger: thorow good worckes whyche God hath ordeyned to thintēt yt we shuld walke in them. declaryng oure selues therby to be surely called vnto this grace whych workes whosoeuer hath not, declareth that he hath not fayth in chryst.

Unto whom we must come, & folow hym wyth a chearefull herte, that he maye instruct & teach vs, for he is our maister, meake & hūble of hert: he is our exāple of whom we must learne the rule of Good lyuyng: further, he is our prest, hye byshop, & only medyator: whych now sytteth on the ryght hād of God the father, is our aduocate & prayeth euer for vs: whych wyl vndoutedly obtaine whatsoeuer we desyre, ether of hym, or of hys father in his name: yf we beleue that he wyll do it when we requere it: For so hathe he promysed. Let vs therfore no doute, although we some tyme synne, wyth a confydence to come vnto him, and with a lyuyng & vndoutyng faythe, that we shall obtayne mercie. For therfore came he to thintent to saue sinners: nether requireth he anye thinge moare of vs, then to come vnto him with out feare.

This is that Christe Jesus, which after he hath killed the mā of sinne wyth the breath of his mouth, shal sit in his mayestie & Judge al men, geuing vnto thē that shalbe on his righte hād. Come ye blessed children of my father, inherite ye the kingdom prepared for you frō the beginninge of the worlde: And vnto thē that shalbe on his left hād, Departe frō me ye cursed, into euerlastinge fire: which is prepared for the deuel & his angels. Thē shal the end come & he shall deliuer vp ye kingdom to god the father.

To thintent that we shulde knowe thys, by the goodnes of God workyng by his holy sprete, are the holy wrytynges of the Byble geuen vs. That we shuld knowe (I say) & beleue that ther is one God: and Jesus Chryst whome he hath sent: and that in beleuyng we shuld haue euerlastyng lyfe thorow hys name.

Another foundacyon then thys can no man lay. And saynt paul desyreth that he be holden accursed whych preacheth any other fayth & saluacyon, then only by Jesus chryst: yee although it were an angel of heauen.

For of hym, and thorowe him, and for hym, are all thinges: to whom, wyth the father & the holy ghost, be honour & glorie for euer more.
Amen.

To the Christen Readers.

¶ The grace and peace of God be geuē vnto you by Jesus Christe.

As the bees diligently do gather together swete flowres, to make by natural craft the swete hony: so haue I done ẏ principal sentēces conteyned in ẏ Byble. The whych are ordeyned after the maner of a table, for the consolation of those which are not yet exercysed & instructed in the holy Scripture. In the whyche are manye harde places, as wel of ẏ olde as of ẏ new Testamēt exposided gathered together, concorded, & cōpared one wyth another to thintent that the prudent Reader (by the spryte of God) maye haue alwaye pure and cleare vnderstanding. Wherby euery man (as he is bound) may be made ready, stronge & garnyshed to answere to al them that aske him a reason of his faith Thys is also profytable for the particular & general exhortacions whych we make to certayne personages, or cōmune people: & for to answere truely to Heretykes, & to confound the aduersaryes of the worde of God. In the which also we may fynd (that whych helpeth greatly the study of the readers) the openyng of certayne Hebrue tropes, translations, symylytudes, & maners of speakynges (whyche we cal Phrases) conteyned in the Bible. And for the more easely to fynde the matters desyred (because that disorder engendreth confusyon) I haue proceded after thee order of an Alphabete: to thintēt that none be depryued of so precious a treasure: the whyche ye shall vse to the honoure and glorye of God, & to the edifieng of his Church. Howbe it good Reader, yf thou fynde not the thinges in this table expresed, in the same letters of the Chapters wherein they are assygned: vouchsaue to loke in the letter goinge nexte before: or in the letter nexte folowinge.

A table of the pryncypal matters conteyned in the Byble, in whyche the readers may find & practyse many commune places.

ℭ Merite.

In lokyng ouer the Byble, as well as ther new as ŷ old testamēt, I haue not founde thys worde merite. Merite then is nothing: for to merite, is to bynd god vnto his creatures & to obscure ŷ merite of Jesus christ, by which only we ar saued/not accordyng to our workes or merites, but according to his holy purpose & grace, which was geuē vnto vs before al tyme, ii, Timo.i.b. Tit.iii.b/ It is then by grace ŷ we are saued through faithe, & not of vs, but by ŷ gift of god, to thyncke that none do bost himself. Ephe.ii. Roma,iii iiii, For ŷ tribulaciō of this world, ar not worthy of ŷ glory that shalbe shewed vnto vs. Rom. viii. And yf we haue pacience in thē, that cometh of god, i.corin.iiii. How thē can we glorye/ ŷ we do merite ŷ thīge which is none of oures, in as moche as God doth and accomplyssheth in vs the good wyll. Phili ii.

ℭ Masse.

This word masse is not in ŷ Byble, translated by S. Jerom, nor in none other ŷ we haue and therfore could I not tel what to note therof, but to send the reader to the souper of our lord Jesus christ, i, Corin.xi.Act.xx.b.c

Unto the Reader W.T.

Though a man had a precious Juel, and a ryche, yet yf he wyste not the value therof, nor wherfore it serued, he were nether ye better nor rycher of a strawe. Euē so, though we reade the scripture and bable of it neuer so moch, yet yf we know not the vse of it, and wherfore it was geuen, & what is therin to be sought, it profyteth vs nothinge at all. It is not ynough therfore to reade & talke of it, but we must also desyre God daye and nyght, instantly to open our eyes, and to make vs vnderstand, and feale wherfore the scripture was geuen, that we may applye the medicine of the scripture, euery man to his owne sores, vnlesse thē we entend to be ydle disputers, & braulers about vayn wordes, euer gnawenge vpon the bytter barcke without, and neuer attayninge vnto the swete pyth within, and persecutinge one another for defending of lewde ymaginations and phantasyes of oure owne inuention.

Paule in the thyrd of the second Epystle to Tymothe sayth, that the scripture is good to teache (for that ought mē to teach) and not dreames of theyr owne making, as the pope dothe) & also to improue, for that scripture is the touchstone that tryeth all doctrines, and by that we know the false from the true. And in the .vi. to the Ephesians he calleth it the swerde of the sperite, bycause it kylleth hypocrites & vttereth and improueth theyr false inuentions. And in the .xv. to the Romaynes he sayth: all that are wrytten, are wrytten for oure learninge, that we thorow pacience and cōfort of the scripture myghte haue hope. That is, the ensaumples that are in the scripture, comforte vs in al our tribulations, and make vs to put our truste in god, and paciently to abyde hys leysure. And in the .x. of the fyrste to the Corinthiās he bryngeth in examples of the scripture to feare vs & to brydle the fleshe, that we caste not the yoke of the lawe of God, from of our neckes, & fal to lusting and doinge of euyll.

So now the scripture is a lyght and sheweth vs the true waye, both what to do, and what to hope: and a defence from all errour, and a comfort in aduersite that we dyspeare not, and feareth vs in prosperite that we synne not. Seke therfore in the scripture as thou readest it, chefely & aboue all, the couenauntes made betwene God and vs. That is to say: the law and cōmaundementes which god cōmaundeth vs to do. And then the mercye promysed vnto al them that submyt them selues vnto the lawe. For al the promises thorow out the hole scripture do include a couenaunt. That is: god byndeth hym selfe to fulfyll that mercy vnto the, onely yf thou wylt endeuour thy selfe to kepe hys lawes: so that no man hath hys parte in the mercy of god, saue he only that loueth hys lawe and consenteth that it is ryghteous and good, & fayne wolde do it, and euer mourneth because he nowe and then breaketh it thorow infyrmytie, or dothe it not so perfectly as hys harte wolde.

And let loue interprete the lawe: that thou vnderstande thys to be the fynall ende of the lawe, & the hole cause why the lawe was geuen: euen to bring the to the knowledge of God, howe that he hath done all thyng for the, that thou myghtest loue him agayn wyth all thyne harte, and thy neyghbour for hys sake as thy selfe, & as christ loued the. Because thy neighboure is the sonne of god also, and created vnto his lykenes as thou arte, and bought wyth as dere bloud as arte thou. Whosoeuer feleth in hys herte that euery man ought to loue hys neyghbour as Christ loued hym, and consenteth therto and enforseth to come therto: the same onely vnderstādeth the law a ryght and can interprete it. And he that submytteth not him selfe in the degree he is in, to seke hys neyghboures profyte as Christ dyd hys, can neuer vnderstande thee lawe, though it be interprete to hym. For that loue is the lyght of the lawe, to vnderstande it bye.

And behold how ryghteous, how honest, & how due a thinge it is by nature, that euery man loue hys brother vnfaynedly euē as hym selfe: for hys fathers sake. For it is the fathers great shame and hys hye dyspleasure, yf one brother hurte another. If one brother be hurte of another, he may not aduenge hym selfe, but must cōplayne to hys father or to thē that haue auctorite of hys father to rule in hys absence. Euen so yf any gods chyldrẽ be hurt by any of hys brethrẽ, he may not avẽge hym selfe wt hand or hert. God must avenge. And the governers & ministers of the lawe ẏ God hath ordeyned to rule vs by, cõcernyng our outward cõuersatiõ of one wyth another they must avẽge. Yf they wyl not avẽge, but rather mayntayn wrõge & be oppressers thẽ selues, thẽ must we tarye paciẽtly tyl God come which is euer ready to rape tyrauntes frõ of the face of ẏ erth, assone as theyr synnes are rype. Cõsyder also what wrath, vẽgeaunce and plages god threateneth to thẽ ẏ ar rebellious and disobediẽt.

Thẽ go to & reade the storyes of ẏ byble for thy lerning & cõfort, & se euery thinge practysed before thyne eyes: for according to those ensamples shall it go wt the & all mẽ vntil ẏ worldes ende. So ẏ into (whatsoeuer case or state a mã be brought accordīg to whatsoeuer ensãple of ẏ bible it be) his ende shalbe accordīg as he ther seeth & readeth. As god ther warneth yer he submit, & suffreth lõge yer he take extreme vẽgeaũce, so shal he do wt vs. As they ẏ turne, ar ther receaued to mercy, & they ẏ maliciously resist perishe vtterly, so shal it be wt vs. As they ẏ refuse the coũsell of God, perishe thorow theyr owne coũcel, so shal it be wyth vs vntyl ẏ worldes ende. As it wẽt wt theyr kinges & rulers, so shal it go with oures. As it was wt theyr cõmon people, so shal it be wt oures. As it was wt theyr spiritual officers, so shal it be wt oures. As it was wt theyr true prophetes, so shal it be wt oures vntyl the worldes ende. As they had euer amõg thẽ false ꝓphetes & true: & as theyr false ꝑsecuted the true, & moued the princes to sle thẽ, so shal it be wt vs vntyl ẏ ende of the world. As there was amõg thẽ but a fewe true herted to god, so shal it be amõg vs: & as theyr ydolotrye was so shal oures be vntyl ẏ ende of ẏ world. Al mercy ẏ was shewed ther, is a ꝓmyse vnto the yf ẏ turne vnto god. And al vẽgeaũce & wrath shewed ther, is threatened to the yf thou be stouborne and resyst. &c. And this lerning & cõforte shalt thou euermore finde in ẏ playne texte & literal sence. Nether is ther any story so homely, so rude yea or so vyle (as it semeth outwarde) wherin is not exceedynge great comforte. And whẽ some which seme to thẽ selues great clerkes say: they wote not what more profyte is in many gestes of the scrypture yf they be read wout an allegorie, thẽ in a tale of robynhode, say thou, ẏ they were wryttẽ for our consolatiõ & cõforte, that we dyspeare not yf such lyke happẽ vnto vs. We be not holyer thẽ Noe, though he were once dronke. Nether better beloued thẽ Jacob, though his owne sonne defyled hys bed. We be not holier thẽ Lot, though his doughters, thorow ignorãce deceaued him, nor peraduenture holier thẽ those doughters. Nether ar we holier thẽ Dauid, though he brake wedlocke & vpon the same commytted abhominable murther. All those mẽ haue witnesse of the scripture that they pleased god & were good men bothe before that those thinges chaũced them & also after. Neuerthelesse soch thynges happened them for our ensample: not that we shuld counterfayte theyr euyl, but yf, whyle we fyght wyth our selues enforsing to walke in the law of god (as they dyd) we yet fal likewyse that we dispeare not but come agayne to the lawes of god and take better holde.

We reade sens ẏ tyme of christes death, of virgins ẏ haue ben brought to ẏ comen stues, & ther defiled, & of martyrs that haue ben boũde, & hores haue abused theyr bodyes. Why? The iudgmẽtes of god ar bottõlesse. Soch thinges chaũced, partelye for ensãples, partly god thorow synne healeth synne. Pryde can nether be healed nor yet appeare but thorow soch horrible dedes. Paraduenture they were of ẏ popes secte & reioysed fleshly, thinkinge ẏ heauẽ came by dedes & not by christ, & ẏ the outwarde dede iustified thẽ & made thẽ holy, & not the inward spirite receaued by fayth & the cõsent of the harte vnto the lawe of God. As thou readest therfore thinke that euery sillabe pertayneth to thyne owne selfe & sucke out ẏ pith of the scripture, & arme thy selfe against al assaultes. Fyrst note wt strõge faith ẏ power of god in creating al of nought. Thẽ marke ẏ greuous fal of Adã & of vs al in hĩ, thorow the light regarding of the commaundement of god. In the .iiii. chap. God turneth hym vnto Abel and then to hys offringe, but not to Cayn and hys offerynge. Where thou seest that though the dedes of thee euyll appeare outwardlye as gloryouse as thee dedes of thee good: yet in the syghte of God whyche loketh on the harte, the dede is good because cause of ỹ mã, ⁊ not the mã good because of his dede. In ỹ.vi. God sendeth Noe to preach to ỹ wicked ⁊ geueth thẽ space to repẽt: they ware hard herted, god bringeth thẽ to nought, ⁊ yet saueth Noe euẽ by the same water by which he destroyed them. Marke also what folowed the pryde of the buyldinge of the tower of Babel.

Cõsider how god sendeth forth Abrahã out of his owne cõtre into a strãge lande ful of wicked people, ⁊ gaue him but a bare ꝑmise wt him, ỹ he wold blesse him ⁊ defende him. Abrahã beleued, ⁊ ỹ word saued ⁊ delivered him in al parelles: so ỹ we se how ỹ mãs lyfe is not maintained by bread only (as christ saith) but moch rather by beleuing ỹ ꝑmises of god. Behold how soberly, ⁊ how circũspectly both Abrahã ⁊ also Isaac behaue thẽ selues amõg the infideles. Abrahã byeth that which myghte haue bene geuẽ him for nought, to cut of occasiõs. Isaac whẽ his welles whiche he had digged were takẽ frõ hi, geueth rowme ⁊ resisteth not. Moreouer they eat ⁊ sowe ⁊ fede theyr catel, ⁊ make cõfederatiõs, ⁊ take perpetual truce, ⁊ do al outward thinges, euẽ as they do which haue no faith: for god hath not made vs to be ydle in this world. Euery mã must worke godly ⁊ truly to ỹ vtmost of ỹ power ỹ god hath geuẽ him: ⁊ yet not trust therin: but in goddes worde or promesse, ⁊ god will worke with vs ⁊ bringe ỹ we do, to good effecte. And thẽ whẽ our power wil extẽde no further, goddes promysses wyl worke al alone. How many thinges also resisted the promysses of god to Iacob? ⁊ yet Iacob cõfurteth god wt his owne promisses, saying: O god of my father Abrahã: ⁊ god of my father Isaac, o lord which saydest to me, returne to thyne owne cõtre ⁊ vnto ỹ place where ỹ wast borne, ⁊ I wyl do ỹ good. I am not worthy of ỹ leste of those mercyes, nor of ỹ trouth whych ỹ hast done to thy seruãt. I wẽt out but wt a staffe, ⁊ came home wt.ii. droues, delyuer me out of ỹ handes of my brother Esau, for I feare him greatly ⁊c. And god delyuered hym, ⁊ wyl lykewise al ỹ cal to his ꝑmisses wt a repẽting hart, were they neuer so great sinners. Marke also ỹ weake infirmities of ỹ mã. He loueth one wyfe more thẽ another, one son more thẽ another. And se how god purgeth him: Esau threateneth hym: Laban begyleth him: The beloued wyfe is longe barẽ: his doughter is rauisshed: hys wyfe is defyled, ⁊ ỹ of his owne son. Rahel dieth, Ioseph is takẽ away, yea, ⁊ as he supposed, rent of wilde beastes. And yet how glorious was his ende? Note ỹ wickednesse of his childrẽ, yea ⁊ the synne of thẽ, ⁊ how god thorow theyr owne wyckednesse saued thẽ. These ensamples teache vs, ỹ a mã is not at once perfect ỹ fyrste day he beginneth to lyue wel. They ỹ be strong therfore, must suffer with the weake, and helpe to kepe thẽ in vnite and peace one with another vntyl they be strõger. Note what the brethrẽ sayd whẽ they were tached in Egipt, we haue verely synned (sayde they) agaynst our brother in ỹ we sawe the anguishe of his soule whẽ he besoughte vs, ⁊ wold not heare him: ⁊ therfore is this tribulaciõ come vpõ vs. By which ensample ỹ seist how ỹ cõsciẽce of euil doyẽges fedeth mẽ out at the last. But namely in tribulatiõ ⁊ aduersite: theyr tẽptatiõ ⁊ also desperatiõ, yea, ⁊ the very paynes of hel find vs out: there ỹ soule feleth the fearce wrath of god, ⁊ wissheth mountaynes to falle on her and to hyde her (yf it were possible) from the angrye face of God.

Marke also how great euyls folowe of howe lyttle an occasion. Dina goeth but forth alone to se ỹ doughters of the cõtre, ⁊ how great mischeffe ⁊ trouble folowed? Iacob loued but one sonne more thẽ another, ⁊ howe greuous murther folowed in theyr hartes? These ar ensamples for our learninge to teache vs to walke warely ⁊ circũspectly in the world of weake people, that we geue no mã occasions of euyl.

Finally, se what god ꝑmysed Ioseph in his dreames. Those ꝑmysses accõpanied him alwayes, ⁊ wẽt downe wt him euẽ into ỹ depe dõgeon, ⁊ brought him vp agayn ⁊ neuer forsoke him tyl al ỹ was ꝑmised, was fulfilled. These ar ensamples wryttẽ for our learning (as paul saith) to teach vs to trust in god in ỹ strõge fyre of tribulatiõ ⁊ purgatory of our fleshe. And ỹ thei which submit thẽ selues to folow god, shulde note ⁊ marke soch thinges, for their lerning ⁊ cõfort is ỹ frute of ỹ scripture, and cause why it was wryttẽ: ⁊ wt soch a purpose to rede it, is ỹ waye to euerlasting lyfe ⁊ to those ioyful blessinges ỹ ar ꝑmised to al naciõs in ỹ sede of Abrahã, which sede is Iesus christ our lord, to whõ be honour ⁊ prayse for euer, and vnto God oure father thorow hym. The creacio of the Worlde

The fyrst boke of Moses called Genesis.

¶ How heauē & earth, the lyght, the fyrmamēt, the sunne, the mone, the sterres, and al beastes, foules, & fysshes in the see were made by the worde of god. And howe man also was creat.

Hebr. xi. d. Eccl. xviii. a. Ieremi. x. b. Psal. cxxxv. a. Esa. xliiii. d. / Borde and empty.

IN the begynnynge * God created heauen & erth. The erth was voyde & emptie, and darkenesse was vpō the depe, and the sperite of God moued vpon the water.

Thā God sayd: let ther be light: & ther was light. And God sawe the lighte that it was good: & deuyded the lighte frō the darcknesse, & called the lyght the day, and the darcknesse the nyght: & so of the euenyng & mornyng was made the fyrst day.

For heauen. ... It is an Hebrewe worde signifieth the ... spredyng abrode.

And god sayd: let ther be a fyrmamēt betwene the waters, and let it deuyde the waters a sonder. Than God made ȳ fyrmament, & parted the waters which were vnder the fyrmamēt, frō the waters that were aboue the firmamēt: And it was so. And God called the fyrmamēt Heauen. And so of the euening and mornyng was made the seconde daye.

Psalm. cxxxv. a. Psa. viii. c.

And God sayde: * let the waters that are vnder heauen gather thē selues vnto one place, that the drye land may appere. And it came so to passe. And God called the drye lande the earth, & the gatheringe together of waters called he the see. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayd: let the erth bring forth herbe & grasse that sowe seed, & frutefull trees that beare frute euerye one in hys kynde, hauinge theyr seed in them selues vpon the earthe. And it came so to passe.

B And the erth brought forth herbe & grasse sowing seed euery one in hys kynde, & trees bering frute, & hauing theyr seed in them selues euery one in hys kinde. And God sawe that it was good, and then of the eueninge and mornyng was made the thyrde daye.

Psalm cxxxv. a. Deu. iiii. c. Iere. xxxi. f.

Than sayd God: * let there be lightes in the fyrmamēt of heauen to deuyde the daye from the nyghte, that they maye be vnto sygnes, seasons, dayes and yeares. And * let thē be lyghtes in the fyrmamēt of heauē to shyne vpon the earth: And so it was. And God made * two great lyghtes. A greater lyght to rule the day, and a lesse lyght to rule ȳ nyght: & he made sterres also. And God put them in the fyrmamēt of heauen to shyne vpon the earth, & to rule ȳ daye & ȳ nyghte: & to deuyde the lyght frō darknesse. And God sawe that it was good: & so of the euening and mornynge was made the fourth daye.

And God sayde: * let the water bringe forth creatures that moue & haue lyfe, & foules for to flee ouer the erth vnder the fyrmament of heauen. And God created

C great whalles and al maner of creatures ȳ lyue & moue, which the waters brought forth in theyr kindes & al maner of fethered foules ī theyr kyndes. And god sawe ȳ it was good: & God * blessed thē saying: Growe & multyplye and fyll the waters of the sees: & let the foules multiply vpō the earth. And so of the euening and mornynge was made the fyfth daye.

And God sayd: let the erth bring forth lyuinge creatures in theyr kyndes, catell and wormes and beastes of the earthe in theyr kindes, and so it came to passe. And God made the beastes of the erth in theyr kyndes, and catell in theyr kyndes, and al maner wormes of the earth in theyr kyndes: and God sawe that it was good.

And God sayd; lette vs make man in oure symylitude and after our lykenesse:

D that he may haue rule ouer the fish of the see, and ouer the foules of the ayre, & ouer catel, and ouer all the earthe, and ouer all wormes that crepe on the erth. And God created mā after hys lykenes, after the lykenesse of God created he hym: male & female created he them.

And God blessed them, and God sayd vnto them: Growe and multiply and fyll the earth, and subdue it, and haue domynion ouer the fysshes of the see, and ouer the foules of thee ayre, and ouer all thee beastes that moue on the earth.

And God sayd: see I haue geuen you al herbes ȳ sowe sede, which are on al the erth, & all maner trees ȳ haue frute in thē, and sowe sede: to be meat for you and for all beastes of the earth, and vnto al foules of the ayre, and vnto all that crepeth on the erth wherein is lyfe, that they may may haue al maner herbes and grasse for to eate, and eue so it was. And * God beheld al that he had made, and loo they we re excedyng good, and so of the euenyng and mornynge was made the syxte daye.

¶ The Notes.

a Here is blessing take for encreasing and mul[illegible] plyenge.

b That is, after the shape & ymage whyche was before appointed for the son of god. The chefe part [illegible] man also, whyche is the soule, is made lyke vnto god in a certayn proporcion of nature of power & workyng, so that in y^t we are made lyke vnto god.

¶ The Chapter that wet before is here repeted [illegible] the halowyng of the Saboth daye, the foure floudes of paradyse. The settyng in of man in paradyse, the tree of knowledge is forbidden him, howe Adam named al creatures: the creacion of Eua, the institution of mariage.

The .ii. Chapter

A THus was heue & erth fynys-shed w^t al theyr a apparel, & in the seueth day God ended his worke which he had made, and rested in the seuenthe day fro al his workes which he had made And * God b blessed the .vii. day & c san ctyfyed it, for in it he rested frome all hys workes which he had created and made.

These ar the generatios of heue & erth, whe they were created, in the tyme whe y^e lord God created heaue & erth and all the shrubbes of the feld before they were in y^e erth. And al the herbes of the felde before they sprange, for the Lorde god hath yet sent no rayne vpo the earth, neyther was ther yet any ma to tylle the erth. But ther arose a myste out of the ground, & wate-B red al the face of the earth: The the Lord God * shope ma eue of the d mould of y^e earth, & brethed into his face the brethe of lyfe. So * ma was made a lyuing soule.

The Lord God also planted a garde in Eden from the beginninge, & ther he sette man whom he had fourmed. And the Lord God made to sprynge out of the earth all maner trees, bewtyfull to the syghte, and pleasaunt to eate and the * tree of lyfe in the myddes of the garde: and also the tree of knowledge of good and euill.

And ther spra̅ge a ryuer out of Eden to water the garde & there deuyded it selfe, & grewe into foure principall waters. The name of the one is * Phison he it is y^t com passeth all y^e land of Heuila where golde groweth. And the gold of y^t coūtrey is pre cious, ther is foūd Bedellio & a stone called Onix. The name of y^e secode ryuer is Gihō, which copasseth al y^e land of Inde.
And y^e name of y^e thyrd ryuer is Hydekel, C which runneth on the east syde of the Assyryans. And y^e fourth riuer is Euphrates.

And the Lord God toke Ada, & put him in y^e garde of Ede, to dresse it & to kepe it And the lord God comaūded Ada saying Of al the trees of the garde se thou eate:
But of y^e tree of knowledg of good & bad se y^t thou eate not: For euen the same day thou eatest of it thou shalt f dye y^e death

And the lorde God sayd: It is not good that ma shuld be alone, I wil make hi an helper to beare hym copanye. And after y^t the lord God had made of the erth al maner beastes of the felde, & al maner foules of the ayre, he brought the vnto Adam to se what he wold call the. And as Ada cal- D led al maner lyuig beastes, eue so ar theyr names. And Adam gaue names vnto all maner cattell and vnto the foules of thee ayre, and vnto all maner beastes of thee felde. But ther was no help founde vnto Adam, to beare him companye.

Then the Lord God caste a slomber on Adam and he slepte, And the he toke out one of hys rybbes, and in stede thereof he fylled vp the place wythe fleshe. And the Lord God made of the rybbe which he to ke out of Ada * a woma: & broughte her vnto Adam. Then sayd Adam: Thys is once bone of my bones, & fleshe of my flesh Thys shalbe called woman: because she was take of the ma. * For this cause shal a man leaue father & mother, & cleue vnto his wife, & they shalbe one flesh. And they were ether of the naked bothe Adam and hys wyfe, and were not ashamed.

and told his.ii. brethren that were without.
And Sem & Japheth toke a mãtell, and put it on both theyr shulders & wẽt back-warde, and couered theyr fathers secrets, but theyr faces were backward, so ỹ they sawe not theyr fathers nakednes.

As sone as Noe was awaked from his wyne and wyst what his yongeste sonne had done vnto hym, he sayde: Cursed be Canaan and a seruaũt of all seruauntes be he to his brethren. And he said: Blessed be the Lorde God of Sem, and Canaan be his seruaũt. God b increase Japheth that he may dwell in the tentes of Sem.
And Canaan be theyr seruaunt.

And Noe lyued after the floude thre kynred and nacyon.

The sõnes of Ham were: Chus, Mis-raim, Phut, & Canaã. The sõs of Chus, were Seba, Heuila, Sabta, Raima and B Sabtema. And the sons of Raima were Sheba, & Dedã. * Chus also begat Ne-rod which begã to be myghtie in the erth.
He was a myghtie hunter in ỹ syght of ỹ Lord. Wher of came ỹ prouerbe: he is as Nẽrod ỹ myghty hũter in the syght of the Lorde. And the begynnĩg of his kig-dome was * Babel, Erech, Achad & Chal ne in the lãde of Synear: Out of ỹ land came Assur, & buylded Niniue, & the citie Rehoboth, and Calah, & Ressen betwene * Niniue and Calah. That is a greate cyte. And Mizraim begat Ludi, Enamim C Leabim, Naphtuhim, Pathrusim and Casluhim: frõ whẽce came the Philistims, and the Capththerymes.

* i. par. i. b

* Gen. xi. b

* Jona. i. a

Canaã also begat Sidon his eldest sõne & Heth, Jebusi, Emori, Girgosi, Hiuy, Arki, Sini, Aruadi, Zemari & Hamathi. And afterward sprãg the kynreds of the Cananites. And the coostes of the Cananites we re frõ Sydon tyll ỹ come to Gerara & to Asa & tyll thou come to Sodoma, Gomorra, Adama, Zeboim, euen vnto Lasa.
These were the chyldren of Hã in theyr tonges, landes, and nacyons.

And Sem the father of al the chyldren of Eber, and the eldest brother of Japhet begat chyldren also. And his sones were Elã, Assur, Arphachsad, Lud & Arã. And the chyldren of Aram were: Uz, Hul, Ge-D ther and Mas. And * Arphachsad begat Sala and Saala begat Eber. And E-bar.ii. sõnes. The name of ỹ one was Pe leg, for i his tyme the earth was deuided

* i. par. i. b

the name of hys brother was Jaketan.
Jaketan begat Almodad, Saleph, Hyzarmoneth, Jarah, Hadoram, Usal, Dykela, Obal, Abimael, Seba, Ophir, Heuila, & Jobab. All these are the sonnes of Jaketan. And the dwellyng of them was frõ Mesa vntyl thou come vnto Sepha in a mountayne of the east lande. These are the sonnes of Sem in theyr kinredes languages contrees and nacions. These are the kynredes of the sonnes of Noe in theyr generations & nacyons. And of the se came the people that were in the world after the floude.

The buyldynge of the tower of Babel. The confusyon of tonges. The generacion of Sem, the son of Noe vntil Abram which goeth with Lot vnto Harã

The .xi. Chapter.

A And all the world was of one

Abram & Loth depart out of Egypt. And Abram deuided his land & catel with his brother Lot. Here agayn is promysed to Abram the land of Canaan.

The .xiii. Chapter

Than Abram departed out of A Egypt both he & hys wyfe, & al that he had, & Loth wythe hym vnto the south. Abram was very ryche in catel, siluer & golde. And he went on his iourneye frō the south euen vnto Bethel, & to the place wher his tente was at ŷ fyrst tyme betwe ne Bethel & Ay, and vnto the place of the ous cōtre of water euery where, before the Lord destroyed Sodome & Gomorra, e-uē as the garden of the Lorde, and as the lande of Egypt tyll thou come to zoar.

Than Lot chose all the costes of Jorda ne and toke hys iourneye from the easte.
And so departed the one brother from the other. Abram dwelled in the land of Canaan: & Lot in the cytyes of the playne, & tented tyll he came to Sodome. But thee mē of Sodome were wicked and synned exceadingly agaynst the Lorde.

¶ There appered thre men unto Abraham, Isaac is promysed to hym agayn, at whyche Sara laughed. The destruction of the Sodomites is declared unto Abraham. Abraham prayeth for them.

The .xviii. Chapter.

And the lord appered unto him A in y okegroue of Mamre as he sat in his tent dore in y a♰ heate of y daye. And he lyfte up his eyes & loked, & lo, thre men stode not far fro him. And when he saw them, he ran to mete them fro the tente dore, & fel to the grounde & sayd: Lorde yf I haue found fauour in thy syght: goo not by thy seruaunt. Let a lyttle water be fet, & wash your fete, & rest your selues under y tree.
And I wyl fet a *morsel of b♰bred, to com Judic.xix.b fort your hartes withal. And than go your wayes, for eue therfore are ye come to your seruaunt. And they answered: Do eue so as thou hast sayde. And Abraham went a pace into his tente unto Sara & sayd: ma ke redy attonce thre peckes of fine meale, kneade it and make cakes. And Abraham ran unto his beastes and fet a calf y was tendre and good, and gaue it unto a yong man which made it ready attonce. And he toke butter and milcke, and the calfe why che he had prepared, and set it before them, and stode hym selfe by them under y tree:
and * they ate. Tob.xii.d / Iudic.xiii.c And they sayd unto hym: Wher is Sa ra thy wyfe? And he sayd: in y tente. And B he sayd: I wyll come agayne unto the as soone as the frute can lyue. And loo: Sa ra thy wyfe shal haue a sonne. That herd Sara, out of the tent dore whych was be hynde his backe, Abraham & Sara were both olde and wel striken in age, and it cea sed to be with Sara after the maner as it is wyth wyues. And Sara laughed in hyr selfe sayinge: Now I am waxed olde shall I geue my selfe to lust, & my lorde Gen.xvii.c olde also? Than sayd the lord unto Abraham: wherfore doth Sara laughe sayeng, shal I of a suertye bere a chyld, now whe I am olde? is ther thinge to harde for the Lord to do? In the tyme * appoynted wil Jer.xxxii.d / Rom.ix.b I returne unto the, as soone as thee frute can haue lyfe, and Sara shal haue a son.

Than Sara denyed it sayinge: I laughed not, for she was afrayed. But he sayd: yes thou laughedst. Thē the men stode vp C from thēce and loked toward Sodome.
And Abraham went wt thē to bryng thē on the waye. And the lorde sayde: Can I hyde from Abraham that thyng which I am aboute to doo, seynge that Abraham Gen.xviii.c Gen.xxii.d. shall be a * great and a myghtye people, & synne is excedynge greuous. I wyll goo downe and se whether they haue done all together accordynge to that crye which is come vnto me or not, that I may knowe.

And the men departed thence and wente to Sodome warde. But Abraham stode yet before the Lorde, and drew nere and sayd Wylt thou destroye ye ryghteous with ye D wycked? If there be .l. ryghteous within the cytye, wylt thou destroy it & not spare the place for the sake of .l. ryghteous that are therin? That be farre from the, that yu shuldest do after this maner, to sley the ryghteous with the wycked, and that the ryghteous be as the wycked: that be farre from the. Shulde not the iudge of all the worlde do accordynge to ryght? And the Lorde sayde: If I fynde in Sodome .l. ryghteous within the cytye, I wyll spare all the place for theyr sakes.

And Abraham answered and sayde: be-there .xl. and .v. I wyll not destroye them.

And he spake vnto hym yet agayne and sayde: what & yf there be .xl. founde there.
And he sayde: I wyll not do it for .xl. sake And he sayde: O let not my Lorde be angrye, that I speake. What and yf there be

And the men that were at the dore of thee small and greate: so that they coulde not fynde the dore. And the men sayde more-ouer vnto Lot: Yf thou haue yet here any sonne in lawe, or sonnes, or doughters, or what soeuer thou hast in the cyte, brynge it out of thys place: for we must destroye this place, because the crye of thẽ is great * before the Lord. wherfore he hath sent

And Lot wẽt out & spake vnto his son-nes in lawe which shuld haue maried his doughters, & sayd: stande vp and get you out of thys place, for thee Lorde wyll de-stroye the cytye. But he semed as though he had mocked, vnto hys sonnes in lawe.
And as the mornyng arose, the angels cau-D sed Lot to spede hym saying: Stand vp take thy wife & thy two doughters & that, that is at hande lest thou perysshe in the a synne of the cytie. And as he prolonged ye

E sayde Lot vnto thẽ: Oh naye my Lorde: beholde, in as moch as thy seruaunt hath founde grace in thy syght, now make thy mercy great, whych thou shewest vnto me in sauing my lyfe. For I cannot saue my self in ye mountaynes, lest some misfortune fal vpõ me, & I dye. Behold here is a cy-tie by, to fle vnto, & it is a lyttle one, let me saue my selfe therin, is it not a lytle one, ye cytie for the which thou hast spokẽ. Haste the, and saue thy selfe there, for I can doo nothyng tyl thou be come in thyther. And therfore thee name of thee cytye is called Zoar. And the sonne was vpõ the earth whẽ Lot was entred into Zoar.

Than the Lord rayned vpõ * Sodome and Gomorra, brimstone and fyre frõ the Lord out of heauẽ, and ouerthrewe those cytyes & al the regiõ, & all that dwelled in the cyties, & that, that grewe vpõ the erth.
And Lots wyfe loked behinde her, & was turned into a pyllar of salte. Abrahã rose F vp early & got hym to the place where he stode before the lord, & loked toward So-dome & Gomorra & toward al the land of that cõtre. And as he loked: beholde thee stroyed the cyties of the regiõ, he thought vpõ Abrahã: & sent Lot * out frõ the dãger of the ouerthrowynge, whẽ he ouerthre we the cyties where Lot dwelled.

And Lot departed out of Zoar & dwelled in the mountaynes & hys .ii. doughters wyth hym for he feared to tary in Zoar: he dwelled therfore in a caue, bothe he & hys ii. doughters also. Thã sayd the elder vn to the yonger: our father is old, & there is no moo mẽ in the erth to come in vnto vs after ye maner of al ye world. Come therfo re, let vs geue our father wine to drinke, & G let vs lye with him ye we may saue sede of our father. And thei gaue theyr father wi ne to drinke that same nyghte. And the elder doughter wẽt and lay with her father And he perceaued it not, neyther when she laye downe, neyther when she rose vp.

And on the morowe the elder sayd vnto the younger: beholde, yester nyght laye I wythe my father. Let vs geue hym wyne to drincke thys nyght also, & go thou and lye wyth hym and let vs saue sede of our father. And they gaue theyr father wyne to drincke that nyght also. And the yõger arose and laye wyth hym. And he perceа-ued it not: neither when she lay downe, ney ther when she rose vp, Thus were bothe the doughters of Lot with chyld by theyr father. And the elder bare a sonne, and cal led him Moab, which is the father of the Moabytes vnto thys daye. And the yon-ger bare a sonne, and called hym Ben Am mi, which is the father of the children of Ammon vnto thys daye.

and dwelled betwene Cades and Sur, and soiourned in Gerar. And Abraham sayde Gene. xii. c & xxvi. b of Sara his wyfe, that she was his * syster. Then Abimelech kyng of Gerar sent and fet Sara awaye.

And God came to Abimelech by nyght in a dreame and sayde to hym: Se, thou art but a dead man for the womans sake which thou hast taken awaye, for she is a mans wyfe. But Abimelech had not yet come nye her, and therfore sayde: Lorde wylte thou slee ryghteous people? sayde not he vnto me, that shee was his syster? yea and sayd not she her self that he was her brother? with a pure herte and inno-B cent handes haue I done thys. And God sayd vnto hym in a dreame. I wote it wel that thou dydest it in the purenesse of thy hert. And therfore I kepte the that thou shul dest not synne agaynst me nether suffred

Then Abimelech rose vp be tymes in the mornyng and called all his seruauntes, and tolde all these thynges in theyr eares, and the men were sore afrayd. And C Abimelech called Abraham & sayde vnto hym: What hast thou done vnto vs, and what haue I offended the, that thou shul dest brynge on me and on my kyngdome so great a synne? thou hast done dedes vn to me that ought not to be done. And Abi melech sayde moreouer vnto Abraham: What sawest thou, that moued the to do this thyng? And Abraham answered. I thou ght that paraduenture the a fear of god was not in this place, & that they shulde sley me for my wyfes sake: yette in verye dede she is my syster, the doughter of my father, but not of my mother: and became my wife. And after, god caused me to wa dre out of my fathers house, I sayde vnto her. This kyndenesse shalt thou shewe D vnto me in al places where we come, that thou say of me, how that I am thy brother Then toke Abimelech shepe and oxen, men seruauntes & wemen seruauntes & gaue them vnto Abraham, and delyuered hym Sara his wyfe agayne. And Abimelech sayd: beholde the lande lyethe before the, dwell where it pleaseth the best. And vnto Sara he sayde: Se I haue geuen thy brother a thousand peces of syluer, behold this thinge shall be a b couerynge to thy-ne eyes, and vnto al that are with the and vnto all men an excuse.

And so Abraham prayed vnto God, & God healed Abimelech and his wyfe and his maydens, so that they bare chyldren.
For the Lord had closed to, al the matryces of the house of Abimelech, because of Sara Abrahams wyfe.

cytye called Hebrō in the lād of Canaan. Then Abraham came to morne Sara, and to wepe for her And Abraham stode vp from the coorse, and talked wt the sonnes of Heth sayng: I am a straunger and a foryner amonge you, gyue me a possessyon to burye in wt you, that I may bury my dead out of my syght. And the chyldren of Heth answe red Abraham sayng vnto hym: Heare vs Lorde, thou arte a prynce of God among vs. In the chefest of our sepulchres bury thy dead: None of vs shal forbyd the his sepulchre, that thou shuldest not bury thy wed hym self before the people of þ land, B the chyldren of Heth. And he comonde wt them sayinge: If it be your myndes that I shall bury my deade out of my syghte, here me and speake for me to Ephron the sonne of Zoar: and lette hym gyue me the double caue whiche he hath in the ende of hys feld, for as moch money as it is wor th, let him giue it me in the presēce of you, for a possessyon to bury in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the chyldren of Heth.

Then Ephrō the Hethyte answered A braham in the audyence of the children of Heth and of all that went in at the gates of his cytye, sayinge: Not so my Lorde, but heare me: The felde gyue I the, & the caue that therin is, gyue I the also: and e Abꝛahã maketh his seruant to swere & sendethe him to seke a wyfe foꝛ Isaac his sonne. The seruãt was faithful and bꝛought Rebecca, which Isaac toke to hys wyfe.

The .xxiiii. Chapter.

A ABꝛaham was olde and stry-ken in dayes, and the Lorde had blessed hym in all thiges And he sayde vnto his eldest seruaunt of his house which dwell. But shalt go vnto my contre and to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne Isaac.

Then sayd the seruaũt vnto hym: what and yf the woman wyll not agre to come with me vnto this lande, shall I bꝛynge thy sonne agayne in to the lande whiche thou camest out of? And Abꝛaham sayde vnto hym: beware of that, that thou bꝛige not my sonne thyther. The Loꝛd God of

But aboue all thynge bꝛynge not my sõ-ne thyther agayne. And the seruaunt put his hande vnder the thye of Abꝛahã and sware to hym as concernyng that matter.
And the seruaunt toke .x. camels of the ca mels of his master & departed, & had of al maner goodes of his master wᵗ hi, & stode vp, & went to Mesopotamia, vnto the cy B tie of Nahoꝛ. And made his camels to lye downe without the cytye by a wels syde of water, at euẽ: aboute the tyme that wo men come out to drawe water & he sayde.

Lorde God of my mayster Abꝛaham, sende me good spede this day, and shewe mercy vnto my master Abꝛaham. Loo, I stonde here by the well of water, and the doughters of the men of thys cytye wyll come out to drawe water: Now the dãsell to whom I say, stoupe downe thy pitcher and let me dꝛynke. If she say: Dꝛyncke, and I wyll gyue thy camels dꝛyncke also, the same is she that thou hast oꝛdeined foꝛ thy seruaunte Isaac: yea and therby shall I knowe that thou hast shewed mer yer he had lefte speakynge, that Rebecca came out, the doughter of Bethuell, sõne to Milca the wyfe of Nahoꝛ Abꝛahams bꝛother, and her pytcher vpon her shoulder: The damsell was very fayre to loke vpon, and yet a mayde and vnknowen of man. And she went downe to the wel and fylled her pytcher & came vp agayn: Thẽ the seruaunt ranne vnto her and sayd: let me sup a lytle water of thy pytcher. And she sayde: dꝛyncke my Loꝛde.

And she hasted and let downe her pytcher vpon her arme and gaue hym dꝛynk. C And when she had gyuen hym dꝛyncke, she sayde: I wyll draw water foꝛ thy camels also, vntyll they haue dꝛoncke ynou ghe: And she poured out her pytcher into the trough hastely, and ranne agayne vnto the well, to fette water: & drewe foꝛ all his camels. And the felow wõdꝛed at her.
But helde his peace, to wete whether the Loꝛde had made his iourney pꝛosperous oꝛ not. And as the camels had left dꝛync-kynge, he toke a ‡ golden earynge of halfe a sycle weyghte, and two bꝛacelettes foꝛ her handes of .x. sycles weyght of gold, & said vnto her: Whos doughter art thou? tell me: is ther rowme ĩ thy fathers house foꝛ vs to lodge in? And she sayd vnto hi: I am ŷ doughter of Bathuel ŷ sonne of Milca which she bare vnto Nahoꝛ: & said moꝛeouer vnto hĩ: we haue lytter & puon

D way to my masters brothers house. And the damsell came and tolde them of her mothers house these thynges. And Rebec ca had a brother called Laban.
And Laban came out vnto the man, to the well: for as sone as he had sene the earynges, and the bracelettes vpon hys systers handes and herde the wordes of Rebecca his syster sayinge, thus sayde the man vnto me, then he went oute vnto the man. And lo: he stode yet with the camels by the well syde. And Laban sayde, come in thou blessed of the Lorde. Wherfore stondest thou without? I haue dressed the house and made rowme for the camels.
And then the man came in to the house: & he vnbrydeled the camels: & brought lyt ter & prauender for the camels, & water to washe hys fete & theyr fete that were with hym, & there was meate set before hym to eate. But he sayde: I wyl not eate, vn tyll I haue sayde myne earande. And he sayde: say on. And he sayde: I am Abra hams seruaunt, and the Lorde hath * ble ssed my master out of measure, that he is become greate and hath gyuẽ hym shepe oxen, syluer, and golde, menseruauntes, mayd seruauntes, camels and asses. And Sara my masters wyfe bare hym a sone when she was olde: and vnto him hath he geuen all yͭ he hath. And my master made me sweare sayinge: thou shalte not take a wyfe to my sonne amõge the doughters of the Cananites in whose lande I dwel.
But thou shalt go vnto my fathers hou se and to my kynred and there take a wy fe vnto my sonne. And I sayde vnto my master: what yf the wyfe wyll not folowe E me? And he sayde vnto me: The Lorde be thou shalt take a wyfe for my sone of my kynred and of my fathers house. But & yf (whẽ thou comest vnto my kired) they wyll not gyue the one, thẽ shalt thou bere no perell of myne othe.

And I came this day vnto the wel & sayd O Lorde, the god of my master Abrahã, yf it be so that thou makest my iourney which I go prosperous: beholde I stond by this well of water, and when a vyrgyn cometh forth to drawe water, and I saye to her: gyue me a lytle water of thy pytcher to drynke, and she say agayne to me drynke thou, and I wyll also drawe wa ter for thy camels: that same is the wyfe whome the Lorde hathe prepared for my

And I sayde vnto her: gyue me drynke.
And she made haste, and toke downe her pytcher from of her, & sayd: drynke, & I wyll geue thy camels drynke also. And I asked her sayinge: whose doughter arte thou? And she answered: the doughter of Bathuel Nahors sonne, whõ Milca bare F vnto hym. And I put the earynge vppon her face and the bracelettes vpon her hã des. And I bowed my self, and * worshyp ped the Lorde, and blessed the lorde God of my master Abraham which had brou ghte me the ryghte waye, to take my ma sters brothers doughter, vnto his sonne.
Nowe therfore yf ye wyll deale * mercy fully and truly with my master, tell me: and yf not, tell me also: that I may turne me to the ryght hande, or to the lefte.
Then answered Laban and Bathuel sa yinge: The thynges is proceded euen out of the lorde, we can not therfore say vnto the ether good or bad: behold Rebecca be fore thy face, take her and goo, and let her be thy masters sonnes wyfe, euen as the lorde hath sayde. And when Abrahams seruaunt hearde theyr wordes, he bowed hym selfe vnto the lorde, flatte vpon the erth. And the seruaunt toke forthe iewels of syluer and iewelles of golde and ray ment, and gaue them to Rebecca: but vn to her brother, and to her mother, he gaue spyces. And then they ate & dranke, both he and the men yͭ were wyth hym, & taried all nyght and rose vp in the mornyng.
And he sayd: lette me depart vnto my mayster. But hyr brother and hyr mother sayde: lette the damsell abyde wythe vs a whyle, and it be but euen .x. dayes, & than goo thy wayes. And he sayde vnto them: hynder me not, for the Lord hath prospe red my iourneye. Sende me away that I may go vnto my mayster. And they sayd G let vs call the damsel, and wete what she sayth to the matter. And they called forth

Rebecca and sayd vnto her: wylt thou go wyth thys man? And she sayde: yea.

So they let Rebecca theyr syster goo wyth her norse and Abrahams seruaunt, and the mē that were with hym. And they g blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou art our syster growe into thousande thousandes, and thy sede possesse thee gates of theyr enemyes. And Rebecca arose and hyr damsels, and satt them vp vpō the camels, and went theyr waye after the man. And the seruaunt toke Rebecca, and went hys waye.

Gene.xvi.d. And Isaac was comyng from the wel of the * lyuinge and seynge, for he dwelte in the south countrey, and was gone oute to walke in hys h meditations before the euentyde. And he lyfte vp hys eyes and loked, and behold the camels were comig. And Rebecca lyfte vp hyr eyes, and when she sawe Isaac, she lighted of the camel, & sayde vnto the seruaunt: what mā is this that cometh agaynst vs in the felde? And the seruaunt sayde: it is my mayster. And thē she toke hyr mantel, and put it about her. And the seruaunt tolde Isaac al that he had done. Then Isaac brought her into hys mother Saras tēte, and toke Rebecca and she became hys wyfe, and he loued her: and so was Isaac cōforted ouer hys mother.

As soone as Isaac had made an end of E blessing, Jacob was scace gone out frō ẏ presence of Isaac his father: thē came Esau his brother frō his hunting, & had ma de also meate, & broughte it vnto hys father, & sayd vnto hym: Aryse my father, & eate of thy sonnes venison, that thy soule maye blesse me. Than hys father Isaac sayd vnto hym: who art thou? he āswered I am thy eldest sonne Esau. And Isaac was greatly astoyned out of mesure, and sayd: Wher is he thē that hath hunted ve nison & brought it me, & I haue eatē of al before thou camest, & haue blessed hym, & he shalbe blessed styll. When Esau herde ẏ wordes of his father, he cryed out great ly & bitterly aboue measure, & sayde vnto hys father: blesse me also my father. And he sayd: thy brother came with subtilte, & hath takē away thy blessing. Thā sayd he He may wel be called Jacob, for he hathe vndermined me now two tymes, fyrste he toke away my byrthryght: & se now hath F he taken awaye my blessinge also. And he sayde: hast thou kepte neuer a blessynge for me?

Isaac answered and sayd vnto Esau: behold, I haue made hym thy Lorde, and all hys mothers chyldrē haue I made his seruauntes. Moreouer wyth * corne and wyne haue I stablished hym: what can I do vnto the now my son? And Esau sayd vnto hys father: haste thou but that one blessinge my father? blesse me also my fasayd vnto hym: beholde, thy dwelling pla ce shal haue of the fatnesse of the earth, & of the dewe of heauē frō aboue. And with thy swerde shalt thou lyue, & shalt be thy brothers seruāt. But the tyme wyll come, when thou shalt gett the masterye, and low se his yocke from of thy necke.

And Esau * hated Jacob because of the Abdi. a blessyng that his father blessed hym with all, & said in his hart: The dayes of my fa thers sorowe are at hand, for I wyll sleye my brother Jacob. And these wordes of Esau hyr eldest sonne were told to Rebec G ca. And she sent and called Jacob hyr yon gest sonne, & sayd vnto hym: beholde thy brother Esau threateneth to kyll the: now therfore my sonne heare my voyce, make the redy, & flee to Labā my brother at Ha-ran: and tary with him a whyle vntil thy brothers fearcenesse be swaged, and vntyll thy brothers wrath turne away from the, and he forgett that whych thou haste done to hym. Than wyll I sende and fet the awaye from thence. Why shuld I lo-

¶ Jacob is sent into Mesopotamia to Laban for a wyfe. Esau marieth an Ismaelyte. Jacob dreameth a dreame. Christ is promysed. Jacob maketh a vowe

The.xxviii.Chapter.

A Than Isaac called Jacob his sonne & a blessed him, & char ged him, & sayd vnto him: se, thou take not a wyfe of thee doughters of Canaã, but a= ryse & get the to Mesopotamia to the hou se of Bethuel thy mothers father, & there take the a wife of the doughters of Labã thy mothers brother. And God almighty blesse the, increase the, & multiply the that thou mayst be a nombre of people, & geue the the blessing of Abrahã, bothe to thy & to thy sede wyth the, that thou mayst pos= sesse the land (wherin thou art a straũger) whych God gaue vnto Abraham. Thus Isaac sent forth Jacob, to go to Mesopo tamia vnto Laban, sonne of Bethuel the B Sirien, and brother to Rebecca Jacobs & Esaus mother.

When Esau sawe ŷ Isaac had blessed Osee.xii.b Jacob, & sente hym to * Mesopotamia, to fet him a wife thece: & ŷ as he blessed him he gaue him a charge, sayẽg: se, thou take not a wyfe of the doughters of Canaan: & that Jacob had obeyed hys father and mother, & was gone vnto Mesopotamia: & seyng also that the doughters of Canaã pleased not Isaac his father: then wẽt he vnto Ismael & toke vnto the wyues which he had, Mahala the doughter of Ismael Abrahams sonne, the syster Nabaioth to be hys wyfe. Jacob departed from Ber= seba, and went towarde Haran, and came vnto a place, and taryed there all nyghte because the sonne was downe. And toke a stone of the place, and putte it vnder hys heade, and layde hym downe in thee same place to slepe. And he dreamed: & beholde there stode a ladder vpon the earth, and the toppe of it reached vp to heauen. C And se, the angels of God wente vp and downe vpon it, yea & the Lorde stode vpõ it, and sayde.

I am the Lord god of Abrahã thy fa= ther, & the God of Isaac: The * lãd which i.pa.xvii.c. thou slepest vpõ wyll I geue the & thy se= de. And thy sede shalbe as the duste of the earth: & thou shalt spreade abrode: weste, easte, north and south. And thorowe the & thy sede shal al the kynredes of the earthe be b blessed. And se I am with the, & wyl be thy keper in al places whether ŷ goest, & wyl bryng the agayn into this land: ne= ther wyll I leaue the vntyl I haue made good all that I haue promysed the.

When Jacob was awaked out of his D slepe he sayd: surely the lord is in this pla ce, & I was not aware. And he was afray ed & sayd: how fearful is this place. It is none other, but euẽ the c house of God, & the gate of heuẽ. And Jacob stode vp ear ly in the morning: & toke the stone that he had layd vnder hys head: & pytched it vp an ende, & poured oyle on thee toppe of it.
And he called the name of the place d Be thel, for in dede the name of the cytye was called Lus before tyme. And Jacob vo= wed a vowe, saying: Yf God wylbe with me, & wyl kepe me in this iourneye whych I goo, & wyl geue me bread to eate, & clo= thes to put on, so that I come agayn vn= to my fathers house in saftye: thẽ shal the Lord be my God, and thys stone which I haue sett vp an ende, shalbe Godes house and of al that thou shalte geue me, wyl I geue the e tenthe vnto the.

and.iii.flockes of shepe laye therby: for at that well were the flockes watered & ther laye a great stone at the well mouth. And the maner was to bringe thee flockes thyther, & to roull thee stone from thee welles mouth, and to water the shepe, and to put the stone agayne vpon the welles mouth vnto his place. And Jacob sayd vnto thē, brethren whence be ye? And they sayde: of Haran are we. And he sayd vnto thē: know ye Laban the sonne of Nahor? And they sayde: we knowe hym. And he sayde vnto thē: is he in good health? And they sayde: he is in good health: and behold his B doughter Rahel cometh wyth the shepe. And he sayde: lo it is yet a great whyle to nyght, nether is it tyme that the catel shuld be gathered together: water thee shepe and go and fede them. And they sayd: we maye not, vntyl all the flockes be brought together, and the stone be roulled frō thee welles mouth and so we water our shepe.

Whyle he yet talked wyth thē, Rahell came wyth hyr fathers shepe, for she kept them. As soone as Jacob sawe Rahel the doughter of Laban hys mothers brother, and the shepe of Laban hys mothers brother, he wente and roulled thee stone from the wels mouth, and watered the shepe of Laban hys mothers brother. And Jacob C kyssed Rahell, and lyfte vp hys voyce & wepte: and tolde her also that he was hyr fathers brother & Rebeccas sonne. Than Rahell ranne and tolde hyr father.

Whē Laban hearde tell of Jacob his systers sonne, he ranne too mete hym, and embraced him and kyssed hym & brought hym to hys house. And then Jacob tolde Laban al the matter. And thē Laban sayde: wel, thou art my bone and my flesh. Abyde wyth me the space of a moneth. And afterwarde Laban sayde vnto Jacob: Thoughe thou be my brother, shouldeste thou therfore serue me for nought? tel me what shall thy wages be? And Laban had two doughters, the eldest called Lea and the yongeste called Rahell. Lea was tender eyed, but Rahel was bewtiful and D well fauoured. And Jacob loued her wel and sayde: I wyll serue the seuen yeare for Rahell thy yongest doughter. And Laban answered: it is better that I geue her the, than too another man: byde therfore wyth me.

And Jacob serued *.vii.yeres for Rahell, and they semed vnto hym but a fewe dayes, for the loue he had to her. And Jacob sayde vnto Laban: geue me my wyfe that I maye lye with her. For the tyme appoynted me is come. Osee.xii.

Than Laban bad all men of that place, & made a feast. And when euen was come, he toke Lea his doughter & broughte her to him: and he went* in vnto her. And Laban gaue vnto hys doughter Lea Zilpha hys mayde, to be hyr seruaunte. And when the mornynge was come, beholde, it was Lea. Than sayd he to Laban: wherfore hast thou played thus wyth me? dyd not I serue the for Rahell, wherfore than hast thou begyled me? Laban answered: it is not the maner of this place, to marye the yongest before the eldest. Passe oute this weke and than shal this also be geuē the for the seruice whych thou shalt serue me yet.vii.yeares more. And Jacob dyd F euē so, and passed out that weke, & than he gaue him Rahel hys doughter to wyfe also. And Laban gaue to Rahel his doughter, Bilha hys handmayde too be hyr seruaunt. So laye he by Rahel also, & loued Rahel more than Lea, and serued him yet vii.yeares more.

When thee Lorde sawe that Lea was despysed, he made her frutefull: but Rahell was baren. And Lea conceaued and bare a sonne, & called his name Rubē, for she sayd: the lord hath loked vpō my tribulatiō. And now my husband wyll loue me. And she conceaued agayn and bare a sonne, and sayd: the Lord hath herde that I am despysed, & hath therfore geuen me G thys sonne also, and she called him Simeon. And she conceaued yet, and bare a sonne, & sayde: now this once wyll my husbande kepe me companye, because I haue borne him.iii.sonnes: & therfore she called his name Leui. And she cōceaued yet agayne, and bare a sonne sayinge: nowe wyll I prayse the Lord: therfore she called hys name Juda, and lefte bearyng.

¶ Rahel and Lea beynge both baren geue theyr maydens vnto theyr husbande, and they bare hym chyldr. Jacob deceaueth Laban in the conueyinge of the shepe and kyddes. Jacobs rewarde for hys seruyces.

Jacob: Geue me chyldrē, or els I am but deed. Thā was Jacob wrooth with Rahel saying: Am I in Gods stede which kepeth from the, the frute of thy wombe? Thē she said: here is my mayde Bilha: go in vnto her, that she may beare vpon my lappe, that I may be encreased by her. And she gaue hym Bilha hyr hādmayde to wyfe. And Jacob wēt in vnto her: & Bilha cōceaued & bare Jacob a sonne. Thā sayd Rahel. God hath geuē sentence on my syde, & hath also herde my voyce, & hath geuen me a sonne. Therfore called she hym Dan. And Bilha Rahels mayde conceaued agayne, & bare Jacob another sonne. And Rahel sayde: God is turned, and I haue made a chaunge with my syster, and haue gotten the vpperhāde And she called hys name Nepthali.

B When Lea sawe that she hadde lefte gaue her Jacob to wyfe. And Zilpha Leas mayde beare Jacob a sonne. Thā sayd Lea: Good lucke: & called hys name Gad And Zilpha Leas mayde bare Jacob ano ther sonne. Than sayde Lea: happy am I for thee doughters wyll call me * blessed.

And called hys name Asser.

And Ruben went out in the wheat har ueste and founde * mandragoras in thee feldes, and broughte them vnto hys mother Lea. Than sayde Rahel to Lea geue me of thy sonnes mādragoras. And Lea answered: Is it not ynough that thou hast taken awaye my husbande, but wol-C dest take away my sonnes mandragoras also? Than sayde Rahell: well let hym sle pe wythe thee thys nyghte, for thy sonnes mandragoras. And when Jacob came from thee feldes at euen, Lea wente oute to mete hym, and sayde: come in to me, for I haue boughte the with my sonnes man dragoras. And he slepte wyth her that nyght. And God herde Lea, that she conceaued and bare vnto Jacob the .v. sonne Than sayd Lea. God hath geuen me my rewarde, because I gaue my mayden too my housbande, and she called hym Ja-char. And Lea conceaued yet agayne, and bare Jacob the syxte sonne. Than sayde she: God hathe endowed me with a good dowry. Now wyll my huswande dwel wt me, because I haue borne hym .vi. sonnes & called his name Zabulon. After that she bare a doughter, & called her * Dina. gen. xxxiiii.

D And God remēbred Rahel, hearde her, & made her frutefull: so that she cōceyued & bare a sonne, & sayde: God hathe taken awaye my rebuke. And she called his name Joseph, saying: The Lorde geue me yet a nother sōne: As sone as Rahel had borne Joseph, Jacob sayd to Laban: Sende * i. Reg. ii. me away that I may go vnto my owne place and contre, geue me my wyues, and my chyldrē for whom I haue serued the, & let me goo: for thou knowest what ser-uyce I haue done the. Thē sayde Laban vnto hym: If I haue found fauer in thy syght, (for I suppose that the Lord hath * blessed me for thy sake) apoynte what gen. xxxix. thy rewarde shal be, & I wyll gyue it the.
But he sayde vnto hym: þu knowest what seruyce I haue done the, and in what ta-kynge thy catell haue bene vnder me: For it was but lyttle that thou haddest before I came, & now it is increased into a multitude, & the lorde hath blessed the for my sake. But now whē shall I make prouy-syon for myne owne house also. And he E sayd: what shal I then gyue the? And Ja cob answered: thou shalt geue me nothig at all, yf thou wylt do this one thyng for me, and then wyll I turne agayne, & fede thy shepe and kepe them.

I wyll go about al thy shepe this day and seperate from them all the shepe that are spotted & of dyuers colours, & al blac ke shepe amonge the lābes, & the partye, & the spotted amonge the kyddes: and the same shall be my rewarde. So shall my ryghteousnesse answere for me: when the tyme cōmeth þt I shall receyue my reward of the: so þt whatsoeuer is not speckled & p tye amōg the gootz & blacke amōg the lā-bes, let that be thefte wt me. Thē sayd Labā: Loo, I am content, þt it be accordynge as thou hast said. And he toke out þe same day the he gotes þt were ptye & of dyuers colours, and all the she gootes that were spotted & partye coloured, and all þt hadd whyte in them, and all the blacke amōg þe lambes, and put them in the kyppynge of F his sonnes, and sette thre dayes yourney betwyxte betwixte him selfe & Jacob. And so Jacob kepte the rest of Labans shepe.

Jacob toke roddes of grene popular, hasel and of chestnottrees, & pylled whyte strakes in thē, & made the whyte appere in the staues: And he put the staues whyche he had pylled, euē before the shepe, in thee gutters & waterynge troughes, whē the she pe came to drincke, that they shulde cōceaue whē they came to drincke. And ye shepe conceaued before the staues and brought G forth straked spotted and partie. Thē Ja cob parted the lambes and turned the faces of the shepe toward spotted thynges, and toward all maner of blacke thynges thorowe out the flockes of Laban. And he made hym flockes of hys owne by thē selfe, whyche he put not vnto thee flockes of Laban. And all waye in the fyrste buckyng tyme of the shepe, Jacob put the sta ues before thee shepe in thee gutters, that they myghte conceaue before thee staues: but in the latter buckynge tyme, he putte them not there: so the last brode was La-bans and the fyrste Jacobs. And the mā became exceadynge ryche & had many she-pe, mayde seruauntes, men seruauntes, ca mels and asses.

a Mandragoras: The hebrewes call it an erbe, or rather a rote that beareth the symilitude of mās body. Other call it an appel which being eate with meat causeth conceptiō. Some thinketh yt it pleaseth women because it hath a pleasaunt sauour, or rather for ... because there was not manye of them to gette.

b Ryghteousnesse sygnifieth here true and faithfulnes.

¶ At the cōmaundement of god, Jacob departed frō Laban, & toke hys goodes with hym. Rachel steleth her fathers ymages. Laban folowe Jacob. The couenaunt betwene Laban and Jacob.

The .xxxi. Chapter.

A AND Jacob heard the wordes of Labans sonnes how they sayd: Jacob hath takē awaye al that was our fathers, & of our fathers goodes hathe he gottē al thys honour. And Jacob behelde the countenaūce of Laban, that it was not toward him as it was in tymes past. And the lord sayd vnto Jacob: turne agayn in to the land of thy fathers & to thy kynred & I wyl be wt the. Thā Jacob sent & called Rahel & Lea to the felde vnto his she-pe, & sayd vnto thē: I se your fathers coū tenaūce that it is not toward me as in tymes past. Moreouer ye God of my father hath bene with me. And ye knowe howe that I haue serued your father wt all my myght. And your father hathe disceaued me and chaunged my wages .x. tymes but God suffered hym not to hurte me.
When he sayde, the spotted shall be thy wayges, then all thee shepe bare spotted Yf he sayde, the straked shal be thy rewar B. de, thē bare al the shepe straked: thus hath God taken awaye your fathers cattell & geuen them me. For in buckynge tyme I lyfted vp myne eyes and saw in a dreme, and beholde: the rāmes that bucked the shepe were straked, spotted, and partie.
And the angel of God spake vnto me in a dreame, sayng: Jacob? And I āswered here am I. And he sayde: lyfte vp thyne eyes and se, how all the rāmes that leape vpon the sheepe are straked, spotted, and partye: for I haue sene al that Labā doth vnto the. I am the god of * Bethel where ge.xxv thou annoyntedst the stone, and where thou vowedst a vowe vnto me. Nowe aryse and gette the * out of this countre, & ge.xx returne vnto the lande where thou waste borne.
Then answered Rahel & Lea, and sayd C vnto hym: we haue no parte nor enherytaunce in our fathers house, he counteth vs euen as straungers for he hathe solde vs, and hathe euen eaten vp the pryce of vs. Moreouer all the ryches which God hath taken from our father that is yours and youre childrens. Now therfore what soeuer God hath sayde vnto the, that do.
Then Jacob rose vp, & set hys sonnes & wyues vp, vpon camels, and caried away all his catell, & all his substaunce whiche had gotten in Mesopotamia, for to go to Isaac his father vnto the lande of Cana an. Laban was gone to * shere his shepe, ge.xxi & Rahell had stolen her fathers ymages. i.reg.
And Jacob stale awaye the hert of Laban the Syrien, in that he tolde hym not yt he fled. So fled he & all that he had, & made hym selfe redy, & passed ouer the ryuers, & set his face streyghte toward the mounte Gilead. Upon the thyrd day after, was it told Laban yt Jacob fled. Thē he toke his brethrē wt hym & folowed after hym. vii. dayes iourney, and ouer toke him at the mount Gilead. And God came to Laban
the

D the Sirian in a dreame by night and said vnto hym: take hede too thy selfe, that thou speke not to Jacob ought saue god.
And Laban ouer toke Jacob, and Jacob had pitched hys tēte in the mounte. And Laban wͭ hys brethren pitched theyr tēte also vpon the mounte Gilead. Thē sayde Laban to Jacob: Why haste thou thys done to steale awaye my hert, and carye a waye my doughters as though they had bene taken captyue wͭ the swerde? Wher fore wētest thou away secretly vnknowē to me, and dyddest not tell me, ẏ I myght haue brought the on the way wyth myrth synginge, tymrels and harpes, and haste not suffred me to kisse my chyldrē and my doughters? Thou wast * a fole to do it, for I am able to do you euyl. But ẏ god of your father spake vnto me yesterdaye saying: take hede that thou speake not to Jacob ought saue good. And nowe though thou wētest thy way, because thou longest after thy fathers house, yet wherfore hast thou stolē my goddes.

Jacob answered & sayd to Laban: be-E cause I was afraied, & thought that thou woldest haue takē awaye thy doughters fro me. But with whō soeuer thou findest thy goddes, let hym dye here before oure brethrē. Seke that thyne is by me, & take it to the: for Jacob wyste not that Rahell had stolen thē. Than went Labā into Ja cobs tēte, & into Leas tēte, & into .ii. maydēs tentes: but founde thē not. Thā went he out of Leas tente, and entred into Rahels tente. And Rahel toke the ymages & put thē in the camels strawe, & sat downe vpon them. And Laban searched all the tente: but found thē not. Than sayde she to hyr father: my Lord, be not angry that I can not ryse vp before the, for the disea se of womē is come vpō me. So searched he, but found them not.

Jacob was wrooth, & chode with Laban. Jacob also answered & sayd to hym what haue I trespaced or what haue I of fended, that ẏ folowedest after me? Thou hast searched all my stuffe, and what hast thou found of al thy houshold stuffe? put it here before thy brethrē & myne, & let thē iudge betwixt vs both. This .xx. yere that I haue bene with the, thy shepe & thy goo tes haue not bene barren, and the rammes of thy flocke haue I not eaten. Whatsoe-uer was torne of beastes I brought it not vnto thee, but made it good my selfe, of my hand dyddest thou requyre it, whether it was stolen by day or nyght. Moreouer by daye the hete consumed me, and the col F de by nyghte, and my slepe departed from myne eyes.

Thus haue I bene .xx. yere in thy hou se, and serued the * xiiii. yeres for thy two *gen.xxix. doughters, & .vi. yere for thy shepe, & thou hast chāged my rewarde .x. tymes. And except ẏ god of my father, the god of Abrahā & the god whō Isaac feareth had be ne with me: surely thou haddest sent me a way now al empty. But God beheld my tribulatiō, and the labour of my hādes: & rebuked the yesterdaye

Laban answered & sayd vnto Jacob: the doughters ar my doughters, & the chil drē ar my childrē, & the shepe ar my shepe, & al that thou seist is mine. And what can I do this daye vnto these my doughters, or vnto theyr childrē which they haue bor ne? Now therfore come on, let vs make a bond, I and thou together, & let it be a wit nesse betwene the and me. Than toke Jacob a stone and set it vp an ende, and sayd vnto hys brethrē, gather stones. And they toke stones, and made an heape, and they ate ther vpon the heape. And Laban called it Jegar Sahadutha, but Jacob called it Gilead.

Than sayde Laban: thys heape be G ouer too Jacob: beholde, thys heape and thys marcke whych I haue sette here, be ¶ The visio of the angels. Jacob sendeth presentes vnto his brother Esau. Hym he wrestled w the an gel which chaunged his name & called hym Israell.

A Jacob sent messengers before hym to Esau his brother, vn Jos.xxiiii.a to the land * of Seir and the felde of Edom. And he com maunded the sayinge: se that ye speake after thys maner to my Lorde Esau: thy seruaunt Jacob sayth thus. I haue sogerned and bene a straunger with Laban vnto thys tyme and haue gotten oxen, asses and shepe, menseruauntes and wemen seruauntes and haue sent to shewe it my lorde, that I may fynd grace in thy syght. And the messengers came agayne
B to Jacob sayinge: we came vnto thy bro ther Esau, and he cometh agaynst the and iiii.C. men wyth hym. Than was Jacob greatly afrayed and wyst not which way to turne hym selfe, and deuyded the peo ple that was wyth hym and the shepe, oxe and camels into .ii. companyes and sayd: Yf Esau come to the one parte and smyte it, the other maye saue it selfe.

And Jacob sayde: O god of my father Abrahā, & god of my father Isaac: Lord C which saydest vnto me, returne vnto thy countrye and to thy kynred, & I wyl do al well with the. I am not worthy of y leest of all the mercyes and trueth which thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaunt. For wyth my *a staffe came I ouer thys Jordane, & nowe haue I gotten .ii. droues. Delyuer me from the handes of my brother Esau: for I feare hym: lest he wyl come and smy te the mother wyth the chyldrē. Thou say dest that thou woldest surely do me good and woldest make thy sede as thee sande of the see whyche cannot bee nombred for multitude.

And he taryed ther that same nyght, & D a ☞ To go wyth a staffe is a maner of speakyng of the Hebrewes, whych sygnifyeth nothing els but to symplee, barely and wythout any ryches or strength as in Mar. vi. b b ☞ To se God face to face, is to haue a certen and sure knowledge of hym as in Exod. xxxiii. d ❡ Esau & Jacob are agreed, & Jacob came in Sichem.

The. xxxiii. Chapter.

A Jacob lyft vp hys eyes & saw hys brother Esau come, and wyth hym. iiii. hundred men.
And he deuyded the children vnto Lea & vnto Rahell and vnto the. ii. maydens. And he put the may dens and theyr chyldrē formost, and Lea and hyr chyldren after, and Rahel and Jo seph hindermost. And he wente before thē and fell on the grounde. vii. tymes, vntyl he came vnto hys brother.

Esau ranne to mete hym and enbraced hym and fel on hys necke and kyssed hym B and they wepte. And he lyfte vp hys eyes and sawe thee wyues and theyr chyldrē, & sayd: what ar these whych thou thee hast?
And he sayd: they are the chyldren whych god hath geuē thy seruaūt. Than came ẏ maydens forth, and dyd theyr obeysaūce.
Lea also & hyr chyldren came & dyd theyr obeysaunce. And last of all came Joseph, and Rahel, and dyd theyr obeysaunce.

And he sayd: what meanest thou wyth al the droues which J met. And he answe red: to fynde grace in the sight of my lord And Esau sayd: J haue ynough my brother, kepe that thou hast vnto thy self. Ja cob answered: oh nay, but yf J haue foun de grace in thy syght, receaue my presente of my hand: for J haue sene thy face ✚ as though J had sene the face of god: wherfore receaue me to grace and take my bles syng that J haue brought ẏ, for god hath geuē it me. And J haue ynough of al thin ges. And so he compelled hym too take it.
And he sayd: let vs take our iourney and C goo, and J wyl goo in thy company. And he sayde vnto hym: my lord knoweth that J haue tendre children, ewes and kyne wt yonge vnder myne hande, whych yf men shuld ouerdryue but euē one day, the hole flocke wolde dye. Let my lord therfore go before hys seruaūt and J wyl dryue fayre and softely, accordyng as the catel that goeth before me and the chyldren be able to endure: vntyll J come to my Lord vnto Seir.

And Esau sayd: let me yet leaue some D of my folke wyth the. And he sayde: what neadeth it? let me fynd grace in the syght of my lord. So Esau wente hys waye a-gayne that same day vnto Seir. And Ja cob toke hys iourneye towarde Sucoth, and bylt him an house, and made boothes for his catel: wherfore the name of the pla ce is called Sucoth,

And Jacob came peaseably into the cy tie of Sichem in the land of Canaan, after that he was come from Mesopotamia and pytched before the cytye, & boughte a parcell of grounde where he pytched hys tente, of the chyldren of Hemor Sichems father, for an hundred lābes. And he made there an aulter, and there called vpon the myghtye God of Jsraell.

❡ The rauisshinge of Dina Jacobs doughter by ẏ men of Sichē. And of the great bloud shedinge done by the sonnes of Jacob.

The. xxxiiii. Chapter

A Jna ẏ doughter of Lea why che she bare vnto Jacob, wēt oute to see the doughters of the lande. And Sichem thee sonne of Hemor the Heuite lord of the coū trey, sawe her and toke her and ✚ lay with ii. Re. xiii. d her and forced ✚ her: and hys hart laye on Dina the doughter of Jacob. And he loued the damsell and spake kyndlye vnto her, and spake vnto his father Hemor say inge, gette me thys mayden vnto my wyfe. And Jacob herde that he hadde defy-led Dyna hys doughter, but hys sonnes were wyth the cattell in the felde, and ther fore he helde hys peace, vntyll they were come. Then Hemor thee father of Si-chem went out vnto Jacob, to comē wyth hym. And the sonnes of Jacob came oute of the feld as soone as they herde it, for it greued thē, & they were not a lytle wroth because he had wrought folye in Jsraell, in ẏ he had lyen wyth Jacobs doughter, whych thynge ought not to be done. And B Hemor comened wyth them sayinge: the soule

the soule of my sonne Sichē longeth for your doughter: geue her him to wyfe, and make mariages with vs: geue your doughters vnto vs, and take our doughters vnto you, and dwel with vs, and the land shall be at youre pleasure, dwell and doo your busynes, and haue your possessions therein. And Sichem sayde vnto hyr father and hyr brethren: let me fynde grace in your eyes, and whatsoeuer ye appoynt me, that wyl I geue. Aske frely of me both the dowry and gyftes, and I wyl geue according as ye saye vnto me, and geue me the damsel to wyfe.

Then thee sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem and Hemor hys father deceytfully, because he had defyled Dina theyr syster. And they sayde vnto them, we cannot doo thys thynge that we shulde geue oure syster to one that is vncircumcysed, for that were a shame vnto vs. Onely in thys wyl we consent vnto you: Yf ye wyl be as we be, that all thee men chyldren amonge you be circumcysed, than wyll we geue oure doughter to you and take youres to vs, and wyll dwell wythe you and be one people. But and yf ye wyl not harken vnto vs to be circumcysed, than wyll we take our doughter and go our wayes.

C And theyr wordes pleased Hemor & Sichem hys sonne. And the yonge mā deferde not for to do the thynge, because he had a luste too Jacobs doughter: he was also most set by of all that were in hys fathers house. Than Hemor, and Sichem wente vnto the gate of theyr cytye, and commened wyth the men of theyr cytie sayinge: these men are peaceable with vs and wyl dwel in the land and do theyr occupation therein. And in the land is rowme ynough for thē, let vs take theyr doughters to wyues and geue thē oures: only herein wyll they consent vnto vs for to dwel with vs and to be one people: yf al the mē chyldrē that are amonge vs be circumcised as they are. Theyr goodes and theyr substaunce and all theyr catell are oures, onely let vs consent vnto them, that they may dwel wyth vs.

D And vnto Hemor and Sichē hys sonne, harkened all that went out at the gate of hys cytie. And all the men chyldren were circumcised what soeuer wente oute at the gates of hys cytye. And the thyrd day when it was paynefull to them, ii. of thee sonnes of Jacob Symeon and Leui Dinas brethren, toke ether of thē his * swerd and went into the cytye boldely, and slewe all that was male, and slewe also Hemor & Sychem his sonne with the edge of the swerde, and toke Dina theyr syster out of Sychems house, and went theyr waye.

Than came the sonnes of Jacob vpō the dead, & spoyled the cytye, because they had defyled theyr syster: & toke theyr shepe, oxen, asses and whatsoeuer was in the cytye and also in the feldes. And all theyr goodes, all theyr chyldren and theyr wyues toke they captyue and made hauocke of all that was in the houses.

And Jacob sayde to Simeon and Leui: ye haue troubled me and made me stinke vnto thee inhabitatours of thee lande, both: too the Canaanytes and also vnto the Pherezytes. And I am fewe in nomber. Wherfore they shall gather them selues together agaynst me and sley me, and so shal I and my house be destroyed. And they answered: shuld they deale wyth our syster as wyth an whore?

ke Josephs coote and kylled a goote, and dypped the coote in the bloude. And they sente that gaye coote and caused it too be broughte vnto theyr father and sayde: Thys haue we founde: see, whether it bee G thy sonnes coote, or noo. And he knewe it sayinge: it is my sonnes coote, a wycked beaste hathe * deuoured hym, and Joseph is rente in peces. And Jacob rente hys clo Gen.xliiii.f

The .xxxviii. Chapter

A And it fortuned at that tyme that Judas went from hys brethren & gat hym to a man called Hira of Odollam and ther he sawe the daughter of i.Par.ii.a a man called * Sua a Canaanyte: And he toke her & went in vnto her. And she cōceaued and bare a sonne and called his na me Er. And she cōceaued agayn and bare a sonne and called him Onan. And she cō ceaued thee thyrde tyme and bare a sonne whom she called Sela: & he was at Chesyb when she bare him.

And Judas gaue Er his eldest sonne a wyfe whose name was Thamar. But this Er Judas eldest sonne was wicked in the syght of the Lorde: wherfore ye lord slewe hym. Then sayde Judas vnto Onan: go in to thy brothers wyfe and mary her, and styrre vp sede vnto thy brother.
And when Onan perceyued that the seed shulde not be his: therfore when he wente B in to his brothers wyfe, he spilled it on the grounde, because he wolde not gyue seed vnto his brother. And the thynge whiche he dyd, dysplcased the Lorde, wherfore he slewe hym also. Thē sayd Judas to Tha mar his doughter in lawe: remayne a wydowe at thy fathers house, tyll Sela my sōne be growne: for he feared lest he shuld haue dyed also, as his brethrē dyd. Thus wente Thamar and dwelt in her fathers house.

And in processe of tyme, the doughter of Sua Judas wyfe dyed. Then Judas when he had lefte mournynge, wente vnto C hys shepe sherers to Thymnath with his frende Hira of Odollam. And one tolde Thamar sayinge: beholde, thy father in lawe gothe vp too Thymnath, to * shere gen.xxxi. hys shepe. And she put hyr wydowes gar- deu.xxii. mentes of from her and couered her with a clooke, and disgysed her selfe: And satt her down at ye entrynge of Enaim whych is by the hye wayes syde to Thymnath; for because she saw that Sela was grow ne, and she was not geuen vnto hym too wyfe.

When Juda sawe her, he thought it D had bene an hoore, because she had coue red hyr face. And turned to her vnto the waye and sayde, come I praye thee let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was his daughter in lawe. And she sayd what wilt thou gyue me, for too lye wythe me: Than sayd he, I will sende the a kid from the flocke, she answered: Than gyue me a pledge tyl thou send it. Thā said he, what pledge shall I geue the. And she said: thy signet, thy bracelet, and thi staffe that is in thy hande. And he gaue it her and laye by E her, and she was wyth chyld by hym. And she gat her vp and went and put her man tell from her, and putte on hyr wydowes raymente agayne. And Judas sente thee kyd by his neyghboure of Odollam, for to fetche oute his pledge agayne frō the wyfes hande. But he found her not, Thā asked he the men of the same place saying wher is the whoore that satt at Enaim in the waye? And they sayde there was noo whore here. And he came to Juda agayne sayinge: I cannot fynde her, and also the men of the place sayde: that there was no whore there. And Juda sayd: let her take it to her, lest we be shamed: for I sente the kydde and thou couldest not fynd her.

And it came to passe that after .iii. mo- F nethes, one tolde Juda sayinge: Thamar thy doughter in law hath played the who re, and wyth playing the whore is become great wyth chylde. And Juda sayd: brin-ge her forth, and let her be brent. And whē they broughte her forthe, she sente too her father in lawe, sayinge: by thee man vnto whom these thynges pertayne, am I with chylde, And sayd also: loke whose are thys seale, bracelet, and staffe. And Juda knew them sayinge: she is more ryghtuous thā I, because I gaue her not too Seale my sonne

G my sonne, But he laye wyth her nomore.
When tyme was come that she shuld be delyuered, beholde ther was ii. twinnes in hyr wõbe. And as she traueled the one put oute hys hande & the mydwyfe toke and bownde a redde threde aboute it sayinge: this wil com out first. But he plucked his hand backe agayne, & his brother came out And she sayde: wherfore hast thou [b] rent a rent vpõ the: & called hym Phares. And
D afterwarde cam out his brother ÿ had the reade threde about hys hande, which was called zarach

The. xxxix. Chapter.

I Oseph was broughte vnto Egypte, & Putyphar * a lord A of Pharaos: & hys chefe marshall an Egyptyan, bought pa.xxxvii.g hym of the Ismaelites which brought hym thyther. And the Lord was wyth Joseph, and he was a luckye felow and cõtynued in the house of his master the Egyptyan. And hys master sawe that the Lord was wyth hym, and that ÿ Lord made all that he dyd prosper in hys hand Wherfore he foũde grace in hys masters syghte, and serued him. And hys master made him ruler of his house, & put al ÿ he B had in his hande. And as soone as he had made him ruler ouer his house, & ouer all that he had, the Lorde blessed thys Egyptyans house for Josephs sake, and ÿ bles-
F synge of the Lorde was vpon all that he had: both in hous & also in the feldes And therfore he left all that he had in Josephs hand, and loked vpon nothynge that was with hym, saue only on the breade whych Ac.xvi.c he ate. And Joseph was a * godly person and a well fauored And it fortuned after that hys masters wyfe cast hyr eyes vpõ Josep & sayde, com lye wyth me. But he denied & sayde to her: Behold, my master woteth not what he hath in the house w me, but hath committed all that he hath to my hande. He hym selfe is not greatter in ÿ house than I, and hath kept nothing kepte nothing frõ me, but onely the because thou art hys wyfe. How than can I do thys greate wyckednesse, for too synne agaynst God. And after this maner spake she to Joseph daye by daye: but he harkened not vnto her, to slepe nere her, or to be in her companye.

And it fortuned about the same season C that Joseph entred into the house, to doo hys busynes: and there was none of thee housholde by: in ÿ house. And she caught hym by the garmente sayinge: come slepe wyth me. And he lefte his garment in hyr hand and fled and got hym out. Whẽ she sawe that he had left hys garmente in hyr hande, and was fledde oute, she called vnto the men of the house, and tolde thẽ sayinge: Se, he hath brought in an Hebrewe vnto vs to do vs shame, for he came in to me, for to haue slepte wyth me. But I cryed wyth a loude voyce. And when he hearde, that I lyft vp my voyce and cryed, he lyft hys garment wyth me and fled awaye and got hym oute,

And she layde vp hys garmẽt by her, vntyl hyr Lord came home. And she told hym acordynge to these wordes sayinge. Thys Hebrues seruaunte whyche thou D hast brought vnto vs, cam vnto me to do shame. But as soone as I lift vp my voyce and cryed, he left hys garment with me and fled out. When hys mayster herd the wordes of hys wyfe which she told hym sayeng: after thys maner dyd thy seruaũte to me, he wared wrooth.

And he toke Joseph and put hym in * psa.c.iiii.b pryson: euen in the place where the kinges prysoners laye bounde. And there contynued he in preson, but the Lord was w Joseph, & shewed hym mercye, & got hym fauore in the syght of the keper of the preson whych committed to Josephs hande al the prysoners ÿ were in ÿ preson housse And what soeuer was done ther, that dyd he. And the keper of thee pryson loked vnto no thynge that was vnder hys hande, because the Lorde was wyth hym, and because that what soeuer he dyd, the Lorde made it come luckely to passe.

Joseph expoundeth the dreames of the two presoners.

The. xl. Chapter.

A And it chaunced after thys, y^t the chefe butlar of the kynge of Egypte and hys chefe baker had offended theyre lord y^e kyng of Egypt. And Pha rao was angrye wyth theym and put thē in warde in hys chefe marshals house: euen in the preson wher Joseph was boūd And y^e chefe marshal gaue Joseph a char ge with them, and he serued thē. And thei contynued a season in ward.

And they dreamed ether of them in one nyght: both the butlar and the bakar of y^e kynge of Egypte which were bownde in y^e B presone house, ether of them his dreame, & eche manes dreame of a sondrie interpre-tacion. Whē Joseph came in vnto them in thee mornynge and loked vpon them: behold they were sadd. And he asked them sayinge wherfore loke ye so sadly to daye they answered hym, we haue dreamed a dreame, and haue noo man to declare it.
And Joseph sayde vnto them. Interpre-tynge belongeth too God but telle me yet And the chefe butlar told his dreame too Joseph and sayde vnto hym. In my dre-ame me thought there stode a vine before me, and in thee vyne were.iii.braunches, and it was as thoughe it budded, and her blossoms shot forth: and the grapes there of wared rype. And I had Pharaos cup pe in my hand and toke of the grapes and C wrong into Pharaos cup and delyuered Pharaos cup in to his hand. And Joseph sayd vnto him, this is y^e interpretaciō of it The.iii.braūches ar thre days: for within thre dayes shall Pharao lyfte vp thyne heade, and restore the vnto thyne offyce a-gayne, and thou shalte delyuer pharaos cuppe in to his hand, after the olde maner euen as thou dyddest when thou wast his butler. But thynke on me with the, when thou arte in good case, and shewe mercye vnto me. And make mencyō of me to Pharao, and helpe to brynge me oute of this house, for I was stollen oute of the lande of the Hebrues, and here also haue I done nothynge at all wherfore they shulde haue put me into thys dongeon.

When thee chefe baker sawe that he hadde well interpretate it, he sayde vnto Joseph, me thoughte also in my dreame, that I hadde thre wyker baskettes on my head. And in the vppermooste baskette of all maner bakemeates for Pharao. And the byrdes ate them out of the basket vp pon my heade.

Joseph answered and sayd: this is the interpretatiō thereof. The.iii.baskets are D thre dayes, for thys daye thre dayes shall Pharao take thy head from the, and shall hange the on a tree, and the byrdes shal ea te thy fleshe from of the.

And it came too passe the thyrde daye whych was Pharaos * byrthday, that he [illegible] made a feast vnto all hys seruauntes. And he lyfted vp the head of the chefe buttelar and of thee chefe baker amonge hys seruauntes. And restored the chefe buttelar vnto hys buttelarshyp agayne, and he reched the cuppe into Pharaos hande, and hanged thee chefe baker: euen as Joseph had interpretated vnto them. Notwithstā ding the chefe buttelar remembred not Jo seph, but forgat hym.

Pharaos dreames are expoūded by Joseph. He is made ruler ouer al Egypt. He hath twoo sonnes Manasses and Ephraim. The derth beginneth in Egypt.

The.xl.Chapter.

And it fortuned at two yeares ende, y^t Pharao A dreamed, and thoughte y^t he stode by a riuers sy de, & that ther came out of the ryuer.vii. goodly kyne and fatt fleshed, and fedd in a medowe, and hym thought that.vii.other ky ne came vp after them out of the ryuer euell fauored and leane fleshed and stode by the other vpon the brincke of the ryuer And the euyll fauoured and leane fleshed kyne ate vp the.vii.well fauored and fatt kyne: and he awoke therwith. And he slep te agayne and dreamed the seconde tyme, that.vii.eares of corne grewe vpō one stal ke, rancke & goodly. And that.vii.thynne eares blasted wyth the wynde, sprang vp after them: & that the.vii.thynne eares de uoured the.vii.rancke and ful eares. And than Pharao awaked: and se, here is hys dreame. Whē the mornyng came, his spre B te was troubled. And he sente & called for all the sothsayers of Egypte and all thee wyse men therof, and tolde them his drea me: but there was none of them that coul de interpretate it vnto Pharao. Thã spake thee chefe buttelar vnto Pharao sayinge. I doo remẽbre my faute thys daye, Pharao was angrye wyth his seruaũtes & put in warde in the chefe marshals hou se both me & the chefe baker. And we dreã med both of vs in one nyght, & eche mãs dreame of a sondrye interpretation.

And ther was wythe vs a yonge mã, an Hebrewe borne, seruaũt vnto the chefe marshall. And we tolde hym, and he declãred oure dreames to vs accordynge to ether of oure dreames. And as he declared them vnto vs, euen so it came to passe. I was restored to myne offyce agayne, and he was hanged.

Than Pharao sente and called Joseph. And they made hym haste oute of * Psal. c.iiij. b pryson. And he shaued hym selfe & chaun ged hys rayment, and went in to Pharao And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: I haue dreamed a dreame & no man can interpre tate it, but I haue heard say of the that as soone as thou herest a dreame, thou dorst interpretate it. And Joseph answered pha rao sayinge: God shall geue Pharao an answere of peace wythout me. Pharao C sayd vnto Joseph: in my dreame me thou ghte, I stode by a ryuer syde, and ther came out of the ryuer. vij. fatte fleshed and wel fauored kyne, & fedd in the medowe.
And then seuen other kyne came vp after them, poore and very euell fauoured, and leane fleshed: so that I neuer sawe they lyke in all the lande of Egypte, in euell fauourednesse. And the. vij. leane and euell fauoured kyne ate vp the fyrst seuen fatt kyne. And when they had eaten them vp a man coulde not perceaue that they had eaten them: for they were styll as euell fauoured as they were at thee begynninge.
And I awoke. And I sawe agayn in my dreame. vij. eares sprynge out of one stalke full and good, and seuen other eares wythered, thynne and blasted wyth wynd sprynge vp after them. And the thynne ea res deuoured the seuen good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto the sothsayers, but no man can tell me what it meaneth. Thẽ Joseph sayde vnto Pharao: bothe Pha-raos dreames are one. And god doth she-we Pharao what he is aboute to do. The seuen good kyne ar seuen yeares: and the seuen good eares ar seuen yeare also, and it is but one dreame. Lykewyse, the seuen thynne and euell fauored kyne that came D out after them, are seuen eares: and the seuen emptye and blasted eares shalbe seuẽ yeares of hunger. Thys is that whych I sayde vnto Pharao, that God doth shew Pharao what he is about to do.

Behold there shal come seuen yeare of great plenteousnes throughe out all thee land of Egypt. And there shall aryse after them. vij. yeares of hunger. So that all the plenteousnes shall be forgotten in the lande of Egypt. And the hunger shall consume ẏ lande, so that ẏ plenteous shal not be once a sene in the land by reason of that hunger that shall come after, for it shalbe exceadynge great. And as concer-ninge that the dreame was doubled vnto Pharao the secound tyme, it betokeneth that the thynge is certaynly prepared of God: and that God wyll shortely brynge it to passe.

Now therfore let Pharao prouyde for a man of vnderstandinge and wysdom, and sette hym ouer thee lande of Egypte.
And let Pharao make offycers ouer thee land, and take vp the fyft part of the lan-de of Egypte in the seuen plenteous yea-res and lette them gather all the foode of these good yeares that come, and laye vp corne vnder thee power of Pharao, that there may be foode in the cytyes, and ther let them kepe it: that ther may be foode in store in the land, agaynste the. vij. yeares of hunger whyche shall come in the lande of Egypt, and that the lande perysshe not thorow hunger.

And the sayinge pleased Pharao & all E hys seruauntes. Than sayde Pharao vn to hys seruauntes: where shall we fynde soche a man as this is, that hath the sprit of God in hym: wherfore Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: for as moche as God hath shewed the all thys, there is no man of vn derstandyng or of wysdom lyke vnto the.
Thou therfore shalt be * ouer my house, Psal. c.iiij. b & according to thy worde shal al my peo- Actu. vij. b ple obeye: onely in the kynges seate wyl I j. mach. ij. f be aboue the. And he sayd vnto Joseph: be- Dani. ij. g holde holde, I haue set the ouer all the lande of Egypt. And he toke of his rynge frō hys fynger, and put it vpon Josephs fynger, and arayed hym in rayment of bysse, and put a golden cheyne about hys necke and sett hym vpon the best charett that he had saue one. And they cryed before hym: a Abrech, and that Pharao had made hym ru ler ouer all the land of Egypte.

And Pharao sayd vnto Joseph: I am Pharao, wythout thy wyll, shal noo man F lyfte vp eyther hys hand or fote in all the land of Egypt. And he called Josephs na me b Zaphnath Paena. And he gaue hym to wyfe Asnath the doughter of Pu tiphar prest of On. Than wente Joseph abrode in the land of Egypt. And he was xxx. yere olde c when he stode before Pha rao kynge of Egipt. And than Joseph de parted from Pharao and wente thorowe out all the lande of Egypte.

And in the. vii. plenteous yeares they made sheues & gathered vp all the foode of the. vii. plenteous yeres whych were in the lād of Egipt & put it into cyties. And he put the foode of the feldes that grewe rounde about euery cytie: euē in the same And Joseph layde vp corne in store, lyke vnto the sand of the see in multitude out of measure, vntyl he left nombrynge. For G it was wythout nōbre. And vnto Joseph were borne two sonnes before thee yeares of hounger came, whych Asnath the dou ghter of Putiphar prest of On, bare vn to hym. And he called the name of the fyr * gen.xlvi.c. ste sonne * Manasse, for God (sayde he) hath made me forgett all my laboure and all my fathers houhold. The second cal led he Ephraim, for God (sayde he) hathe caused me too growe in thee lande of my trouble.

And when the. vii. yeares of plenteous nes, that was in the lande of Egypt were Gen.xli.d ended, than came the. vii. yeres of * derth, accordinge as Joseph had sayd. And the derth was in al landes: but in the land of Egypt was ther yet fode. Whē now all ye land of Egypt began to hunger, thā cried the people to Pharao for bred. And Pha rao sayd vnto al Egypt: go vnto Joseph and what he sayeth to you that doo. And when the derth was thorow out al the lād Joseph opened all that was in the cytyes and solde vnto the Egyptyans. And hun ger waxed sore in the land of Egypt. And all countrees came to Egypte to Joseph for to bye corne: because that thee hunger was so sore in all landes.

The. xlii. Chapter.

When Jacob sawe that there A was corne too be solde in E gipt, he sayd vnto his sōnes why are ye negligent? behold I haue heard ye ther is corne to be solde in Egipte. * Gette you thyther Gen.xl... and bye vs corne from thēce, that we may lyue & not dye. So went Josephs ten bre thren downe to bye corne in Egipt, for Bē Jamin Josephs brother wold not Jacob send wyth hys other brethren, for he sayd some myssfortune myght happen hym.

And the sonnes of Israel came too bye corne amōg other that came, for ther was derthe also in the lande of Canaan. And Joseph was gouerner in thee lande, and solde corne to all the people of the lande.
And hys brethren came, and fell flatte on the grounde before hym. When Joseph sawe hys brethren, he knewe them: But made strange vnto thē and spake rughly B vnto them sayinge: Whence come ye? and they sayde: out of the lande of Canaā, to bye vytayle. Joseph knewe hys brethren, but they knewe not hym.

And Joseph remembred hys * dreames ge.xxxvii... whych he dreamed of them, and sayd vnto them: ye ar spies, and to se where the lande is weake is youre commynge. And they sayde vnto hym: nay my lord: but to bye vytayle thy seruauntes at come. We ar all one mans sonnes, & meane truelye, and thy seruauntes are noo spies. And he sayde vnto them: nay verely, but euen to see where the lande is weake, is youre co are. xii. brethren, the sonnes of one man in

C in the land of Canaan. The youngeste is yet wyth oure father, and one no man woteth where he is. Joseph sayde vnto them that is it that I sayde vnto you, that ye ar surelye spies. Here by ye shall be proued.
For by thee lyfe of Pharao, ye shall not goo hence, vntyll youre youngest brother be come hyther. Sende therfore one of you and lette hym fett youre brother, and ye shalbe in prisonne in the meane season And there by shall youre wordes be proued, whether there be any trueth in you: or els by the lyfe of Pharao, ye ar but spies And he put them in warde thre dayes.
And Joseph sayde vnto them the thyr D de daye: Thys doo and lyue, for I feare God. Yf ye meane noo hurte, lette one of youre brethren be bounde in thee pryson, and goo ye and bringe the necessary foode vnto your housholdes, and bryng you re youngeste brother vnto me: that youre wordes maye be beleued, and that ye dye not. And they dyd so.
Than they sayde one to another: we haue verelye synned agaynste oure bro-

Ge.xxxvii.b wolde not heare. And now verely see, hys bloude is a requyred. They were not aware that Joseph vnderstonde them, for E he spake vnto thē by an interpreter. And he turned from them and wepte, and than turned to them agayn and comened with them and toke oute Symeon from amō-ge them and bounde hym before theyr eyes, and commaunded to fyll theyr sackes wyth corne, and to putte euerye mans money in hys sacke, and to geue them vytay le to spende by the waye. And so it was done to them. And they laded theyr asses wyth the corne and departed thence. And as one of them opened hys sacke, for too geue hys asse prauender in thee Inne, he spyed hys moneye in hys sackes mouthe.
And he sayde vnto hys brethren: my moneye is restored to me agayne, and is euen in my sackes mouth. Than theyr hartes fayled them, and were astoyned and sayd one to another: howe commeth it that god dealeth thus wyth vs. And they came vn to Jacob theyr father vnto thee lande of F Canaan, and tolde hym all that had happened them sayinge. The Lorde of the land spake rughly to vs, and toke vs for spyes to serche the countrye. And we sayde vnto hym: we meane truely and are no spyes. We be twelue brethren sonnes of oure father, one is away, and the yongest is nowe wyth oure father in the lande of Canaan. And the Lorde of the countreye sayde vnto vs: here by shall I knowe yf ye meane truelye: leaue one of youre brethren here wyth me, and take foode necessarye for youre housholdes and gett you awaye, and brynge youre youngeste brother vnto me. And thereby shall I knowe that ye are noo spyes, but meane truelye: So wyll I delyuer you youre brother a-gayne, and ye shall occupye in the lande.
And as they emptyed theyr sackes, beholde: euerye mans bundell of moneye was in hys sacke. And when bothe they & theyr father sawe the boundels of money they were afrayde.
And Jacob theyr father sayde vnto G them: Me haue ye robbed of my chyldren Joseph is awaye, and Symeon is away: and ye wyll take Ben Jamin awaye. All these thynges fall vpon me. Ruben answered hys father sayinge: Slee my two sonnes yf I brynge hym not to the agay ne. Delyuer hym therfore to my hande, & I wyll brynge hym to the agayn. And he sayde: my sonne shall not go downe with you. For his brother is dead, & he is lefte alone. Moreouer some misfortune might happen vpon hym by the waye whych ye go. And so shuld b ye bryng my gray hed with sorowe vnto the graue.

a To requyre the bloud of the hande of another, is to take vengeaunce of the euell done vnto hym, as in Genesis.ix.a. Psalm.ix.b. and Ezech.iii.c b Brynge me to my graue: that is, ye shall brynge me to my death, as in Ge.xxxvii.f.

When Ben Jamin was broughte, they returned in Egipte. Simeon is delyuered out of pryson. Joseph goeth asyde and wepeth. They feast together.

The xliii. Chapter.

AND the derthe waxed sore in A the land. And when they had eate vp the corne which they brother be wyth you. Therfore yf þu wylt send our brother wt vs, we wyl go & bye þe food. But yf thou wylt not sende hym, we wyll not goo: for the man sayde vnto vs: loke that ye se not my face, excepte youre brother be with you. And Israell sayde: wherfore delt ye so cruelly with me, as to tell the man that ye had yet another bro-B ther? And they sayde: The man asked vs of our kynred sayinge: is youre brother yet alyue? haue ye not another father? And we tolde hym according to these wordes.

How coulde we knowe that he wold byd vs brynge our brother downe with vs?
Then sayde Juda to Israell hys father: Send the lad with me, & we wyl ryse and goo that we may lyue and not dye: bothe we, thou and also our chyldren. I wyl be suretye for hym: & of my handes requyre hym. If I brynge hym not to the and set gen.xliiii.g hym before thyne eyes * than let me beare the blame for euer. For except we had ma de this taryenge: by this we had ben there twyse and come agayne.

C Then theyr father Israel sayde vnto them: Yf it must nedes be so now: then do thus, take of the best fruytes of the lande in youre vessels, and brynge the man a pre sent, a curtesye bawlme, and a curtesye of hony, spyces & myrre, dates & almondes.
And take as moch money more wt you.
And the money that was brought agayn in youre sackes, take it agayne with you,

When Joseph saw Ben Jamin with thē he sayde to the rular of his house: bryng these men home and sley and make redye: for they shall dyne with me at none. And the man dyd as Joseph bad, and brought them into Josephs house.

When they were brought to Josephs house, they were afrayed and sayd: becau se of the money that came in oure sackes mouthes at the fyrst tyme, are we brought to pyke a quarell wyth vs, and to laye some thynge to our charge, to brynge vs in bondage and our asses also. Therfore came they to the man that was the ruler o- E wyth vs, & other money haue we brought also in oure handes, to bye foode, but we cannot tell who putte oure money in oure sackes. And he sayde: be of good chere, fea re not: your God and the God of your fa thers hath putte you that treasure in you re sackes, for I hadde youre moneye. And he brought Simeon oute to them and led them into Josephs house, and gaue them water to washe theyr fete, and gaue theyr asses prauender: And they made readye theyr presente agaynste Joseph came at none, for they hearde saye that they shuld dyne there. When Joseph came home, they broughte theyr present into the hou- F se to hym, whyche they hadde in theyr han des, and fell flatte on thee grounde before hym. And he welcommed them courteous-lye, sayinge: is youre father that old man whyche ye tolde me of, in good helth? and is he yet a lyue? they answered: thy seruāt oure father is in good health, and is yet a lyue. And they bowed them selues and fel to the grounde.

And he lyfte vp hys eyes and behelde hys brother Ben Jamin hys mothers son ne, and sayde: * is thys your yongest brother of whom ye sayd vnto me? And said gene.xl God be mercyfull vnto the my sonne.
And Joseph made hast (for * his hart dyd G sed Pharao and wente oute frome hym.

And Joseph prepared dwellynges for hys Father and hys brethren, and ga-ue them possessions in the land of Egipte in the beste of the lande: euen in the lande of Rameses, as Pharao commaunded.
And Joseph made prouysyon for hys father, hys brethren and al hys fathers hou sholde, as younge chyldren are fedd wyth bread.

C Ther was no bread in all the land, for the derth was exceadinge sore: so that the land of Egypte and the lande of Canaā, were fameshyd by the reason of the derth And Joseph brought together all the mo neye that was founde in thee lande of E-gipte and of Canaan, for the corne which they boughte: and he layde vp thee moneye in Pharaos house. When moneye fayled in the lande of Egypt and Canabrought theyr catel vnto Joseph. And he gaue thē bread for horses & shepe, & oxen and asses: so he fedde thē wyth bread for all theyr catell that yeare.

When that yere was ended, they came vnto him the next yere & sayde vnto hym: we wyll not hyde it from my Lorde, howe that we haue neyther moneye nor catell

C Joseph boughte al the land of Egypt for Pharao, for the Egyptians solde eue ry man hys land because the derth was so ze vpon the: & so the land became Phara os. And he appointed ẏ people vnto the cy ties, frō one syde of Egipt vnto the other: only the lād of the Prestes bought he not.
For ther was an ordināce made by Phara for the * preestes, that they shulde eate the which was appoynted vnto them: whych Pharao had geuen them wherfore thei sol de not their lande, Then Joseph sayde vnto thee fol-ke: behold I haue boughte you this daye F and youre lande for Pharao. Take there sed and goo sowe the lande. And of the encrease, ye shall geue the fyfte parte vnto Pharao, and. iiii. partes shalbe your and sayde vnto hym: If I haue founde grace in thy sight, put thy hand vnder my thyghe and deale mercifullye and truelye wyth me, that thou burye me not in Egypte: but lette me lye by my fathers, and carye me out of Egypte, and burye me in theyr buryall. And he answered: I wyll gen. xxiii. b do as thou hast sayd. And he sayd, Sweare vnto me. And he sware vnto hym. And than Israell bowed hym vnto the beddes head.

in the lande of Canaan, by the waye: whe I had but a feldes brede to goo vnto Ephrat. And I buryed her there in the way to Ephrat whyche is nowe called Bethlehem.
And Israel behelde Josephs sonnes and sayde: what are these? And Joseph sayde vnto hys father: they ar my sonnes whych god hath geuen me here. And he sayde: brynge them to me, and let me blesse them. And the eyes of Israel were dym me for age, so that he coulde not well se.

And he brought them to hym, and he kys sed them, and embraced them. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: I had not thought to haue sene thy face, and yet lo, God hathe C shewed it me & also thy seed. And Joseph toke them a waye from hys lappe, & they fell on the grounde before hym

Than toke Joseph them both: Ephra im in hys ryghte hande towarde Israels left hande and Manasses in hys left han-de, towarde Israels ryghte hande, and brought them vnto hym. And Israel stretched out hys ryghthand and [a] layde it vpon Ephraims head whyche was the yonger, and hys lyft hand vpon Manasses heade, crossinge hys handes, for Ma-nasses was the elder. And he blessed Joseph saying: God before whō my fathers Abraham and Isaac dyd walke, and the God whych hath fedd me all my lyfe lon-ge vnto thys daye. And the angell whych hath delyuered me from al euyl, blesse the se laddes: that thei may be called after my name, and after my father Abraham and Isaac, and that they may growe and mul tiplye vpon the earth.

When Joseph sawe that hys father layd his ryght hand vpon the head of Ephraim, it displeased hym. And he lyft vp hys fathers hand, to haue remoued it frō Ephraims head vnto Manasses heade, & sayde vnto hys father: Not so my father D for thys is the eldest. Put thy ryght hand vpon hys head. And hys father wold not but sayd: I know it wel my sonne, I kno be great. But of a truth his yōger brother shalbe greater than he and hys sede shall be full of people. And he blessed them say inge. At thee ensample of these, the Israe lites shal blesse and say God make the as Ephraim and as Manasses. Thus sette he Ephraim before Manasses.

And Israel sayd vnto Joseph, behold I dye. And God shall be wyth you and brynge you agayn vnto the lande of you re fathers. Moreouer I geue vnto thee, a

The ende of the fyrste boke of Moyses.

Of ẏ preface vpō Genesis mayst ẏ vnderstand how to behaue thy self in this boke also ⁊ in al other bokes of ẏ scripture. Cleaue vnto the texte ⁊ playn storie ⁊ endeuour thy self to serch out ẏ meaning of al ẏ is described therin ⁊ ẏ true sence of al maner of speakinges of ẏ scripture, of prouerbes, similitudes ⁊ borowed speach, wherof I entreated in ẏ ende of ẏ obediēce, ⁊ beware of sotle allegories. And note euery thing ernestly as thinges praynnig vnto thyne owne hert ⁊ soule. For as god vsed him self vnto thē of ẏ old testamēt, euē so shal he vnto ẏ worldes end vse him self vnto vs which haue receaued his holy scripture ⁊ ẏ testimonie of his sōne Jesus. As god doth al thinges here for thē ẏ beleue his ꝓmises ⁊ herkē vnto his cōmādemētes ⁊ wyth paciēce cleaue vnto hym ⁊ walke ẃ him: euē so shal he do for vs yf we receaue ẏ witnes of christ with a strong faith ⁊ endure paciētly folowing his steppes. And on ẏ other syde as they ẏ fel frō ẏ ꝓmises of god thorow vnbelefe ⁊ frō his law ⁊ ordinācces thorow unpaciēce of theyr owne lustes, were forsakē of god ⁊ so peryshed: euē so shal we as many as do lykewyse ⁊ as many as mock ẃ the doctrine of christ ⁊ make a cloke of it to lyue fleshly ⁊ to folow our lustes. Note therto how god is foūde true at the last, ⁊ how whē al is past remedy ⁊ brought into desperatyō, he thē fulfylleth hys ꝓmyses, ⁊ ẏ by an abiecte ⁊ a cast away, a despysed and a refused person: yea ⁊ by a waye impossible to beleue.

The cause of all captiuite of gods people is this. The world euer hateth them for theyr faith ⁊ trust which they haue in god, but in vayn vntyl they fal frō ẏ faith of ẏ ꝓmyses ⁊ loue of ẏ lawe ⁊ ordinācces of god, ⁊ put theyr trust in holy dedes of theyr owne lust ⁊ pleasure ẃout regard of god or respect of theyr neybour. Thē god forsaketh vs ⁊ sendeth vs into captiuite for our dishonouring of his name ⁊ despising of our neybour. But the world ꝑsecuteth vs for our fayth in christ only (as ẏ pope now doth) ⁊ not for our wicked liuig, for in his kingdō ẏ mayst quietly ⁊ ẃ licēce ⁊ vnder a protectiō do what soeuer abhominatiō thy hart lusteth: but god ꝑsecuteth vs because we abuse his holy testamēt, ⁊ because ẏ whē we knowe the truth we folowe it not.

Note also ẏ mighty hād of ẏ Lord how he playeth ẃ his aduersaries ⁊ prouoketh thē ⁊ stirreth thē vp a litle ⁊ a litle, ⁊ deliuereth not his people in an houre, ẏ both the paciēce of hys elect ⁊ also ẏ worldly witte ⁊ wylye polycye of the wicked wher ẃ they fight agaynst god myght appeare. Marke ẏ lōge suffring ⁊ softe paciēce of Moses ⁊ how he loueth ẏ people ⁊ is euer betwen ẏ wrath of god ⁊ thē, ⁊ is redy to liue ⁊ dye ẃ thē ⁊ to be put out of ẏ boke ẏ god had wryttē for theyr sakes (as paul for his brethrē Ro.ix.) ⁊ how he taketh his own wrōges paciētly ⁊ neuer auēgeth him self. And make not Moses a figure of christ ẃ Rochester: but an ensāple vnto al princes ⁊ to al ẏ are in authorite, how to rule vnto gods pleasure ⁊ vnto theyr neybours proffyte. For ther is not a ꝑfecter life in this world both to ẏ honour of god ⁊ ꝓfite of his neybour nor yet a greater crosse, thē to rule christēly. And of Aarō se ẏ ẏ make no figure of christ vntil he come vnto his sacrifisin, but an ensample vnto al preachers of gods word ẏ they ad nothing vnto gods word or take ought therfro. Note also how god sendeth his ꝓmyse to the people, ⁊ Moses cōfermeth it ẃ miracles ⁊ the people beleue. But whē temptation cometh they fall into vnbelefe ⁊ fewe byde stādīg. Where thou seest that all be not christē ẏ wyl be so called, ⁊ ẏ the crosse tryeth the true frō the fayned: for yf the crosse were not, christ shulde haue disciples ynowe. Wherof also ẏ seest what an excellēt gyfte of god true fayth is, ⁊ impossible to be had ẃout the sprete of god. For it is aboue al naturall power ẏ a mā in tyme of tēptation when god scorgeth him shuld beleue stedfastly how ẏ god loueth him ⁊ careth for hi ⁊ hath ꝓpared al good thinges for him, ⁊ ẏ that scorginge is as ernest ẏ god hath elect ⁊ chose hym.

Note how oft Moyses stirreth thē vp to beleue ⁊ to trust in god, putting them in remēbraunce alwaye in tyme of temptation of the myracles ⁊ wonders which god had wrought before tyme in theyr eyesyght. How diligently also forbiddeth he al that myght wythdrawe theyr hartes from god: to put nought to gods word, to take noughte therefro: to do onely that whyche is ryghte in the syghte of the Lorde, that they shuld make no maner ymage to knele downe before it: yea that they shuld make none ne altar of hewed stone for feare of ymages: to flee ẏ hethē Idolatres vtterly ⁊ to destroye theyr Idolles ⁊ cut down theyr groues wher they worshipped. And ẏ they shulde not take ẏ doughters of thē vnto theyr sonnes, nor geue theyr doughters to ẏ sonnes of thē. And ẏ who soeuer moued any of thē to worship false gods, how soeuer nye of kynne he were, they must accuse him ⁊ bring him to deth, ye ⁊ wher soeuer thei hard of mā, womā or cytie ẏ worshypped false goddes, they must slee thē ⁊ destroye ẏ cytie for euer ⁊ not bild it agayn. And al because they shuld worship nothing but god, nor put cōfidēce in any thing saue i his word. Yea ⁊ how warneth he to beware of witchcraft, sorcery, inchātmēt, negromātie ⁊ al craftes of ẏ deuel, ⁊ of dreamers, sothsayers and of myracledoers to destroye his word, ⁊ that they shuld suffer none soch to lyue.

Thou wylt happely say: They tel a mā ẏ truth. What thē? God wyl ẏ we care not to know what shal come. He wil haue vs care only to kepe his cōmādemētes ⁊ to cōmyt al chaūses vnto him. He hath promysed to care for vs ⁊ to kepe vs frō al euel. All thinges ar in his hād, he cā remedy al thinges ⁊ wyl for his truthes sake, yf we praye him. In his promises only wyl he haue vs trust ⁊ ther rest ⁊ to seke no farther.

How also doth he prouoke thē to loue euer rehersing the benefites of god done to thē already, ⁊ the godly promises ẏ were to come? And howe godly lawes of loue geueth he to helpe one another: ⁊ ẏ a mā shuld not hate his neybour i his hart, but loue him as him self. Leui. xix. And what a charge geueth he in euery place ouer ẏ poore ⁊ nedy: ouer the straūger frēdlesse ⁊ wedowe? And whē he desyreth to shew mercy, he reherseth wt al the benefites of god done to thē at theyr nede, ẏ they might se a cause at the lest way in God to shewe mercy of very loue vnto theyr neybours at theyr neade.

Also ther is no law so simple in apperāce thorow out al the fiue bokes of Moses, but ẏ ther is a great reason of the making therof, yf a mā serch diligētly. As ẏ a man is forbid to seth a kid in his mothers milke, moueth vs vnto cōpassiō ⁊ to be pitiful. As doth also ẏ a mā shal not offer ẏ syre or dame ⁊ ẏ yōge both i one day. Le. xxii. For it might seme a cruel thing in as moch as his mothers milke is as it were his bloud, wherfore god wil not haue him sod therin: but wil haue a mā shew curtesy vpō ẏ very beastes: As in another place he cōmādeth ẏ we mosel not ẏ mouth of the oxe ẏ treadeth out the corne (which maner of threshing is vsed in hote coūtrees) ⁊ ẏ because we shuld moch rather not grudge to be liberal ⁊ kynd vnto mē ẏ do vs seruice. Or happely god wold haue no soch wātō meate vsed amōg his people. For the kyd of it self is norishing ⁊ the gotes milke is restauratyue, ⁊ both together myght be to rancke ⁊ therfore forbodē or some other like cause ther was. Of the ceremonies, sacrifices, ⁊ tabernacle wt al his glory ⁊ pōpe vnderstāde, ẏ they were not permytted only, but also cōmaūded of god to lead the people in the shadowes of Moses ⁊ night of the old testamēt, vntyl the light of christ ⁊ day, of the new testamēt were come: As childrē ar led in the phātasies of youth, vntil the discretiō of mās age become vpō thē. And al was done to kepe thē frō ydolatrye. The tabernable was ordened to the entēte they might haue a place apoynted thē, to do theyr sacrifices opēly in ẏ syght of ẏ people ⁊ namely of ẏ prestes which wayted therō: ẏ it might be sene ẏ they dyd all thinge according to gods word ⁊ not after ẏ ydolatrie of theyr own ymaginatiō. And ẏ costlines of ẏ tabernacle ⁊ ẏ bewtie also pteyned ther vnto ẏ they shuld se nothig so bewtyfull amōg the hethē, but ẏ they shuld se more bewtiful ⁊ wōderful at home: because they shulde not be moued to folow thē. And in lyke maner ẏ diuers faciōs of ẏ sacrifices ⁊ ceremonies was to occupie theyr myndes ẏ they shuld haue no lust to folowe ẏ hethē: ⁊ ẏ multitude of thē was, ẏ they shuld haue so moch to do in kepig thē ẏ they shuld haue no leysur to ymagine other of theyr owne: yea ⁊ ẏ gods word myght be by i al ẏ they dyd, ẏ they myght haue theyr fayth ⁊ trust in God, which he cānot haue, ẏ ether foloweth his owne inuētiōs, or traditiōs of mēs making wtout gods worde. Finally god hath .ii. testamentes: ẏ old ⁊ ẏ newe. The old testamēt is those tēporall promyses which god made the childrē of Israel of a good lād ⁊ ẏ he wold defēd thē, ⁊ of welth ⁊ prosperite ⁊ of tēporal blessinges of which ẏ redest ouer al ẏ lawe of Moses. But namely Leui. xxvi. ⁊ Deute. xxviii. ⁊ the auoyding of al threateninges and curses of which

thou readest lykewyse euery where, but specially in the twoo places about rehersed, and the auoydinge of all punishmēt ordeyned for the transgressers of the lawe.

And the olde Testamēt was bylt al together vpon the keping of the lawe and ceremonies and was the reward of kepinge of them in thys lyfe onely, and reached no further then thys lyfe and thys worlde, as thou readest Leuit.xviii. a man that doth them shal lyue there, in whych texte Paule rehersseth Roma.x. and Galath.iii. That is, he that kepeth them shall haue thys lyfe gloriouse accordinge to all the promyses and blessinges of the lawe, and shall auoyde both all temporall punyshmente of the lawe, wyth all the threateninges and cursinges also. For neyther the lawe, euē of the x. cōmaundementes nor yet the ceremonies iustified in the hart before god or purified vnto the lyfe to come. In so moche that Moyses at his death euen .xl. yeare after the lawe and ceremonies were geuen complayneth sayinge: God hath no geuen you an hart to vnderstande, nor eyes to se, nor eares to heare vnto thys daye. As who shulde saye God hath geuen you ceremonies, but ye know not the vse of them, and hath geuē you a lawe, but hath not wrytten it in your hartes.

Wherfore serueth the law thē, yf it geue vs no power to do ÿ law? Paul answereth thē, ÿ it was geuē to vtter synne only ⁊ to make it appere. As a corosye is layde vnto an old sore, not to heale it, but to stere it vp ⁊ to make ÿ disease aliue, ÿ a mā might fele in what ieopardy he is ⁊ how nye death ⁊ not aware, ⁊ to make a way vnto ÿ healīg playster. Euē so saith paul Gal.iii. The law was geuē because of trāsgressiō (ÿ is, to make ÿ sinne alyue ÿ it might be felt ⁊ sene) vntil ÿ sede came vnto whō it was promysed: ÿ is to say, vntil ÿ childrē of faith came or vntil christ ÿ sede in whō god promysed Abrahā ÿ al natiōs of ÿ world shuld be blessed, came. That is, ÿ law was geuē to vtter syn, death, dānatiō ⁊ curse, ⁊ to dryue vnto christ in whō forgeuenesse, life, iustifiing ⁊ blessinges were promised, ÿ we might se so great loue of god to vsward in christ ÿ we hēceforth ouercome wt kindnesse might loue agayn ⁊ of loue kepe ÿ cōmādemētes. So now he ÿ goeth about to quiet his cōsciēce ⁊ to iustify him self wt ÿ law, doth but heale his woūdes wt freatinge corosyes. And he ÿ goeth about to purchase grace wt ceremonies, doth but sucke ÿ alepope to quēch his thrust, in asmoch as ÿ ceremonyes were not geuē to iustifye ÿ hert, but to signifye ÿ iustifieng ⁊ forgeuenesse ÿ is in christes bloud. Of ÿ ceremonies ÿ they iustify not, ÿ readest. Ebrues.x. It is impossible ÿ syn shuld be done away wt ÿ bloud of oxē ⁊ gootes. And of ÿ lawe ÿ readest. Gal.iii. Yf ther had bene a lawe geuē ÿ could haue quickened or geuē lyfe, thē hadde rightcousnes or iustifieng come by ÿ lawe in dede. Now ÿ law not only quickeneth not ÿ hart, but also woūdeth it wt cōsciēce of synne ⁊ ministreth death ⁊ dānatiō vnto her. ii. Cor.iii. so ÿ she must nedes dye ⁊ be dāned except she find other remedy, so farre it is of ÿ she is iustified or holpe by the lawe. The new testamēt is those euerlasting promyses which are made vs in christ ÿ lord thorow out al ÿ scripture. And ÿ testamēt is bylt on fayth ⁊ not on workes. For it is not sayd of ÿ testamēt he ÿ worketh shal lyue: But he ÿ beleueth shal lyue, as ÿ redest. Joan.iii. God so loued ÿ world ÿ he gaue his only begottē son, ÿ none which beleue in hī shuld perish but haue euerlastīg lyfe.

And whē this testamēt is preached ⁊ beleued, ÿ spirite entereth, ÿ hart ⁊ quickeneth it ⁊ geueth her life ⁊ iustifieth her. The spirete also maketh ÿ law a liuely thing in ÿ hert so ÿ a mā bringeth forth good workes of his own accord wtout cōpulsiō of ÿ law, wtout feare of threteninges or cursinges: yea ⁊ wtout al maner respect or loue vnto any tēporal pleasure. But of ÿ very power of ÿ spirit receaued thorow faith. As ÿ readest Joh.i. He gaue thē power to be ÿ sonnes of God in ÿ they beleued on hys name. And of ÿ power they worke: for he which hath ÿ spirit of christ is nomore a child: he nether learneth or worketh now any longer for payne of ÿ rod or for feare of bogges or plesure of apples. But doth al thīges of his own courage. As christ saith. Joh.vii. He ÿ beleueth on me shal haue riuers of lyuing water flowing out of his bely. That is. Al good workes ⁊ al gyftes of grace spring out of him naturally ⁊ by theyr own accorde. Thou neadest not to wrest good workes out of him as a mā wold wring veriuce out of crabbes. Nay they flow naturally out of hī as springes out of hylles or rockes

The newe testament was euer, and from the begynning of the worlde. For there were alwaye promyses of Christ to come by fayth in whych promyses the elect were then iustified inwardly before God, as outwardly before the worldly kepynge of the lawe and Ceremonies.

And in conclusyon as thou seeste blessynges or cursynges folowe the kepynge or breakynge of the lawe of Moyses: euen so naturallye do blessynges or cursynges folow the breakynge or kepynge of the lawe of nature, out of whych sprynge al our temporall lawes. So that when the people kepe thee temporall lawes of theyr lande temporall prosperite and all maner of soche temporall blessynge as thou readeste of in Moyses do accompanye them and fall vpon them. And contrarywyse when they synne vnpunysshed, and when the rulars haue no respecte vnto naturall equyte or honestye, then God sendeth hys curses amonge them, as hunger, derth, morenbaninge, pestilence, warre, oppressyon wythe straunge and wonderfull dyseases and newe kyndes of mysfortune and euyll lucke.

Yf any man axe me, (seynge that fayth iustifieth me) why I worke? I answere loue compelleth me. For as longe as my soule fealeth what loue God hathe shewed me in Christe, I cannot but loue god agayne and hys wyll and commaundementes, and of loue worke them, nor can they seme harde vnto me. I thynke not my selfe better for my workynge, nor seke heauen nor an hyer place in heauen because of it. For a Christen worketh to make hys weake brother perfecter, and not to seke an hyer place in heauen. I compare not my selfe vnto hym that worketh not: No, he that worketh not to daye shall haue grace to turne and to worke to morowe, and in the meane ceason I pytye hym and praye for hym. Yf I hadde wroughte the wyll of god these thousande yeares, and another had wroughte the wyll of thee deuyll, as longe and thys daye turne and be as well wyllynge to suffer wyth Christe as I, he hathe thys daye ouertaken me and is as farre come as I, and shall haue as moche reward as I. And I enuye hym not, but reioyce most of all as of loste treasure founde. For yf I be of god, I haue thys thousand yeare suffred to wynne hym for to come and prayse the name of God wyth me: thys thousande yeares I haue prayed, sorowed, longed, syghed and sought for that whyche I haue thys daye founde, and therefore reioyse wyth all my myght and prayse God for hys grace and mercye.

Albe, a longe garmente of whyte lynen.
Arcke, a cofer or cheste as oure shrynes, saue it was flatte, and thee sample of oure shrynes was taken therof.
Boothe, an house made of bowes.
Brestlappe or brestlap, is soche a flap as thou seest in the brest of a cope.

And he sette taskemaysters ouer them to kepe them vnder wyth burdens. And they bylte vnto Pharao treasure cytyes: C Phiton and Raamses. But the more they vexed them, the more they multiplied and grewe: so that they abhorred the chyldren of Israel. And the Egyptians helde thee chyldren of Israell in bondage wythout mercy, and made theyr lyues bytter vnto them wyth cruel labour in claye and bric ke, and all maner worke in the feldes, and in all maner of seruice, whych they caused them to worke cruellye.

And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwyues of the Ebrewes womẽ, of whych the ones name was Sephora, and the other Phua: when ye do the office of a mydwyfe to the woman of the Ebrewes ⁊

Then the kyng of Egypt called for the mydwyues and sayde vnto them: why ha ue ye deale on this maner and haue saued the menchildren? And the mydwyues answered Pharao, that the Ebrewes wemen were not as the wemẽ of Egypt: but were sturdie womẽ, and were delyuered yer the mydwyues came at them. And God therfore delt well wyth the mydwyues. And the people multiplied ⁊ waxed very migh

God, he a made them houses.

Than Pharao charged all hys people sayinge. All the men chyldren that are bor

And when the chylde was growen, she brought it vnto Pharaos doughter, and it was made hyr son, & she called it a Mo that I shulde heare hys voyce for to lette Israell

Israel goo. a☞ I knowe not the Lord, nether wyll let Israel goo. And they sayde, the God of the Ebrews hath met with vs let vs goo (we pray the) iii. dayes iourney in to the deserte, that we may sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God: lest he smyte vs ether with pestylence or with swerde. Thē sayde the kynge of Egypte vnto them: wherfore do ye Moyses and Aaron lette the people from theyr worcke, get you vnto youre laboure. And Pharao sayde furthermore: beholde there is moch people in the lande, and ye make them play, and let theyr worke stonde.

And Pharao cōmaunded the same daye vnto the taskemasters ouer the people, & vnto the offycers sayinge: se that ye gyue the people no more strawe to make bryck with all, as ye did in tyme passed: let them goo and gather them strawe them selues, and the nombre of brycke whiche they were wonte to make in tyme passed, lay vnto theyr charges also, and mynysh nothyng therof. For they be ydle and therfore crye sayenge: let vs goo and do sacrifyce vnto our God. They muste haue more worcke layde vpon them, that they maye laboure therin, and then wyll they not turne them selues to false wordes.

Thē wēt the taskemasters of the people and the offycers out and tolde the people saying: Thus sayth Pharao: I wyl geue you no more strawe, but go youre selues and gather you strawe where ye can fynd it, yet shall none of youre laboure be mynyshed. Then the people scatered abrode thorowe out all the lande of Egypt for to gather them stubyll to be in stede of strawe.

C And the taskemasters hasted them forwarde sayinge: fulfyll youre werke day by day, euen as when straw was geuen you. And the offycers of the chyldren of Israell whiche Pharaos taskemasters had set ouer them, were beaten. And it was sayde vnto them: wherfore haue ye not fulfilled youre taske in makyng bryck, both yester daye and to day, as wel as in tymes past.

Then wente the officers of the chyldrē of Israell and complayned vnto Pharao sayinge: wherfore dealest thou thus wyth thy seruauntes? there is no strawe gyuen vnto thy seruaūtes, and yet they saye vnto vs: make brycke. And loo, thy seruauntes are beaten, and thy people is foule intreated. And he answered: ydell are ye ydel, and therfore ye saye: lette vs go and do sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Goo therfore and worke, for there shal no strawe be geuen you, and yet se that ye delyuer the hole tale of brycke. D

When the officers of the chyldren of Israell sawe them selfe in shrode case (in that he sayde ye shall mynyshe nothynge of youre daylye makinge of brycke) than they mette Moyses and Aaron standynge in theyr waye as they came oute from Pharao, and sayde vnto them: The Lorde looke vnto you and iudge, for ye haue made the sauoure of vs b☞ stincke in the syghte of Pharao and of hys seruauntes and haue put a swerde into theyr handes to slee vs.

Moyses returned vnto the lord and sayde: Lorde wherfore dealest thou cruelye wyth thys people: and wherfore haste thou sente me? For sence I came to Pharao too speake in thy name, he hath fared foulle wythe thys folke, and yet thou hast not delyuered thy people at all.

Then the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Nowe shalte thou see what I wyl do vnto Pharao for wyth a myghtye hande shall he lette them goo, and wyth a myghtye hande shall he dryue them out of hys lande.

a☞ I knowe not thee Lorde: that is, I feare hym not. I beleue not in hym: nether haue I any thing to do wyth hym. And euen thus saye all hardened hartes that haue not the feare of thee Lorde before theyr eyes.

b☞ ye haue made vs stinke in the syght of pharao that is, by youre wordes and meanes: all the wrath and displeasure of Pharao is broughte vpon vs, that he vtterly hateth & abhorreth vs.

God, but who are they that shall go? And Moyses answered: we wyl go with yong and olde: yea and wythe oure sonnes and with oure doughters, and with oure shepe and oxen must we go. For we must hold a feast unto the Lorde.

And he sayde unto them: lette it be so?
C the Lord be with you, shuld I let you go, and your chyldre also? Take hede, for ye ha ue some myschefe in hād. Nay not so: but goo ye that are men and serue the Lorde for that was your desyre. And they thrust them oute of Pharaos presence.

And thee Lorde sayde unto Moyses: Stretch out thyne hand ouer thee land of Egypte for greshoppers, that they come uppon thee lande of Egypte and eate all thee herbes of thee lande, and all that thee hayle lefte untouched. And Moy-ses stretched forth his rodd ouer the lande landes of Egypte, and the Lorde broughte an east wynde upon the lande, al that day and all nyghte. And in the mornynge the D east wynde brought the greshoppers, and the greshoppers went up ouer all the lād of Egypte and lyghted in all quarters of Egypt very greuously: so that before thē were there no such greshoppers, nether af ter them shal be. And they couered all the face of the erth, so that the land was darke therwith. And they ate all the herbes of ÿ lande and all the frutes of the trees which the hayle had lefte: so that there was noo greene thynge left in the trees and herbes of the felde thorow all the land of Egypt.

E Then Pharao called for Moses and Aaron in haste and sayde: I haue synned agaynst the Lord your God and against you. Forgeue me yet my synne only thys once and praye unto the Lorde your god that he maye take awaye frō me this deth only. And he wente out frō Pharao, & pra yed unto the Lorde: and the Lord turned the wynde in to a myghtye stronge weste wynde, and it toke awaye the greshoppers and caste them in to the reed see: so that there was not one greshopper in all the costes of Egypte. But the Lorde *hardened Pharaos hearte, so that he wolde not lette the chyldren of Israell goo.
F And the Lorde sayde unto Moyses: Stretch out thy hande unto heauen, and let there be darkenesse upon the lande of Egypte: euen that they maye feale ÿ dark nesse. And Moyses stretched forthe hys (The .ix. plage) hande unto heauen and there was a thick darkenesse upon all the lande of Egypte, iii. dayes longe, so that no man sawe another, nether rose up frome the place where he was by the space of iii. dayes, but all the chyldren of Israell had lyghte where they dwelled.
Then Pharao called for Moyses and sayde: goo and serue the Lorde, only lette G youre shepe and your oxen abyde, but lette your chyldren go with you. And Moyses answered: ÿ must geue us also offrynges & burntoffrynges for to sacrifyce unto the (The .x. plage) Lorde our God: our catell therfore shall go with us and there shall not one hoofe be lefte behynde, for therof muste we take to serue the Lorde oure God. Moreouer we can not knowe wherwith we shall *a serue the Lorde, untyll we come thyther.
But the Lord herdened Pharaos hert so that he wolde not let them go. And pha rao sayde unto hym: get the frō me & take hede to thy selfe that thou se my face no more. For when soeuer thou comest in my syght, thou shalt dye. And Moyses sayde Let it be as thou hast sayde: I wyl se thy face no moare.

a I Thys was an outward seruyce, but the true and right seruice of god, is to feare him as a father to loue hym, to kepe his commaundementes and to committe a mannes selfe holy to hym, trustynge in hys mercy only: castyng all thought and care upon hym. And when we haue offended, to repent and to be sory, and knowledge our offence and beleue that he wyll forgeue it us, for hys truthes sake as .i. Peter .v. b. and Psalm .xxxvi. a

Of this maner shal ye eat it: with your bread, that soule shalbe roted out frō thee multitude of Israel: whether he be a straū ger or borne in the land. Therfore se that ye eate not leuended bread, but in all your habitations eate swete bread.

And Moyses called for thee elders of Israell & sayde vnto them: chose out & ta ke to euery houshold a shepe, & kyll passe= ouer. And take a bunch of ysope, & dyppe it in it in the bloud that is in the basyn, & stryke it vpon the vpper post and on the two syde postes, and see that none of you goo out at the dore of his house vntyl the mor nynge. For the Lord wyll goo about and smyte Egypte. And when he seeth thee bloud vpō the vpper dorepost and on the two syde postes, he wyll ouer passe ouer thee dore, and wyll not suffer thee destroyer to come into your house to plage you. Ther fore see that thou obserue thys thynge, that it be an ordinaūce to the and thy son-

And when ye be come into thee lande whych the Lord wyll geue the accordinge as he hath promysed, se that ye kepe thys seruyce. * And when youre chyldren axe you what maner of seruice is thys ye do?
Ye shal say: it is the sacrifice of the lordes passeouer, whyche passed ouer the houses of the chyldren of Israel in Egypt, as he smote the Egyptyans and saued our hou ses. Than the people bowed them selues and worshypped. And the chyldre of Isra ell went, and dyd as the Lord had cōmaū ded Moyses and Aaron.

E And at mydnyght the Lorde smote all the fyrstborne in the lande of Egypte, frō the fyrstborne of Pharao that satt on his seat, vnto the fyrstborne of ÿ captiue that was in pryson, and all the fyrste borne of cattel. Thā Pharao arose the same night and all hys seruauntes and all the Egiptians: * and ther was a great cryeng tho-row out Egypte, for there was no house where ther was not one dead.

And he called vnto Moyses & Aaron by nyght sayinge: Ryse vp and gette you out from amonge my people: both ye and also thee chyldren of Israell, & go & serue the Lord as ye haue sayd. And take your shepe, and your oxen wyth you as ye haue sayde, & departe & blesse me also. And the Egyptians were ferce vpon the people, & made hast to send them oute of the lande: for they sayd: we be all dead men.

And the people toke the dough before it was sowered whych they had in stoare, and bounde it in clothes, & putte it vppon theyr shoulders. And the chyldren of Israell dyd according to the saying of Moy ses: & they borowed of the Egyptiās, Jewels of siluer, & iewels of gold, & raymēt.

And the Lord gaue the people fauour in the syght of the Egyptians: & so they borowed and robbed the Egyptians.

And they baked swete cakes of the dough whych they brought out of Egypt, for it was not sowered: because they were thru-ste out of Egipt and coulde not tarye, nether had they prepared any other prouysy on of meate.

And the tyme of the dwellinge of thee chyldren of Israel whych they dwelled in G Egypte, was. iiii. hundred and. xxx. yeare.
And when the. iiii. hūdred and. xxx. yeares were expyred, euen the selfe same daye departed al the hostes of the Lord out of the lande of Egypt. This is a nyght to be ob serued to thee Lorde, because he broughte them out of the lande of Egypt. Thys is a nyght of the Lorde to be kepte of al the chyldren of Israel, and of theyr generaci-ons after them.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moyses and Aarō: this is the maner of passeouer: ther shal no straunger eate therof, but all thee seruauntes that are bought for money shal ye circumcyse, & then let them eate therof.
A straunger & a hyered seruaunt shal not eate therof. In one house shal it be eaten.
Ye shal carye none of the fleshe out at the dores: moreouer * se that ye breake not a Joh. xix. d. bone therof. All the multitude of the chyl dren of Israell shal obserue it.

Yf a straunger dwell among you and wyll holde passeouer vnto the Lord, lette hym circumcyse all that be males, and thē let hym come & obserue it, and be takē as one that is borne in the land. No vncircū cysed person shal eate therof. One maner of lawe shalbe vnto them that are borne in the lande, and vnto the straungers that dwell amonge you. And all the chyldren of Israel dyd as the Lorde commaunded Moyses and Aaron. And euen the self sa me daye dyd the Lord bring the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egipt with theyr armyes.

And Moses sayd vnto the people: thynke on thys day in whych ye came out of Egypte and out of the house of bondage: for wyth a myghtye hande thee Lorde brought you out from thence. Se therfore that ye eate no leuended bread. Thys daye come ye out of Egypt in the moneth of * Abib.

* That is ȳ moneth of Apryll.

When the Lorde hath brought the into the lande of the Cananytes, Hethytes, Amorites, Heuytes and Jebusytes, whyche he sware vnto thy fathers that he wolde geue the a land wherin mylcke and hony floweth, then se that thou kepe thys seruice in thys same moneth.

B Seuen dayes thou shalt eate swete bread: * and the.vii. day shalbe feastfull vnto the Lord. Therfore thou shalte eate swete breade seuen dayes, & se that ther be no leuended bread sene nor yet leuen amonge you in all your quarters.

Deut.xvi.b

And thou shalt shewe thy sonne at that tyme saying: thys is done, because of that whych the Lord dyd vnto me when I came out of Egypte. Therfore it shall be a sygne vnto the, vpon thyne hande a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, ȳ the Lordes lawe maye be in thy mouth. For ☞ wyth a stronge hande the Lorde brought thy out of Egypt, se thou kepe therfore thys ordynaunce in hys season from yeare to yeare.

Morouer when the Lord hath brought the into the lande of the Cananytes, as he hath sworne vnto the and to thy fathers, and hath geuen it the, then thou shalte appoynte vnto thee Lorde all that openeth the matryce, all the fyrst borne among the beastes whych thou hast yf they be males.

C And all the fyrste borne of the asses, thou shalte redeme wyth a shepe: yf thou redeme hym not, then breake hys necke. But all the fyrste borne amonge thy chyldren shalt thou bye oute.

And when thy sonne axeth the in tyme to come, sayinge: what is thys, thou shalt saye vnto hym: wyth a myghty hande the Lorde brought vs oute of Egipte, out of the house of bondage. And when Pharao was looth to lett vs goo, the Lorde slewe all the fyrst borne in the lande of Egypte: as well the fyrste borne of men as of beastes. And therfore I sacryfyce vnto thee Lord al the males that open the matryce, but all the fyrste borne of my chyldren I must redeme. And thys shalbe as a token in thyne hand, and as a thyng hanged vp betwene thyne eyes, because thee Lorde brought vs out of Egypt wyth a myghtye hande.

D When Pharao had let the people goo, God caryed them not thorow the land of the Philistines, though it were a nye way. For God sayde: the people myght happely repent when they se warre, and so turne agayne to Egypt: therfore God led them aboute thorowe thee wyldernes that bordreth on the red sea. The chyldren of Israell went harnessed oute of the lande of Egypt. And Moyses toke the bones of Joseph wyth hym: for he made the chyldre of Israel sweare sayinge: * God wyll surely vysit you, take my bones therfore awaye hence wyth you. And they toke theyr iourneye from Sucoth: and pytched theyr tentes in Etham in the edge of the wildernes.

And I wyl harden hys hart, that he shall folowe after them, that I may gett me ho nour upon Pharao and upõ all hys host that thee Egypcyans may knowe that I am the lorde. And they dyd euen so.
And when it was tolde the kynge of E B gypt that thee people fled, than Pharaos hart and all hys seruauntes turned unto thee people and sayde: why haue we thys done that we haue let Israel go out of our seruyce? and he made redye his charettes and toke hys people with hym and toke vi.hundred chosen charettes and all the charettes of Egypte and captaynes upon C all his people. For the lorde hardened the D herte of Pharao kynge of Egypt, that he [illegible] folowed after the chyldren of Israel whi them and ouertoke them, where they pyt= Hiroth before Baal zephon. And Pharao drewe nye, and when the chyldren of Jsra ell lyfte up theyr eyes and sawe howe the Egypcyans folowed after thē, they were D sore a frayde & cryed out unto the Lorde.

Then sayde they unto Moyses: were there noo graues for us in Egypte, but ÿ must brynge us awaye for to dye in ÿ wyl dernesse? wherfore hast ÿ serued us thus for to cary us out of Egypt? Dyd not we tell the this in Egypte sayng, let us be in rest and serue the Egypcyans? For it had bene better for us to haue serued the Egip cyans, then for to dye in the wyldernesse.
And Moises sayd unto the people: feare ye not but stande styl and behold how the Lorde shall saue you this day: For as ye se the Egypciās this day, so shal ye se thē nomore for euer tyll the worldes ende.
The Lorde shall fyght for you and ye shall holde youre peace.
The Lorde sayde unto Moses: wher

But lyfte thou up thy rod and stretch out thy hand ouer the see and deuyde it a sun hys hande ouer the see, thee Lorde caryed awaye thee see wyth a stronge east wynde that blewe al nyght and made the see drie lande and the water deuyded it selfe. And the chyldren of Israel went in thorow the myddest of the see upon the drye grounde And the water was a wale unto thē, both on theyr ryghthande and on theyr left hād F And the Egyptyans folowed and wente in after thē to the myddest of the see, with al Pharaos horses, & hys charettes & hys horssemen. And in thee mornynge watche the Lorde loked unto the hoste of thee E= gipcyans out of the fyery and cloudy pil theyr charet wheles and cast them downe to the grounde. Than sayde the Egypcy fyghteth for thē agaynste us: Than said the lorde unto Moses: stretch oute thyne hād ouer the see, that the water may come agayne upon the Egypcyans upon theyr G

Than stretched forth Moses hys hāde ouer the see, & it came agayne to hys course erly in the mornyng, and the Egyptiās fled agaynst it. Thus the lorde ouerthrew the Egypcians in the myddest of thee see and couered the charettes & the horsmen so that of all ye hoste of Pharao that came in to the see after thē, ther remayned not one But the chyldren of Israell wente vpon drye lande in thee myddyst of the see, and the water was a wall vnto them: both on the ryght hand of thē and also on the left.

Esay. lxiii. d

* Thus the lorde delyuered Israell the selfe same daye out of the honde of the Egiptiās, & Israel sawe the Egiptiās dead vpō the see. And whē Israel saw ye mighty hand whych the Lorde had shewed vpon thee Egypcians * they feared the Lorde and beleued both the Lorde, and also hys seruaunte Moses.

Moyses ascendeth vp to the mount and wryteth the wordes of the LORDE. The bloude of the couenaunt. The elders of Israell iudge the people.

AND he sayde vnto Moyses: come vnto ye lord: bothe thou A and Aaron, Nadab & Abihu & the.lxx. elders of Israell, & worship a farre of. And Moses went hym selfe alone vnto the Lorde, but they came not nye, neyther came thee people vp wyth hym. * And Moses came & told the people al the wordes of the lord and all the lawes. And all the people answered wyth one voyce & sayd: al the wor des whych the Lorde hath sayde, wyll we doo. Then Moyses wrote all the wordes of the Lord, & rose vp early and made an B aulter vnder the hyl, and.xii. pylers accor dynge to the nombre of thee.xii. trybes of Israel, and sent yonge men of the chyldre of Israell to sacryfyce burntoffervnges
and

and to offer a peaceoffringes of oxe vnto the Lord. And Moyses toke halfe of the bloud & put it in basens, and the other hal fe he sprenkled on the alter.
And he toke the boke of the apoyntmēt & red it in the audience of the people. And they sayd. All that the Lord hath sayd, we wyll do and heare. And Moyses toke the bloud and sprynkeld it on the people and C sayde: beholde, thys is the bloud of the ap poyntment which the Lord hath made vpon all these wordes.
Then went Moyses & Aaron, Nadab and Abihu & the .lxx. elders of Israel vp, and b sawe the God of Israel, and vnder his feate as it were a bricke worke of Sa phir and as it were thee facyon of heauen when it is cleare, and vpon the nobles of the chyldren of Israell he set not hys han de. And when they had sene God they ate and dronke.
And the Lorde sayd vnto Moyses: co me vp to me into the hyll and be ther, and I wyl geue the tables of stone and a law and commaundementes, whyche I haue wrytten to teache thē. Then Moyses rose vp & his mynister Iosua, & Moses went vp into the hyll of God, & sayde vnto the elders: tarye ye here vntil we come agayn vnto you: And beholde here is Aaron and D Hur wyth you. If any mā haue any mat ters to do let hym come to them. When Moses was come vp in to the mounte, a clowde couered the hyll, & the c glorye of thee Lorde abode vpon mounte Sinai, and the cloude couered it .vi. dayes. And the seuenthe daye he called vnto Moyses out of the cloude. And the facyon of thee glorie of the Lorde was lyke consumyng the chyldren of Israell. * And Moyses wente into the mountayne. And Moyses was in the mounte fourtye dayes and .xl nyghtes.

a Peaceoffring is to reconcyle God to ward men, to be at peace wyth them and to forgeue them theyr trespaces: or as some men saye for peace obtayned after victory in batayle, as afore in the .xvii. chapter .b. and here after .xxxii. b.

b They sawe god: that is, they knewe certeynly that he was there presente and they saw hym as in a vision, not in hys godly maiestie, but as it were by a certayn reuelacion.

c Of thys glorye is spoken afore in the .xvi. Chapter.

¶ The table of shewbread with the loues of bread vpon it, and hys other vessels.

And thou shalte make a mercyseate of pure golde .ii. cubytes and an halfe longe and a cubyte and an halfe brode. And ma ke .ii. Cherubyns of thycke golde on thee ii. endes of the mercyseate: and set the one Cherub on the one ende, and thee other on the other ende of the mercyseate, so se that thou make them on the two endes there-therof. And the Cherubyns shall stretche theyr wynges abrode ouer an hye, and couer the mercyseate wythe theyr wynges, ⁊ theyr faces shall loke one to another: euen to the mercyseate warde, shall the faces of the Cherubins be. And thou shalt put the mercyseate aboue vpon the arcke, ⁊ in the arcke thou shalt put the wytnesse whyche I wyll geue the.

There I wyl mete the and wyl comon with the frō vpon the mercyseate from betwene the two Cherubyns which are vpō the arke of wytnesse, ⁊ of al thing whyche I wyll geue the in cōmaūdemēt vnto the chyldren of Israell.

C Thou shalt also make a table of sethim wood of two cubytes longe ⁊ one cubyte brode and a cubytt and an half hye. And couer it wyth pure golde, ⁊ make therto a crowne of gold round aboute. And make vnto that an whope of .iiii. fingers brode, round aboute. And make a golden crowne also to ȳ whope round aboute. And make for it .iiii. rynges of golde ⁊ put thē in the corners that ar on the .iiii. fete therof: euē harde vnder the whope shal the ringes be to put in staues to beare the table wythal. And thou shalt make staues of Sethym wood ⁊ ouerlaye them with gold, that the table may be borne wyth them. And thou shalt make hys dysshes, spones, pottes ⁊ flatpeces to poure out wythal, of fyne golde. And thou shalt sette vpon the table, a‡ shewebread before me al waye.

C The facion of the candelsticke, wyth his lampes snoffers and other necessarye.

And thou shalt make a candelstick of pure thicke golde with his shaft, brāches, D bolles, knoppes and floures proceadynge ther out. Syxe braūches shal procede out of the sydes of the candelsticke. iii. oute of the one syde ⁊ .iii. out of the other. And there shalbe .iii. cuppes lyke vnto almondes wyth knoppes ⁊ floures vpon euery one of the vi. braūches that procede out of the cādelsticke: ⁊ in the candelstick self. iiii. cuppes lyke vnto almōdes wyth theyr knoppes ⁊ floures: that ther be a knop vnder euery .ii. braunches of the syxe that procede out of the cādelsticke. And ther knoppes and the braunches shalbe all together, one pece of pure thycke golde.

And thou shalt make .vii. lampes and put thē an hye theron, to geue lighte vnto the other syde that is ouer against it: with snoffers ⁊ fyre pannes of pure gold. And an hundred pounde weyght of fyne gold shall make it wyth all the apparell. * And se that thou make thē after the facion that was shewed the in the mounte.

And for the west end of the habytacyō shalt yu make syxe bordes & .ii. bordes moo for ye twoo west corners of the habitacyon so that thes two bordes be coupled together beneth and lykewyse aboue with clāpes. And so shall it be in both the corners.
And so there shalbe .viii. bordes in all ād xvi. sokettes of syluer .ii. sockettes vnder euery borde.
And thou shalt make barres of sethim F wod fyue for the bordes of the syde of the tabernacle, and fyue for the other syde: ād fyue for the bordes of the west ende, And the myddle barr shall goo alonge thorowe the myddes of the bordes and barre them together from the one ende vnto the other And thou shalte couer thee bordes wythe golde and make goldenrynges for them to put the barres thorow, and shalt couer thee barres wythe golde also. And rere vp the habitacion according to the fa cyon thereof that was shewed thee in thee mounte.
And thou shalte make a vayle of Ja-

Aarons apparell, and hys sonnes.

The .xxviii. Chapter.

A And take thou vnto the Aarō thy brother and hys sonnes wyth hym, from amonge the childrē of Israel, that he may mynister vnto me, both Aarō Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, & Ithamar Aarons sonnes. And thou shalte make holye rayment for Aaron thy brother, both honorable and glorious. Moreouer speake vnto all that are wyse harted, which I haue fylled with the spirite of wysdom: that they make Aarons rayment to consecrate him with, that he maye minister vnto me.

These are the garmentes whyche they shall make: a a brestlap, Ephod, a tunicle a strayte cote, a myter and a gyrdell. And they shal make holy garmentes for Aarō thy brother & his sonnes that he may minister vnto me. And they shall take therto golde, Jacinct, scarlett, purpull and bisse.

B And they shal make the Ephod of golde, Jacinct, scarlett, purpull, and whyte twyned bysse with broderd worke. The twoo sydes shal come together, closed vp in the edges thereof. And the gyrdell of thee Ephod shall be of the same workemanshyp and of the same stuffe, euen of golde, Jacincte, scarlette, purpull and twyned bisse.

And thou shalt take two Onix stones, and graue in thē the names of the chyldrē of Israel: sixe in the one stone, & the other sixe in the other stone: according to the order of theyr birth. After the worke of a stone grauer, euē as signettes are grauē, shalte thou graue the .ii. stones with ye names of the childrē of Israel, & shalte make thē to be set in ouches of gold. And thou shalte put the two stones vpon the two shoulders of the Ephod, and they shalbe stones of remembraunce vnto the childrē of Israell. And Aaron shall beare theyr names

a Urim and Thumim, are Hebrue wordes: Urim signifieth light & Thumim perfectnes: & I thinke yͤ the one were stones that dyd glyster & had lyghte in thē, & the other clere stones as cristal. And the lyghte betokened the lyght of gods worde, & that purenesse cleane lyuinge according to the same, & was therfore called the ensample of the childre of Israel, because it put them in the remembraunce to seke Goddes worde and to doo there after.

wyth a grauer and made it a calfe of mol ten metall. And they sayde: *Thys is thy iii.reg.xii.f God O Israel, whych brought the out of the lande of Egypte.

And when Aarō sawe that, he made an B alter before it, & made a proclamaciō say=

Lord. And they rose vp in the mornyng & offered burntoffrynges, and brought of= frynges of attonemēt also. *And thā they i.Corin.x.b satt them downe to eate and drinke, & rose vp agayne to playe.

Then the Lord sayd vnto Moyses: * Deute.ix.b go gett the downe, for the people whyche thou broughtest out of the land of Egipt haue marred al, they ar turned at once out of the waye which I cōmaūded thē: *and Psal.c.v.c haue made thē a calfe of molten metall, & haue worshypped it & haue offred therto sede as the starres of heauen, and all thys lande whyche I haue sayde: I wyll geue vnto youre seede: and they shall inheret it for euer. And the lord refrayned hym self from that euell, whyche he sayde he wolde do vnto hys people.

And Moyses turned hys backe & wēt downe from the hyl & the.ii.tables of wit nesse in his hand: whyche were wrytten on both the leaues & were the worke of God, and the wrytyng was the wryting of god grauen vpon the tables. And whē Josua herde the noyse of the people as they shou ted, he sayd vnto Moyses: ther is a noyse of warre in the hoste. And he sayd: it is not the crye of them that haue the mastrie, nor of thē that haue the worse: but I do heare the noyse of syngynge.
And as soone as he came nye vnto the E hoste and sawe the calfe and the daūsinge hys wrath waxed hote, and he cast the ta bles out of hys hande and brake thē euen at the hyll fote. And he toke the calfe why che they had made and burned it with fy re, and stampte it vnto powder and straw de it in the water, and made the chyldrē of Israell drynke. And than Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: what dyd thys people vnto the that thou hast brought so great a syn vpon them.
And Aaron sayd: let not the wrathe of my Lorde waxe fearse, thou knowest the people that they are euen set on myschefe: they sayde vnto me: make vs a god to go before vs, for we wote not what is beco me of Moyses thee felowe that broughte vs out of the lande of Egypt. And I sayd vnto them: lett them that haue golde, take and brynge it me: and I cast it into the fy re, and there of came out this calfe.
F When Moyses sawe that thee people were naked (for Aaron had made them na ked vnto theyr shame when they made in surrection) he wēt and stode in the gate of the hoste & sayd: Yf any mā perteyne vn to the Lorde, lett hym come to me. And all the sonnes of Leui gathered them selues together and came vnto hym. And he sayd vnto them, thus sayth the Lord of Israel * put euery man hys swerde by hys syde, and go in and out from gate to gate tho row out the hoste: and slee euery man hys brother, euery mā his frend and euery mā hys neyghbour. And the chyldrē of Leui dyd as Moyses had sayde. * And there were slayne of the people the same day, a boute thre thousande men. Then Moy ses sayd: fyl youre handes vnto the Lord thys day, euery man vpon hys sonne and vpon hys brother: to brynge vpon you a blessynge thys daye.
And on the morow, Moyses sayde vn G to the people: Ye haue synned a great syn But now I wyl go vp vnto the Lord, to wyte whether I can make an attonement for your synne.
And Moyses went agayn vnto the lor de & sayd: Oh, thys people haue synned a great synne & haue made thē a god of gol de: Yet forgeue them theyr synne I praye the: Yf not [a] wype me oute of thy booke which thou hast wrytten. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moyses: I wyll putt hym out of my boke that hath synned agaynst me.
But go & brynge the people vnto the lāde which I sayd vnto the: beholde, myne an gell shall go before the. Neuerthelater in the day whē I vyset, I wyl [b] vyset theyr synne vpon the. And the Lord plaged the people, because they made the calfe which Aaron made.

The Notes.

a To wype hym out of the boke, is to putte hym oute of the nombre of the chosen and too caste hym cleane out from god, as Roma.ix.a b To vyset theyr synnes is to haue theyr synne in remembraunce to punishe it as in Gene.l.b.

¶ The Lorde sendeth an angell before hys people. The Lorde denyeth to goo vp with the people. The people lamēt theyr synne. Moyses talketh wyth the Lorde and desyreth to se hys face: and is commaun ded to stande vpon the roche geue it. * And I wyl sende an angel befo re the, & wyll cast oute the Canaanytes, the Amorites, thee Hethites, thee Pherezites, the Heuithes, & thee Iebusytes: that thou mayst go into a lād that floweth with myl ke and hony. But I wyll not go amonge you my selfe, for ye are a stifnecked people lest I consume you by the way. And whē the people herde thys euel tydynges, they sorowed: and no man dyd put on hys best rayment.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, say vnto the chyldren of Israell: ye are a styf necked people: I must come once sodenly vpon you, and make an ende of you. But now put your goodly rayment from you, that I maye wete what too do vnto you.
And thee chyldren of Israell layde theyr goodly raymēnt from them euē vnder the mount Horeb.

B And Moyses toke the tabernacle & pit ched it without the hoste a farre of frō the hoste, & called it the tabernacle of witnesse And all that wold axe any question of the Lord, wēt out vnto the tabernacle of wyt nesse whych was wythoute the hoste. And when Moyses went out vnto the taberna cle, all the people rose vp & stode euery mā in his tent dore and loked after Moyses, vntyll he was gone into thee tabernacle.
And as soone as Moses was entred into the tabernacle, the cloudē pyler descēded & stode in the dore of the tabernacle, & he tal ked wyth Moyses. And when all the people sawe the clouden pyler stande in the ta bernacle dore, they rose vp & worshipped: euery man in his tent dore.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses a face to face, as a man speaketh vnto hys frende. And whē Moyses turned agayne into the hoste, the ladd Iosua his seruaūt the sonne of Nun departed not out of the tabernacle. And Moyses sayd vnto the lor C de: se, thou sayedst vnto me: leade this peo ple forth, but thou shewest me not whom thou wylt send wyth me. And haste sayde moreouer: I know the by name and thou hast also found grace in my syght: Now therfore, yf I haue founde fauoure in thy syghte, then shewe me thy waye & lette me knowe the: that I may fynde grace in thy syghte. And looke on thys also, howe that thys nacion is thy people.

And he sayd: my presence shal go with the, and I wyl geue the rest. And he sayd: Yf thy presence go not wyth me, carye vs not hense for howe shall it be knowē now that bothe I and thy people haue founde fauour in thy sight, but in that thou goest wyth vs: that bothe I and thy people haue a preeminence before all thee people that are vpon the face of thee earthe. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: I wyl do thys also that thou haste sayde, for thou D hast founde grace in my syght, & I know the by name.

And he sayde: I beseche thee, shewe me thy glorie: And he said: I wyl make al my good go before the, and I wyl be called in thys name Iehouah before the, & wyl she we mercy to whom I shewe mercy, & wyll haue compassion on whom I haue compassion. And he sayde furthermore: thou mayst not se my face, for b ther shal nomā se me and lyue.

And the Lord sayd: beholde, there is a place by me, and thou shalt stande vpon a rocke, and whyle my glorye goeth forth I wyl put the in a clyfte of the rocke, & wyll put myne hand vpō the whyle I passe by And then I wyl take a way myne hand, & thou shalt se my backe partes: but my face shall not be sene.

a To se God, or to speake to God face too face, is to haue a manifeste & a sure knowledge of hym, as in Genesis. xxxii. g b Ther shal no man se my face and lyue. Not ŷ the face of god, which is the face of lyfe, is the cause of death to them that se it, for the saynctes that are in heauē do in dede se it. But that none that lyueth in the body can se nor comprehend the maiestye of his face: but must be fyrst purifyed by death, as Paul declareth. i. Cor. xv. g wrote in the tables the wordes of the coue naunt: euen ten verses.

And Moyses came downe frõ mount Sinai & thee .ii. tables of wytnesse in hys hande, & yet they wyst not that the skynne

of hys face shone wyth beames of his comening wyth hym. And when Aaron and all the chyldren of Israel loked vpõ Moses and sawe that the skynne of hys b face ce shone wyth beames, they were afrayde to come nye hym. But he called them too hym, and then Aaron and all thee chefe of the company came vnto him, and Moses talked wyth them.

And at the last al the chyldrẽ of Israel came vnto hym, and he commaunded thẽ all that the Lorde had sayde vnto hym in mount Sinai. And as soone as he hadde made an ende of comeninge with them, he put a couering vpon hys face. But when he wente before the Lorde to speake wyth him, he toke the couering of vntil he came out. And he came out and spake vnto the chyldren of Israell that whych he was cõmaunded. And the chyldrẽ of Israel sawe the face of Moyses, that the skinne of his face shone with beames: but Moyses put a couerynge vpon hys face, vntyl he went in, to comen wyth hym.

to whom the Lord hath geuē wysdom and vnderstanding to know how to worke al ma ner worke for the holye seruyce, in all that the Lorde cōmaunded. And Moyses called for Bezaleel Aholiab and all the wyse harted men in whose hartes the Lord had put wysdom, euen as many as theyr hartes coraged to come vnto ẏ worke to wor ke it. And they receaued of Moyses al the heueofferinges which the chyldren of Israell had brought for the worke of the ho ly seruyce too make it wythall. And they brought besyde that wyllyng offrynges euery morninge.

And all the wysemen that wrought al the holy worke, came euery man from his worke whych they made, and spake vnto Moses saying: the people bryng to moch and aboue that is ynough to serue for the werke which the Lord hath commaunded to make. And Moyses gaue a commaun pes and thus they dyd to both the corners so they were in all eyght boordes and .xvi sockettes, vnder euery borde .ii. sockettes.

And they made barres of Sethym wood fyue for the bordes of thee one syde of the habytacion, and fyue for the other, and fyue for the boordes of the west ende of the habitacion. And they made the mid dell barre to shote thorowe the bordes: eue from the one ende to thee other, and ouer= layde thee bordes wythe golde and made them ringes of golde to thrust the barres thorow, and couered the barres with gol= de. And they made an hangyng of iacinct of scarlet, purpull and twyned bysse with Cherubins of broderd worke. And made there vnto foure pylers of Sethim wod, and ouerlayde them wyth golde. Theyr knoppes were also of golde, and they cast for them .iiii. sockettes of syluer. And they made an hangyng for the tabernacle dore of Iacinct, scarlette, purpull and twyned bysse of nedle worke, and thee pylers of it were fyue with theyr knoppes, and ouer= layde the heades of them and the whoop= pes with golde, wyth theyr fyue sockettes of brasse.

¶ The arke of witnesse. The mercyseate. The table The candelsticke. The lyghtes. The altare and the incense.

The .xxxvii. Chapter.

And Bezaleel made the arcke A of sethim wodd two cubites and an halfe long, and a cu= byte and a halfe brode, and a cubyte, and a halfe hye and ouerlayde it wyth fyne golde bothe within and wythout, and made a crowne of golde to it rounde aboute, and cast for it .iiii. rynges of golde for the .iiii. corners of it: two rynges for the one syde and two for the other, and made staues of sethym wodd, and couered them with golde, and put thee staues in thee rynges alonge by by the syde of the arcke to bere it wyth al.
And he made the mercyseate of pure golde two cubytes and a halfe longe and one cubyte and a halfe brod, and made two Cherubyns of thycke gold vpon the ii. endes of ye merciseate: One Cherub on B thee one ende and a nother Cherub on the other ende of the merciseate. And the Che rubyns spred out theyr wynges aboue an hye, and couered thee mercyseat ther= with. And their faces were one to anōther: euen to thee mercyseate warde, were thee faces of the Cherubyns.
And he made the table of sethem wodd two cubytes longe and a cubyte brode, & a cubite and a halfe highe, and ouerlayde it with fine golde, & made therto a crown of golde rounde about, and made therto an whope of an hande brede rounde about and made vnto thee whope a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and cast for it .iiii. ringes of golde and put the ringes in the iiii. corners by thee fete: euen vnder thee whope to put staues in to bere thee table with all. And he made staues of Sethim wodd & couered the wythe golde to beare C the table with all, and made the vessels ye were on the table of pure golde, the dys= shes, spones, flatpeces & pottes to poure with all.
And he made the candelstycke of pure thycke golde: bothe the candelstycke and hys shafte: with braunches, bolles, knop= pes and floures procedyng out of it. Sixe braunches procedynge oute of the sydes therof .iii. out of the one syde, and .iii. oute of the other. And on euerye braunche were .iii. cuppes lyke vnto almondes w knoppes and floures thorow out the syxe braunches that proceade out of the candel stycke. And vppon the candelstycke selfe were.iiii.cuppes after the facyon of almō des wyth knoppes and floures: vnder euery two braunches a knoppe. And the knoppes and the braunches proceded out of it, and were all one pece of pure thicke golde. And he made seuen lampes therto and the snoffers thereof, and fyre pannes of pure golde. An hundred weyght of pu D re golde made bothe it and all that belōged therto.

And he made the cens alter of Sethim wodd of a cubyte longe and a cubite brode: euē foure square, and two cubytes hye wyth hornes procedinge oute of it. And he couered it wythe pure golde, bothe thee toppe and the sydes round about and the hornes of it, and made vnto it a crowne of golde rounde about. And he made two rynges of golde vnto it, euen vnder thee crown vpon ether syde of it, to put staues in for to beare it withal: and made staues of Sethimwodd, and ouerlayde thē with golde. And he made the holy anoyntynge oyle and thee swete pure incens after thee apotecaryes crafte.

a ¶ Mercyseate was the place where god spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, which was vpō the arke of witnesse fyguringe Christe as it is sayde, Hebrues.ix.b

¶ The altare of burntofferinges. The brasen lauer The summe of that the people offred to the buyldinge of the habitacion of the Lorde.

The.xxxviii.Chapter.

A And he made the burntofferynge alter of Sethim wodd. v. cubytes longe and fiue cubytes brode euē.iiii.square, & iii.cubytes hye. And he made hornes in thee.iiii.corners of it proceadinge oute of it, and ouerlayde it with brasse And hemade al the vessels of the alter: the cauldrons, shouels, basyns, fleshhokes and colepānes al of brasse.

And he made a brasen gredyern of net worke vnto the alter rounde about alowe beneth vnder the compasse of the alter: so so that it reached vnto halfe the alter, and caste.iiii.rynges of brasse for thee.iiii.endes of the gredyern to put staues in. And he made staues of Sethim wood and couered thē wyth brasse, & put the staues in the ringes alōge by the alter syde to beare it with al, and made the alter holowe with bordes. And he made the lauer of brasse B & the fote of it also of brasse in the syghte of them that dyd watch before the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And he made the courte wyth hangynges of twyned bysse of an hundred cubytes longe vpon the southsyde, and.xx. pylers with.xx sockettes of brasse: but thee knoppes of the pylers and thee whopes were syluer. And on ŷ northsyde ŷ hānginges were an hundred cubytes longe with xx.pylers and.xx.sockettes of brasse, but thee knoppes & the whopes of the pylers were of syluer: And on the west syde, were hangynges of.l.cubytes longe, and.x. pylers wyth theyr.x.sockettes, and the knoppes and thee whopes of thee pylers were siluer. And on thee east syde towarde thee sonne rysyng, were hāgynges.l. cubytes: the hangynges of the onesyde of the gate were fyftene cubytes longe. and theyr pylers.iii.wyth theyr.iii. sockettes. And of the other syde of the court gate were hangynges also of: xv. cubytes longe, and theyr pylers.iii.wyth.iii.sockettes. Now C all thee hangynges of thee courte rounde a boute, were of twyned bysse, and the sockettes of thee pylers were brasse: but thee knoppes and the whoopes of thee pylers were syluer, and ŷ heedes were ouerlayde wyth siluer, and all the pylers of ŷ courte were whoped aboute with siluer. And the hangynge of the gate of the courte was nedle worke, of iacinct, scarlet, purple and twyned bysse: xx.cubytes longe and fyue in the bredth accordyng to the hanginges of the court. And the pylers were.iiii.with iiii.sockettes of brasse, and the knopes of syluer, and the heedes ouerlayde wyth syluer and whoped about with siluer, and al the pynnes of the tabernacle & of ŷ courte round aboute were brasse.

This is the summe of the habytacyon of witnesse, whych was counted at the cō maundement of Moses: and was the offyce of the Leuytes by the hand of Ithamar sonne to Aaron the preast. ¶ The makyng of Aaron and hys sonnes apparel Al that the Lorde commaunded was offered.

The.xxxix. Chapter.

AND of thee iacyncte, scarlet A purple and twined bisse, they made the vestymētes of my= nistraciō to do seruice in that holy place, and made the holi garmentes that pertayned to Aaron, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they made the Ephod of gold, ia= cincte scarlett, purple, and twyned bysse.
And they dyd beate the golde into thynne plates, and cutte it into wyres: to worke it in thee iacincte, scarlet, purple and thee bysse, wt broderd worke, And they made the sydes come to gether, and closed them vp by the two edges. And the broderynge of the gyrdell that was vpō it, was of the same stuffe and after the same worcke of golde, Iacincte, scarlette, purpul and twy ned bysse, as the LORD commaunded Moyses.

And they wrought Onix stones closed B in ouches of golde and graued as signet= tes are grauen wyth the names of the chil dren of Israel, & putt thē on the shoulders of the Ephod that they shuld be a remem braunce of the chyldren of Israel, as thee Lord commaunded Moyses.

And they made thee brestlappe of con= nyng worke, after the worke of the Ephod C euen of golde, Iacinct, scarlett, purpull & twyned bysse. And they made it.iiii.squa= re and double, an hand breadth long and an hande breadeth brode. And they fylled it with.iiii.rowes of stones (the fyrst rowe Sardios, a Topas and *Smaragdus: *Or an Eme raude. the seconde rowe, a ‡ Rubye, a Saphir & ‡Or a carbū cle. a Diamond: the thyrd rowe, Ligurios an Achat and an Amarist: the fourth rowe: a Turcas, an Onix and a Iaspis) closed in ouches of golde in theyr inclosers. And the.xii. stones were grauen as sygnettes wyth the names of the chyldren of Israel euery stone wyth hys name, accordinge to the.xii.trybes.

And they made vpon the brestlap, two fastenynge cheynes of wrethen worke and D pure golde. And they made two hokes of gold and two golde ringes, & put the two ringes vpon the two corners of the brest= lappe. And they putte the two cheynes of golde in the two ringes, in thee corners of the brestlappe. And the two endes of thee two cheynes they fastened in thee two ho= kes, and put them on the shoulders of the Ephod vpon the forefront of it.

And they made two other rynges of golde and put them on the two other cor= ners of the brestlappe a longe vpō the ed= ge of it, towarde the insyde of the Ephod that is ouer agaynst it. And they made yet two other gold rynges, and putt them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth on the foresyde of it: euen where the sydes go to gether, aboue vpon thee broderynge of the Ephod, and they strayned the brestlap by hys rynges vnto the rynges of the E= phod, with laces of iacincte, that it might lye fast vpõ the brodrynge of the Ephod and shulde not be lowsed frõ the Ephod:

as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he made the tunycle vnto the E E phod of wouẽ worke, and all together of iacinte, & the head of ÿ tunycle was in the myddest of it as thee coler of a partlet, w a bonde rounde aboute thee coler, that it shulde not rent. And they made beneth vpon the hem of thee tunycle: pomgrana-tes of iacinte, scarlet, purple and twyned bysse. And they made lytle belles of pure golde and put thẽ amonge the pomgranates rounde aboute vpõ the edge of the tunycle a bell and a pomgranate, a bell and a pomgranate rounde aboute thee hemmes of the tunicle to mynystre in, as the Lord commaunded Moyses.

And they made cotes of bisse of wouẽ worke for Aarõ & hys sõnes, & a mytre of bisse, & goodly bonetes of bisse & lynẽ bre ches of twined bisse, & a gyrdel of twined bisse, iacinct, scarlet & purple: euẽ of nedle worke as the Lorde commaunded Moy F ses. And they made the plate of the holye croune of fyne golde, and wrote vpon it wyth grauen worke, thee holynes of thee Lorde: and tyed it to a lace of iacincte to fasten it an hye vpon thee mytre, as thee Lorde commaunded Moses.

Thus was all the worke of the habytacyon of thee tabernacle of wytnesse fy-nysshed. And the chyldren of Israell dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde had com maũded Moses. And they brought ÿ habi tacyon vnto Moses: thee tent and all hys apparell therof: thee battons, boordes, barres, pylers, pylers and sockettes, and G the coueryng of rams skynnes red and ÿ couerynge of taxus skynnes, and the hanging vayle and the arcke of wytnes with the staues therof, and the mercy seate: the table and all the ordynaunce therof, and the shewbred, and thee pure candelstycke, the lampes prepared there vnto wyth all the vessels therof, and thee oyle for lyghtes, and thee golden alter, and the anoyn-tynge oyle and the swete cens, and the hã gynge of thee tabernacle doore, and thee brasen alter, and thee gredyren of brasse longyng ther vnto wyth hys barres and al his vessels, and the lauer with his fote and the hanginges of the court with hys pylers and sockettes, and the hangyng to the courte gate, hys boordes and pynnes and all the ordinaunce that serueth to the habytacyon of the tabernacle of wytnesse and the mynistring vestimentes to serue in the holy place and the holy vestymen-tes of Aaron thee preast and hys sonnes raymentes to mynister in: accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses: euen so the chyldre of Israel made all the worke. And Moses behelde al the worke: and se, they had done it euen as thee Lord commaunded: and then Moses blessed them.

The tabernacle is reared vp. The glory of the lord appereth in a cloude couering the tabernacle.

The .xl. Chapter.

And the Lord spake vn to Moses sayinge: In A the fyrst day of ÿ fyrst moneth shalte thou sett vp thee habytacyon of ÿ tabernacle of witnes and put therin the arcke of wytnesse, and couer the arcke wyth the vayle, and bryn-ge in thee tabernacle and apparell it, and bringe in the candelstycke and put on his lampes, and sett thee cence alter of golde before the arcke of wytnesse, and put the hanging of the dore vnto the habytacyõ.
And set the burntoffryng alter before the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse and set the lauer betwene ÿ tabernacle of wytnes and thee alter and putt water therin, and make the court rounde about, and set vp the hangynge of the courte gate.

And take the anoyntinge oyle and an B noynte the habitacion and al that is there in, and halowe it and all that belongethe therto: that it maye be holy. And anoynte thee alter of thee burnt offrynges and all hys vessels, and sanctyfye thee alter that it may be moste holy. And anoynte also the lauer and hys fote, and sanctyfye it.

Than bryng Aaron and his sonnes vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes and washe them wyth water. And putte vppon Aaron the holye vestymentes, and annoynte hym and sanctyfye hym that he maye mynister vnto me, that theyr anoyn tynge maye be an euerlastyng priesthode vnto them thorowe oute theyr generatiõs And Moyses dyd accordynge to all that

Lorde commaunded hym.

Thus was the tabernacle reared vp C the fyrst daye in the fyrst moneth in the se conde yere. And Moses reared vp the tabernacle and fastened hys sockettes, and set vp the bordes and put in theyr barres and reared vp the pylleres, & spred abrode the tent ouer the habytacyon, and put the couerynge of thee tent an hye aboue it: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he toke and put the testymonye in the arcke, & set thee staues to the arcke, and put the mercyseate an hye vpon thee arcke, and brought the arke into the haby tacyō and hanged vp the vayle and coue red the arcke of wytnesse, as the Lord cō-maunded Moses.

And he put the table in the tabernacle of wytnesse in the north syde of habytacy on with out the vayle, and set thee breade in ordre before the Lorde, euen as ye Lord had commaunded Moses.

And he put the candelstycke in the tabernacle of wytnesse ouer agaynst the table in the south syde of the habytacō, and set vp the lampes before the Lord: as the Lord commaunded Moses. And he put the golden alter in the tabernacle of wyt-nesse before the vayle, & brent swete cens theron as the Lorde commaunded Moy ses. And set vp the hangynge in the dore of the habytacion, & set the burntoffrynge alter before the dore of thee tabernacle of wytnesse, and offred burntoffrynges and meatofferynges theron as the Lorde com maunded Moses.

D ❧ And he set the lauer betwene thee tao.xxx.c. bernacle of wytnes and the alter, and pou red water therin to wasshe wyth all. And both Moses, Aaron and his sonnes was-shed theyr handes and theyr fete thereat: bothe when they went into the tabernacle of wytnesse, or when they wente to the alter, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.
And he reared vp the courte round about the habytacyon and the alter, and sett vp the hangyng of the court gate: & so Moy ses fynysshed the worke.

Num.ix.c. And the cloude couered the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the glorye of thee Lorde fylled the habytacyō: so that Moses coul de not enter into the tabernacle of wytnes se, because the cloud abode therin, and the glorye of the Lorde fylled the habytacyō.

When thee cloude was taken vppe from of the habitacyon, the chyldren of Israell toke theyr iorneyes as ofte as they hadde iorneyed. And yf the cloude departed not, they iorneyed not tyll it be parted: for the cloude of the Lorde was vpon the habitacion by day, and fyre by nyght in the syght of al the house of Israell in all theyr iorneyes.

¶ The ende of the secōd boke of Moyses.

A Prologe vpon the thyrd Boke of Moyses called Leuiticus.

THe Ceremonies which ar descri-bed in the boke folowing, were chiefely ordeyned of God, (as I sayd in the ende of the Prologe vppon Exodi) to occupye the myndes of that people the Israelytes, and to kepe them from seruinge of God after the ymagynacion of theyr blynde zele and good entente: that theyr consciences might be stablysshed & they sure that they pleased God therin, whych were impossyble yf a man dyd of his owne head that whych was not commaūded of God nor depended of any appoyntmēt made betwene hym and God.

Soche Ceremonies were vnto them as an. A. B. C. to lerne to spelle and read, and as a nursse to fede them wyth mylke and pappe, and to speake vnto them after theyr owne capacyte and to lispe the wordes vnto them acordyng as the Babes and chyldren of that age myght sounde than agayne. For all that were before Christ were in the infancye and chyldhoode of the worlde, and sawe that sonne whych we se openlye but thorowe a cloude and hadd but feble and weake ymaginacions of Christ as chyldrē haue of mennes dedes, a fewe Prophetes excepte whych yet described hym vnto other in sacrifices and Ceremonies, lykenesses, rydles Prouerbes, and darke and straunge speakinge vntyll thee full age were come that God woulde shewe hym openly vnto the whole worlde, and delyuer them from theyr shadowes and cloudelyghte and the Hethen oute of theyr dead slepe of starcke blynde ignorancye. And as the shadowe vanysheth awaye at the commynge of thee lyghte, euen so doo the Ceremonies and sacryfyces at thee commynge of Christe, and are henceforth noo more necessarye, then a token lefte in remembraunce of a bargayn is necessarye when the bargayne is fulfylled. And though they seme playne chyldish yet they be not all together fruytelesse: as the popettes and twentye maner of tryfles whyche mothers permytte vnto theyr yonge chyldren, be not all in vayne. For al beit that soche phantasyes be permytted to satysfye the chylders lustes, yet in that they ar the mothers gyfte, and be done in place and tyme at hyr commaundement, they kepe the chyldren in awe and make them know the mother, and also make them more apte agaynst a more stronger age to obaye in thynges of greater ernestе.

And moreouer thoughe sacryfyces and Ceremonies can be no grounde or foundacion to bylde vpon: that is, though we can proue noughte wyth them: yet whē we haue once founde oute Christe and hys mysteryes, then we maye borowe fygures, that is to saye allegoryes, similitudes or examples to open Christe and the secretes of God hydde in Christe euen vnto the quycke, and to declare them more lyuely and sensibly wyth them than wyth all the wordes of the worlde. For similitudes haue more vertue and power wyth them than bare wordes, and leade a mans wyttes further in to the pythe and marye & spyrytuall vnderstandinge of the thinge, than all thee wordes that can be ymagyned. And thoughe also that all the Ceremonies and sacryfices haue as it were a sterrelyghte of Christe, yet some there be that haue as it were thee lyghte of the brode daye a lytle before the sonne rysinge, and expresse hym, and the circumstaunces and vertue of hys death so playnly as yf we shulde playe hys passyon

on a scaffolde or in a stage playe openlye before the eyes of the people. As the scape goote, the brasen serpente, the oxe burnte wythoute the hooste, the passeouer lambe, &c. In so moche that I am fullye persuaded and cannot but beleue that God had shewed Moyses the secrettes of Christe and the very maner of hys death before hande, and commaunded hym to ordeyne them for the confyrmacion of oure faythes which ar now in the cleare day lyghte. And I beleue also that the Prophetes which folowed Moyses to confyrme hys prophesyes and to maynteyne his doctryne vnto Christes commynge, were moued by soche thynges to searche further of Christes secretes. And though God wolde not haue thes secretes of Christe generallye knowen saue vnto a fewe familyer frendes whyche in that infancye he made of mans witte to helpe the other Babes: yet as they hadde a generall promyse that one of the sede of Abraham shoulde come and blesse them, euen so they had a generall fayth that God wold by the same man saue them, thoughe they wiste not by what meanes as the verye Apostles when it was oft tolde them yet they coulde neuer comprehende it, tyll it was fulfylled in deade.

And beyonde all thys theyr sacryfyces and Ceremonyes as farreforthe as thee promyses annexed vnto them extende, so farreforthe ther saued them and iustyfyed them and stode them in the same steade as oure Sacramentes doo vs: not by the power of the sacryfyce or deade it selfe, but by the vertue of the faythe in thee promyse whyche the sacryfyce or Ceremonye preached, and whereof it was a token or sygne. For the Ceremonyes and sacryfyces were lefte wythe them and commaunded them to kepe the promyse in remembraunce and to wake vppe theyr faythe. As it is not ynough to sende manye on errandes and to tell them what they shall do: but they must haue a remembraunce wyth them and it be but a rynge of a rushe about one of theyr fyngers. And as it is not ynough to make a bargayne wyth wordes onelye, but we muste putte thereto an othe and geue ernest to confyrme the fayth of the person with whom it is made. And in lyke maner yf a man promyse, what soeuer tryfull it be, it is not beleued excepte he holde vppe hys fynger also, soche is thee wyckednesse of the worlde. And therfore Christe hym selfe vsed ofte tymes dyuerse Ceremonies in curynge the seke, to sturre vppe theyr fayth wythall. As for an ensample it was not the bloude of the lambe that saued them in Egypte, when the angell smote the Egyptyans: but the mercye of God and hys truethe wherof that bloude was a token and remembraunce to sturre vppe theyr faythes wythall. For thoughe God made a promyse, yet it saueth none finallye but them that longe for it and praye God wythe a stronge faythe too fulfyll it for hys mercye and trueth onelye and knowledge theyr vnworthynesse. And euen so oure sacramentes (yf they be truelye mynystred) preach Christe vnto vs and leade oure faythes vnto Christe, by whych faythe oure synnes are done awaye and not by the deade or worke of the Sacrament.

For as it was impossible that the bloude of calues shoulde putte awaye synne: euen so is it impossible that the water of the ryuer shoulde washe oure hartes. Neuerthelesse the Sacramentes clense vs and absolue vs of oure synnes as the Preestes doo, in preachynge of repentaunce and faythe, for whych cause ether other of the were ordeyned, but yf they preache not, whether it be the Prest or the Sacrament, so proffytte they not.

And yf a man allege Christe, Johan in the .iii. Chapter sayinge: Excepte a man be borne agayne of water and the holye goost, he cannot se the kyngdomme of God, and wyll therfore that the holye ghoste is present in the water and therfore the verye deade or worke dothe putt awaye synne: then I wyll sende hym vnto Paule, whych axeth hys Galathyans whether they receaued the holye ghoste by the dede of the law or by preachynge of faythe, and there concludeth that the holye ghoste accompanieth the preachynge of fayth, and wyth the worde of fayth, entreth the harte and purgeth it, whych thou mayeste also vnderstande by Saynte Paul: sayinge: ye are borne a newe oute of the water thorowe the worde. So nowe yf Baptyme preache me thee

wasshinge in Christes bloude, so doth the holye goost accompanye it and that dede of preachynge thorowe faythe dothe putt awaye my synnes. For the holye ghoste is no domme God nor no God that goeth a mummynge. Yf a man saye of the Sacrament of Christes bodye and bloude that it is a sacryfyce as well for thee dead as for thee quycke, and therfore the verye dede it selfe iustyfyeth and putteth awaye synne. I answere that a sacrifice is the sleynge of thee bodye, of a beaste or a man: wherfore yf it be a sacryfyce then is Christes bodye there slayne and hys bloud there shed: but that is not so. And therfore it is properlye no sacryfyce, but a Sacramente and a memoriall of that euerlastynge sacryfyce once for all, whych he offered vpon the crosse, now vpon a.xv.hundred yeares a goo, and preacheth onelye vnto them that are alyue. And as for them that be dead, it is as proffytable vnto them as is a candell in a lanterne wythoute lyghte vnto them that walke by the waye in a darcke nyghte, and as the gospell songe in latyn is vnto them that vnderstande none at al, and as a sermon preached to hym that is dead and heareth it not. It preacheth vnto them that are a lyue onelye, for they that be dead yf they dyed in the faythe whych that Sacrament preacheth, they be safe and are paste all ieoperdye. For when they were alyue theyr hartes loued the lawe of God and therfore synned not and were sorye that theyr members synned and euer moued to synne and therfore thorowe faythe it was forgeuen them. And nowe theyr synnefull members be dead, so that they can nowe synne nomore, wherfore it is vnto them that be dead neyther Sacramente nor sacryfyce: But vnder the pretence of theyr soule health it is a seruaunte vnto oure spyrytualtyes holye couetuousnesse and an extorcyoner and a bylder of Abbayes, Colleges, Chauntryes, and cathedrall Churches wyth false gotten good, a pyckepursse, a pollar, and a bottomlesse bagge.

Some man wolde happelye saye, that the prayers of the masse helpe moch: not the lyuynge onelye, but also the dead. Of the hote fyre of theyr feruent prayer whych consumeth faster then all the worlde is able to brynge sacryfyce, I haue sayde sufficientlye in other places. Howbeit, it is not possyble to brynge me in belefe that thee prayer whych helpeth hyr owne mayster vnto no vertue, shulde purchesse me the forgeuenesse of my synnes. Yf I sawe that theyr prayers hadde obtayned them grace to lyue soche a lyfe as Goddes worde dyd not rebuke, then coulde I sone be borne in hande that whatsoeuer they axed of God theyr prayers shoulde not bee in vayne. But nowe what good can he wysshe me in hys prayers that enuyeth me Christe the foode and the lyfe of my soule? What good can he wysshe me whose harte cleueth a sunder for payne when I am taughte to repente of my euell?

Furthermore because that fewe knowe the vse of the olde Testament, and thee mooste parte thynke it nothinge necessarye but to make allegoryes, which they fayne euerye man after hys owne brayne at all wyldaduenture wythout anye certayne rule: therfore (thoughe I haue spoken of them in another place) yet lest the booke come not to all mennes handes that shall reade thys, I wyl speake of them here also a worde or twayne.

We hadde nede to take hede euerye where that we be not begyled wyth false allegoryes, whether they be drawne oute of the newe Testamente, or the olde, ether oute of anye other storye or of the creatures of the worlde, but namely in thys boke. Here a man hadde nede to putt on all hys spectacles and to arme hym selfe agaynste inuysyble spyrytes.

Fyrst allegoryes proue nothynge (and by allegoryes vnderstande examples or symylytudes, borowed of straunge matters and of another thynge than that thou entreateste of) As thoughe cyrcumcysyon be a fygure of Baptyme, yet thou canste not proue Baptyme by circumcysyon, for thys argumente were verye feble, the Israelytes were circumcysed, therfore we must be Baptysed. And in lyke maner though the offerynge of Isaac were a fygure or ensample of thee resurrection, yet is thys argumente noughte. Abraham wolde haue offered Isaac, but God delyuered hym from death, therfore we shall ryse agayne, and so forthe in all other.

But the very vse of allegoryes is to declare and open a texte that it maye be the better perceaued and vnderstand. As when I haue a cleare texte of Christ and of the Apostles, that I must be baptysed, then I maye borowe an ensample of circumcisyon to expresse the nature, power, and fruyte or effecte of baptyme. For as circumcisyon was vnto them a commen bagge sygnyfyenge that they were all sodiars of God to warre hys warre and separatynge them from all other nacyons disobediente vnto God: euen so baptyme is oure commen bagge and sure earnest and perpetual memoriall that we pertayne vnto Christe, and are separated frome all that are not Christes. And as circumcisyon was a token certifyenge them that they were receaued vnto the fauour of God and theyr synnes forgeuē them: euen so baptyme certyfyeth vs that we are wasshed in thee bloude of Christe, and receaued to fauoure for hys sake, and as circumcision signyfyed vnto them the cuttynge awaye of theyr owne lustes & sleynge of theyr free wyll, as they call it, to folowe the wyll of God, euen so Baptyme sygnyfyeth vnto vs repentaunce and the mortyfyenge of oure vnruly membres and body of synne, to walke in a newe lyfe and so forthe.

And lykewyse though that the sauing of Noe and of them that were wyth him in the shyppe, thorowe water, is a fygure, that is to saye an ensample and lykenesse of Baptyme, as Peter maketh it. i. Petri. iii. yet I cannot proue Baptyme therwyth, saue descrybe it onely, for as the shyppe saued them in the water thorowe fayth, in that they beleued God, and as the other that wolde not beleue Noe peryshed: euen so Baptyme saueth vs thorowe the word of fayth which it preacheth whē al the world of the vnbeleuinge perysshe. And Paule. i. Corinthians. x. maketh the see and thee cloude a fygure of Baptyme, by whych and a thousande mo I myghte declare it but not proue it. Paule also in the sayde place maketh the rocke (out of which Moyses brought water vnto the chyldren of Israel) a fygure or ensample of Christ not to proue christ (for that were impossyble) but to descrybe Christe onelye: euen as Christe hym selfe Johannis. iii. boroweth a similitude or fygure of the brasen serpente to lead Nichodemus from hys erthy ymagination into thee spirituall vnderstandinge of Christe sayinge: As Moyses lyfted vppe a serpente in the wyldernesse, so muste the sonne of man be lyfted vppe, that none that beleue in hym perysshe: but haue euerlasting lyfe by whych similitude the vertue of Christes death is better descrybed then thou couldeste declare it wyth a thousande wordes, for as those murmuras agaynste God as sone as they repented were healed of theyr deadely woundes thorowe lokynge on the brasen serpent onely: wythoute medycyn or any other helpe, yea & wythout any other reason but that God hath sayde it shulde be so: and not to murmoure agayne, but to leue theyr murmurynge: euen so all that repent and beleue in Christe are saued from euerlastynge death, of pure grace wythout and before theyr good workes, and not to synne agayne, but to fyght agaynst synne, and hencefoorth to synne no more.

Euen so wyth the Ceremonies of thys boke thou canste proue nothinge saue describe and declare onely the puttinge awaye of our synnes thorowe the death of christ for Christe is Aaron, and Aarons sonnes and all that offer the sacrifyce to purge synne. And Christ is all maner offringe that is offred, he is the oxe, the shepe, the gote, the kyd and lambe: he is the oxe that is burnt wythoute the hooste and the scapegote that caryed all the synne of the people awaye into the wyldernesse, for as they purged thee people from theyr worldlye vnclennesses thorowe bloude of thee sacryfyces, euen so dothe Christe purge vs from the vnclennesses of euerlastynge death, wyth his owne bloude, and as theyr worldly synnes coulde no otherwyse be purged then by bloude of sacryfyce, euen so can oure synnes be no otherwyse forgeuē then thorowe the bloude of Christ. All the deades in the worlde, saue the bloude of Christ, can purchase noo forgeuenesse of synnes: for oure dedes doo but helpe oure neyghboure and mortefye the fleshe and helpe that we synne nomore, but and yf we haue synned, it must be frelye forgeuen thorowe the bloude of Christe or remayne euer.

And in lyke maner of the lepers thou canst proue nothing: thou canst neuer coniure our confession thense, howbeit thou hast an handsome example there to open the bindinge and lowsynge of oure Priestes wyth the kaye of Goddes word, for as they made no man a lepre euen so oures haue no power to commaunde anye man to be in synne or to go to purgatorye or hell. And therefore (in as moch as bindinge and lowsynge is one power) as those Priestes healed no man, euen so oures can not of theyr inuisible and domme power dryue any mans synnes awaye or delyuer hym from hel or fayned purgatory. Howbeit yf they preached Goddes worde purely whych is the authorite that Christ gaue them, then they shuld bind and lowse, kylle and make alyue agayne, make vncleane and cleane agayne, and send to hell and fett thence agayne so myghty is Goddes worde, for yf they preached the lawe of God, they shuld binde the consciences of synners wythe the bondes of thee paynes of hell and brynge them vnto repentaunce. And then yf they preached them the mercye that is in Christe, they shulde lowse them and quiete theyr raginge consciences and certefye them of the fauoure of God and that theyr synnes be forgeuen.

Fynally beware of allegoryes, for there is not a more handsome or apte a thing to begyle wyth al, then an allegorye, nor a more sotle and a pestilēt thing in the world to persuade a false matter then an allegorye. And contrarye wyse there is not a better vehementer or myghtyer thynge to make a man vnderstande wyth al, then an allegorye. For allegoryes make a man quicke wytted and prynte wysdom in hym and maketh it to abyde, where bare wordes goo but in at the one eare and out at the other. As thys wyth soche lyke sayinges: putt salte to all your sacryfyces, in stede of thys sentence, do al your deades wyth discretiō, greteth and byteth (yf it be vnderstande) more then playne wordes. And when I saye in stede of these wordes bost not your selfe of youre good deades, eate not thee bloude nor the fatt of youre sacryfyce, there is as great difference betwene them as there is distaunce betwene heauen and earth. For the lyfe and bewtye of all good deades is of God, and we are but the caren leane, we are onely the instrument whereby God worketh onely, but the power is hys. As God created Paule a newe, poured hys wysdomme in to hym, gaue hym myght, and promysed hym that hys grace shuld neuer fayle him, &c. & all wythout deseruynges, excepte that murtheringe the Sayntes and makinge them curse and rayle on Christe be meritorious. Nowe as it is death to eate the bloud or fatte of anye sacrifice, is it not (thinke ye) damnable to robbe God of hys honour, and to gloryfye my selfe wyth hys honoure.

¶ The order of burntofferinges, whether it be of smal or great cattell, or foules.

The fyrst Chapter.

AND the Lord called Moses, A and spake vnto hym oute of the tabernacle of witnes sayinge: Speake vnto the chyldre of Israel, & say vnto thé whosoeuer of you shal bringe a gifte vnto the Lord, shal bringe it of the catel, eué of the oxen and of the shepe.
Yf he brynge a burntoffringe of the oxen he shall bringe a male wythoute ble-myshe, and shall brynge hym too the dore B of the tabernacle of wytnesse, that he may be accepted before the Lorde. And let hym a✠put hys hande vpon thee head of thee burntesacryfyce, and fauoure shalbe geuen hym to make an attonement for hym, and let hym kyll the oxe before the Lorde And let the prestes Aarons sonnes bryng the bloud and let them sprinkle it rounde about vpon the alter that is before the do re of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And lette the burntoffringes be stryped and hewed in peces. And then let the sonnes of Aarõ the priest put fyre vpon the alter, and put wodd vpon the fyre, and let them laye the peces wyth the head and the fatt, vpõ the wood that is on the fyre in the altar. But the inwardes & the legges they shal wash in water, and the Priest shall burne al together vpon the alter, that it be a burntsa C cryfyce & an offering of a b✠swete odoure vnto the Lorde. Yf he wyll offer a burntsacryfyce of the shepe, whether it be of the lãbes or of the gotes: he shall offer a male wythout blemysh. And lett hym kyll it on the northsyde of the alter, before the Lord And let the Priestes Aarõs sonnes sprin kle the bloud of it round about vpon the alter. And let it be cut in peces: euen wyth hys head and hys fatte, and let the Priest put them vpon the wodd that lyeth vpon the fyre in the alter. But lette hym washe the inwardes and the legges wyth water, and than brynge all together and burne it vpon the alter: that is a burntoffrynge and a sacryfyce of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.
Yf he wyll offer a burntofferyng of D the fowles he shall offer eyther of the tur tyll doues or of thee yonge pygeons. And the Priest shall brynge it vnto the alter, & wring the necke a sunder of it, and burne it on the alter, and let the bloud runne out vpon the sydes of the alter, and plucke awaye hys croppe and hys fethers, & caste them besyde the alter on the easte parte vpon thee heape of asshes, and breake hys wynges, but plucke thé not a sundre. And then let the Priest burne it vpon the alter euen vpon the wodd that lyeth vpon thee fyre, a burntsacryfyce and an offeryng of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

¶ The order of meatoffrynges, of swete cakes, of fyne flower, of frankencens. &c, wythoute leuen, & without hony, but not wythout salte.

The.ii. Chapter.

IF any soule wyl offer a meat offringe vnto the Lorde, hys A offerynge shalbe fyne floure and he shal poure therto oyle and put frankencens theron, and shall brynge it vnto Aarons sonnes the Priestes. And one of them shall take there oute hys handfull of the floure, and of the oyle withal ÿ frankencens, & burne it for a memoriall vpon the alter: an offeringe of a a✠swete sauoure vnto the Lord.
And the remnaunte of the meatofferinge shalbe Aarõs and hys sonnes, as a thyng most holy of the sacryfyces of the Lorde.
Yf any man bryng a meatoffring that is B baken in the ouen, lett hym brynge swete cakes of fyne floure myngled wyth oyle, and vnleuended wafers anoynted wythe oyle. Yf thy meatoffringe be baken in the fryenge pan, then it shalbe of swete floure myngled wyth oyle. And thou shal mynce it smal, and poure oyle theron: and so it is a meatoffrynge.
Yf thy meatoffryng be a thinge broy C led vpon the gredyern, of floure myngled wyth oyle it shall be. And thou shalte brynge

C bring the meatoffring that is made of these thinges vnto the lord, & shalt delyuer it vnto the preste, and he shal bringe it vnto thee aulter, and shall heue vppe parte of the meatoffringe for a memoriall, & shall burne it vppon thee alter: an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto thee Lorde. And that whych is lefte of the meatofferynge shal be Aarons and hys sonnes, as a thinge that is moost holy of the offerynges of the Lorde.

All the meatoffringes whych ye shall bringe vnto the Lord, shalbe made wythout leuen. For ye shall nether burne leuē nor hony in any offring of the Lord. Notwythstandyng ye shall bring the fyrstlinges of them vnto the Lorde: but they shal not come vpon thee altar to make a swete sauoure.

All thy meatoffringes thou shalt salte wyth salt: nether shalte thou suffer the ᵇ salt of the couenaunt of thy God to be lackyng frō thy meatofferinge: but vpon all D thyne offringes thou shalt bringe salt:

Yf thou offre a meatoffring of ẏ fyrst rype frutes vnto the Lord, then take that whych is yet grene, & drye it by the fyre & beat it small, and so offer the meatoffring of thy fyrst rype fruytes. And than poure oyle thereto, and put frankencens theron and so it is a meatoffryng. And the prest shal burne parte of thee beaten corne and part of that oyle wyth all the frankēcens, for a remembraunce. That is an offringe vnto the Lorde.

The Notes

a Thys swete sauour figureth thee prayers of the meke and faythful, as it is interpretate in Apo. viii. a. the whych prayers do wythstande thee furye of the Lorde.

b All offringes must be salted wyth salt, which signifieth that all our good workes must be directed after the doctryne of the Apostles & Prophetes for then shal they be acceptable in the syghte of thee Lord, yf the v sauer of the salte therof, and elles not.

¶ The order of peaceoffringes, whych were offred for the kepynge of peace, made of oxen, shepe, lambes and gootes.

The .iii. Chapter.

A Yf any man bring a *peaceoffringe of ẏ oxen: whether it be male or female, he shal bring soch as is without blemyshe, before the lord: & let him putt hys hand vpon the head of hys offeryng, and kyll it before the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse. And Aarōs sonnes the prestes shall sprinkle the bloud vpō the alter rounde aboute. And they shal offre of the B peaceoffring to be a sacrifice vnto ẏ lord: the fat that couereth the inwardes and al the fatt that is vpō the inwardes: and the two kydneys with the fatt that lyeth vpō the loynes: & the kall that is on thee lyuer they shall ᵃtake away wyth the kydneys And Aarons sonnes shall burne them vpon the alter wyth the burntsacrifice whyche is vpon the wood on the fyre. That is a sacryfyce of a swete sauoure vnto thee Lorde.

Yf a man bryng a peaceoffering vnto the Lord, from of the flocke, whether it be male or female, it shalbe without blemish Yf he offer a lambe, he shal bring it before the Lord, & put hys hand vpon hys offerynges head, and kyll it in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, & Aarons son-C nes shall sprynckle the bloud therof rounde about the alter.

And of the peaceoffring they shal bringe a sacryfyce vnto the Lord: the fat therof and the rompe al together, whyche they shal take of, harde by the backe bone: and the fatt that couereth thee inwardes & all the fatt that is vppon the inwardes & the two kydneys wyth the fat that lyeth vpō them and vpon the loynes, & the kall that is vpon the lyuer he shall take away with the kydneys. And the Prieste shall burne them vpon the alter to fede the Lordes offrynge wythall.

D Yf the offryng be a gote, he shal bring it before the Lorde, & put hys hand vpon the head of it, and kyll it before the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the sonnes of Aarō shall sprenkle thee bloude therof vppon the alter round about. And he shall bring thereof hys offerynge vnto the Lordes sacryfyce: the fatt that couereth thee inwardes, and al the fat that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kydneys and the fat that lyeth vpon them and vpō the loynes, and the kall that is vpon the lyuer he shall take awaye with the kydneys. And the prest shall burne them vppon thee alter to fede the Lordes sacryfyce with all, and to make a swete sauoure. And thus shal al ẏ fat be the Lordes, and it shal be a lawe for euer amonge youre generacions after you in youre dwellynge places: that ye eate nether fat nor bloude.

a ✝ By the takyng awaye of the fatt, the inwardes the two kydneis and the kall is sygnified vnto vs, that yf we wylbe a swete sacrifice vnto the lord we must cut of al concupiscentes and noughtye desyres of the fleshe, and the euell vse of all oure members, and must subdue and mortyfye our affections and offer them to God, by the mortyfycation of the crosse, as sayth the Prophete. (whatsoeuer it be that a ma pronounceth wyth an othe) and the thyng be out of his mynde and afterwarde commeth to the knoweledge of it, then he hath offended in one of these. Then whe he hath synned in one of these thinges, he shall confesse that wherein he hath synned, and shall brynge hys trespaceofferinge vnto the Lorde for hys synne whych he hath synned. A fema le from the flocke whether it be a lambe or a she goote, for a synneofferynge. And the Priest shal make an attonement for hym for hys synne. * But yf he be not able too brynge a shepe, then lette hym brynge for his trespace which he hath synned two tur tyll doues or two younge pygeons vnto the Lord, one for a synneoffring and ano ther for a burntoffring. And he shal bring them vnto the Priest whych shal offer the synneoffering fyrst, and wringe the necke a sunder of it, but plucke it not cleane of.
And let hym sprinkle of the bloude of the synneofferinge vpon the syde of the alter and let the rest of the bloude blede vppon the bottome of the alter, & the it is a synne offeringe. And lett hym offer the seconde for a burntofferinge as the maner is: and C so shall the Prieste make an attonemente for hym for the synne whych he hath syn ned, and it shalbe forgeuen hym. And yet yf he be not able to brynge two turtyl do ues or two younge pygeons, then let hym brynge hys offerynge for his synne, * the tenth parte of an Epha of fyne floure for a synneoffering, but put none oyle therto nether put any frankencens thereon, for it is a synneofferynge. And let hym bring it to the Priest, and the Prieste shall take hys handfull of it, and burne it vpon the alter for a remembraunce to be a sacrifice for the Lord: that is a synneoffring. And let the Priest make an attonement for him for his synne (whatsoeuer of these he hath synned) and it shalbe forgeuen. And the remnaunte shalbe the Priestes, as it is in the meateofferynge.

And the lord comened w Moyses say inge: When a soule trespaceth & synneth thorow ignoraunce in any of the holy thyn ges of the Lorde, he shall brynge for hys trespace vnto the Lord a ram without ble holy thynge, & put the fyfte parte more to and geue it vnto the Priest. And the prest shall make an attonemente for hym wythe the ramme of the trespaceoffrynge, and it shalbe forgeuen hym.

When a soule synneth & cōmitteth any of these thinges whych are forbiddē to be done by the cōmaundmētes of the Lord: though he wist it not, he hath yet offēded & is in synne, & shall bringe a ram withoute to be worth a synneoffring, vnto the prest And the Prest shal make an attonemente for hym for the ignoraunce whych he dyd

And thee Preeste shall make an at=

And thee Lorde spake vnto Moyses saying: Commaunde Aaron and his son nes saying: this is the Lawe of the burnt offryng. The burnt offrynge shall be vp on the harth of thee alter all nyght vnto the mornynge, and thee fyre of the alter shal burne therin. And thee Preast shall put on hys lynen albe and his lynen bre= in the alter hath made, and put thē beside the alter, and then put of his raymēt and put on other, and carie ẏ asshes out with

The fyre that is vpon thee alter shall burne therin and not go out. And ẏ prest Thys is the lawe of the meatoffrige: Aarons sonnes shall brynge it before the take hys hande full of thee floure of thee meatoffrynge and of thee oyle wych all thee franckencens whyche is theron, and shall burne it vnto a remembraunce vpō the alter to be a swete sauoure of the me= morvall of it vnto the Lorde. And the rest therof, Aaron and hys sonnes shall eate vnleuended: it shalbe eaten in ẏ holy pla C ce: euen in the courte of thee tabernacle of wytnesse they shall eate it. Theyr parte whych I haue geuen thē of my sacrifyce shall not be bake with leuē, for it is most holy, as is the sinneoffryng, and trespace shall any man * touche it, but he that is halowed.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sa= the tabernacle of witnesse to recōcyle wyth all in the holy place shalbe eaten: but shal be burnt in the fyre.

The Notes.

* Unto my neyghbour pertayneth satisfaction but vnto god repētaunce & thē the sacrifice of christes bloude is a full satisfaction and attonement and a peasing of all wrath.

¶ Trespaceoffringes. Synneoffringes, and peaceoffringes. The fat and the bloud may not be eaten.

The. vii. Chapter.

A THys is the lawe of the a‡ tres paceoffrynge whych is most holy. In the place where thee burntoffrynge is kylled, thee trespaceoffrynge shalbe kyl led also: and hys bloude shalbe sprinkled rounde aboute vpon the alter. And al the fatt therof shalbe offered: the rompe and the fatte that couered thee inwardes, and the two kydneys wyth the fatt that lyeth on them, and vpon the loynes, & the kalon the lyuer shalbe taken away wyth the kid thee altare, too be an offerynge vnto thee Lorde: this is a trespas offerynge.

All the males amonge thee preastes shall eate therof in the holy place, for it is most holy. As the synneoffrynge is so is yͤ trespaceoffring, one law serueth for both: and it shall be thee Preastes that reconsy leth ther wyth. And the preast that offred a mans burnt offerynge, shall haue thee brynge hys offerynge vpon cakes made of leuended bred vnto the thanckoffryng of hys peaceoffringes, and of them al, he shall offer one to be an heueoffring vnto the Lord, and it shal be the Preastes that sprynckleth the bloude of the peaceoffrin of hys peaceoffrynges shalbe eaten thee same daye that it is offred, and ther shal none of it be layde vp vntyl the mornyng.

Yf it be a b‡ vowe or a fre wylloff peaceoffrynges be eaten in yͤ thyrde day, then shall he that offred it optayne no fa but shalbe an abhomynacyō, and the soule that eateth of it shal beare the synne therof.

¶ The flesh yͤ toucheth any vncleane thynge shal not be eatē, but burnt wͭ fyre: & all yͤ C be cleane in theyr fleshe, maye eate fleshe.
Yf any soule eate of the flesh of the peace cleane thinge, whether it be the vnclenesse of man or of any vncleane beast or any abhominacion that is vncleane: & then eate of the fleshe of the peaceoffringes whych pertayne vnto the Lorde, that soule shall perysshe from hys people.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses: saying: speake vnto the childrē of Israell & saye: Ye shal eate no maner fat ofe, shepe or gootes: neuerthelater the fat of thee beast that dyeth alone & the fat of yͤ which is torne with wylde beastes, maye be occupyed in all maner vses: but ye shal in noo wyse eate of it. For whosoeuer eateth ther fatt of the beast of whych men bringe an offryng vnto the Lord, that soule that

D eateth any maner of bloud the same soule shall perysshe from hys people.

And the Lord talked wyth Moses sayinge: speake vnto the chyldrē of Israell & saye: he that offreth his peaceoffryng vnto the Lorde, shall bringe hys gyfte vnto the Lord of his peaceoffringes: his owne handes shall bring the offring of the lord euen the fat vpon the brest he shal bringe wyth the brest to waue it a waueoffrynge before the Lord. And the Priest shal burne the fat vpō the alter, and the brest shalbe Aarons and his sonnes. And the ryght shoulder they shal geue vnto the priest, to be an heueoffringe, of theyr peaceoffringes. And the same that offereth the bloud of the peaceoffringes & the fat, amōg the sonnes of Aarō shal haue the ryght shoulder vnto hys parte, for the wauebrest and the heueshoulder I haue takē of the chyldren of Israell, euen of theyr peaceoffringes, & haue geuē it vnto Aaron the Prest and vnto hys sonnes: to be a dutye for euer of the chyldren of Israel.

Thys is the anoyntyng of Aaron & of thee sacryfyces of thee Lorde, in the daye C when they were offred to the Priestes vnto the Lorde, whych the Lord cōmaunded to be geuen them in the daye when he anoynted them, of the chyldren of Israell, and to be a duetye for euer amonge theyr generations. Thys is the lawe of burnteofferinges: of meatoffringes, of synneofferinges, of trespaceofferinges, of fulofferinges, of peaceoffringes, whych thee Lord commaunded Moyses in the mount of Sinai, in the daye when he commaunded the chyldren of Israell to offer theyr offerynges vnto the Lorde in the wildernesse of Sinai.

a ‡ Trespaceoffring that is, an offring for trespace. Trespace after the order of the scripture signifieth sometyme al the lyfe past, which we haue liued in infidelytie, being ignoraunt of the veritie, not only in doynge opē synnes, but also whē we haue walked in oure owne ryghtuousnes, as in thee Psalm. xviii. d. and. ¶ The anoyntyng and consecracion of Aaron and hys sonnes

The. viii. Chapter.

AND the lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: take Aaron and hys sonnes wyth hym, & the vesture & the anoynting oyle, and an oxe for a synneoffe- A ring and two rammes & a basket of swete bread: & gether all thee comentye together vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And Moyses dyd as the Lorde commaunded hym, and the people gathered thē selues together vnto the dore of the tabernacle of witnes. And Moyses sayd vnto the people: thys is the thynge which the Lord commaunded to doo.

And Moyses brought Aaron and hys sonnes & washed thom with water, & putt vpon hym the albe & gyrded hym wyth a gyrdell, & put vpon hym the tunicle, & put the Ephod theron, & gyrded hym with the broderd gyrdell of the Ephod, & bound it vnto hym therwyth. And he put the brestlappe theron, & put in the brestlappe, * Urim and Thumim. And he put the myter
B vpon hys head, & put vpon the myter euē vpon the forefront of it the goldē plate of the holye crowne, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And Moyses toke the anoynting oyle and anoynted the habitaciō & al that was therin, and sanctified them, and sprinkled therof vpō the alter seuē tymes, & anoynted the alter, & all hys vessels, & the lauer wyth hys fote, to sanctyfye them. And he poured of thee annoyntynge oyle vpon Aarons head, and anoynted hym to sanctyfye sanctifie hym. And he broughte. Aarons sonnes and put albes vpō them, and gyrded them wyth gyrdels, and put bonettes vpon their hedes: as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And the synne offringe was brought. And Aaron and hys sonnes put theyr hā
C des vpon the heed of the oxe of the synne offringe. And when it was slayne, Moyses toke of the bloud, and put it vpō thee hornes of the alter rounde aboute wythe hys fynger, and puryfyed it, and poured the bloud vnto thee botome of thee alter and sanctyfyed it and reconsyled it. And he toke all the fatt that was vpon the inwardes, and the kall that was on the lyuer and the two kydneyes with their fat, and burned it vpon the alter. But the oxe the hyde, his flesh and his dong, he burnt with fyre wythout the hoste, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

D And he brought the ram of the burnt offringe and Aaron and his sonnes putt theyr handes vpon thee head of thee ram and it was kylled. And Moses sprinkled the bloude vpon the alter rounde aboute, and cut thee ram in peces and burnt thee head peces & the fatt, & washed the inwardes and thee legges in water, and burnt the ram euen whole vpon the alter. That was a burntsacryfice of a swete sauoure, and an offrynge vnto thee Lorde, as thee lorde commaunded Moses.

And he brought the other ram that was the fuloffrynge, and Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes vpon thee head of the ram: and when it was slayne, Moses toke of the bloude of it and put it vpon thee typpe of Aarons ryghte eare, and vpon the thombe of hys ryght hand and E vpō the great too of his ryght fote. Thē were Aarons sonnes brought, and Moses put of þ bloud on þ tippe of the right eare of thē, and vpō thee thombe of theyr ryght handes, and vpon the greate toes of theyr ryghte fete, and sprynckled thee bloud vpon the alter rounde aboute.

And he toke the fatt and thee rumpe and al the fatt that was vpon the inwardes, and the kall of thee lyuer, and the. ii. kydneyes with theyr fatt and their ryght shoulder. And out of the basket of swete bread þ was before þ Lorde he toke one swete cake of oyled breede & one wafer, & put thē on the fat & vpon the ryght shoulder: & put altogether vpon Aarons hādes and vpon hys sonnes handes, & waued it a waueoffering before the Lord. And thē F Moyses toke thē frō of theyr handes agayne, & burnte them vpon the alter, euen vpon the burntoffryng: These ar the ful offringes of a swete sauoure & a sacrifice vnto the Lord. And Moses toke the brest and waued it a waueoffrynge before thee Lord, of the ram of the fuloffrynges: and it was Moyses parte, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And Moyses toke of the annoyntinge oyle and of the bloud which was vpō the alter, & sprinkled it vpō Aarō & vpon hys vestmentes & vpō his sōnes & on theyr vestimentes wyth him, & sanctified Aaron & his vestures & his sonnes & hys sōnes vestures also. Thē Moyses sayd vnto Aarō & his sonnes: boyle the fleshe in the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse, & there * eate it G wyth the bread that is in the basket of ful offringes, as the Lord cōmaunded, sayinge: Aaron and hys sonnes shall eate it and that whyche remayneth of the fleshe & of the bread, burne it wyth fyre lambe both two of a yere olde, ⁊ wythout blemyshe for a burntsacryfyce, ⁊ an oxe ⁊ a ram for peaceofferynges, to offer before the Lord, ⁊ a meatoffryng myngled with oyle, for to daye the Lord wyll appere vn B to you. And they broughte that whyche Moyses cōmaunded vnto the tabernacle of wytnes, and all the people came ⁊ stode before the Lord. And Moyses sayde: this is the thynge whych the Lord cōmaūded that ye shuld do: and thē the glorye of the Lord shall appeare vnto you. And Moy ses sayde vnto Aaron: goo vnto the alter and offer thy synneoffryng, and make an attonemēt for the and for the people, and then offer the offerynge of the people, and reconcyle them also, as the Lord cōmaū ded Moyses.

And Aaron wēt vnto the alter, ⁊ slewe the calfe that was his synneoffryng. And the sonnes of Aarō broughte the bloude vnto hym, and he dypte hys fynger in the bloud ⁊ put it vpō the hornes of the alter, and poured the bloud vnto the botome of the alter. And the fatt ⁊ thee two kydneys wyth the kal of the lyuer of the synneoffe ring he burnt vpō the alter, as the lord cō maūded Moses: but the fleshe ⁊ the hyde, he burnt with fyre without the hoste. Afterward he slewe the burntofferinge, ⁊ Aa-C rōs sonnes brought the bloud vnto hym, ⁊ he sprinkled it roūd about vpō the alter And they brought the burntoffring vnto hym in peces ⁊ the head also, ⁊ he burnte it vppon the alter, and dyd washe the inwardes and the legges, and burnt thē also vpon the burntofferinge in the alter.

And then he brought the peoples offering ⁊ toke the gote that was the peoples synneofferinge and slewe it ⁊ offered it for a synneoffrynge: as he dyd the fyrst. And then brought the burntoffrynge, ⁊ offred it as the maner was, ⁊ brought the meat-offrynge and fylled his hande therof, and burnt it vpon the alter, besyde the burnte sacryfyce in the mornynge.

Thē he slewe the oxe ⁊ the ram that we re the peoples peaceofferinges, ⁊ Aarons sonnes brought the bloud vnto hym, ⁊ he sprinkled it vpon the alter rounde about, and toke the fat of the oxe and of the ram the rōpe ⁊ the fat that couereth the inwar des and the kydneys and the kall of thee lyuer: ⁊ put thē vpō the brestes and burnt it vpon the alter: but the brestes and thee D ryght shoulders Aaron waued before the Lord, as the Lord cōmaunded Moyses.
And Aaron lyfte vp hys hande ouer thee people ⁊ blessed thē, ⁊ came downe frō of frynge of synneoffrynges, burntoffrynges, and peaceoffringes. Thē Moyses ⁊ Aaron went into the tabernacle of witnes and came out agayne and blessed the people, and the glorye of the Lorde appeared vnto all the people. And there came a fyre out from before the Lord, and consumed vpō the alter the burntoffring and the fat And al the people sawe it, and showted, ⁊ fell on theyr faces.

¶ Nadab ⁊ Abihu are slayne. Israell mourneth for them. The Prestes are forbidden wyne. The resy-dewe of the sacrifice the Prestes eate.

D And he was angrye wyth Eleazar & Ithamar the sonnes of Aaron, which were left a lyue, sayinge: wherfore haue ye not eatẽ the synneoffrynge in the holye place, seynge it is moost holye: and for asmoche as it is geuen you to beare the synne of the people, and make agremente for them before the Lorde? Beholde, the bloude of it was not brought in wythin the holy place ther fore shoulde ye haue eaten it in thee holye place, as I cõmaunded. And Aaron sayd vnto Moses: behold thys daye haue they offered theyr synneoffringe & theyr burnt offryng before the Lord, and it is chaunced me after this maner. Yf I shuld eate of ye synneoffryng to day, wold the Lord be cõtent wythal? And whẽ Moses heard that he was content.

¶ Of beastes whych be cleane, and whych vncleane

The. xi. Chapter.

And ye Lord spake vnto Moses and Aarõ saying: speake A vnto the chyldren of Israell and saye, these ar the beastes whyche ye shall eate among all the beastes that are on thee erth: what soeuer hath hofe and deuyded it in to two clawes & cheweth cud among the beastes that shal ye eat. Neuerthelesse, these shall ye not eate of them that chewe cud & haue hoofes. Thee camel, for he cheweth cud but he dyuydeth not ye hoofe in to. ii. clawes therfore he shall be vncleane vnto you. And the conye for he cheweth the cud but deuydeth not the hoofe in to two clawes, therfore he is vncleane to you. And thee hare, for he lykewise cheweth the cud, but deuydeth not the hoofe in to two clawes, he is therfore vnclene to you. And ye swyne, for though he deuyde the hoffe in to. ii clawes, yet he cheweth not thee cud, and therfore is vnclene to you. Of theyr flesh se that ye eat not, & theyr carkasses se that ye touch not, for they ar vncleane to you.

These shall ye eate of all that are in the waters: what soeuer hath fynnes and B skales in thee waters, sees & ryuers, that shall ye eate. And all that haue not fynnes and skales in thee sees and ryuers of all that moue and lyue in the waters shal ye abhorre. Se that ye eate not of theyr fleshe, & also that ye abhorre theyr carka ses: for al that haue no fynnes nor scales in the waters, shalbe abomynacyon vnto C you. Thes are the foules whych ye shall abhorre and whych shall not be eaten, for they are an abhomynacyon. The egle, the goshauke, the cormoraunte, the kyete, the vultur and all hys kynd, & all kynd of rauens, ye estrich, ye nyghtcrowe ye cocow the sparowhauke, and all the kynde: the lytle oule, the storke, the great oule the backe, thee pellycane, the pye, the heron, thee iaye wythe thee kynde, thee lappewynge and the swalowe. And al foules that crepe and goo vpon all foure shalbe an abomynacyon vnto you.

Yet these maye eate of all the foules that moue & go vpon. iiii: fete euen those D ye haue no knees aboue vpõ theyr fete to lepe wyth all vpon the erth, euen these of them ye maye eate: the. arbe and all hys kynde: thee Selaam with al hys kynde the Hargoll & all the kynde, the Hagab, & al his kynde. All other foules that moue & haue .iiii. fete, shalbe abhomynacion vnto you. In soch ye shalbe vncleane, whosoeuer touche ye carkesse of thẽ shalbe vnclea ne vnto thee euen, and whosoeuer beareth the carkasse of thẽ, shal washe his clothes and so shalbe vncleane vntyll euen.

Amonge all maner beastes, that haue hoofes & deuyde thẽ not in to two clawes or that chewe not the cud, shalbe vncleane vnto you: and all that touchethe thẽ shall C be vncleane. And all that goeth vpon his handes among all maner beastes that go on all foure fete are vncleane vnto you: & as many as touche theyr carkasses shalbe vncleane vntyl the euen. And he that bea reth the carkasse of them, shall washe hys clothes and be vncleane vntyll thee euen, for soche are vncleane vnto you.

And these are also vncleane to you among the thynges that crepe vpõ the erth the wesel, the mouse, the toode & al his kin de, the hedgehogge, stellio, the licerte, thee snayle and the moule: these ar vncleane to you among al that moue, & al that touche them when they be dead, shal be vncleane vntyll the euen. And whatsoeuer any of ye dead carkasses of them fall vpon, shal be vncleane: whatsoeuer vessel of wood it be or raymẽt, or skynne or bagge, or what so euer thinge it be ye any worke is wrought wythall. And they shall be plunged in the water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen, & then they shalbe cleane agayne.

F All maner of erthẽ vessel wher into any of them falleth is vncleane, wyth all that therin is: and * ye shal breake it. Al maner meate that is eaten, yf any soch water come vpon it, it shal be vncleane. And al ma ner drinke that is drõcke in al maner soch vessels shalbe vnclene. And whether it be ouen or kettell it shalbe broken. For they are vncleane & shalbe vncleane vnto you: Neuerthelater yet the fountaynes & welles and pondes of water, shall be cleane styll. But whosoeuer touchethe theyr car-kasses, shall be vncleane.

Yf the dead carkasse of any soch fal vpon anye sede vsed to sowe, it shall yet be cleane styll: but & yf any water be poured vpon thee sede and afterwarde the deade carkasse of them fall thereon, then it shal-be vncleane vnto you.

xv.b,d,

Yf any beast of whych ye may eate dye, he that toucheth ye dead carkasse shall be vncleane vntyll the euẽ. And he that ea teth of any soch dead carkasse, shal washe hys clothes and remayne vncleane vntyl the euen. And he also that beareth the car-kesse of it, shall washe hys clothes, and be vncleane vntyll euen.

All that scrauleth vpon the earth, is G an abhomynacyon, and shall not be eaten And whatsoeuer goeth vpon the breaste, and whatsoeuer goeth vpon foure or mo fete amonge all that scrauleth vpon thee earth, of that se ye eate not: for they are ab homynable. Make not youre soules abho mynable wyth nothinge that crepeth, neyther make youre soules vncleane wyth thẽ that ye shulde be defyled thereby. For I am the Lorde youre God * be sanctyfyed — Leui. xix. a / 1. Petr. 1. b therfore that ye may be holy, for I am ho ly: and defyle not youre soules wyth any maner thynge that crepeth vpon the earth For I am the Lord that brought you out of the lande of Egypte to be youre God: be holy therfore, for I am holy.

Thys is the lawe of beast and foule & of all maner thynge that lyueth and moueth in the water and of all thynges that crepe vpon the earth, that ye may put difference betwene vncleane & cleane, and be twene thee beastes that are eaten and thee beastes that are not eaten.

The Notes.

e.f Arbe, Selaam, Hargol, Hagab are kyndes of beastes that crepe or scraule on the grounde which the Hebrues them selues do not nowe a dayes knowe.

AND the LORDE spake vnto A Moyses, and sayde: speake vnto the chyldren of Israell and saye: when a womã hath conceaued, and hathe borne a man chylde, she shall be vncleane seuen dayes: euen in lyke maner as when she is putte a parte in tyme of her natural disease. And in the eyghte daye the fleshe of the chyldes foreskynne shall be cutt awaye. And she shall continue in the bloud of her purifyenge .xxxiii. dayes, she shall touche noo halowed thynge nor come in- B to the sanctuarye, vntyll thee tyme of her puryfyenge be oute. Yf she beare a mayde chylde, then she shall be vncleane two wekes, as when she hath hyr natural disease. And she shal cōtynue in the bloud of hyr purifienge .lxvi. dayes.

C Luke .ii. b * And when the dayes of hyr purifyēg le. But & yf she be not able to bring a she pe, then let her brynge two turtyls or two yonge pygeons: the one for the burntoffringe, and the other for the synneoffring And the Priest shall make an attonemēte for her, and she shalbe cleane.

C The Priestes are apoynted to iudge who are lepers.

The .xiii. Chapter.

A And the lord spake vnto Mo ses & vnto Aarō saying: whē ther appeareth a a rysing in any mās flesh ether a scabbe or a glistring whyte: as thou ghe the plage of leprosye were in the skyn of hys fleshe, then let hym be broughte vn to Aaron thee Prieste or vnto one of hys sonnes the Priestes, and let the priest loke on the sore that is in the skyn of his fleshe Yf the hayre in thee sore be tourned vnto whyte, & the sore seme also to be lower thē the skynne of hys fleshe, then it is surely a leprosye, and let the Priest loke on hym, & iudge hym vncleane.

Yf ther be but a whyte plecke in ỷ skin of his fleshe, and seme not to be lower thē the other skinne nor ỷ hayre therof is turned vnto whyte: then let the Priest shutte hym vp seuē dayes. And let the Priest loke vpon hym the .vii. day: yf the sore seme to hym to abyde styl & to go no further in the skynne, then let the priest shut hym vp yet .vii. dayes moo. And let the priest loke on hym agayne the .vii. day. Thē yf ỷ sore be waxed blackeshe, & is not growen abroade in the skynne, lete the Priest make hym cleane, for it is but a skyrf. And lette hym wasshe his clothes, & then he is cleane But & yf the scabbe growe in the skyn after that he is sene of the Priest agayn. Yf the Priest se that the scabbe be growen abrode in the skynne, let him make hym vn cleane: for it is surely a leprosye.

Yf the plage of leprosye be in a mā, let hym be brought vnto the Priest, & lett the B Priest se him. Yf the rysing apeare whyte in the skynne, & haue also made the hayre whyte, & there be rawe fleshe in the sore also: then it is an olde leprosye in the skinne of hys fleshe. And ỷ priest shal iudge hym vncleane, and shal not shutte hym vp for he is vncleane.

Yf a leprosye breake out in the skynne and couer all the skynne from the head to the fote ouer all wher soeuer the Priest lo-keth, thē let the Priest loke vpō him. Yf ỷ leprosye haue b couered all hys fleshe, let him iudge the disease clene: for in asmoch as he is all together whyte he is therefore C cleane. But & yf ther be rawe flesh on him whē he is sene, thē he shalbe vnclene. Ther fore whē the Priest seeth the rawe fleshe, let him iudge him vnclene. For in asmoch as his fleshe is rawe, he is vncleane & it is surelye a true leprosye. But & yf the rawe fleshe depart agayne & chaūge vnto white then let him come to the priest, & let ỷ priest se him: Yf the soore be chaūged vnto why te, let the Priest iudge the disease cleane, & then he is cleane.

When there is a byle in thee skynne of any mans fleshe, and is healed & after in ỷ place of the byle ther appeare a whyte rysyng ether a shynyng whyte somwhat rea dyshe, let him be sene of the priest. Yf whē the Priest seyth him it appeare lower thā the other skynne & ỷ hayre therof be chaūged vnto whyte, let the Prieste iudge him vncleane: for it is a verye leprosye, that is broken out in the place of the byle. But & yf (when the Priest loketh on it) ther be no whyte hayres therin nether the scabbe lower thē the other skynne, and be somwhat blackesh, then the Priest shall shutte hym aparte seuen dayes. Yf it spreade abrode in the meane season, then let the priest iud ge hym vncleane: for it is a leprosye. But and yf the glysterynge whyte abyde styl in one place and go no further, then it is but the printe of the byle, and the Priest shall D iudge hym cleane.

When the skynne of any mās fleshe is burnt

burnte wyth the fyre that it be rawe & there apere in thee burnyng a glysteryng whyte ÿ is somwhat redysh or altogether whyte let the Preaste loke vpon it. If the hayre in that bryghtnes be chaunged to whyte, and it also appeare lower then thee other skynne, then it is a leprosye that is broke out of the place of the burnyng. And thee Preast shal iudge hym vncleane, for it is a leprosye. But and yf (when the Preaste loketh on it) he se that there is no whyte hayre in the bryghtenes, and that it is no lower then the other skynne and that it is also blackesh, then let the preast shut hym vp seuen dayes. And yf (when the Preast loketh on him ÿ seuenth daye) it be growne abrode in the skyn, let hym iudge hym vncleane: for it is a leprosye. But and yf that bryghtenesse abyde still in one place & go no further in the skynne & be blackesh then it is but a rysing in the place of thee burnyng, and the Preast shall make hym cleane: for it is but the pryuie of the burnyng only.

E When ether man or woman hath a breakyng out vpon the heed or the beerd, let the preast se it. And if it appeare lower than thee other skynne, and ther be therin golden hayres & thyn, let the Preaste iudge hym vncleane, for it is a breakyng out of leprosye vpon thee heed or bearde. If (when the Preast loketh on the breakyng out) he se that it is no lower then the other skynne and that there are blacke hayres therin, let hym shut hym vp seuen dayes. And let the Preast loke on the dysease the .vii. daye: & yf ÿ breakyng out be gone no further nether be any goldē hayres therin nether thee scabe be lower then thee other skynne, thē let him be shaue, but let him not shaue ÿ scabe: & let ÿ prest shut hym vp .vii. daies mo. And let ÿ prest loke on the breakyng out the .vii. day agayn: Yf thee breakyng out be gone no further in the skynne nor more lower then the other skinne, then let the prest iudge him cleane and let hym washe hys clothes, and then he is clene. Yf the brekyng out growe in skynne after that he is once iudged clene let thee Preast see hym. Yf it be growne abrode in dede in the skynne, let the priest

F seke no further for any goldē hayres, for he is vncleane. But and yf he se that thee scabbe stande styll, & that there is blacke hayre growen vp therin, then thee scabbē is healed and he is cleane: and the Prieste shall iudge hym cleane. Yf ther be found in the skynne of thee fleshe of man or woman a glysterynge whyte, let the Priest se it. Yf there appeare in theyr fleshe a glysterynge whyte somwhat blackeshe, then it is but frekels growen vp in the skynne and he is cleane.

Yf a mans hayre fall of hys head, thē he is headboulde and cleane. Yf hys hayre fal before in his forehead, thē he is forehead balde and cleane. Yf there be in the baulde head or baulde forehead a redysh whyte scabbe, thē ther is leprosye spronge vp in his baulde head or baulde forehead And let the priest se it: and yf the rysynge of the sore be reddysh whyte in hys bauld head or forehead after thee maner of a leprosye in the skynne of the fleshe, thē he is a leper & vncleane: and the Priest shal iudge hym vncleane, for ÿ plage of hys head And the leper in whom the plage is, shall G haue hys clothes rente and hys head bare and his mouth mosseld, and shalbe called vncleane. And as longe as the dysease lasteth vpon hym, he shalbe vncleane: for he is vncleane, and shall therfore dwell alone, and euen wythout the hooste shall hys habytacyon be.

¶ When the plage of leprosye is in a cloth: whether it be lynē or wollē ye & whether it be in the warpe or wolfe of the lynē or of the wollen: ether in a skynne or anye thinge made of skynne, yf thee dysease be pale or somwhat redysh in ÿ cloth or skyn whether it be in the warpe or wolfe or any thynge that is made of skynne, then it is a very leprosye, & muste be shewed vnto the prieste. And whē the priest seeth the plage, let hym shut it vp .vii. dayes, & let hym loke on the plage the .vii. daye. Yf it be increased in the cloth: whether it be in ÿ warpe or wolfe or in a skynne or in any thing that is made of skynne, then the plage is a freatynge leprosye, and it is vncleane: & that clothe shalbe burnte, ether warpe or wolfe, whether it be wollen or lynē or any thynge that is made of skynne where in ÿ plage is, for it is a freatyng leprosye, and shalbe burnt in the fyre.

Yf ÿ priest see ÿ the plage hath freaten no further in the cloth: ether in the warpe or or wolfe or whatsoeuer thynge of skynne it be, then let the priest commaunde thē to washe the thinge wherin the plage is, and let him shut it vp.vii.dayes moo. And let the prieste loke on it agayne after that the plage is washed. Yf the plage haue not chaunged hys facion thoughe it be spred no further abrode, it is yet vncleane. And se that ye burne it in the fyre, for it is freat inward, whether in parte or in al together But and yf the prest se that it is somwhat blackyshe after that it is washed, let hym rent it out of the clothe, or out of the skinne or out of the warpe or wolfe. But and yf it appeare anymore in the cloth ether in the warpe or in the wolfe or in any thinge made of skinne, thē it is a waringe plage.

And se that ye burne that wyth fyre, wher in the plage is. Moreouer the clothe ether warpe or wolfe or whatsoeuer thynge of skynne it be, which thou hast washed and the plage be departed from it, shalbe was shed once agayne: & then it is cleane. Thys is the law of yͤ plage of leprosie in a cloth whether it be wolle or line: eyther whether it be in the warpe or wolfe, or in any thing made of skynnes, to iudge it cleane or vn cleane.

a The lepre sygnyfyeth properly mannes doctryne, whych spreadeth abroade lyke a canker and to be shorte all infection of vngodlynes, therfore must the Leuytes geue dylygent hede therto: for a lyttel leuen soureth the whole loumpe of doughe.

b Couered al his fleshe.&c. Here is that called a leper whyche yet is none in dede, but semeth to be one: where as the rotnesse of humoures breakynge forth into the vtter partes al yͤ body ouer, is called a leper, and yet must it be iudged to be cleane.

c Of the leprosye of clothes whyche was vsed amōg the Iewes, let thē iudge. This is euidēt that we in our tyme suffer ouer many leprosies in clothes lyuing byrde and the cedar wodd and the purple and the ysope, and shall dyppe the and thee lyuinge byrde in thee bloude of the slayne byrde, and in the renninge water and sprinkle it vpon him that must be clensed of hys leprosye seuen tymes and clense hym, and shall let the lyuing byrde go free into the feldes.

And he that is clensed shall washe hys B clothes and shaue of al hys hayre, & wash hym selfe in water, and then he is cleane.
And after that he shal come into the hoste but shall tarye wythout hys tent.vii.day es, When the seueth daye is come, he shal shaue of al hys hayre both vpon his head and hys berde & on hys browes: & euē all the hayre that is on hym, shalbe shauē of.
And he shal washe his clothes & hys flesh in water, and then he shalbe cleane.
And when the.viii.day is come, let him take two lambes without blemyshe and a yewe lambe of a yere old without blemish and thre tenthe deales of fyne floure for a meatoffryng myngled wyth oyle, and *a logge of oyle. Thē let the Priest that ma keth hym cleane, brynge the man that is made cleane wyth those thynges before yͤ Lorde vnto the dore of thee tabernacle of wytnes. And let the Priest take one of the lambes and offer him for a trespaceoffrin ge, & the logge of oyle: and waue them before the Lorde. And then lett hym slee the lambe in the place where the synneoffring and the burntoffringe are slayne: euen in the holye place. For as the synneoffrynge is, euen so is the trespaceoffryng the priestes: for it is moost holye.
Then let the priest take of the bloude C of the trespaceoffringe, & put it vpon thee typpe of the ryght eare of hym that is clesed, & vpon the thombe of hys ryght hand and vpon the great too of his ryght foote Then lett the Prieste take of the logge of oyle, and poure it into the palme of his lef te hande, and dyppe hys ryghte fynger in the oyle that is in the palme of hys left hā de, and let him sprinkle it with his fynger vii.tymes before the lord. And of the rest of the oyle that is in hys hande, shall thee priest put vpō the typpe of the ryght eare of him that is clensed, and vpon the thom be of hys ryght hand, and vpon the great too of his ryght fote: euē vpō the bloud of

the trespaceoffrynge. And the remnaunte of the oyle that is in the Preastes hande, he shall poure vpon the heed of hym that is clensed: and so shall thee Pryeste make an atonement for hym before the Lorde.

Then let the Preast offer the synneoffrynge and make an atonement for hym that is clēsed for his vnclennesse. And thē let the burntoffrynge be slayn, and let the prest put both the burntoffrynge ⁊ meate offringe vpon the alter: and make an attonement for him and then he shalbe cleane. If he be poore and can not gette so moch, then let hym brynge one lambe for a tres=paceoffrynge to waue it and to make an attonement for hym, and a tenth deale of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meat offryng and a logge of oyle, and two tur=tyll doues or two younge pygeons why=che he is able to gett, and lette the one be a synne offryng ⁊ the other a burntoffryng. And let hym bryng them the .viii. day for D hys clensyng vnto the Prest to thee dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse before thee Lorde.

And let the Preyste take thee lambe that is the trespaceoffryng and the logge of oyle, and waue them before the Lorde. And when thee lambe of the trespaceoff=frynge is kylleth, the Pryest shall take of the bloud of the trespace offring, and put it vpon the typpe of hys ryghte eare that is clensed, and vpon thee thombe of hys ryght hand, and vpon thee greate too of his right fote. And ẏ prest shal poure of ẏ oyle in hys ryght hand, and shal sprynkle w hys fynger of the oyle ẏ is in hys left hand seuen tymes before the Lorde.

And the Priest shal put on the oyle ẏ is in hys hād vpō the typpe of the right eare of him ẏ is clēsed, and vpō the thombe of hys ryght hand, and vpō the great too of his right fote: euē in ẏ place where the bloud of the trespaceoffring was put. And the rest of the oile that is in his hand he shal poure vpon the head of him that is clensed: to make an attonemēt for him before the Lorde. And he shall offer one of the turtyll doues or of the younge py=geons, soche as he can gett: the one for a synneoffryng and the other for a burnte=offryng vpon the alter. And so shall thee Prest make an atonemēt for him ẏ is clē=sed before the Lorde, Thys is thee lawe of hym that hathe the plage of leprosye: whose hand is not able to gett that whych pertayneth to hys clensynge.

E And the Lord spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge: when ye be come vnto the lande of Canaā whych I geue you to pos=sesse: yf I put the plage of leprosie in any house of the lād of your possessiō, let hym that oweth the house go ⁊ tel the prest say=inge: me thinke that ther is as it were a le=prosye in the house. And the Preest shal cō=maunde them to ryd all thynge out of the house, before the Preest go in to se the pla=ge: that he make not all that is in the hou=se vncleane, and then the prest shall go in and se the house.

Yf the prest se ẏ the plage is in ẏ walles of the house, ⁊ that ther be holowe strakes pale or rodde which seme to be lower then the other partes of ẏ wall, thē let the prest go out at the house dores, and shut vp the F house for .vii. dayes. And let the priest co=me agayne the seuenth day ⁊ se it: yf ẏ pla=ge be increased in the walles of the house, let the Prest cōmaunde thē to take awaye the stones in whych the plage is, ⁊ lett thē cast thē in a foule place wythout the cytye and scrape the house within round about and poure out the dust wythout the cytye in a foule place. And let thē take other sto=nes, ⁊ putt them in the places of those sto=nes, and other morter, ⁊ plaster the house with all. Yf now the plage come agayn ⁊ breake out in the house, after that they ha=ue taken away the stones and scraped the house, ⁊ after that the house is playstered a new: let the Priest come and se it. And yf then he perceaue that the plage hath eatē further in the house, then it is a freatinge leprosye that is in the house, and it is vn=cleane. Then he shal go out vnto ŷ alter ŷ standeth before the Lorde, & reconcyle it, & shall take of ŷ bloud of ŷ bullocke & of ŷ bloude of the goote, & put it vpon ŷ hornes of the altare round aboute & sprinkle of the bloude vpon it with hys fynger seue tymes and clense it, & halowe it from the vncleanesses of the chyldren of Israell.

C And when he hath made an ende of reconcylinge the holy place & the tabernacle of witnesse & the alter, let him bring ŷ lyue goote and let Aaron put both his handes vpon the head of the lyue goote, & cōfesse ouer hym al the misdedes of the childrē of Israell and theyr trespaces, and all theyr synnes: and lett hym putte them vpon the heade of thet goote and sende hym awaye by the handes of one that is annoynted in the wyldernesse. And the goote shall beare vpon hym al theyr misdedes vnto the wildernesse, and he shall let the goote go free in the wyldernesse.

And let Aaron goo into the tabernacle of witnesse & put of the linen clothes which he put on whē he went in into the holy place, & leaue thē there. And let him washe hys fleshe with water in the holye place, & put on his owne raymēt, & then come oute and offer hys burntoffrynge & the burntofferynge of the people and make an attonement for hym selfe and for the people, & the fatt of the synneofferyng let hym burne vpon the alter. And let hym that caried

F forthe the scapegoote, washe hys clothes, and bathe hys fleshe in water, & then come into the hoste agayne.

And the bullock of the synneoffryng & the goote of the synoffrynge (whose bloude was brought in to make an attonemēt in ŷ holy place) let one carye out without the hoste & burne wyth fyre: both theyr skynnes, theyr fleshe and theyr donge. And lett hym that burneth them, wash hys clothes and bathe hys fleshe in water, & then come into the hoste agayne. And thys shalbe an ordynaunce for euer vnto you. And euen in the tenth day of the seuenth moneth, ye shal* humble youre soules and shal do no worke at all: whether it be one of youre selues or a straunger that soiourneth amōg you, for that daye shal an attonemente be made for you to clense you from al youre synnes before the Lord, & ye shalbe clene. It shalbe a Saboth of rest vnto you, and ye shal humble youre soules, and it shalbe an ordinaunce for euer. G

*Note in the .xxiii. chap.

And the priest that is anoynted & whose hād was fylled to minister in his fathers steade, shal make the attonement and shal put on the holy lynen clothes & holy vestmētes, and reconcyle the holy sanctuary & ŷ tabernacle of witnesse & the alter, & shal make an attonemēt also for the priestes & for all the people of the cōgregation. And thys shalbe an* euerlasting ordinaūce vnto you to make an attonement for the chyldren of Israel for all theyr synnes once a yeare: and it was done euen as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

C All sacrifice must be brought to the dore of the tabernacle. To deuyls may they not offer. Bloud and all that is strangled is forbidden them.

The .xvii. Chapter.

And the Lorde talked wyth Moyses saying: speake vnto Aarō & vnto his sonnes & vnto al the chyldrē of Israel and saye vnto them, thys is the thyng whych the lord charged saying: whatsoeuer he be of thee house of Israell that kylleth an oxe, lambe or goote in thee hoste or without of the hoste and bryngeth thē not vnto the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse, too offer an offerynge vnto thee Lorde before the dwellynge place of thee LORDE, bloude shall be imputed vnto that man, as though had shedde bloud, and that man shall perysshe from among hys people. ¶ The.xx. Chapter.

And ŷ Lord talked with Moses sayinge: tel the childre of Israel whosoeuer he be of ŷ chyldren of Israell or of the straungers ŷ dwel in Israel that geueth of his sede vnto. a Moloch he shal dye for it: the people of the land shal stone him wyth stones. And I wyll sett my face vpon that felowe, and wyll destroie him frō amonge his people: because he hathe geuen of his seed vnto Moloch, for to defyle my sanctuary and to polute my holy name. And though that the people of the lāde hide their eies from that felowe, whē he geueth of his seed vnto Moloch, so that they kyll him not: yet I wyll put my face vpon ŷ man and vpō hys generacion, and wyl destroye him and all ŷ goo a whoorynge wyth hym and committe hordome wythe Moloche from amonge their people. A ☞ If any soule turne him to enchaūters or expounders of tokens and goo a whoorynge after them, I wyll put my face vpon that soule & wyll destroy him frō amōge hys people. Sanctifye your selues therfore & be holye for I am the Lorde youre God. And se that ye kepe myne ordynaūces and doo them. For I am the Lorde whyche sanctifye you.
☞ Whosoeuer curseth his father or mother shal die for it, his bloud on his head, B because he hath cursed hys father or mother. ☞ He that breaketh wedlock with another mans wyfe shal dy for it, because he hath broke wedlocke with hys neyghboures wyfe, and so shall she lykewyse.
☞ If a man lye wyth his fathers wyfe & vncouer his fathers secretes, they shal both dye for it, their bloude be vpō their hedes. ☞ If a mā lye wyth hys daughter in lawe they shall dye both of them: they haue wrought abhominaciō, their bloud vpon their heedes. ☞ If a man lye with mankynde after the maner as w womankynde, they haue both commytted an abhominatyon & shall die for it. Their bloude be vp on theyr heades.

☞ If

☞ Yf a man take a wyfe and her mother therto, it is wickednesse. Men shall burne wyth fyre both hym and the, that there be no wickednesse amonge you. ☞ Yf a ma lye wyth a beaste he shall dye, and ye shall slee the beast.

C ☞ Yf a woma goo vnto a beaste and lye downe therto: thou shalt kyll the woma & the beast also, they shal dye, & theyr bloud be vpon theyr heades. Yf a man take hys syster, hys fathers doughter or hys mothers doughter, & se her secretes, & she se hys secretes also: it is a wycked thynge. Therfore lett them perysh in the syght of theyr people, he hath sene his sisters secretnes, he shal therfore bere his synne. ☞ If a man lye wyth a woma in tyme of her naturall dysease and vncouer her secretes & open her fountayne, and she also open the fountayne of her bloud, they shal both perysshe from amonge the people.

☞ Thou shalt not vncouer the secretes of thy mothers syster, nor of thy fathers syster, for he that doth so, vncouereth hys nexte kynne: and they shall beare theyr mysdoynge.

☞ Yf a man lye wythe hys vncles wyfe, he hathe vncouered hys vncles secrettes: they shall beare theyr synne, and shall dye chyldlesse.

They shall dye immediatly & not tary the byrth as Juda wolde haue burnt.

D ☞ Yf a man take hys brothers wyfe, it is an vncleane thynge, he hath vncouered hys brothers secretes, they shalbe chyldelesse therfore.

* Se that ye kepe therfore al myne ordinaunces and all my iudgementes, and that ye do them: that the lande whether I brynge you to dwel therin, spewe you not out. And se that ye walke not in ye maners of the nacyons whych I caste oute before you: for they commytted al these thinges and I abhorred them.

But I haue sayde vnto you ye ye shall enioye theyr land, & that I wyl geue it vnto you to possesse it: eue a lad that floweth wyth mylke & honye. I am the Lord your God, which haue separated you fro other nacions: & that ye shuld put difference betwene cleane beastes and vncleane, and betwene vncleane foules and them that are clene. Make not your soules therfore abhomynable wyth beastes and foules, and wyth all maner thynge that crepeth vpon the grounde, whych I haue separated vnto you to holde them vncleane. Be holye vnto me, for I the Lorde am holy & haue seuered you frome other nacyons: that ye shulde be myne.

* Yf there be a man or a woman that worketh wyth a spyrete or that expoundeth tokes they shal dye for it. Men shall stone them wyth stones, and theyr bloude shall be vpon them.

The Notes.

a Moloch, vnder this name Moloch is forbidden all maner of ydolatrye, specyally the offerynge of chyldren therto for that is abhomynable before the Lorde. Moloch was an Idoll of the chyldren of Ammon, whose Image was holowe hauynge in it seuen closettes, one was to offer therin fyne floure, another for turtell doues, the thyrde for a shepe, the fourthe for a Ram, the fyfth for a calfe, the syxt for an Oxe. And for hym that wolde offer hys sonne was opened the seuenth closet. And the face of thys Idoll, was lyke the face of a calfe, hys handes made playne readye to receaue of them that stode by.

C The priest is forbidde to be at the deth of any of hys people, a fewe of his kynne except. Prestes may not be shaue nether on the head nor yet of the bearde. The prestes wyfe muste be a mayde. The Prestes doughter may not be no harlott.

The .xxi. Chapter.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: speake vnto the Prestes the sonnes of Aaro & say vnto the. A Prest shall defyle hym self at the death of none of his people, but vpo his kyn ye is nye vnto him: as his mother, father, sone doughter & brother: & on hys syster as log as she is a mayde & dwelleth nye hym & was neuer geue to man: on her he may defile him self. But he shall not make hym selfe vncleane vpon a ruelar of hys people to polute hym selfe wythal.

☞ They shal make the no baldnesse vpo theyr heades or shaue of ye lockes of theyr beardes, nor make anye markes in theyr fleshe. They shalbe holy vnto theyr God & not polute the name of their god, for the sacrifices of the Lorde and the breade of their God they do offer: therfor they must be holy.

☞ They shall take no wyfe that is an whoore or poluted, or put frome her husbande: for a preast is holy vnto his god. B Sanctifie hym therfore, for he offerethe vp the bread of God: he shal therfore, be holy vnto the, for I the Lorde which sanctifye you, am holy.

☞ If a preastes daughter fall to playe the whore, she polutethe her father: therfore fore she shalbe burnt wyth fyre.

¶ He that is the hye prest among his brethrẽ vpon whose head the anoynting oyle was poured & whose hande was fylled to put on the vestimentes, shall not vncouer C hys head nor rent hys clothes, nether shal goo to any dead body nor make hym selfe vncleane: no not on hys father or mother, nether shal go out of the sanctuarye, that he polute not the holye place of hys God, for y crowne of y anoynting oyle of god, is vpon hym. I am the Lord. He shall take a mayde vnto his wyfe: but no wedow nor deuorsed nor poluted whore. But he shall take a mayde of hys owne people to wyfe, that he defyle not his sede vpon his people: for I am the LORDE whych sanctyfye hym.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto Aaron and say: No mã of thy sede in theyr generaciõs that hathe any deformyte vpon hym, shall preace for D to offer the bread of hys God: for none y hath any blemysh shal come nere: whether he be blinde, lame, snot nosed, or that hath any myshappẽ membre, or brokẽ foted, or broken handed, or croke backed, or perley ed, or gogeleyed, or maunge, or skauld, or hath hys stones broken.

No mã that is deformed of the sede of Aaron the priest, shal come nye to offer sa crifices of the lord. Yf he haue a deformi-te, he shall not preace to offer the bread of hys God. Notwythstandyng he shal eate of thee bread of hys God: euen as well of the most holy, as of the holye: but shal not goo in vnto the vayle nor come nye the al ter, because he is deformed that he polute not my sanctuary, for I am the Lord that sanctifye them. And Moses tolde it vnto Aaron and to hys sonnes, and vnto all the Chyldren of Israell.

a ¶ The Priestes be warned that they shall not come at the commen waylynges and lamentacyons of the dead lest they shulde thereby be the more vnapte to doo theyr sacryfyces wherevnto they were properlye appoynted, and lest they shoulde by theyr wepynge geue an occasion to destroye the beleue of the resurreccion of the dead.

¶ What maner persons ought to absteyne from eatyng the thinges that were offered, & some, what, & when they shulde be offered

The.xxii.Chapter.

And the Lorde comened with Moses saying: byd Aaron A and hys sonnes that they ab for I am the Lord which sanctify them.

There shal no straunger eate of y halowed thinges, nether a gest of the preastes, or an hyred seruaunt. But yf y prest

C And the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto Aarō and his sonnes & vnto al the chyldren of Israel & say vnto thē, whatsoeuer he be of the house of Israel or strāger in Israel that wyl offer hys offryng: whatsoeuer vowe or frewyloffe- ringe it be which they wyll offer vnto thee Lord for a burntofferyng to reconcyle thē selues, it must be a male without blemysh of the oxen, shepe or gootes, let them offer nothynge that is deformed for they shall gett no fauoure therwyth.

Yf a mā wyll offer a peaceoffring vnto the Lord & separate a vowe or a frewil offrynge of the oxen or the flocke, it muste be wythout deformyte, that it maye be accepted. Ther may be no blemyshe therein: whether it be blinde, broken, wounded, or haue a wen, or be maunge or scabbed, se þ ye offer no soche vnto the Lorde, nor putt an offerynge of any soche vpon thee alter vnto the Lorde.

D An oxe or a shepe that hath any mēbre out of proporcion, mayst thou offer for a frewyll offring: but in a vowe it shall not be accepted. Thou shalt not offer vnto the Lorde that which is broosed broken, plucked out or cutt awaye, neyther shalt make any soch in your lande, nether of a straungers hand shal ye offer an offryng to youre God of any soch. For they marre all in that they haue deformites in thē, & therfore cannot be accepted for you. And þ lord spake vnto Moyses saying: whē an oxe, a shepe or a gott is brought forth, it shalbe seuen dayes vnder the dāme. And frō the viii. daye forthe, it shalbe accepted vnto a gyfte in the sacrifice of the lord. And whether it be oxe or shepe, ye shall not kyll it, & her younge both in one daye.

When ye wyll offer a ✱a thankeofferinge vnto the Lorde, ye shall so offer it that ye maye be accepted. And the same daye it muste be eaten vp, so that ye leaue none of it vntyl the morowe. For I am the lord kepe now my commaundementes & do thē for I am the Lord. And polute not my holy name, that I maye be halowed amonge the chyldren of Israel. For I am the lord whych halowed you, & brought you oute F of the lande of Egipt, to be your God: for I am the Lorde.

The Notes

a ✱ Thankeoffrynge, that is, an offerynge of thankes geuing. Thankes geuinge is whē the benefytes of God are receyued, whereby the fayth to Godward is strengthened the more faste to loke for the thing that we desyre of god. Ephe. v. a. i. Timo. iiii. a. b.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

AND the lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the chyldrē of Israel, & saye vnto thē. These are the feastes of the Lord whyche ye shall call holy feastes. Syxe dayes ye shal worke, & the seuenth is the Saboth of rest an holye feast: so that ye maye do no worke therein for it is the Saboth of the Lorde, wheresoeuer ye dwell. These are the feastes of the Lorde whych ye shall proclayme holye in theyr seasons. ✱ The. xiiii. day of the fyrst moneth at euē is the Lordes ✱ Passeouer. And the. xv. daye of the same moneth is þ feast of swete bread vnto the Lorde seuen dayes ye must eate vnleuened bread. The fyrst daye shalbe an holy feast vnto you, so that ye maye doo noo laborious worke therein. But ye shall offer sacryfyces vnto the Lorde. vii. dayes, & the seuenth day also shalbe an holye feast, so that ye may do D no laborious worke therein.

And þ Lord spake vnto Moyses sayinge: speake vnto the children of Israel & say vnto thē: whē ye be come into the land which I geue vnto you & repe downe youre haruest ye shal bring a shefe of þ ✱ first frutes of your haruest vnto þ prest, & he shal waue the shefe before the lorde to be accepted for you: & euen the morowe after the Saboth þ preest shall waue it. And ye shal offer þ daye whē he waueth þ shefe, a lambe without blemish of a yere olde for a burntoffryng vnto the Lord: & the meat offringe therof, two tenthe deales of fyne floure mengled wyth oyle to be a sacrifice vnto þ lord of a swete sauour: & the drinke offringe therto, the fourth deale of an hyn of wyne. And ye shall eate neyther bread nor

C not parched corne, nor frumentye of newe corne: vntil the self same day that ye haue brought an offring vnto your God. And this shalbe a lawe for euer vnto your chyl dren after you, wher soeuer ye dwell.

And ye shall coūte frō the morow after the Sabboth: euen from the daye that ye brought the shefe of the waueoffring, vii wekes cōplete: euē vnto the morowe after ẏ vii. weke ye shal nōbre .l. dayes. And then ye shal bryng a newe meatoffring vnto ẏ Lord. And ye shall bringe out of your ha bitaciōs two waue loaues made of twoo tenthdeales of fyne floure leuended & ba-ken, for the fyrst frutes vnto the Lorde.
And ye shall bringe wyth the bread seuen lābes without deformite of one yere of age, & one younge oxe and .ii. rammes, why che shall serue for burntofferinges vnto ẏ Lord, wyth meatofferinges & drinkeoffrin ges longinge to the same, to be a sacryfice of a swete sauour vnto the Lord.

And ye shal offer an he goote for a syn neoffring: and two lābes of one yere olde for peaceofferinges. And the Prieste shall waue thē wyth the bred of the fyrst frutes before the Lorde, & wyth the two lambes.
And they shalbe holy vnto the Lord, & be the Priestes. And ye shall make a proclamation thee same daye that it be an holye feast vnto you, and ye shal doo no laboruous worke therin: And it shalbe a law for D euer thorowe out all your habitacions vn to your chyldren after you.

✠ Whē ye repe downe your haruest, ẏ shalt not make clene ryddaūce of thy feld, nether shalt ẏ make any after gatheringe of thy haruest: but shalte leaue thē vnto ẏ poore and the straunger. I am the Lorde youre God.

inge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israell and saye. The fyrst daye of the seueth mo neth shalbe a rest of remembraunce vnto you, to blowe hornes in an holye feaste it shalbe, and ye shall do no laborious worke therin, and ye shall offer sacryfyce vnto the Lorde.

E inge: also the tenth daye of the self seueth moneth, is a daye of an attonemēt, & shall be an holy feast vnto you, and ye shall ✠ humble your soules & offer sacrifice vnto the lorde. Moreouer ye shall do no worke the same daye, for it is a day of attonemēt to make an attonement for you before the lorde youre God. For whatsoeuer soule it be that humbleth not him selfe that day he shalbe destroyed from amonge his peo ple. And whatsoeuer soule do any maner worke that daye, the same I wyl destroye from amonge hys people. Se that ye doo no maner worke therfore. And it shalbe a lawe for euer vnto youre generations after you in all your dwellynges. It is a Sab both of rest it shall be vnto you, & ye shall humble your soules. The nenthe daye of the moneth at euen and so forthe from euen too euen agayne, ye shall kepe youre Sabboth.

And the lord spake vnto Moses say- F
inge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israell and saye: the .xv. daye of the same seuenth moneth shall be the feaste of the tabernacles seuē dayes vnto the lorde. The fyrste daye shalbe an holy feast, so ẏ ye shal doo no laborious worke therin. Seuē dayes ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the lord, & the viii. daye shalbe an holy feast vnto you & ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the lord. It is the ende of the feast, and ye shall do no laborious worke therin.

These are the feastes of the lord which ye shall proclayme holy feastes, for to offer sacryfyce vnto the lorde, burntofferynges, meatofferynges, and drinckoffe-rynges euerye daye: besyde the sabbothes of thee Lorde, and besyde youre gyftes, and all youre vowes, and all youre free-wyll offerynges whyche ye shall geue vn to the lorde.

Moreouer in the fyftene daye of the seuenthe monethe after that ye haue gathered in the fruytes of the lande, ye shall kepe holye daye vnto the L O R D E seuen dayes longe. The fyrste daye shalbe G a daye of reste, and thee eyghte daye shall be a daye of reste. And ye shall take you the fyrst daye, the fruytes of goodly trees and the braunches of palme trees and the bowes of thycke trees, and wylowes of the broke, and shall reioyce before the lorde seuen dayes. And ye shall kepe it ho lye daye vnto the L O R D seuen dayes in the yeare. And it shalbe a lawe for euer vnto your chyldren after you, that ye ke-pe that feast in the seuenth monethe. And ye

ye shal dwell in boothes seuen dayes: eue all that are Israelytes borne, shall dwell in boothes, that youre chyldren after you maye knowe howe that I made the chyldren of Israell dwell in boothes, when I brought them out of the lande of Egypte for I am the Lord your God. And Moy ses tolde all the feastes of the Lord vnto
the chyldren of Israell.

The. xxiiii. Chapter.

A And the lord spake vnto Mo ses sayinge: commaunde the chyldren of Israell that they brynge vnto the pure oyle olyue beaten for lyghtes too poure into the lampes alwaye, wythoute the vayle of wytnesse wythin the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shal dresse thē both euen & mornynge before the Lord al wayes. And it shalbe a lawe for euer amō ge youre chyldren after you. And he shall dresse the lāpes vpon the pure candelstick before the Lord perpetually.

And thou shalt take fyne floure & bake xii. a wastels therof, ii. tenth deales, shall euery wastell be. And make two rowes of them, syxe on a rowe vpon the pure table before the Lorde, and put pure frankēces vpon the rowes. And it shalbe bread of re membraunce, and an offryng to the Lord B Euery Sabboth he shal put thē in rowes before the lord euermore, geue of the chyl dren of Israell, that it be an euerlastinge couenaunt. And they shalbe Aarons and hys sonnes, and they shal eate them in the holy place. For they are moost holy vnto hym of the offeringes of the Lorde, & shall be a dutye for euer.

And the sonne of an Israelitishe wyfe whose father was an Egyptian, went out among the chyldren of Israell. And thys sonne of the Israelytysh wyfe and a man of Israel, stroue together in the hoste. And the Israelytyshe womans sonne blasphe-med the name and cursed, & they brough te hym vnto Moyses. And hys mothers name was Salomyth, thee doughter of Dibry of the trybe of Dan: and they putt hym in warde, that Moyses shulde decla re vnto them what the Lord sayd therto.
Ꝑ And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses C saying, bryng hym that blasphemed with oute the hoste, and lett all that herde hym, put theyr handes vpon hys head, and lett all the multitude stone hym. And speake vnto the chyldren of Israel saying. Who soeuer b curseth hys God, shall beare his synne: And he that blasphemeth the name of the Lord, shall dye for it: all the multitude shal stone hym to death. And ÿ straū ger as wel as the Israelyte yf he curse the name, shal dye for it.

He that kylleth any man, shall dye for it, but he that kylleth a beast shall pay for it, beaste for beaste. Yf a man mayme hys neyghbour, as he hathe done, so shall it be done to hym agayne: broke for broke, eye for eye, and toth for tothe: euen as he hath maymed a man, so shall he be maymed a- D gayne. So nowe he that kylleth a beaste, shal paye for it: but he that kylleth a man shall dye for it. Ye shall haue one maner of lawe amonge you: euen for the straunger as wel as for one of your selues, for I am the Lorde youre God.

And Moyses told the chyldren of Israel, that they shulde bringe him that had cursed, out of the hoste, & stone hym wyth stones. And the chyldren of Israel dyd as the Lord commaunded Moyses.

that is.lx. & aboue, shall be valued at.xv. B sicles, and the womā at.x. Yf he be to poo re so to be set, then let him come before the Priest: and lette the priest value hym, ac cordinge as the haud of hym that vowed is able to gett.

Yf it be of the beastes of whych men bring an offeringe vnto the Lord: al that a ny man geueth of soch vnto the lord: shal be holy. He may not alter it nor chaūge it: a good for a bad or a bad for a good. Yf he chaunge beast for beast, thē both the sa me beast & it also wherwith it was chaun ged shalbe holy. Yf it be any maner of vn cleane beast of whiche men maye not offer vnto the Lord, let him bringe the beast be fore the Priest and let the Priest value it And whether it be good or badde as thee priest setteth it, so shal it be. And yf he wil bye it agayne, lett hym geue the fyfte part more to that it was set at.

Yf

If any man dedycate his house, it shal be holy vnto the Lorde. And the preaste shall set it, whether it be good or bad, & as the preaste hath set it, so it shalbe. If he ye sanctyfied it wyll redeme hys house, lette hym geue the fyfte parte of moneye that it was iudged at therto, and it shalbe his.

If a man a† halowe a pece of hys enhereted lande vnto the Lord, it shalbe set accordynge to ye it beareth. If it beare an homer of barlye, it shalbe set at fyfty sycles of syluer. If he halowe hys feld immedyatly from ye yere of iubely, it shalbe worth accordynge as it is estemed. But and yf he halowe hys feld after the trompet yere the preast shall recké the, pryce wyth him accordynge to the yeres that remayne vnto the trompet yere, and there after it shal be lower sett.

If he that sanctifyed the feld wyll redeme it agayne, let hym put the fyfte part of the pryce that it was set at there vnto, & it shallbe hys, yf he wyll not it shalbe redemed nomoare. But whé the felde goeth out in the yere of iubelye, it shalde holye vnto the Lorde: euen as a thynge dedycated, and it shallbe the preastes possessyon.

hys enherytaunce, then the preast shall reken wyth hym what it is worth vnto thee yeare of iubelye, and he shall geue the pryce that it is sette at thee same daye, and it shalbe holye vnto * thee lorde. But in the yere of iubelye, the felde shall returne vnto hym of whome he boughte it, whose enheritaunce of lande it was.

And al settyng shalbe accordynge to ye * t holy sicle. One sicle maketh .xx. Geras

But the fyrstborne of the beastes that pertayne vnto thee Lorde, maye no man sanctyfye: whether it be oxe or shepe, for they are the Lordes all redye. If it be an vncleane beast, then let hym redeme it as it is sett at, and geue the fyfte parte moare thereto. If it be not redemed, then let it be solde as it is rated.

Notwythstandynge no dedycated thinge that a man dedycateth vnto the Lord, of all hys good, whether it be man or beaste or lande of hys enherytaunce, shalbe sold or redemed: for all dedycate thynges are moste holye vnto the Lorde. No dedicate thynge therfore that is decare of mã may be redemed, but muste nedes dye.

Al these tythes of the lande, whether it be of the corne of ye feld or fruite of ye trees shalbe holy vnto the Lorde. If any man wyll redeme ought of hys tythes, let hym adde ye fyfte parte moare therto. And the tythes of oxe and shepe: & of al that goeth vnder the herdemans kepynge, shalbe holy tythes vnto the Lord. Men shal not loke yf it be good or bad or shal chaunge it. If any man chaunge it the both it and that it was chaunged withal, shal be holy & maye not be redemed.

These are the commaundementes whiche The Lord gaue Moses in charge to geue vnto the chyldren of Israel in mount Sinai.

a† To halowe and too sanctyfye are bothe one what sanctifyeng is loke Gene. ii.a *† Holye sycle, or sycle of thee sanctuarye, they be bothe one.

The ende of the thyrd boke of Moyses.

The Prologe upon the fourth Boke of Moyses / called Numeri.

In the second & thyrde boke they receaued the lawe. And in thys .iiii. they beginne to worke and to practyse. Of whyche practysynge ye see manye good ensamples of unbelefe & what free will dothe, when she taketh in hand to kepe the lawe of her owne power wythoute helpe of fayth in the promyses of God: howe she leaueth her maysters carkesses by thee waye in the wildernesse and bringeth them not in the lande of rest. Why could they not enter in? Because of theyr unbelefe, Hebre. iii. For had they beleued, so had they bene under grace, and theyr olde synnes had bene forgeuē thē, and power shulde haue ben geuen them to haue fulfylled the lawe thencefurth and they shuld haue bene kept from all temptacions that had bene to stronge for them. For it is wrytten Johan. i. He gaue them power to be the sonnes of God, thorowe beleuinge in hys name. Nowe to be the sonne of God is to loue God and hys commaundementes & to walke in his waye after the ensample of hys sonne Christ. But these people toke uppon them to worke wythout fayth as thou seest in the .xiiii. of thys boke, where they wolde fyght and also dyd, wythout the worde of promyse: euen when they were warned that they shoulde not. And in the .xvi. agayne they wolde please god wyth theyr holy faythlesse workes (for where gods worde is not ther can be no fayth) but the fyre of god cōsumed theyr holy workes, as it dyd Nadab and Abihu Leuit. x. And from these unbeleuers turne thyne eyes unto the pharesyes which before the commynge of christ in hys flesh, had layde the foundacion of freewyll after the same ensample, Whereon they bylte holye workes after theyr owne ymagynation wythout fayth of the worde, so feruently that for the greate zeale of them they slewe the kynge of all holy workes and the Lorde of free wyll which onely thorowe hys grace maketh the wyll free and lowseth her from bondage of synne, and geueth her loue and lust unto the lawes of god, and power too fulfyll them. And so thorowe theyr holye workes done by the power of freewyll, they exclude them selues out of the holye reste of forgeuenesse of synnes by fayth in thee bloude of Christ.

And then loke on oure ypocrites which in lyke maner folowing the doctryne of Aristotle and other hethen paganes, haue agaynst all the scripture sette upp freewyll agayne, unto whose power they ascrybe the kepynge of the commaundementes of god For they haue sett up freewyll pouertye of another man, then any is commaunded of god. And the chastite of matrimony utterly defyed, they haue set up another wylfull chastite not requyred of God, which they swere, vowe & professe to geue god, whether he wyll geue it them or no, and compell all theyr disciples ther unto, sayinge that it is in the power of euery mans frewyl to obserue it, contrarye to Christe, and hys Apostle Paule.

And the obedience of God and man excluded, they haue vowed another wilfull obedience condempned of all the scripture whych they wyll yet geue God whether he wyll or wyll not.

And what is become of theyr wylful pouertie? hath it not robbed ye whole world and brought al under thē? Can ther be ether kynge or Emperoure or of whatsoeuer degree it be, except he wyll hold of them & be sworne unto them to be theyr seruaunte, to go and come at theyr lust and to defend theyr quarels be they false or true? Theyr wylfull pouertye hath all ready eaten uppe the whole worlde and is yet full gredyar then euer it was in so moche that ten worldes moo were not ynoughe too satisfye the honger thereof.

Moreouer besydes dayly corruptinge of other mens wyues and open whoredome, unto what abominacions to fylthye to be spoken of hath theyr voluntarie chastite broughte them?

And as for theyr wylful obedience what is it but the disobedience & the defiaūce both of all the lawes of god & mā: in so moch that yf any prince begine to execute any lawe of mā upō thē, they curse him unto the botom of hell, & proclayme hym no ryght kinge & that his Lordes ought no lenger to obeye hym, and interdite hys comen people as they were hethe Turkes or Saracenes. And yf any man preache them Gods lawe, hym they make an heretyke, and burne hym to ashes. And in steade of Goddes lawe and mans, they haue sett vp one of theyr owne ymagynacyon whych they obser-ue wyth dispensations.

And yet in these workes they haue so greate confidence that they not onely trust to be saued ther by, and to be hyer in heauen then they that be saued thorowe Christ: but also promesse to all other forgeuenesse of theyr synnes thorowe the merites of the same. Wherein they rest and teache other to rest also, excluding the whole world fro ye reste of forgeuenesse of synnes thorow fayth in Christes bloud.

And now seyng that fayth only letteth a man in vnto rest & vnbeleue excludeth him, what is the cause of this vnbeleffe? verely no synne yt the world seyth, but a pope holynesse & a righteousnes of theyr owne ymagination as Paul sayth. Rom. x. They be ignoraunce of the righteousnes wherwith god iustifieth & haue set vp a righteous nes of theyr owne making thorowe which they be disobedient vnto ye righteousnes of god. And Christ rebuketh not pharesyes for grosse synnes which the world sawe, but for those holy dedes whych so blered ye eyes of ye world yt they were take as Gods: eue for log prayers, for fasting, for tithing so diligetly yt they lift not so moch as theyr her bes vntithed, for theyr clenesse in washig before meat & for washig of cuppes, dishes, & al maner vessels, for buylding the prophetes sepulchres, & for keping the holy daye and for turning the hethen vnto the fayth, and for geuing of almes. For vnto soche holy dedes they ascribed rightuousnes, and therfore when the righteousnesse of God was preached vnto them they could not but persecute it, the deuyll was so stronge in them. Whych thinge Christ well describeth Luke. xi. sayinge that after the deuyll is cast out he cometh agayne and fyndeth his house swepte and made gaye and then taketh seuen worse then hym selfe and dwelleth therin, and so is ther ende of that man worse then the beginninge. That is, when they be a litle clensed fro grosse synnes whi che the world seyth and then made gaye in theyr owne syght with the righteousnes of tradicions, then cometh seuen, that is to say the hole power of the deuyl, for seue with the Hebrues signifieth a multitude without nombre & the extremite of a thing & is a speache borowed (I suppose) out of leuiticus where is so oft mencion made of seuen.
Where I wold say: I wyll punishe the that all the worlde shall take an ensaumple of the, there the Iewe wold saye: I wyll circumcise the or baptyse the, vii. tymes. And so here by seuen is ment all the deuyls of hell & all the myght & power of the deuyll. For vnto what further blindnesse coulde all the deuels in hel bringe the, then to make the beleue that they were iustified thorowe theyr owne good workes. For when they once beleued that they were purged from theyr synnes, & made ryghtuouse thorowe theyr owne holy workes, what rowme was ther left for the rightuousnes that is in christes bloud shedding? And therfore whe they be falle into thys blindnesse they cannot but hate & persecute the light. And the more cleare & euidently theyr dedes be rebuked the furiousser & maliciousser blind are they vntill they breake out into open blasphemye and synning agaynst the holy goost, whych is the malicious persecuting of the cleare trouth so manifestly proued that they cannot once hysse agaynst it. As the pharesies persecuted Christ because he rebuked theyr holy dedes. And when he proued his doc tryne with the scripture & myracles, yet though they coulde not improue hym nor rea son agaynst hym they tought that the scripture must haue some other meaningbecau se his interpretacion vndermyned theyr foundation & plucked vp by the rootes ther sectes whych they had planted, & they ascribed al so his myracles to the deuell. And in lyke maner though oure Ipocrytes cannot denye but thys is ther Scripture, yet because there can be none other sens gathered therof, but that ouerthro weth theyr byl-dynges, therfore they euer thynke that it hathe some other meanynges than as ther worde sounde and that noo man vnderstandethe it or vnderstode it sens ther tyme of ther Apostles. Or yf they thynke that some wrote vppon it sence ther Apostles vnderstonde it: they yet thynke that we in lyke maner as we vnderstonde not the text not the text it selfe, so we understand not the meaning of the wordes of that Doctour.

For when thou layest the iustifieng of holy workes & denyest the iustifyenge of faith howe canst thou understande saynt Paule, Peter, Johan and the Actes of the Apost les or anye scripture at all, seynge the iustyfyenge of faythe is all moost all, that they entende to proue.

Fynally concernynge vowes whereof thou readest Chapter.xxx. there maye be many questyons, whereunto I answere shortely that we ought to put salt to all oure offerynges: that is, we ought to mynister knowledge in all oure workes and to do no thynge whereof we coulde not geue a reason out of Gods wordes. We be nowe in the daye lyghte, and all the secretes of God and all hys counsell and wyll is opened unto us, and he that was promysed shulde come and blesse us, is come alreadye and hathe shed hys bloude for us and hath blessed us wyth all maner blessynges and hathe ob-tayned for us, and in hym we haue all. Wherfore god hence forth wyll receaue nomo re sacrifices of beastes of us, as thou readest Hebre.x. Yf thou burne unto God thee bloud or fatt of beastes, to obtayne forgeuenesse of synnes therby or that god should the better heare thy request, then thou doest wronge unto the bloude of Christ, & Chri ste unto the is dead in vayne. For in hym god hath promysed not forgeuenesse of syn nes onely, but also whatsoeuer we are to kepe us from synne and temptation wythal And what yf thou burne frankencens unto hym, what yf thou burne a candel, what yf thou burne thy chastite or virginite unto hym for the same purpose, doest thou not ly-ke rebuke unto Christes bloude? Moreouer yf thou offer golde, syluer or any other good for the same entent, is there any difference? And euen so yf thou go in pylgrimage or fastiste or goest wolwarde, or sprinklest thy selfe wyth holy water or els whatsoe uer dede it is, or obseruestे whatsoeuer Ceremonie it be for lyke meanynge, then it is lyke abhominacion. We must therfore bringe the salt of the knowledge of gods word wyth all oure sacrifices, or els we shall make no swete sauoure unto God therof.

Thou wilt axe me, shall I vowe nothinge at all? yes, Gods commaundemente whych thou hast vowed in thy baptyme. For what entent? Verely for the loue of chri-ste whych hath bought the with his bloud and made the sonne and heyre of god with hym, that thou shuldest wayte on hys wyll and commaundementes and puryfye thy membres according to the same doctryne that hathe puryfyed thyne harte. For yf thee knowledge of goddes worde haue not purified thyne hart, so that thou consentest un to the lawe of God, that it is righteous and good and sorowest that thy members mo ue the unto the contrarye, so hast thou no parte wyth christ. For yf thou repent not of thy synne, so it is impossible that thou shuldest beleue that Christe had delyuered the from the daunger therof. Yf thou beleue not that Christ hath delivered the, so is it im possible that thou shuldest loue gods commaundementes. Yf thou loue not the commaundementes, so is Christes sprete not in the whyche is the earnest of forgeuenesse of synne and of saluation.

For scripture teacheth, fyrst repentaunce: then faythe in Christe, that for hys sake synne is forgeuen to them that repent: then good workes, which are nothing saue the commaundement of god only. And the commaundementes are nothing els saue the helpynge of oure neyghbours at theyr nede and the tamynge of oure members that they myghte be pure also as the harte is pure thorowe hate of vyce and loue of vertue as Gods word teacheth us whych workes must procede out of fayth, that is, I must do the for the loue whych I haue to God for that great mercy whych he hath shewed me in Christ, or els I do them not in the syght of god. And that I faynte not in the payne of the slevnge of synne that is in my flesh, myne helpe is the promyse of ye assistence of the power of god and the comforte of the reward to come whych reward I ascribe un to the goodnesse, mercy & truth of the promiser that hath chosen me, called me, taught me and geuen me the earnest thereof, and not unto the merites of my doynge or suf-feringes sufferinges. For al that I do & suffre is but the way to the rewarde & not the deseruin-ge therof. As yf the kynges grace shuld promyse me to defend me at home in myne owne realme yet the way thyther is thorowe the see wherin I myghte happely suffre no litle trouble. And yet for all yt, yf I myght lyue in rest whē I come thyther, I wold thinke & so wold other saye, that my paynes were well rewarded: which reward & be-nefyte I wold not proudly ascrybe vnto the merites of my paynes taking by yt way but vnto the goodnesse, mercyfulnes & cōstaunt truth of the kinges grace whose gift it is & to whom the prayse & thanke therof belongeth of duety and right. So now a rewarde is a gyft geuē frely of the goodnes of the geuer and not of the deseruynges of the receauer. Thus it appereth, that yf I vowe whatsoeuer it be, for any other pur pose then to tame my membres and to be an ensample of vertue & edifienge vnto my neyghbour, my sacrifice is vnsauery and cleane without salt and my lampe without oyle and I one of the folysh vyrgyns and shalbe shut oute from the feast of the bry-degrom when I thynke my selfe most sure to enter in.

Yf I vowe voluntary pouerty, this must be my purpose, that I wyll be cōtent with a competent lyuing which cometh vnto me ether by succession of myne elders or whych I gett truly with my laboure in ministringe & doynge seruice vnto the comen welth in one office or in another, or in one occupatiō or other, because that ryches and honour shall not corrupte my mynde and drawe myne harte from God, and to geue an ensample of vertue and edifieng vnto other & that my neyghbour maye haue a ly uing by me as wel as I, yf I make a cloke of dissimulatiō of my vowe, layng a net of fayned beggerye to catche superfluous aboundaunce of ryches & hye degree and au-thorite and thorow the estimation of false holinesse to fede and maynteyne my slouth full ydlenesse with the sweate, laboure, landes, and rentes of other men (after the en-sample of oure spiritualtie) robbinge them of theyr faythes and God of his honoure turninge vnto myne ypocrisie that confidense, which shoulde be geuen vnto the promises of God onely, am I not a wylie foxe and a rauenynge wolfe in a lambes skynne and a paynted sepulchre fayre without and fylthy within? In like maner thoughe I seke no worldlye promotion thereby, yet yf I do it to be iustified therwith and too gett an hyer place in heauen, thinkinge that I do it of myne owne naturall strengthe and of the natural power of my free wyll, & that euery man hath myght euen so to do and that they do it not is theyr faute & negligence & so with the proud pharesye in cō-parison of my self despise the sinfull publicanes: what other thing do I then eate the bloud & fat of my sacrifice deuouring that my self which shuld be offred vnto god alone and his christ. And shortly whatsoeuer a man doeth of his naturall giftes, of his naturall witte, wisdom, vnderstanding, reason, will, & good entent before he be other wyse & cleane cōtrary taught of goddes spirete & haue receaued other wyt, vnderstanding, reason, & wyl, is fleshe, worldly & wrought in abhominable blindnesse, with whi che a man can but seke him selfe, his owne profyte, glory & honour, euē in very spiritual matters. As yf I were alone in a wildernesse where no mā were to seke profyt or prayse of, yet yf I wold seke heuē of god there, I coulde of myne owne naturall gyf tes seke it none other wayes then for thee merites and deseruynges of my good wor-kes and to enter therin by another waye thē by the dore Christ, which were very thefte for Christ is lord ouer all and whatsoeuer any man will haue of God, he must haue it geuen hym frely for Christes sake. Nowe to haue heauen for myne owne deseruin-ge, is myne owne prayse and not Christes. For I cannot haue it by fauoure and grace in Christ and by myne owne meryttes also: For frely geuinge and deseruinge cannot stonde together.

Yf thou wilt vowe of thy goodes vnto god thou must put salt vnto thys sacrifice that is thou must minister knowledge in this dede, as Peter teacheth. ii. petri. i. Thou must put oyle of gods worde in thy lāple and do it accordinge to knowledge, yf thou wayte for the commynge of the brydegome to entre in with hym into his reste. Thou wilte

wylt hange it aboue the ymage to moue men to deuociō. Deuociō is a feruēt loue vn to Gods cōmādemētes & a desyre to be wyth God & wyth hys euerlasting promyses. Now shal the sight of soch ryches as are shewed at S. Thomas shryne or at walsingham moue a man to loue the cōmaundemētes of god better and to desyre to be loosed from hys fleshe and to be wyth god, or shall it not rather make hys poore herte syghe because he hath no soch at home and to wyshe parte of it in another place? The Priest shall haue it in gods stede. Shall the priest haue it? Yf the Priest be bought with christes bloude, thē he is christes seruaunt & not his owne & ought therfore to feade christes flocke with Christes doctrine & to minister christes sacramētes vnto thē purelye for very loue & not for felthy lucres sake or to be lord ouer thē as Peter teacheth. i. pe tri. v. & Paule. Actes. xx. Besyde this christ is oures & is a gyfte geuen vs, and we be heyres of christ & of al that is christes. Wherfore the Priestes doctrine is oures & we heyres of it, it is the fode of our soules. Therfore yf he minister it not truly & frely vn to vs without selling, he is a thefe & a soule murtherar: & euen so is he yf he take vpō him to fede vs & haue not wherwith. And for a lyke cōclusion because we also withal that we haue be christes, therfore is the Priest heyre with vs also of all that we haue receaued of god, wherfore in asmoch as the Prieste wayteth on the worde of god & is our seruaunt therin, therfore of right we are his detters & owe him a sufficient liuing of our goodes, & euen therto a wife of our doughters owe we vnto him yf he requyre her. And now whē we haue appoynted him a sufficient liuing, whether in tithes rētes or in yerelye wages, he ought to be cōtēt & to requyre no more nor yet to receaue any more, but to be an ensample of sobernesse & of dispising worldly thinges vnto the ensample of his parishconers.

Wilt thou vowe to offer vnto the poore people? that is pleasaunte in the sighte of god, for they be left her to do our almes vpon in Christes steade and they be the right heyres of all oure abundaunce & ouerplus. Moreouer we must haue a scole to teache goddes word in (though it neded not to be so costly) and therfore it is lawful to vowe vnto the buylding or maynteinaunce therof & vnto helping of all good workes. And we ought to vowe to paye costume, tolle, rente and all maner duties and whatsoeuer we owe: for that is gods commaundemente.

Yf thou wilt vowe pilgrimage, thou must put salt therto in lyke maner yf it shal be accepted, yf thou vowe to go & visit the poore or to heare gods worde or whatsoeuer edifieth thy soule vnto loue & good worke after knowledge or whatsoeuer god cō maūdeth, it is wel done & a sacrifice that sauoreth wel ye wil happely say, I ye wil go to this or that place because god hath chosē one place more thē another & wil heare you re peticion more in one place thē another. As for youre praier it must be according too goddes worde. Ye may not desire god to take vengeaunce on him whom gods worde teacheth you to pitie and to praye for. And as for the other glose, that god will heare you more in one place thē in another, I suppose it sal infatuatum, salt vnsauerie, for yf it were wisdom how could we excuse the death of steuē. Actes. vii. which dyed for ye articles yt god dwelleth not in tēples made with hādes, we yt beleue in god are ye tēple of god sayth paul, yf a mā loue god & kepe his word, he is ye tēple of god & hathe god presently dwelling in him, as witnesseth christ. Johā. xiiii. saying: Yf a mā loue me he wyll kepe my worde, & then my father wyll loue hym and we wyl come vnto him and dwell wyth hym. And in the. xv. he sayth: yf ye abyde in me & my wordes also abyde in you, then are what ye wyll and ye shall haue it. Yf thou beleue in Christ & hast the promyses which God hathe made the in thyne harte, then goo on pilgrymage vnto thyne owne harte and there praye and God wyll heare the for hys mercy and truthes sake and for hys sonne Christes sake, and not for a fewe stones sake. What careth God for the temple? The very beastes in that they haue lyfe in them be moche better then an heape of stones couched together.

To speake of chastite, it is a gyfte not geuen vnto all persones, testifieth bothe Christ and also hys Apostle Paule, wherfore all persones maye not vowe it. More-ouer ther be causes wherfore many persons maye better lyue chast at one tyme thē at another. Many maye lyue chast at twentye and thertye for certayn colde disceases folowing them, whych at .xl. when theyr health is come, cannot do so. Many be occupyed wyth wylde phantasyes in theyr youth that they care not for mariage whych same whē they be ware sad shalbe greatly desyrouse, it is a dāgerous thinge to make syn where none is, and to forsweare the benefyte of God & to bynde thy selfe vnder payne of dāpnation of thy soule that thou woldeste not vse the remedye that God hath created yf nede requyred. ¶ Another thynge is this, beware that thou gett the not a false fayned chastite made wyth the vngodly perswasyons of Saynte Hierome or of Ouyde in hys fylthy boke of the remedye agaynst loue, lest when thorowe soch ymaginacions thou hast vtterly despysed, defyed and abhorred all womankynd, thou come in to soche cause thorowe the fyrce wrath of God, that thou canste neyther lyue chaste nor fynde in thy harte to marye and so be compelled to falle in to ther abhominacion of the Pope agaynst nature and kynde.

Moreouer God is a wyse father and knowethe all the infyrmyties of hys chyldren and also mercyfull, and therfore hath created a remedye wythout synne and geuen therto hys fauour and blessyng. Let vs not be wyser then God with our ymaginacions nor tēpte hym, for as godly chastite is not euery mās gyfte: euē so he yͭ hath it to day hath no power to cōtinue it at his owne pleasure, nether hath god promysed to geue it him still & to cure his infirmities without his naturall remedye nomore thē he hath promised to slake his honger without meat, or thyrst wythout drynke. Wherfore other let al thinges byde free as wyse God hath created them & nether vowe that whych God requyreth, nor not forsweare that whych God permytteth the wyth his fauoure and blessynge also: or els yf thou wylt nedes vowe, thē vowe godly and vnder a condition, that thou wylt continue chast, so long as God geueth the the gyft and as long as nether thyne owne necessyte nether cherytie toward thy neyghbour nor the auctorite of thē vnder whose power thou arte, dryue the vnto the contrarye.

The purpose of thy vowe must be salted also with the wisdō of god. Thou mayst not vowe to be iustified therby or to make satisfactiō for thy synnes or to wynne heauē nor an hyer place: for then diddest thou wrōge vnto the bloud of Christ & thy vow were playn Idolatrie & abhominable in yͤ sight of God. Thy vowe must be only vnto the furtherance of the cōmaundementes of God, which are as I haue sayd nothing but the tamynge of thy mēbres & the seruice of thy neyghbour: yͭ is yf thou thinke thy backe to weake for the burthen of wedlock & yͭ thou canst not rule thy wyfe, chyldren seruauntes & make prouision for thē godly & without ouermoch busyeng & vnquietinge thy selfe & drowning thy selfe in worldly busynesse vnchristenly or that thou canst serue thy neyghbour in some office better beyng chast then maried. And thē thy vowe is good & lawful. And euē so must thou vowe abstinēce of meates & drinkes so farre forth as it is profytable vnto thy neyghbours & vnto the taming of thy fleshe: But yͭ mayst vowe nether of thē vnto yͤ sleyng of thy body. And Paul cōmaundeth thy mother to drinke wyne & no more water because of his diseases. Thou wilt say yͭ Timothy had not happely forsworne wyne. I thinke the same, & that the apostles forsware not wedlocke though many of thē lyued chast nother yet any meate or drinke, though they absteyned frō thē, & that it were good for vs to folowe their ensaumple. Howbeit though I vowe & sweare & thinke on none exception yet is the breaking of gods commaundementes except & all chaunces that hāge of god. As yf I sweare to be in a certayne place at a certayn houre to make a loue daye without exception, yet yf the kynge in the meane tyme cōmaunde me another waye, I must goo by gods cōmaundemēt and yet breake not myne oth. And in lyke case yf my father & mother be seke & requyre my presence, or yf my wyfe, chyldrē or houshold be vi[s]yted yͭ my assistence be requyred, or yf my neyghbours house be a fyre at the same houre & a thousande soche chaunces: in whych all I breake myne oth & am not forsworne & so forth. Read gods worde diligently and with a good herte & it shal teache the all thynges.

The.iii.Chapter.

These are the generacyons of A Aarō & Moses,whē the lord spake vnto Moses in mout Sinai and these are the names of the sonnes of Aaron Nadab the eldest sonne,& Abihu,Eleazar and Ithamer.These are the namesof the sonnes of Aaron whych were Preastes a nointed & their handes filled to mynister but*Nadab & Abihu dyed before the lor Leuites Aaron de,as they brought straunge fyre before the Lorde in the wyldernesse of Sinai, & had no chyldren.And Eleazar and Itha mar mynystred in the sight of Aarō their father.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge:bryng the trybe of Leui,and set thē B before Aaron the preaste,& let them serue him & wayt vpō him & vpō al the multitu de,before ỹ tabernacle witnesse, to do the seruyce of the habytacyon.And they shal wayte vpon all the appparell of the taber nacle of witnes,& vpō the childrē of Israel,to do the seruice of the habitacion. And thou shalt geue the Leuites vnto Aaron, and his sonnes,for they ar geuē vnto him of the chyldrē of Israel. And thou shalte appoynt Aaron & hys sonnes to wayt on theyr Priestes office:& the straunger that cometh nye,shal dye for it.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses say C inge:beholde * I haue taken the Leuites from amōge the chyldrē of Israel, for all the fyrstborne that openeth the matrice a-mōg ỹ childrē of Israel,so ỹ the*Leuites shalbe mine:because al the fyrstborne are myne:for ỹ same daye that I smote al the fyrst

fyrst borne in the lande of Egypte, I halowed vnto me all ŷ fyrstborne in Israel both man and beast, and myne they shalbe: for I am the Lord.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the wyldernesse of Sinai saying: Nōbre the children of Leui in the houses of their fathers and kynredes. all that are males from a moneth olde and aboue. And Moses nombred them at the word of the Lorde as he was commaunded. And these are the names of the chyldren of Leui: Gersō Cahath and Merari. And these are ŷ names of the chyldren of Gerson in their kinredes: Libni ꝛ Semei. And the sonnes of Cahath in their kynredes were Amram, Jezehar, hebrō ꝛ Oziel. And the sōnes of Merari in their kynredes were Mahelye and Musi. These are the kynreds of Leui in the housses of their fathers.

D And of Gerson came ŷ kynred of the Libnites and the Semeites, whych are ŷ kynredes of the Gersonytes. And ŷ summe of them (when all the males were told) frō a moneth olde and aboue, were. vii. thousande and fyue hundred. And the kynredes of the Gersonytes pytched behynde ŷ habitacyon west warde. And the captaine of the most auncient house amōg the Gersonytes, was Elyasaph the sōne of Lael. And ŷ offyce of the chyldren of Gerson in the tabernacle of witnesse was to kepe the habitaciō ꝛ the tente with the couerynge therof and the hangynge of the dore of ŷ tabernacle of witnesse and the hanginges of the courte, and the curtayne of the dore of the courte: whyche courte wente round aboute the dwellynge, and the alter, and the cordes that perteyned vnto all the seruyce therof. And of Cahath came the kinred of the Amramytes and the kynred of the Jezcharytes ꝛ of the Hebronites and of the Ozielites: And these are the kynredes of the Cahathites. And ŷ nombre of all the males from a moneth olde and aboue, was. viii. thousande and syxe hundred: which waited on the holy place. And the kynred of the chyldren of Cahath, pitched on the southesyde of the dwellynge. And the captayne in the moste auncient housse of the kynredes of the Cahathites, was Elisaphan the sonne of Oziell, and their offyce was to kepe the arcke, ŷ table the candelstyck, and the alter, ꝛ the holye vessels to mynyster wt and the vayle with al that serued therto. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preast, was captayne ouer all the captaynes of the Leuites, ꝛ had the ouer syghte of them that wayted vppon the holy thynges.

E And of Merari came the kynredes of the Mahelytes and of the Musites: and these are the kynredes of the Merarytes And the nombre of them (when al the males frō a moneth olde ꝛ aboue was tolde) drewe vnto. vi. thousande, and two hundred. And the captayne of the moste auncient housse among the kynredes of the Meracites, whas Zuriel the sonne of Abihael whych pitched on the north syde of the dwellyng. And the office of the sonnes of Merari was to kepe the bordes of the dwellyng ꝛ the barres, pylers with ŷ sockettes therof, and al the instrumentes therof ꝛ al that serued therto: and the pylers of the courte rounde aboute ꝛ theyr sockettes with their pynnes ꝛ cordes.

The Merarites assygned on the northsyde.

But on the forefrōte of the habitacyon ꝛ before ŷ tabernacle of witnesse eastwarde shall Moses ꝛ Aaron ꝛ hys sonnes pytch ꝛ wayte on the sanctuary in the steade of the chyldren of Israel. And the straunger that cometh nye, shall dye for it. And the summe of ŷ Leuites whych Moses ꝛ Aaron nombred, at the cōmaundement

Moses and Aaron & their sonnes, on ŷ eastsyde.

F of the Lord thorow out their kynredes, euen of al the males of a moneth olde ꝛ aboue, was. xxii. thousande.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: Nōber al the fyrst borne that ar males amōg the chyldre of Israel, frō a moneth olde ꝛ aboue ꝛ take the nomber of theyr names. And thou shalte appoynte the Leuites to me the lorde, for all the fyrstborne amoug the chyldre of Israel, ꝛ the catel of the Leuites for the fyrstborne of the chyldren of Israell. And Moses nombred as the lorde cōmaunded hym, al the fyrstborne of ŷ chyldren of Israel. And al the fyrstborne males in the summe of names, from a moneth olde ꝛ aboue, were nombred. xxii. M ii. hundred and. lxxiii.

And the lord spake vnto Moyses saynge:

G take the Leuites for al the fyrstborne of the chyldre of Israel, ꝛ the catel of ŷ Leuites for theyr catell: and thee leuytes shalbe myne whyche am the Lorde. And

The. iiii. Chapter.

A And ye Lord spake vnto Mo ses and Aaron, and bad thẽ take the summe of the chyldren of Cahath from amõg the sonnes of Leui, in theyr kinredes and houses of their fathers, from. xxx. yere & aboue vntyll fif tye al that were able to warre, for to do ye worke in the tabernacle of witnesse. This shallbe the offyce of the chyldren of Ka-hath in the tabernacle of witnes which is moste holy. And when the hoste remoueth Aaron and hys sonnes shall come and ta ke downe the vayle, and couer ye arcke of wytnesse there wyth & shall put theron a coueringe of taxus skinnes, & shal sprede a cloth that is altogether of iacyncte aboue al and put the staues therof in. And vpon the shew table, they shal spred abro de a clothe of iacyncte and put theron the dishes, spones, flat peces, & pottes to pou-re with, & the daylye bread shalbe theron: & they shal spreade vpon thẽ a coueringe of purple, and couer the same with a coue ringe of taxus skinnes, and put the staues therof in.

And they shall take a cloth of iacincte & couer the candelsticke of light & her lamp es and her snoffers, & fyre pannes, and al her oyle vessels whiche they occupye abo ute it, and shall put vpon her and all her instrumentes, a coueringe of taxus skyn nes, and put it vpon staues. And vpon ye golde alter they shal sprede a cloth of Ia cincte, and put on her staues. And they shall take all the thynges which they occupye to ministre with in the holy place, & put a clothe of Iacyncte vpon them and couer them wythe a coueringe of taxus skynnes and put them on staues. And B they shall take awaye the asshes oute of the alter, and sprede a scarlet cloth theron: and put about it, the fyre pannes, the flesh hoke, the shouels, the basens and all that belongeth vnto the alter, and they shall sprede vpon it a coueringe of taxus skin nes, put on the staues of it. And when Aa ron and his sonnes haue made an ende of coueringe thee sanctuarye and all thee thynges of the sanctuarye, agenste that the hoste remoue, then the sonnes of Ca-hath shall come in for to beare, & so let thẽ not touche ye sanctuary least they dy. And this is the charge of the sõnes of Cahath in ye tabernacle of witnes. And Eleazar ye sonne of Aaron the preast, shall haue the charge to prepare oyle for the lightes & swete cens, and the dayly meatoffring & the anoyntynge oyle, and the ouer syghte of al the dwelling and of al that therin is both ouer the sanctuarye and all that per tayneth therto.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses & C Aaron sayinge: destroye not ye trybe of ye kynredes of the Cahathites, from amõg the Leuites. But thus do vnto them that they maye lyue and not dye, when they go vnto the moost holy place. Aaron and his sonnes shal go in and put them euery mã vnto his seruyce and vnto hys burthen, But let them not not go in to se whẽ they couer the sanctuary, lest they dye.
And the Lorde spake vnto Moses say-enge Take the summe of the chyldern of Gerson, in the houses of their fathers & in theyr kinredes: from. xxx. yere and abo ue, vntyll. l. all that are able to goo forth in warre, for to do seruyce in the tabernacle of witnesse. And this is the seruice of ye kynred of ye Gersonites, to serue & to beare. They shal beare the curtaynes of the dwelling & the couerynge of the tabernacle of witnesse and his couerynge and the coue-rynge of taxus skynnes that is an hye aboue vpon it, and the hanginge of ye dore

of the tabernacle of wytnesse: and the han gyng of the courte and the hangynge of the gate of the courte that is rounde abo ut the dwellyng & the alter, and the cordes of thẽ, and al the instrumentes that serue vnto them and all that is made for them.
And at the mouth of Aaron and his son-nes, shall al that seruice of the children of the Gersonites be done, in al their charges & al their seruyce, and ye shall appoynte them vnto al their charges that they shal waite vpon. And this is the seruice of the kinred of the childrẽ of the Gersonites in the tabernacle of witnesse, & their wayte shalbe in the hande of Ithamar the sonne of Aaron the Preast.

And thou shalte nombre the sonnes of Merari in their kynredes & in the houses of theyr fathers from.xxx.yeres and aboue vnto.l. All that is able to go forthe in warre, to do the seruyce of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And this is the charge ỹ they muste wayte vppon in all that they must serue in the tabernacle of wytnesse.
The bordes of the dwelling, & the barres, pylers, & sokettes therof and ỹ pilers of ỹ court round aboute, and their sokettes, pi nes & cordes wyth al that pertayneth and serueth vnto them. And by name ye shall recken the thynges that they muste wayte vpõ to beare. This is ỹ seruice of the kin D reds of ỹ sõnes of Merari i al their seruyce in ỹ tabernacle of wytnesse by ỹ hãd of Ithamar ỹ sonne of Aarõ ỹ preast.

And Moses and Aaron and the princes of the multitude nombred the sonnes of the Cahathites in theyr kynredes and houses of theyr fathers, from.xxx.yere & aboue vnto fyftye, all that were able to go forthe in the hoste and to do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the nombre of them in theyr kynredes were two thousande, seuen hundred and.l. The se are the nombres of the kynredes of the Cahathytes, of al ỹ dyd seruice in ỹ ta bernacle of witnesse, which Moses & Aa rõ did nombre at the cõmaundement of ỹ Lorde by the hande of Moses.
And the sonnes of Gerson were nombred in their kinredes and in the houses of their fathers, frõ.xxx. yere vp vnto fyfty, all ỹ were able to go forth in the host for to do seruyce in the tabernacle of witnesse. And the nombre of thẽ in theyr kynredes, & in ỹ houses of their fathers, was two thousand syxe hundred and.xxx. This is the nombre of the kynredes of the sonnes of Gerson, of all that dyd seruyce in ỹ taber nacle of witnesse, which Moses and Aaron dyd nombre at ỹ cõmaundemente of the Lorde.

And the kynredes of the sonnes of Me rari were nombred in their kynredes and in the houses of theyr fathers, from.xxx. yere vp vn to fyftye: all that were able to go forth with the host, to do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the nombre of them was in theyr kynredes, thre thou sande and two hondred. Thys is the nõbre of the kynredes of the sonnes of Me rari, which Moses and Aaron nombred at the byddynge of the Lorde, by the han de of Moses.

The whole summe which Moses, Aa ron and the lordes of Israell nombred a monge the leuytes in theyr kynredes and housholdes of theyr fathers, from.xxx. yere vp vnto.l. euerye man to do hys offyce and seruyce and to beare hys burthẽ in ỹ tabernacle of witnesse: was.viii.thou sand, fyue hundred and.lxxx. whych they nombred at the commaundemente of the Lorde by the hande of Moses euery mã vnto hys seruice and burthen: as the lord commaunded Moses.

Who they be that ought to be cast out of ỹ hoste. The knowleging of synne. The cleansinge of synne done of ignoraũce. The lawe of the fyrste fruytes, & of gelousye.

The.v.Chapter.

And ỹ Lord spake vnto Mo A
ses sayinge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel that they put out of the host, all the lepers & al that haue yssues & al that are defiled vpon the deed, whether they be males or females ye shall put thẽ out of ỹ hoste, that they defyle not the ten tes amõg which ye dwel. And ỹ chyldren of Israel dyd so, & put them out of ỹ host euen as the Lorde commaunded Moses, so dyd the children of Israel.
And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayen ge: speake vnto ỹ children of Israel: whe ther it be man or woman, when they haue synned any maner of synne which a man doeth where wythe a man trespaseth a-gēst the Lord, so that the soule hath done amysse then they shal knowledg their synnes which they haue done, and restore agayne the hurte that they haue done in ỹ hole, and put the fyfte parte of it moare therto and geue it vnto him whō he hath trespased agenste. But and yf he that maketh the amendes haue no mā to do it to, then the amendes that is made shalbe the Lordes and Preastes, beside the ram of the attonement offerynge wherwith he B maketh attonement for him selfe. And all heue offerynges of all the halowed thinges which the chyldren of Israell brynge vnto the preaste, shalbe the preastes, & euery mans holowed thynges shalbe hys owne but whatsoeuer any man geueth the preaste, it shalbe the preastes.

And ỹ Lord spake vnto Moses saiēg Speake vnto the children of Israel, and say vnto thē. If any mās wyfe go a side and trespase against him, so that another man lye with her fleshly and the thyng be hyd from the eyes of her husband and is not come to light ỹ she is defiled (for ther is no wytnesse agenst her) in as moche as she was not take with the maner, and the sprete of [b] gelousy cometh vpon him & he is gelouse ouer his wyfe and she defiled, or happely ỹ sprete of gelousy cometh vpō him, & he is gelouse ouer his wife and she yet vndefiled. Then let her husbād bring her vnto the preaste and brynge an offerynge for her: the tenthe parte of an Epha of barly meele, but shall poure none oyle therevnto, nor put frankencens therō: for it is an offeringe of gelousye, and an offerynge that maketh remembraūce of synne.

And let the preast brynge her & sett her before the Lord, and let him take holy water in an erthen vessel & of the dust that is in the floore of the habytacyon and put it
C in to the water. And the preast shal set the wife before the lord and vncouer her heade, and put the memoriall of the offerynge in her handes whyche is the gelousye offerynge, and the preaste shall haue bytter and cursynge water in his hande, and he shall coniure her and shal say vnto her If no man haue lyen with the nether hast gone asyde, and defyled thy selfe behynde thy husbande, then haue thou no harme of thys bytter cursynge water.

But & yf thou hast gone asyde behynd thyne husband and art defyled and some other man hath lyen wyth the besyde thyne husband (and let the priest coniure her wyth the coniuracion of the curse and say vnto her) the Lord make the a curse and a coniuracion among thy people: so that the Lorde make thy thye rotte, and thy belye swell and thys bitter cursynge water go into the bowels of thy, that thy bely swell and thy thye rotte, and the wyfe shall saye [c] Amen, Amen.

And the preaste shall wryte thys curse in a byll and washe it out in the bytter water. And when the cursinge water is in her D that it is bitter, then let the prieste take the gelousye offeringe out of the wyfes hande, & waue it before the Lorde, and bringe it vnto the alter: and he shal take an hand full of the memoriall offringe and burne it vpon the alter, and thē make her drinke the water, and whē he hath made her drinke the water, Yf she be defyled and haue trespased agaynst her husband, then shall the cursynge water go in to her & be so bitter, that her belye shall swell and her thye shall rotte, and she shalbe a curse amonge her people. And yf she be not defyled but is cleane, thē she shall haue no harme, but that she maye conceaue.

Thys is the lawe of gelousye, when a wyfe goeth a syde behynde hyr husband & is defyled, or when the sperite of gelousye cometh vpon a mā, so ỹ he is gelouse ouer his wyfe thē he shal bringe her before the Lord, and the prieste shal minister al thys lawe vnto her, and the man shalbe giltles, and the wyfe shall beare her synne.

a) Thys text is to be vnderstanded of soch trespaces, wherwith we hurt our neyghbours in worldly goodes, as they cal thē, and therfore must ỹ hurt be restored and the fyft part more therto: If the partye remayned not to whō the restitucion was due, nor any of hys lawful heyres, thē must it be the prestes wages, which at that tyme had none other lyuinge.

b) The hole lawe of gelousy semeth to be a feare & a certayne nourtoure of wyues, that they shoulde be obedient to their husbādes, chaste, manerly & faithfull, & soch as geue no occasiō to be suspected therfore thys lawe whyle it kepe the wyues & gaue them no lycence to come at large wherby they myght haue come in some suspecte & so haue come to thys greate shame before the congregacion.

c) Amen is an Hebrew worde & sygnifyeth, euen so be it, or be it fast and sure. [illegible]

¶ The lawe of thẽ that take vpon them abstinence. The maner of blessing the people.

The .vi. Chapter

A And ye Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel & saye vn to thẽ: whẽ ether man or woman apoynteth to a vowe a vowe of abstinẽce for to abstayne vnto ye Lord, he shall absteyne frõ wyne & strõge drincke, & shal drinke no vineger of wyne or of strõge drinke, nor shal drinke whatsoeuer is pressed out of grapes: & shal eat no fresh grapes nether yet dryed as longe as his abstinence endureth. Moreouer he shal eate nothing that is made of the vine tre, no nor so moch as the cornels or ye hus ke of the grape.

And as long as the vowe of his absti-B nẽce endureth, ther shal no rasure nor she res come vpon hys head, vntyl hys dayes be out which he fasteth vnto the Lorde, & he shalbe holy & shall let the lockes of hys hayre grow. As long as he absteyneth vn to the Lord he shal come at no dead body: he shal not make hym self vncleane at the deathe of hys father, mother brother or sy ster: for b the abstynence of hys God is vpõ hys head. And therefore as longe as hys abstynence lastethe, he shall be holye vnto the Lorde.

And yf it fortune yt any man by chaũce dye sodenly before hym, & defyle the heade of hys abstinence, then must he shaue hys head the daye of his clensing: euen the seuenth day he shall shaue it. And the eyght day he shal bringe .ii. turtels or .ii. younge pigeons to the priest, vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And the priest shall offer the one for a synneofferinge & ye other for a burntofferinge & make an attonemẽte for him as cõcerning that he synned vpõ the dead, & shal also halowe his head ye sa me daye, & he shal absteyne vnto the Lord the tyme of his abstinencie, & shal bring a lambe of an yere olde for a trespace offe-rynge: but the dayes that were before are lost, because hys abstinencie was defyled.
C This is the lawe of the absteyner, whẽ ye tyme of his abstinence is oute he shall be brought vnto thee dore of ye tabernacle of wytnesse & he shall brynge hys offerynge vnto the lord: an he lãbe of a yere old with out blemishe for a burntofferinge & a she lambe of a yere olde without blemishe for a synofferinge, a ram without blemish also for a peacofferinge, and a basket of swete bread of fyne floure mingled withe oyle & wafers of swete bred anoynted with oyle wyth meatofferinges & drinkeofferinges that longe thereto.

And the prest shal bringe him before ye Lord & offer his synofferinge & hys burnt offering, & shall offer the ram for a peaceoffring vnto the Lord with the basked of swete bread, and the prieste shal offer also his meatoffring & his drinkeoffring. And the absteyner shal shaue his head in ye dore of the tabernacle of witnes & shall take the hayre of his sober head & putt it in the fyre which is vnder ye peacoffring. Thẽ the prest shal take the sodden shoulder of that I maye blesse them.

a Here it appeareth what a vowe is after ye old testament, which was a fygure of the vowe that a Christen man ought to do, geuinge and dedicating hym selfe to God as it is spoken Roma. xii. a.

b To haue the abstinence of God vppon hys head is, to shew a token of refusing the care of bodely thinges by that he sheweth not by the hayre of hys head, or by the trimmynge of hys bodie or bearde, which thing the world so greatly esteemeth.

c To make hys face to shyne is to geue a tokẽ of hys louing kyndnes.

¶ The offring of the Lordes and heades of Israel when the tabernacle was sett vp.

The .vii. Chapter.

A AND whē Moyses had ful set vp the habytaciō ⁊ anoynted it ⁊ sanctified it and al theap cles of syluer, & euery boule.lxx. so that al the syluer of al the vessels, was two thou sande and.iiii.hundred sicles of the holye sycle. And the.xii.golden spones whyche were full of cense, contayned ten sycles a pece of the holye sycle: so that all the golde of the spones, was an hundred and twen-tye sycles.

All the oxen that were brought for the burntoffringes were.xii. & the rāmes. xii.
& the lābes.xii.of a yere olde a pece, with þ meatoffringes: with he gootes for synne-this was the dedicaciō of the alter, after þ it was anoynted.

And whē Moses was gone into the ta bernacle of witnesse to speke with hym, he harde þ voyce of one speakinge vnto him frō of the mercyseat that was vpō þ arke of witnesse: euē frō betwene the two cheru byns he spake vnto hym.

¶ The disposicion and order of the lampes. The forme of the candelstick. The cleansinge & offringe of the Leuites. The age of the same.

The.viii.Chapter.

A AND the lord spake vnto Mo
Exo.xxv.c. ses sayng: speake vnto Aarō & say vnto him: * when thou puttest on þ lampes seþ they light all seuē vpon the forefront of the candelstick. And Aarō dyd e-uē so & put the lāpes vpō the forefront of the candelsticke, as the Lorde cōmaunded Moses, and the worke of the candelsticke was of stiffe gold: both þ shaft & the floures therof. And according vnto the vision which the Lord had shewed Moyses euē so he made the candelsticke.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses saynginge: take the Leuites frō among the chyl dren of Israel & clense them. And thys do vnto them whē thou cleansest them, sprin kle water of purifienge vpon them & ma-B ke a rasure to runne alonge by pon all the fleshe of them, and lette them washe theyr clothes, and then they shall be cleane. And let them take a bullocke and hys meatofferinge, fyne floure myngled wythe oyle: and another bullocke shalt thou take too be a synneoffringe.

Then bringe the Leuites before the ta bernacle of witnesse & gether the hole mul titude of the chyldren of Israell together.
And bringe the Leuites before the Lord, and let the chyldren of Israell putte theyr handes vpon the Leuites. And let Aaron heue the Leuites before the Lorde, for an heueoffryng geuen of the chyldren of Israell, & then let thē be appoynted to wayte vpon the seruice of the Lorde.

And let the Leuites put theyr handes vpō the heades of the bullockes, & thē offer thē: the one for a synneoffring and the other for a burntoffring vnto the Lord to make an atonemēte for the Leuites. And make the Leuites stand before Aarō and hys sonnes, & heue them to be an heueoffe ringe vnto the Lord. And thou shalt sepa rate the Leuites from among the chyldrē of Israell, that they bee myne: & after that let them go and do the seruice of the taber nacle of wytnesse.

Clense thē & waue thē, for they are geuē C vnto me frō among the chyldrē of Israel For * I haue taken thē vnto me for all the fyrstborne that open any matrice amonge the chyldren of Israel.

* For al the fyrstborne among the chyl dren of Israel are myne both man & beast because the same tyme þ I smote the fyrst borne in the lande of Egypte, I sanctifye them for my self: and I haue taken the Le uites for all the fyrstborne amōg the chyl drē of Israell, & haue geuen thē vnto Aaron and his sonnes from amonge the chyl dren of Israel to do the seruice of the chyl dren of Israel in the tabernacle of witnes and to make an attonemente for the chyl-drē of Israel, that ther be no plage amōg the chyldrē of Israel, yf they come nye vn to the sanctuary.

And Moyses & Aaron and al the con- D gregation of the chyldren of Israell dyd vnto thee Leuytes accordynge vnto all that the Lorde commaunded Moyses.
And thee Leuytes puryfyed them selues, and washed theyr clothes. And Aaron wa ued them before thee Lorde, and made an attonement for them to cleane them. And after that they went in to do theyr seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, before Aarō and his sonnes. And according as the lor de had cōmaunded Moyses as cōcernyng

the Leuites, euen so they dyd vnto them.
And the lord spake vnto Moyses sayinge: this shalbe the maner of the Leuites * frō .xxv. yere vpward they shall go in to wayte vpō the seruice in the tabernacle of witnes, & at fyftie they shal ceasse waytin ge vpō the seruice therof, & shal labour no more: but shal minister vnto theyr brethrē in the tabernacle of witnes, & ther wayte, but shal do nomore seruice. And se that ÿ do after thys maner vnto thee Leuites in theyr wayting tymes.

¶ The effer or passeouer offring of the cleane & vncleane. A cloude couering the tabernacle leadeth the hoost.

The .ix. Chapter.

A And the lord spake vnto Moses in the wildernes of Sinai in the fyrste moneth of the se-cōnd yere after they * were co me out of the land of Egipte saying: let the childrē of Israel offre Pas seouer in his season: euen the .xiiii. daye of thys moneth at euen they shall kepe it in hys season, accordinge to al the ordinaun ces and maners therof. And Moyses bad the chyldren of Israel that they shuld offer Passeouer, and they offred Passeouer the .xiiii. daye of the fyrst monethe at euen in the wyldernesse of Sinai: and dyd accordynge to al that the Lorde commaunded Moyses.
And it chaunced that certayne mē which were defyled wythe a dead corse that they myght not offer Passeouer the same daye came before Moyses and Aaron the same B tyme, and sayde: We are defyled vpon a dead corse, wherfore are we kepte backe ÿ we may not offer an offring vnto the lord in the due season, amonge the chyldren of Israell? And Moyses sayde vnto them:
tary, that I maye heare what thee Lorde wyll commaunde you. And the Lord spake vnto Moyses saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye. Yf any man amonge you or youre chyldren after you be vncleane by thee reason of a corse or is in the way farre of, thē lett hym offer Pas seouer vnto thee Lorde: thee .xiiii. daye of the second moneth at euen, and eat it with swete bread and sowre herbes, and lett thē leaue none of it vnto thee mornynge nor breake anye boone of it. And according to all the ordinaunce of thee Passeouer lette them offer it.
But yf a man be cleane and not let in a iourney, & yet was negligēt to offer * Pas seouer the same soule shal perishe frō his people, because he brought not an offerin ge vnto the Lorde in his due season: & he C shall beare his synne. And whē a straūger dwelleth amōge you and wyl offer Passe ouer vnto the Lord, according to the ordi naunce of Passeouer & maner therof shal he offer it. And ye shal haue one law both for the straunger & for hym that was borne at home in the lande.
And the same daye that the habitacion was reared vp, a cloude couered it an hye vpon the tabernacle of wytnesse: and at euen ther was vppon thee habitacion, as it were the similitude of fyre vntyl the morninge. And so it was alwaye, that the clou de couered it by day, and the similitude of fyre by nyght. And when thee cloude was taken vp from of the tabernacle, then thee chyldren of Israell iourneyed: & where the cloude abode ther the chyldren of Israell pitched theyr tentes. At the mouthe of the Lord the chyldren of Israell iourneyed, & at the mouth of the lord they pitched. And as long as the cloude abode vpon the ha-bitacion, they laye styl, & when the cloude taryed styl vpon the habitaciō long tyme D the chyldren of Israell wayted vpon thee Lorde and iourneyed not.
Yf it chaunced that thee cloude abode any space of tyme vpon the habitaciō, thē they kepte theyr tentes at thee mouth of ÿ Lorde: and they iourneyed also at the cō-maundement of the Lorde. And yf it hap pened that the cloude was vpon the habi-tacion from euen vnto morning and was taken vp in the mornynge then they iourneyed. Whether it was by daye or by nyght that the cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed. But when the cloud taryed * a two dayes or a moneth or a longe season vpon the habitacion, as longe as it taryed theron, the chyldren of Israel kepte theyr tentes and iourneyed not. And as soone as the cloude was takē vp, they iourneyed. At the mouth of the Lorde they rested, and at the cōmaundemēt of the lord they iourneyed. And thus they kept the watche of the Lorde, at the commaundemente of the Lorde by the hande of Moyses.

hoste of the trybe of thee chyldren of Za-bulon, was Eliab the sonne of Helo. And the habitacion was taken downe: and the sonnes of Gerson and Merari wét forth bearynge the habitacion.
Then the standert of the hoste of Rubé C went forth with theyr armyes, whose cap tayne was Elizur thee sonne of Sedeur.
And ouer the hoste of the trybe of the chyl dren of Simeó, was Salamiel the sonne of Suri saddai. And ouer the hoste of the trybe of þ children of Gad, was Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel. Then the Cahathi-tes went forwarde and bare the holy thin ges, and the other dyd set vp the habytaci on agaynst they came.
Then the standert of the hoste of thee children of Ephraim wét forth with theyr armeyes whose captayne was Elisama þ sonne of Ammud. And ouer the hoste of þ trybe of the sonnes of Manasse, was Ga malyel thee sonne of Pedazur. And ouer thee hooste of thee trybe of thee sonnes of Ben Iamin, was Abydan thee sonne of Gedeoni.
And hyndemost of all the hoste came þ stádert of the hoste of the chyldré of Dan wyth theyr armyes: whose captayne was Ahiezer the sóne of Ammi Saddai. And ouer the hoste of the trybe of the chyldren of theyr fathers a mā & let thē all be suche as ar rulars among thē. And Moses at the cōmaundemēt of the Lorde sent forth out of the wildernesse of Pharan: such mē as were all heades among the chyldren of Israell whose names are these.

In the trybe of Ruben, Sammua the sonne of Zacur: In the trybe of Simeō, Saphat the sonne of Hori. In the trybe of Juda, Caleph the sonne of Jephune. In the trybe of Isachar, Igeal thee sonne of Joseph. In the trybe of Ephraim, Hosea the sonne of Nun. In the trybe of Beja-B min, Palthi the sonne of Raphu. In the trybe of Zabulon, Gadiel the son of Sodi. In the trybe of Joseph, þ was of Ma-nasse, Gaddi the son of Susi. In þ trybe of Dan, Amiell the sonne of Gemali. In the trybe of Aser, Sethur þ sonne of Michael. In the trybe of Nephthali: Nahebi the sonne of Vaphsi. In the tribe of Gad Guel þ sonne of Machi. These ar the names of the mē which Moses sente to spye out the land. And Moses called the name of a Hosea the sonne of Nun, Josua.

And Moses sent thē forth to spie oute the land of Canaan, & sayd vnto thē: gett you southward & go vp into þ hie cоūtrey & se that lāde what maner thing it is & the people that dwelleth therin: whether they be stronge or weake, ether fewe or many, & what thee lande is that they dwell in whether it be good or bad, & what maner of cy-ties they dwell in, whether they dwel in tē-tes or walled townes, and what maner of lande it is: whether it be fatt or leane, and whether there be trees therein or not,
And be of a good courage and bringe of the frutes of the lande. And it was about the tyme that grapes are fyrst rype. C

And they wet vp and serched out the lande from the wyldernesse of Zin vnto Rehob, as mē go to Hemath, and they ascended vnto the south and came vnto Hebron, where Ahiman was & Sesai and Thalmani the sonnes of c Enacke. Hebrō — Loke Judic. i.b.

And they came vnto þ riuer of Estol and — * Otherwyse Tanis, after þ Chalde they cutt doune ther a braunch wt one clo uster of grapes & bare it vpō a staffe betwene twayne, and also of the pomgrana-tes and of the fygges of the place. The ryuer was called d Nehel Estol, because of the clouster of grapes which þ childrē of Israel cutt doune there.

And they turned back agayne frō sear ching the land at.xl.daies ende. And they D went and came to Moses and Aarō & vn to all the multytude of the children of Israell, vnto the wyldernesse of Pharan: euen vnto Cades, and brought them wor de and also vnto all the congregacyon, & shewed them the frupte of the lande. And they tolde hym sayinge: we came vnto þ lande whether thou sendest vs, and surely it is a land that e floweth with mylke & hony & here is of the frute of it. Neuerthe lesse the people be strong that dwel in the land, and the cytyes are walled and excea dynge greate, and moreouer, we sawe the chyldren of Enack there. The Amalec-hes dwell in the south contre, and the He thites, Jebusites and the Amorites dwel in the moūtaines, & the Canaanites dwell by the see & a longe by the cost of Jordā.

And Caleb stylled the murmur of the people agēst Moses saying, let vs go vp and conquer it, for we be able to ouercom it. But the men that went vp wythe hym sayde: We be not able to go vp agaynste the people, for they are stronger then we:
And they brought vp an euell reporte of the lād which they had serched, vnto þ chil dren of Israel sayinge: The land which we haue gone to serch it out, is a lande þ f eateth vp the inhabiters therof and the people that we saw in it are men of statu re. And there we sawe also geauntes, the chyldren of Enack which are of the geau tes. And they semed in oure syght as it were greshoppers, and so we dyd in theyr syght.

The Notes.

a Hosea or Osee, signifieth sauing or sauioure. Josua or Jehosua signifieth the saluació of the lord

b Nehel Escol signifieth by interpretacion the ryuer of the grape or as some wyl the valeye of the clouster.

c Floweth with milke and hony that is, full of good pastures, herbes, bees, catell, vynes, trees, plea saunt woodes. so that vnder heauē there was not a moare chosen pece of grounde for aboundance and plenteousnes.

d Eateth vp, &c. that is, suffereth them not to lyue, but wyth batell and vyolēce of geauntes consumeth them.

A rowe out that nyght, & al the chyldrē of Jsrael murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron. And the whole congregation sayde vnto thē: wold God that we had dyed in the lād of Egypt: ether we wold that we had died in this wyldernesse. Wherefore hath the Lorde brought vs vnto thys lande to fal vppon the swerde, that both oure wyues, and also oure chyldren shulde be a praye? is it not better that we retourne vnto Egypte agayne? And they sayde one to another: let vs make a captaine and retourne vnto Egipte agayne.

B And Moyses & Aaron fel on theyr faces before al the congregatiō of the multitude of the chyldrē of Jsrael. And Josua the son of Nun, & Caleb the sonne of Jephune which were of thē that serched thee land, a rent their clothes & spake vnto all the cōpanie of the chyldrē of Jsrael sayinge: The land which we walked thorow to searche it, is a very good land. Yf the lord haue lust to vs he will bring vs into thys land and geue it vs, which is a lande that floweth with milke and hony. But in any wyse rebel not agaynst the Lord. Moreouer feare ye not the people of the land, for they are but bread for vs. Their shylde is departed frō them and the Lorde is wyth vs: feare thom not therfore.

And all the whole multitude bade stone them with stones. But the glorie of the Lord appeared in the tabernacle of witnes, C vnto al the chyldren of Jsraell. And thee Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Howe longe shall thys people b rayle vpon me, & how long will it be yer they beleue me, for al my signes which I haue shewed among them? I wyl smite thē wt the pestilēce and destroy thē, and will make of the a greater nacyon & a mightyer then they.

And Moses sayde vnto the Lord: then ye Egiptiās shal heare it, for thou broughtest thys people wyth thy myghte from amonge them. And it wylbe tolde to the inhabiters of this lāde also, for they haue herde likewise, that thou the Lorde arte amōg this people, & that thou arte sene face to face, & that thy cloude standeth ouer them & that thou goest before thē by ye day tyme in a pyler of a cloude and in a pyler re God, I am the Lorde God.

The Notes

a Thys commaundement was a syne toke of partinge the gentiles and the hebrues and bre through of Christe, Johan. &c. Wherin there is no difference betwene the Hebrue or Jewe, and the Grekian, rych & poore, citezen and straunger or foriner.

b Necessytie drove him not to gather stickes & therfore was he worthye thys cruell deathe, for as mocht as he despysed to heare the word of the lorde where vnto he was so streyghtly commaunded to geue eare on the Sabothe daye.

c In the garden shulde the christen haue depely fixed in theyr hartes, consyderinge what they are bound to the Lord, of what God what a seruice they haue taken vpon them: that they myght wythal diligence and circumspection fulfyl that, whyche they haue promysed. &c.

¶ The rebellyon and resystaunce of Corah Dathan and Abiram. The erth opened and swalowed them vp.

The. xvi. Chapter.

A And Corah the sonne of Jeschar the sonne of Cahath ÿ sonne of Leui and Dathan & Abiram the sonne of Eliab and On the sonne of Peleth, the sonne of Ruben: stode vp before Moyses, wyth other of the children of Israel. ii. hundred & fyftie, heades of the congregacion, and councelers, and men of fame, and they gathered thẽ selues together agaynst Moyses and Aaron & sayd vnto them: ye haue done ynough. For al ÿ multitude are holy euerye one of them, and the Lord is among them. Why therfore heue ye oure selues vp aboue the congregacyõ of the lorde?

Corah with Dathan & Abiram.

Whẽ Moses heard it, he fel vpon hys face & spake vnto Corah, and vnto al his cõpanye saying: to morowe the lorde wyll shewe who is his & who is holye, and wyll take them vnto hym, and whom soeuer he hathe chosen, he wyl cause to come to him. This do: take fyrepannes, thou Corah & al thy companye, and do fyre therin & put cens thereto before thee lorde to morowe. And then whõ soeuer the lord doth chose, the same is holy. Ye make ynough to doo ye chyldren of Leui.

B And Moses sayde vnto Corah: heare ye chyldre of Leui. Semeth it but a smal thynge vnto you, that thee God of Israel hathe separated you frome the multitude of Israell to brynge you to hym, to do the seruyce of the dwellynge place of the lord and too stande before thee people too mynister vnto them: he hathe taken thee too hi & al thy brethrẽ ÿ sonnes of Leui wyth the, and ye seke the office of the preast also For which cause both thou and al thy cõpanye are gathered together agaynste the Lorde: for what is Aaron, that ye shulde murmure agaynst hym.

And Moses sent to cal Dathan & Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, & they answered we wyl not come. Semeth it a smal thing vnto the that ÿ hast brought vs out of a lande ÿ floweth with mylke and honye, to kyl vs in the wyldernesse. But that thou shuldest raygne ouer vs also: Moreouer ÿ hast brought vs vnto no land that floweth with mylke & hony, nether hast geuen vs possessyons of feldes or of vynes. Ether wilt ÿ put out the eyes of these men: we wyll not come.

C And Moses waxed very angry & said vnto ÿ Lord: Turne not vnto their offeringes. I haue not taken so moch as an asse from thẽ nether haue hurt any of them. Then Moyses sayd vnto Corah: Be ÿ & al thy companye before the Lord both ÿ they & Aaron to morow. And take euerye man his censer & put cens in them and come before the lorde euery man with his cẽser: two hundred & fifty censers, and Aaron with his censer. And they toke euery man his censer and put fyre in thẽ & laied cens theron, and stode in the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse, & Moyses and Aaron also. And Corah gethered al the cõgregation agaynst thẽ vnto the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse.

And the glorye of thee lorde appeared vnto al the congregatiõ. And the lord spake vnto Moyses and Aaron sayinge: seperate youre selues from this congregacyon, that I maye consume them atonce. And they fell vpõ theyr faces & sayd * O most myghty god of the spirits of al flesh one man hath synned, & wylt thou be wroth withal the multitude. And the lord spake vnto Moyses sayinge: speake vnto the congregacyon and saye: Gett you awaye from aboute the dwellyng of Corah, Dathan and Abiram. And Moyses rose vp & wente vnto Dathã and Abiram, and the elders of Israel folowed him. And he spake vnto the congregacyon sayenge departe from the tentes of these wicked men and touche nothyng of theires: lest ye perysh in all their synnes. And they gate them from the dwellynge of Corah, Dathan and Abiram on every side. And Dathã & Abirame came out & stode in dore of their tentes with theyr wyves, ther sonnes and theyr chyldren.

And Moses sayd: Here by ye shal kno we y the Lord hath sent me to do all these workes, & that I have not done thẽ of mi ne owne minde: If these men dy y comen deth of all men or yf they be * visyted after y visitacyon of al men, thẽ the lord ha th not sent me. But and yf the Lord ma-E ke a new thing, and the erth open hir mou th & swalow them and al that pertaine un to them, so that they go downe a quick in to hel: then ye shall understand, that these men have rayled upon the Lorde.

* that is punisshed in the punisshment.

And as sone as he had made an ende of speakyng al these wordes, y grounde clo-ve a sonder that was under them, & the er the opened her mouth & swalowed them & their houses and al the mẽ that were with Corah & al their goodes. And they and al that pertayned unto them, wẽte downe a lyve unto hel, & the erth closed upon them, & they peryshed from amonge the congre gacyõ. And al Israel that were about thẽ fled at the cry of thẽ. For they sayd: The erthe myghte happelye swalowe us also.
And ther came oute a fyre from the Lor de and consumed the two hundred & fifty men that offered cens.
And the Lord spake unto Moses say enge: Speake unto Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preaste and let him take up the censers oute of the burning, & scatter the fyre here and there, for ther b censers of these synners are halowed in their deathes & let them be beaten into thyn plates and fastened upon the alter. For they offred them before the Lorde, and therfore they are holy and they shalbe a signe unto the F chyldren of Israell.
And Eleazar the preast toke the brasẽ cẽsers which they that were burnt had of fered, & beate them & fastened them upon the alter, to be a remembraunce unto the chyldren of Israell, that no straũger why ch is not of the sede of Aaron, come nere to offer cens before the Lorde, that ye be not made lyke unto Corah and hys com-panye as the Lord sayde unto hym by the hande of Moses.

And on the morow al the multitude of the children of Israel murmured agaynst Moyses and Aaron, sayinge: ye have kyl led the people of the Lorde. And when the multytude was gathered agaynst Moy-ses and Aaron they loked towarde the tabernacle of witnesse. And behold, the clou de had covered it and the glory of the Lor de appeared. And Moyses & Aaron were before the tabernacle of witnesse. And the G Lord spake unto Moyses sayinge: Gett you from thys congregation, that I may consume them quyckly. And they fel upõ theyr faces.
And Moses sayd unto Aarõ: take a cẽ ser and put fyre therin oute of the alter, & poure on cẽs, & go quickly unto the cõgre gatiõ and make an attonement for them.
For ther is wrath gone out from the lord, and ther is a plage begõne. And Aarõ to-ke as Moyses cõmaũded him, & ran unto the cõgregation: & behold, the plage was begon among the people, and he putte on cens, & made an attonemẽt for the people.
And he c stode betwene y dead, and thẽ y were a lyve, and the plage ceased. And the nõbre of them that dyed in the plage, were xiiii. thousand & seven hundred: besyde thẽ that dyed about y busines of Corah And Aarõ wẽte agayne unto Moses unto the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse, and the plage ceased.

it shalbe a law for euer vnto your chyldrẽ after you: But among the chyldrẽ of Israel they shal enherete none enheritaunce.
For the tithes of ye chyldrẽ of Israel why-che they heue vnto the Lord, I haue geuẽ the Leuites to enherit. Wherfore I haue sayd vnto thẽ: Among the chyldren of Israell ye shall enheryte none enheritaunce.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the Leuites & saye vnto thẽ: when ye take of the chyldrẽ of Israel the tythes whych I haue geuẽ you of thẽ to youre enheritaunce, ye shal take an heue offring of that same for the Lord, euẽ the tenth of that tythe. And it shal be rekened vnto you for youre heueofferinge, euen as though ye gaue corne out of the barne or a fulloffrynge from the wyne presse.

And of this maner ye shall heue an heueoffring vnto the Lord, of al your tithes whych ye receaue of the chyldren of Isra ell, & ye shal geue therof the Lordes heue offringe vnto Aarõ the prest. Of al youre gyftes, ye shal take out the Lordes heueoffering: euen the fat of all theyr halowed thynges.

And thou shalt saye vnto thẽ: when ye haue take away the fat of it frõ it, it shall be counted vnto the Leuites as the encrease of corne & wyne. And ye shal eate it in al places bothe ye & youre housholdes, for it is youre reward for youre seruice in the tabernacle of witnesse. And ye shal beare no synne by the reason of it, when ye haue takẽ frõ it the fat of it: nether shal ye vnha-lowe the halowed thynges of the chyldren of Israell, and so shall ye not dye.

AND when kyng Arad the cananite which dwelt in ye south parties, harde tell that Israell came by ye way that the spies had founde out, he cam & fought wyth Israel & toke some of them presoners. Then Israel vowed a vow vnto the Lord and sayde: If thou wilt geue this people into our hādes, we wyll destroye their cyties. And the Lorde herde the voyce of Israell, and deliuered the the B Cananites. And they destroied both them & their cytyes, & called thee place Horma.

Then they departed from mount Hor toward the redd see: to compasse the land of Edom. And the soules of the people fainted by thee waye. And thee people spake against god & agaīst Moses: wherfore hast thou brought vs out of Egypt for to dye in the wildernesse for here is nether brede nor water, and our soules loth this* lyght bread.

Then the Lord sente fyerie serpētes amonge the people, which stonge them: so that moch people dyed in Israel. And the people came to Moses and sayd: we haue synned, for we haue spokē agaynst the Lord and agaynst the, make intercession to the Lorde, that he take awaye the ser-
C pentes from vs. And Moses made intercession for the people. And the Lord saide vnto Moses: make the a serpente and hāge it vp for a sygne, and let as manye as are bytten loke vpon it and they shall lyue. And Moses made a serpente of brasse and set it vp for a sygne. And when ye serpentes had bytten anye man, he went and behelde the serpente of brasse and recouered.

And the chyldren of Israel remoued & pitched in Oboth. And they departed frō Oboth and laye at Ijeabarim in the wildernesse whiche is before Moab in the east syde And they remoued thence, and pitched vpon the riuer of zarad. And they departed thēce and pitched on the other side of Arnon, whych ryuer is in the wildernes and commeth out of the costes of the Amori tes: for Arnon is the border of Moab, be-twene Moab & thee Amorites. wherfore D it is spoken in the * boke of the warre of ŷ Lord: go with a violēce, both on the ryuer of Arnon and on the ryuers head, whyche shoteth downe to dwell at Ar, and leaneth vpon the costes of Moab.

And frō thēce they came to Beer, which is the wel wherof ŷ lord spake vnto Moses: gether the people together, ŷ I maye geue them water. The Israell sange thys song: Ryse vp wel, synge therto: The wel whych the rulers digged & the captaynes of the people with the helpe of the lawe ge uer and with theyr staues.
E And frō this wildernesse they wente to Matana, & from Matana to Nahaliel, & from Nahaliel to Bamoth and from Ba moth too the valaye that is in the felde of Moab in the top of * Phasgah whych lo weth toward ‡ Jesimon. And Israel sente messengers vnto Schō, king of ŷ Amori tes saying: let vs go thorow thy lande, we wyl not turne into thy feldes nor into thy vyneyardes, nether drinke of the water of the welles: but we wyl go along by the co men way, until we be past thy coūtre. And Schō wold geue Israel no licence to pas se thorow his countre, but gethered al hys people together & wēt out agaynst Israel into the wildernesse. And he came to Jahe za and fought wyth Israel.
F And Israel smote him with the edge of the swerd & cōquered hys land, frō Arnō vnto Jabock: euē vnto the childrē of Am mon. For the borders of the chyldren of Ammon, at stronge. And Israell toke all these cyties & dwelte in al the cyties of the Amorites: in Hesbon & in al the townes ŷ longe therto. For Hesbon was the citie of Sehon the kyng of the Amorites whych Sehon had fought before wyth the king of the Moabites, and had takē al hys lād out of hys hande, euē vnto Arnon. wher fore it is a prouerbe, goo to Hesbon & lette the cytie of Sehon be bylt & made readye for ther is a fyre gone oute of Hesbon & a the lād of the Amorites. And Moses sent to serche out Jaezer, and they toke the tow nes belongyng therto & conquered the A-morites that were there.

And thē they turned & wēt vp towarde Basan. And Og the king of Basan came out agaynst them, both he and all hys peo ple, to warre at Edrei. And the lord sayde vnto Moyses: feare hym not, for I haue delyuered him into thy handes withal his people & his land. And thou shalt do with him as thou dyddest with Sehon the kin ge of the Amorites which dwelt at Hesbō.
And they smote him & hys sonnes and all his people, vntyll ther was nothinge lefte hym. And they conquered hys lande & the chyldren of Israell remoued and pytched in thee feldes of Moab, on the other syde of Jordane, by Jericho.

¶ Kyng Balac sendeth for Balam, to thintent that he shuld curse Israel: but Balam can do nothing agaynst the wyll of the Lord. Balās asse speaketh to hym in the waye.

The .xxii. Chapter.

And Balac the son of Ziphor A sawe all that Israell had done to the Amorites & the Mo abites were sore afrayed of ŷ people, because they were ma ny, and abhorred the chyldren of Israell: And Moab sayd vnto the elders of Ma-dian, now shal this cōpanye licke vp all ŷ are round aboute vs, as an oxe licketh vp the grasse of the feld. And Balac the son- B ne of Ziphor was kynge of the Moabites at that tyme.
And he sent messengers vnto * Balam deut. xxiii. a the sonne of Beor, the interpreter‡ whyche dwelt vpō the ryuer of the land of the chil dren of hys folke, to call hym sayinge: behold, ther is a people come out of Egypte which couereth the face of the erth & lyeth euē harde by me. Come nowe a felowship and curse me this people. For they are too myghtye for me, so perauenture I myght be able to smyte them and dryue them out of the lande. For I wote that whom thou blessest shall be blessed and whome thou cursest shalbe cursed.

And the elders of Moab went wythe the elders of Madian and the reward of the sothe sayenge in their handes. And they came vnto Balam, and told him the wordes of Balac. And he sayde vnto the[m] tarye here all nyghte and I wyll brynge you worde, euen as the Lorde shall saye vnto me. And the lordes of Moab abode wyth Balam.

And God came vnto Balam: and C sayd: what men are these which are withe the? And Balā sayd vnto god: Balac the sonne of Zipor kynge of Moab hathe sent vnto me sayenge: beholde, there is a people come out of Egypt and couereth ŷ face of the erthe: come nowe therfore and curse me the[m], that so peraduenture I may be able to ouercome the[m] in batel, & to dryue the[m] out. And God sayde vnto Balam: thou shalt not go wyth them, nether curse the people, for they are blessed.

And Balam rose vp in the mornynge and sayde vnto the Lordes of Balac: get you vnto youre lande, for the Lorde wyl not suffre me to go with you. And the lordes of Moab rose vp & went vnto Balac and sayd Balā wolde not come wyth vs. And Balac set agayne a greater cōpanie of lordes & more honorable the[n] they. And they came to Balā and tolde him: Thus sayeth Balac the sonne of Zipor: oh, let nothynge let the to come vnto me, for I wyl greatly promote the vnto greate honoure, and wil do whatsoeuer thou sayest vnto me, come therfore I praye thee, curse me thys people.

D And Balam answered and sayde vn Ba.xxiiii.a to ŷ seruauntes of Balac. *If Balac wolde geue me his houssful of siluer and golde, I can go no further then the worde of the lord my God, to do lesse or moare. Neuerthelesse tarie ye here all nyght: that I may wete, what the Lorde wyll saye vnto me once moare. And God came vnto Balam by nyghte and sayde vnto him: If ŷ men come to fett the, ryse vp and go with them: but what I saye vnto the, that only thou shalt do.

And Balam rose vp early and sadelde his asse, & went with the lordes of Moab. But God was angry because he wēt.

And the angel of the Lord stode in ŷ way against him. And he ryd vpon his asse & two seruauntes with him. And when the asse saw the angell of the Lord stand in ŷ way & his swerde drawen in his hand, she turned a syde oute of the way & went out in to the felde. And Balam smote the asse to turne her into the waye.

And the angel of the Lord went and sto E de in a path betwene ŷ vineyardes, where was a wall on the one syde & another on the other. When the asse saw the angel of the Lorde, she wrenched vnto the walle & thrust Balams fote vnto the wall, and he smote her agayne. And ŷ angel of the lord wēte forther and stode in narowe place, where was no waye to tourne, ether to the ryghte hande or to the lyfte. And when the asse saw the angel of the Lord, she fel downe vnder Balam: & Balā was wrath & smote the asse with a staf. And the lorde opened the mouth of the asse, & she sayde vnto Balam: what haue I done vnto the, ŷ thou smitest me thus .iii. times? And Balam sayde vnto the Asse: because thou hast mocked me, I wold ŷ I had a swerd in myne hand, that I mighte now kyll ŷ. And the asse sayd vnto Balam: am not I thyne Asse whiche thou hast rydden vpō sence thou waste borne vnto thys daye? F was I euer wont to do so vnto the? And he sayde, nay.

And the Lord opened the eyes of Balā ŷ he sawe the angel of the Lord standing in the waye, withe his swerde drawen in his hande. And he bowed him selfe & fell flat on his face. And the angel of the Lorde sayde vnto him. Wherfore smitest ŷ thyne asse thus .iii. tymes? behold I came out to resyst the, for the waye is contrary vnto me, & the asse sawe me and auoyded me thre tymes: or els (had she not turned from me) I had surely slaine the and saued her a lyue. And Balam sayd vnto the angel of the Lord: I haue sinned for I wist not that thou stodest in the waye against me. Now therfore yf it displease thine eyes, I wil turne agayne. And ŷ angel sayd vnto Balā, go with the men: but in anye wyse, what I saye vnto the, that say. And Balam wente with the lordes of Balac.

And when Balac herde that Balam was come he wēt out against him vnto a G cytye

cytie of Moab that stode in the border of Arnon, which was the vtmost part of hys countre. And Balac sayd vnto Balā: dyd I not send for the, to call the? wherfore ca mest thou not vnto me? thinkest thou that I am not able to promote the vnto honou re? And Balā sayd vnto Balac: Lo I am come vnto thee. But I can saye nothinge at all saue what God putteth in my mou-his worde: but shal fulfill al that procea-deth out of hys mouth.

If a damsell vowe a vowe vnto the Lorde and bynde her selfe beynge in her fathers house and vnmaryed. If her father heare her vowe and bonde which she hath made vpon her soule, ⁊ hold his pea ce therto: thẽ al her vowes ⁊ bõdes which she hath made vpon her soule shal stande in effecte. But ⁊ yf her father forbyd her B the same daye yͤ he heareth it, none of her vowes nor bondes whych she hath made vpon her soule shalbe of value, ⁊ the Lor de shall forgeue her, because her father forbade her.

If she had an husband whẽ she vowed or pronounced oughte out of her lyppes wherwith she bond her soule, and her hus bande hearde it ⁊ helde his peace there at the same daye he hearde it. Then her vow es and her bondes wherwith she bounde her soule, shall stande in effecte. But ⁊ yf her husbande forbade her the same daye that they heard it, then hathe he made her vowe which she had vpon her of none effecte, ⁊ that also which she pronounced wt made of wood.

And Eleazar the prieste sayde vnto all the men of warre which wēt out to batell: thys is the ordinaunce of the lawe whych D the Lord cōmaunded Moses: Golde, sylver, brasse, yron, tyn and lead, and all that

And the Lord spake vnto Moses say inge: take the sūme of the praye that was takē, both of the wemen and of catel, thou and Eleazar the priest and thee auncient heades of the congregation. And devyde it in to two partes, betwene them that toke the warre vpon them and went out to ba-tell and all the cōgregatiō. And take a por cion vnto the Lorde of thee men of warre whyche wente oute to battell: one of fyve hundred, of thee wemen and of thee oxen and of thee asses and of thee shepe: and ye shall take it of theyr halfe and geve it vn e vnto Eleazar the preast, an heueofferyng vnto the Lord. And of the halfe of ỹ chyl dren of Israel, take one of fifty, of ỹ women of the oxe, of the asses & of the shepe, and of all maner of beastes, & geue them vnto ỹ leuites which wayte vpõ the habitacyon of the Lorde.

And Moses & Eleazar the preast did as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the boty and the praye which the mẽ of warre had caught was .vi. hundred thousand & lxxv. thousãd shepe: & .lxxii. thousand oxẽ lxi. thousand asses: & .xxxii. thousand we-men that had lyen by no man.

And the halfe which was the parte of thẽ that wente out to warre, was .iii. hundred thousand and .xxxvii. thousand and fiue hundred shepe: And the Lordes part of the shepe was .vi. hundred and .lxxv.
And the oxen were .xxxvi. thousande, of which the Lordes parte was .lxxii. And ỹ asses were .xxx. thousande fyue hundred, of whych the Lordes part was lxi. And ỹ wemen were .xvi. thousande of which the f Lordes parte was .xxxii. soules, And Mo the other halfe of the chyldren of Israell which Moses separated from the men of warre (that is to wete, the halfe that pertained vnto the * cõgregacion) was .iii. hũ dred thousande and .xxxvii. thousande & fyue hũdred shepe: & .xxxvi. thousand oxẽ and .xxx. thousande asses and fiue hũdred & .xvi. thousand wemẽ. And Moses toke of thys halfe that pertayned vnto the chil dren of Israel: one of euery fyftye, bothe of the wemen and of the catell, and gaue thẽ vnto the Leuites whych wayted vpõ the habitacyon of the Lorde, as the Lord commaunded Moses. And the officers of thousandes of the hoste, the captaynes o uer the thousandes & the captaynes ouer the hundredes came forth and sayd vnto G Moses: Thy seruauntes haue taken the summe of the mẽ of warre, which were vn der oure hand, & there lacked not one mã of thẽ. We haue therfore brought a presẽt vnto the Lord what euery mã found of Je wels of golde, cheyns, braceletes, ringes, earynges & spangels, to make an attonement for our soules before the Lorde.

* Whiche was not at the warre.

And Moses and Eleazar toke the gol de of them: Jewels of all maner facyons.
And all the golde of thee heueoffering of the lord, of the captaynes ouer thousãdes & hũdredes was .xvi. thousãd. vii. hũdred and .l. sycles, for the mẽ of warre had spoi led, euery man for him selfe. And Moses & Eleazar ỹ preast toke the golde of ỹ cap taynes ouer the thousandes ouer the hun dredes, and broughte it in to the tabernacle of wytnesse: to be a memoryall vnto ỹ

¶ To Rubẽ and Gad and to halfe the trybe of Ma nasses, is promysed the possession beyounde Jorda ne eastwarde yf they bring theyr brethrẽ into the lãd of promyse.

The .xxxii. Chapter.

The childre of Ruben and the 1 children of Gad, had an ex-ceadyng great multitude of catel. And whẽ they sawe the land of Jazer & the lande of Galaad ỹ it was an apte place for catell: they came & spake vnto Moses & Eleazar the preast & vnto the Lordes of the cõ gregacyon saying. The land of Ataroth & Dibõ & Jazer, and Nemrah & Hesbon & Elealeh and Sabam and Nebo & Beõ which contre the Lorde smote before ỹ cõ gregaciõ of Israel: is a lande for catell & we thy seruauntes haue catell wherfore (sayde they) yf we haue founde grace in thy syght, lett this lande be geuen vnto thy seruauntes to possesse, & bring vs not ouer Jordan.

And Moyses sayd vnto ỹ children of Gad & of Ruben: shal your brethrẽ go to 6 warre & ye tarye here? Wherfore discoura ge ye the hertes of the chyldren of Israel for to go ouer into the land whych the lor de hath geuen them? Thys dyd youre fa thers, when I sent them from Cades bar ne to se the lande. And they wente vp vn to the ryuer of Escol and sawe the lãd and discoraged ỹ hertes of the children of Israel, ỹ they sholde not go in to ỹ lande whych the lorde had geuen them.

And the lorde was wroth the same tyme and sware sayenge, * None of the mẽ that came out of Egipte from twentye ye re olde aboue, shall se the lande whych I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob because they haue not cõtinually folowed me: saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune the Kenesite

kenesite, & Josua the sonne of Nun, for they haue folowed me cōtinually. And ye lord was angry with Israell, & made the wādre in the wyldernesse .xl. yere, vntyl al that generacion that had done euell in the syght of the Lorde were consumed.

And beholde, ye are rysen vp in youre fathers steade, to the encrease of synfull men, & to augment ye fearse wrathe of the Lord to Israell warde. For yf ye tourne awaye from after him, he wyll yet againe leaue ye people in the wildernes, so shal ye destroy all this folke. And they went nere hym and sayde: we wyl bylde shepefoldes here for oure shepe & for oure catell, and D cyties for oure chyldren: But we oure selues wil go ready armed before the childrē of Israel, vntyll we haue brought thē vnto their place. And our chyldren shal dwel in the fenced cyties because of the inhabiters of the lande. And we will not retourne vnto oure houses, vntyll the chyldren of Israel haue inherited: euerye man his enheritaunce. For we wil not enherit with them on yonder syde Jordan forwarde, because our enherytaunce is falled to vs on this syde Jordan eastwarde.

[illegible] And Moses sayde vnto them: *If ye wyl do this thyng, that ye wyl go all harnessed: before the Lord to warre, and wil go al of you in harnesse ouer Jordan before ye lord, vntyl he haue cast out his enemyes before him, & vntil the lande be subdued before ye Lord, thē ye shal retourne &
E be without sinne against the lord & against Israel, & this lande shalbe youre possessiō before the Lord. But & yf ye wil not do so, beholde, ye sinne agēst the lord: & be sure your synne wyl fynde you out. Bild youre cyties for your chyldren & foldes for your shepe, & se ye do that ye haue spoken. And the Childrē of Gad and of Ruben spake vnto Moses sayenge: thy seruauntes wyl do as my lord cōmaundeth. Oure chyldrē our wyues substance & all oure catel shall remayne here in the cytyes of Galaad. But *we thy seruauntes will [illegible] go al harnessed for ye warre vnto battel before the Lorde, as my lorde hath sayde.

F And Moses cōmaunded Eleasar ye preast: & Josue the sonne of Nun and ye auncient heades of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, & sayde vnto them: If the chyldren of Gad & Ruben wil go with you ouer Jordan, al prepared to fyghte before ye Lord: then when the lande is subdued vnto you, geue the the land of Galaad to possesse, but & yf they wyl not go ouer wt you in harnesse, then they shall haue their possessions among you in the lād of Canaan. And the childrē of Gad & Rubē answered saying: ye which ye Lord hath sayd vnto thy seruauntes we wil do. *We wyl Josu.xxii.a go harnessed before the Lord into the lād of Canaan, & the possession of our enheritaunce shalbe on thys syde Jordan.

And Moses gaue vnto the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben & vnto halfe ye trybe of Manasse the sonne of Josephe the kyngdome of Sehon kynge of the Amorites, and the kyngdome of Og kyng of Bason, the land that lōged vnto the cities therof in ye costes of the countre rounde a- G boute. And the chyldren of Gad bylt Dibon, Ataroth, Aroer, Atroth, Sophan, Jaeser, Jegabea, Bethnimra and Betharan fenced cytyes, and they bylte foldes for the shepe. And the chyldren of Rubē bilte Hesbon, Eleale, Kiriathaim, Nebo, Baal Meon & turned their names, and Sibama also: and gaue names vnto the cyties whych they bylte.

And the *chyldren of Machir the sōne Gen.l.d of Manasse went to Galaad and toke it and put out ye Amorites that were therin. And Moses gaue Galaad vnto Machir the sonne of Manasse, & he dwelte therin.
And *Jair the sonne of Manasse went Deut.iii.d. and toke the small townes therof, and called them the townes of Jair. And Nobah went and toke Kenath with the townes lōgynge therto, and called it Nobah after hys owne name.

de to enheret by lotte to the children of Is raell. And then my lorde commaunded in the name of the Lorde to geue the enheri,xxvii.a taunce of * Zelaphead oure brother vnto hys daughters. Now when any of the sõ B nes of the trybes of Israel take thẽ to wy ues, then shall theyr enheritaunce be takẽ from the enherytaunce of oure fathers, & shall be put vnto the enherytaunce of the trybe in whiche they are and shall be takẽ frõ the lott of oure enherytaũce. And whẽ the yere of iubelye comethe vnto the children of Israell, then shall theyr enherytaunce be put vnto the enherytaunce of ÿ trybe wherin they are, and so shal theyr enherytaunce be taken awaye frome the enherytaunce of the trybe of our fathers.

And Moses commaunded the childrẽ of Israell at the mouthe of the Lord sayinge: the trybe of the children of Joseph haue sayde well. This therfore doethe the Lorde commaunde the daughters of Tob.vii.b Zelaphead sayenge: * let them be wyues C to whem they them selfe thyncke best, but in the kynred of the trybe of theyr father shall they marye, that the enherytaũce of the chyldren of Israell roule not from try be to trybe. But what the chyldren of Israel maye abyde, euery man in the enhery taunce of the trybe of his fathers. And e-uery daughter that possesseth any enhery taunce amonge the trybes of the chyldrẽ of Israel, shalbe wife vnto one of the kin red of the trybe of her father, that the chyl dren of Israell maye enioye euerye mã ÿ enherytaunce of hys father, and that the enheritaunce go not from one trybe to another: but that the trybes of the children of Israell, maye abyde euery man in hys D owne enherytaunce.

And as the Lorde commaunded Mo ses euẽ so dyd the daughters of Zelaphe ad: Mahela. Thirza, Hagla Milcha and Noa, & were maryed vnto their fathers brothers sonnes, of the kinred of the chyl drẽ of Manasses the sõne of Joseph: and so they had their enheritaũce in the trybe of the kynred of their father.

These are the commaundementes & lawes which the Lord commaun ded thorow Moses, vnto ÿ chil drẽ of Israell in ÿ feldes of Moab vpõ Jordã ny vnto Jericho.

¶ The ende of the.iiii. Boke of Moyses.

¶A Prologe vpon the fyfte Boke of Moyses called Deuteronomium.

This is a Boke worthy to be rede in, daye & nyght, & neuer to be out of handes. For it is the most excellent of al the bokes of Moses. It is easie also, & light, & a very pure gospell that is to wete, a preachinge of fayth & loue: deducing the loue to God out of faith & the loue of a mans neyghbour, out of the loue of God. Herein also ẏ mayst learne righte meditaciō or contēplation, whych is nothing els saue the calling to mynde & a repetinge in the hert of the gloriouse & wonderfull dedes of God, & of his terrible handeling of his enemies and mercyful entreating of thē that come when he calleth them which thing this boke doth and almost nothinge els.

In the.iiii.fyrst chap.he rehersech the benefites of god done vnto thē: to prouoke thē to loue, & his mighty dedes done aboue al natural power & beyonde al natural capacite of faith, that they might beleue God & truste in him, & in his strēgth. And thyrdly he rehersech the fyrce plages of God vpō his enemies & on thē which thorow impaciētie & vnbelefe fel frō him: partly to tame & abate the appetites of the fleshe which alway fight agaynst the spirite: & partly to bridle the wilde raging lustes of thē in whō was no spyryte: that though they had no power to do good of loue, yet at the lest way they shuld absteyne frō outward euel for feare of wrath & cruel vēgeaunce which shuld fal vpō thē & shortly finde thē out, yf they cast vp goddes nurter & runne at riotte beyonde his lawes & ordinaunces. Moreouer he chargeth thē to put nought to, nor take ought away frō gods wordes, but to be diligent only to kepe thē in remēbraūce & in the hart & to teache theyr chyldrē, for feare of forgetting. And to beware ether of making ymagerie, or of bowinge thē selues vnto ymages saying: Ye sawe no ymage whē god spake vnto you, but herde a voyce only & that voyce kepe & ther vnto cleaue, for it is your lyfe & it shal saue you. And finally yf (as the fraylte of al fleshe is) they shal haue fallē from god & he haue brought thē in to trouble, aduersyte, & cōbraunce and all necessyte: yet yf they repent and turne, he promyseth thē that God shal remembre his mercy & receaue thē to grace agayne.

In the fifte he repeteth the.x.commaundmētes & that they myght se a cause to do them of loue, he biddeth thē remēbre that they were bound in Egipt & how God delyuered them with a mightie hand & a stretched out arme, to serue him and to kepe his commaundmētes: as Paule sayeth ẏ we ar bought wᵗ christes bloude & therfore are hys seruauntes & not our owne, & oughte to seke his wyl & honoure only and to loue and serue one another for hys sake.

In the sixt he setteth out the fountayne of al cōmaundemētes: that is that they beleue how that ther is but one God ẏ doeth al, & therfore ought only to be loued with al the hert, al the soule & al ẏ myght. For loue only is the fulfilling of the commaūdemētes, as paule also saieth vnto the Romaines, & Galathians likewise. He warneth thē also that they forgett not the commaundmētes, but teach thē their chyldern & to shew their children also how God delyuered thē out of thee bondage of thee Egyptians to serue him and hys commaundmentes, that the childern myght se a cause to worke of loue, lykewyse.

The seuenth is all together of faith: he remoueth all occasions that mighte withdrawe them from the fayth, and pulleth them also from all confidence in thē selues, and stirreth thē vp to trust in god boldly and onlye.

Of the eyght chapitre thou seyst how that the cause of al temptation is, that a mā might se his owne herte. For whē I am brought into that extremite that I muste ether suffre or forsake god, thē I shal feale how moche I beleue & trust in him, & howe moch I loue him. In lyke maner, yf my brother do me euel for my good, thē yf I loue him when ther is no cause in him, I se that my loue was of god, & euē so yf I then hate hym, I fele and perceaue that my loue was but worldly. And finally he stureth thē to the fayth & loue of God, & dryueth them frō all confidence of theyr owne selues.

In the.ix also he moueth thē vnto faith & to put their trust in god, & draweth them frō cōfidēce of thē selues by rehersing al the wickednes which they had wrought frō the.i.day he knew thē vnto ye same day. And in ye end he repeteth how he cōtured God in horeb & ouercame him wt prayer, wher thou mayst learne the right maner to praye

In the.x.he rekeneth vp the pith of al lawes & the keping of the lawe in the harte: which is to feare god, loue him, & serue him withal their hart soule & might & kepe his cōmaūdemētes of loue. And he sheweth a reason, why they shuld that do: euē because god is lord of heuē & erth, & hath also done al for thē of his owne goodnes wtout their deseruing. And thē out of the loue vnto god he bringeth the loue vnto a mās neyghbour saying: god is lord aboue al lordes & loueth al his seruaūtes indifferētly, as wel the poore & feble & the straūger, as the riche & myghtye, & therfore wil that we loue the poore & the strāger. And he addeth a cause, for ye were strāgers & god deliuered you & hath brought you vnto a lād wher ye be at home. Loue ye strāger therfore for his sake

In the.xi.he exhorteth thē to loue & feare god, & reherseth ye terrible dedes of god vpō his enemies, & on thē yt rebelled agēst him. And he testifieth vnto thē both what wil folow yf they loue & feare god, & what also yf they despise hī & breke his cōmādemēt.

In the.xii.he cōmaundeth to put out of the way al yt might be an occasiō to hurt ye fayth & forbiddeth to do ought after theyr owne myndes, or to altre the word of god.

In ye.xiii.he forbiddeth to herkē vnto ought saue vnto gods word: no though he he which counselleth cōtrarie shuld come with miracles as Paul doth vnto ye Galathiās.

In the.xiiii.the beestes ar forbiddē, partly for ye vnclēnes of thē, & partly to cause hate betwene the hethē & them yt they haue no conuersatiō together, in yt one abhorreth what ye other eateth. Unto this.xv.chap. al pertayne vnto fayth & loue chefly. And in this.xv.he beginneth to entreate more specially of thinges pertayning vnto the cōmē welth & equite & exhorteth vnto the loue of a mās neyghbour. And in the.xvi.among other he forgetteth not the same. And in the.xvii.he entreateth of right & equite chefly in so moch yt when he loketh vnto fayth, & vnto the punishment of ydolatres, he yet endeth in a lawe of loue & equite: forbidding to cōdemne any man vnder lesse then.ii. witnesses at the lest & cōmaundeth to bringe the trespacers vnto the open gate of the cytie where al the men go in & out, that al men mighte heare the cause & se that he had but right. But the pope hath founde a better waye, euen to apposse him without any accuser & that secretely, that no mā knowe whether he haue right or no, ether hare his articles or answere: for feare lest the people shuld serche whether it were so or no.

In the.xviii.he forbiddeth al false & deuelish craftes yt hurt true faith. Moreouer because ye people coude not heare ye voyce of the lawe spokē to thē in fyre, he promiseth thē another prophet to bring thē better tidinges which was spokē of christ our sauiour

The.xix. & so forth vnto ye ende of the.xxvii. is almost al together of loue vnto our neyghbours & of lawes of equite & honestie with now & then a respect of fayth.

The.xxviii.is a terrible chap. & to be trēbled at: A christē mās hart might wel blede for sorow at ye reding of it, for feare of the wrath yt is lyke to come vpō vs according vnto al ye curses which yu ther readest. For according vnto these curses hath god delte with all nacions, after they were fallen into the abhominacions of blindnesse.

The.xxix.is lyke terrible wt a godly lessō in ye ende yt we shuld leue serching of goddes secretes & geue diligence to walke according to that he hath opened vnto vs. For the kepinge of the commaundementes of god teacheth wisdō as thou mayst se in the same chapter, where Moses sayth, kepe the cōmaundementes, that ye may vnderstande what ye ought to do. But to serch gods secretes blindeth a mā as it is wel proued by the swarmes of our sophisters, whose wyse bokes are now when we loke in the scripture, founde but full of folishnes.

The fyfte Boke of Moyses called Deuterono-mium.

The. I. Chapter.

A These be thee wordes whyche Moyses spake vnto al Isra ell, on the other syde Jordan in the wyldernesse & in the fel des by the redde see, betwene Pharan and Tophell, Laban, Hazaroth and Disahab. xi. dayes iourneye from Ho reb vnto Cades barne, by thee waye that leadeth vnto mounte Seir. And it fortuned the fyrste daye of the. xi. moneth in the fortyethe yeare that Moyses spake vnto thee chyldren of Israell accordynge vnto all that the Lorde hadde geuen hym in cō-maundement vnto them after that he had smytten Sehon the kynge of thee Amorites whyche dwelte in Hesbon, and Og kynge of Basan whyche dwelte at Asta-roth in Edrai.
On the other syde Jordan in the lande of Moab, Moyses began to declare thys lawe saying: the Lord our God spake vn to vs in at Horeb saying: Ye haue dwelte longe ynough in this mount: depart ther fore & take your iourney & go vnto ÿ hylles of the Amorites & vnto all places nye there vnto: both feldes, hylles, and dales, and vnto the south & vnto the sees syde in the land of Canaan & vnto Libanon: euē B vnto the great ryuer Euphrates. Behold I haue set the land before you: go in ther fore and possesse the lande whych the Lor de sware vnto youre fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to geue vnto them and theyr seade after them.
And I sayd vnto you the same ceason I am not able to beare you my self alone.
For the Lorde your God hath multiplied you: so that ye are thys day as the starres of heauen in nombre (ther Lorde God of youre fathers make you a thousande tymes so many moo as ye ar, and blesse you as he hath promysed you) howe (sayde I) Exo. xviii. c. can * I my selfe alone beare the combraū-ce, charge and stryfe that is amonge you: bryng therfore men of wysdomme and of vnderstandinge and expert, knowe amon ge youre trybes, that I maye make them rulars ouer you. And ye answered me & sayd: that whych thou hast spokē is good to be done. And then I toke the heades of youre trybes, men of wysdomme and that were experte, and made them rulars ouer you: captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hundredes ouer fyftie and ouer ten, and offycers among your trybes.
C And I charged youre Judges the same tyme sayinge: heare youre brethren & iudge ryghteouslye betwene euerye man and hys brother and the straunger that is wyth hym. Se that ye knowe noo man in Judgemente: * but heare the smal as wel as the greate and be afrayed of noo man, for the Judgemente is Gods. And the cause that is to harde for you, brynge vnto me and I wyll heare it. And I cōmaun ded you thee same ceason, all the thynges whych ye shulde doo. And then we departed frome Horeb and walked thorowe all that great and terryble wyldernesse as ye haue sene alonge by the waye that leadeth vnto thee hylles of thee Amorites, as thee Lorde oure God commaunded vs, and ca me to Cades barne. And there I sayde vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hylles of the Amorites, whyche the Lord oure God dothe geue vnto vs. Beholde, thee Lorde D thy God hath sette the lande * before the, goo vp and conquere it, as thē Lorde god of thy fathers sayth vnto thee: feare not, neyther be discoraged. And then ye came vnto me euerye one and sayde: Let vs sen de men before vs, to searche vs oute thee lande and too brynge vs worde agayne, bothe what waye we shall goo vp by, and vnto what cyties we shall come. And thee sayinge pleased me well and I toke twel-ue men of you, of euerye trybe one. And they departed and wente vp into thee hye countrey and came vnto the ryuer Escoll, and searched it oute, and toke of the frute of the lande in theyr handes and brought it downe vnto vs and broughte vs word agayne and sayde: it is a good land why-che the Lord oure God dothe geue vs.
Notwythstandynge ye woulde not consente to goo vppe, but were dysobedi ente vnto the mouthe of the Lorde youre God, and murmured in youre tentes and sayde:

sayde: because the Lord b☩ hateth vs, therfore he hath brought vs out of the lande of Egypt, to deliuer vs into the handes of ỹ Amorites and to destroye vs. Howe shall we go vp? Our brethren haue discoraged E our hartes sayinge: the people is greater and taller then we, and the cyties are great and walled euen vp to heauen, and moreouer we haue sene the sonnes of the Enakims there.

And I sayd vnto you: dreade not nor be afrayed of them: The Lord your God whych goeth before you, he shal fyght for you according to al that he dyd vnto you in Egypt before your eyes and in the wildernesse: as thou hast sene howe that thee Lord thy God bare the as a man shoulde beare his son, thorowout al the way whyche ye haue gone vntyl ye came vnto thys place. And yet for all thys sayinge ye dyd not beleue the Lord your God whych goeth the waye before you to search you out a place to pitche your tētes in, ☩in fyre by nyght, that ye myghte se what waye to go and in a cloude by daye.

And the Lord herde the voyce of youre F wordes & was wroth and sware saying. ☩ ther shal not one of these men of this frowarde generaciō se that good land which I sware to geue vnto your fathers saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune, he shall se it, and to hym wyll I geue the land whyche he hath walked in & to his childre, because he hath cōtinually folowed the Lord. Lykewyse the Lord was angrye with me for your sakes saying: thou also shalt not go in thyther. But Josua the sonne of Nun whych standethe before the, he shall goo in thether. Bolde him therfore for he shall deuyde ỹ heritage vnto Israel. ☩ Moreouer your childre which ye sayd shuld be a praye, & your sonnes which knowe nether good nor bad thys daye, they shall goo in thyther & vnto the I wyl geue it, and they shal enioye it. But as for you, turne backe & take your iourneye into the wyldernesse euen the way to the red see. Thē ye answered and sayd vnto me: We haue synned a gaynst the Lord: we wyl go vp and fyght according to al that the Lord our God cō maunded vs. And when ye had gyrde on euery man hys wepōs of warre and were G ready to goo vp into the hylles, the Lorde sayde vnto me: saye vnto thē, se that ye go not vp & that ye fyghte not, for I am not amonge you: lest ye be plaged before youre enemies. ☩c And whē I told you ye wold not heare: but disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde, and wente presumptuously vp in to the hylles.

Then the Amorites whyche dwelte in those hylles, came out agaynst you & chased you as bees do, & hewed you in Seir, euen vnto Horma. And ye came agayn & wepte before thee Lorde: but thee Lorde wolde not heare vnto youre voyce nor geue you audience. And so ye abode in Cades a longe season.

The. ii. Chapter.

Then we turned and toke our A iourneye into the wyldernes, euen the waye to the reddesee as thee Lorde commaunded me. And we compassed the mountaynes of Seir a longe tyme. Thē the Lorde spake vnto me sayinge: Ye haue compassed these mountaynes longe ynoughe, tourne you northward. And warne the people saying: Ye shal go thorowe the coostes of youre brethren the chyldren of Esau whyche dwell in Seir, and they shall be afrayed of you: But take good heade vnto youre selues that ye prouoke them not, for I wyl not geue you of theyr lande, no not so moche as a foote breade: because I haue geuen mounte Seir vnto Esau to possesse. Ye shall bye meate of them for moneye to eate, and ye shall bye water of them for moneye to drinke. For the Lorde thy God hath blessed the in all the workes of thyne hande, and knew the B as thou wentest thorowe thys great wyldernesse. Moreouer thee Lorde thy God hath bene wyth the thys. xl. yeares, so that thou hast lacked nothynge.

And when we were departed frō oure brethrē the chyldre of Esau whych dwelt in Seir by the felde waye frō Elath & Esion Gaber, we turned and went the waye to the

to the wyldernesse of Moab. Thē ÿ lorde sayd vnto me se that thou vexe not ÿ Mo abites, nether prouoke thē to battel for J wyll not geue the of their land to possesse because J haue geuen Ar vnto the chyldren of Loth to possesse. The a Emims dwelt therin in tymes past, a people grea-

And ÿ Moabites called thē Emims In lyke maner ÿ b Horims dwelt in Seir be fore tyme which the chyldrē of Esau cast out, & destroyed them before thē & dwelte ther in their stede: as Jsrael dyd in the lā de of his possession which the Lord gaue them. Now ryse vp (sayd J) & get you ouer ÿ riuer Zared: & we wēt ouer ÿ riuer Za red: The space in whyche we came from Cades barne vntil we were come ouer ÿ riuer Zared was .xxxviii. yeres vntyll all the generacion of the men of warre were wasted out of the host as the Lord sware vnto thē. For in dede the hand of the lord was against thē to destroye them oute of the hoste, tyll they were consumed.
And as soone as al ÿ mē of warre were D cōsumed & deed from amonge the people thē the lord spake vnto me saying. Thou shalt go thorow Ar ÿ cost of Moab this daye, and shalt come nye vnto the childrē of Ammon: se that thou vexe thē not, nor yet prouoke them. For J will not geue ÿ of the lande of the chyldren of Ammon to chyldren of Loth to possesse. That also was takē for a lande of geauntes & geau tes dwelt therin in olde time, & the Ammo nites called thē c Zamzumims A people ÿ was great, many & tall, as the Enakims But the Lord destroyed them before the Ammonites, & they caste them out & they dwelt there in their steade: as he dyd for ÿ children of Esau which dwell in Seir: euen as he destroyed the Horims before thē and they cast them out and dwell in their steade vnto this daye. And ÿ Auims whi ch dwelt in Hazarim euen vnto Aza, there Caphthorims whych came out of Caph thor destroyed them and dwelte in theyr

E Ryse vp, take youre iourney and go ouer the riuer Arnon. Beholde, J haue ge Num. xxi. e uen in to thy hande Sehon the Amorite,

Then J sent messengers out of the wil dernesse of the east vnto Sehon king of F Hesbon, with wordes of peace sayenge. *
Let me go thorow thy lande J wyl go al waies a long by the hye way & wil nether turne vnto the right hand nor to the left.
Sel me meate for money for to eate, and geue me drink for money to drinke. J wil

Esau did vnto me whyche dwel in Seir and the Moabites whyche dwell in Ar) vntyl J become ouer Jordan, in to the Lande whyche the Lorde oure God geueth vs.
But Sehon the kinge of Hesbon wol de not let vs passe by hym, for the Lorde thy God hadde hardened hys spryte and made hys herte toughe because he wolde delyuer hym in to thy hād. as it is come to passe thys daye.
And the Lorde sayde vnto me: behold J haue begonne to sett Sehon & his lan G de * before the: go to & cōquere, that thou mayst possesse his lande. Then both Se-hon and all his people came out agaynst vs vnto batel at * Jahasa. And the Lord set hym before vs, and we smote hym and his sonnes and all hys people.
And we toke al thys cityes ÿ same sea son and destroyed al the cityes with them wemen and childrē & let nothing remayne saue ÿ catel only we caught vnto our sel-ues & the spoyle of the cityes whyche we toke, frō Aroer vpon the brynke of the ri uer of Arnon, and the cytye in ÿ ryuer, vn to Galaad: ther was not one city to strōg for vs. The Lorde oure God delyuered al vnto vs: only vnto the land of the chyl dren of Ammon ye came not nor vnto al the cost of the riuer Jabock nor vnto the cityes in the moūtaynes, nor vnto whatso euer the Lord our God forbade vs.

The .iiii. Chapter.

A And now herken Israel vnto the ordinaunces & lawes which I teache you, for to do them that ye maye lyue & go & conquere the land which the lord God of your fathers geueth you. Ye shal put nothing vnto the worde which I commaunde you nether do ought there from, that ye maye kepe the commaundementes of the Lord your God which I commaunde you. Youre eyes haue sene what the Lord dyd vnto Baal Peor: for all the men that folowed Baal Peor, the Lord youre God hath destroyed from amonge you. But ye that cleaue vnto the Lorde your God are alyue euery one of you this daye. Behold I haue taught you ordinaunces & lawes suche as the Lord my god commaunded me that ye shuld do euen so in the lande whether ye go to possesse it.

Psa.cxlvii.b Kepe them therfore and do them * for that is your wysdom and vnderstanding in the syghte of the nacions: whiche when they haue herde all these ordinaunces shal saye: O what a wyse and vnderstandyng people is this greate nacion. For what nacion is so greate that hath Goddes so nye vnto hym: as the Lorde oure God is nye

B vnto vs in all thinges, when we cal vnto hym? Ye & what nacyon is so greate that hath ordinaunces and lawes so ryghteous, as all this lawe which I set before you thys daye.

Take hede to thy selfe therfore onely & kepe thy soule diligently, that thou forget not the thinges which thyne eyes haue sene: and that they departe not out of thyne harte all the dayes of thy lyfe: but teache Teache your chyldren.

them thy sonnes and thy sonnes sonnes. The daye that I stode before the Lorde your God in Horeb, when he sayde vnto me, gether me the people together, that I maye make them heare my wordes, that they maye learne to feare me as longe as they lyue vppon the earth and that they maye teache their chyldren: ye came & stode also vnder the hyll, and the hyll burnte wyth fyre: euen vnto the myddes of heauen, and there was darkenesse, cloudes and myste. And the Lord spake vnto you out of the fyre and ye hearde the voyce of the wordes: but sawe no ymage, saue herde a voyce onely.

And he declared vnto you his couenaunt which he commaunded you to do, euen, x. verses and wrote them in twoo tables of stone. And the Lord commaunded me the

C same season to teache you ordinaunces & lawes, for to do them in the lande whether ye go to possesse it.

☞ Take hede vnto your selues diligently as pertaynyng vnto your soules, for ye sawe noo maner of ymage the daye when the Lorde spake vnto you in Horeb oute of the fyre lest ye marre your selues & make you grauen ymages after what fourme lykenesse it be: whether after the lykenesse of man or woman or any maner beast that is on the earth or of anye maner fethered foule that flyeth in the ayre, or of any maner worme that crepeth on the earth or of any maner fyshe that is in the water beneth the earth: Yea and leste thou lyfte vp thyne eyes vnto heauen, and when thou seest the sunne and the moone and the starres and whatsoeuer is conteyned in heauen, shuldest be disceaued & shuldest bow thy selfe vnto them and serue the thinges whych the Lord thy God hath distributed vnto all nacyons that are vnder all quarters of heauen.

For the Lorde toke you and broughte you out of the yron fornace of Egypte, to be vnto hym a people of enheritaunce, as it is come to passe thys daye. Furthermore the Lorde was angrye wyth me for your sakes & sware, that I shuld not goo ouer Jordan and that I shoulde not goo vnto that good land, whych the Lord thy God geueth the to enheritaunce. For I must dye in this lande, & shall not go ouer Jordan. But ye shal go ouer and conquere that good lande.

D ☞ Take hede vnto your selues therfore, that ye forgette not the appoyntement of the Lorde your God which he made with you, and that ye make you no grauen ymage of whatsoeuer it be that the Lorde thy God hath forbidden the. For the Lorde thy God is a consumynge fyre, and a gelouse God.

¶ If after thou hast gotten chyldren and chyldrens children and hast dwelt lõge in ye lande, ye shall marre your selues and make grauẽ ymages after the likenes of what soeuer it be, & shal worke weked nesse in the sight of the Lorde thy God, to prouoke him I call heauen and erth to recorde vnto you this day, that ye shal shortely perysh frõ of the land whether ye go ouer Jordan to possesse it: ye shal not prolõge your dayes therin but shall shortely be destroyed. And the Lorde shall skater you amonge naciõs, & ye shalbe lefte few in nõbre amonge the people whether the Lorde shal brynge you: and there ye shal serue goddes which are ye workes of mãs hande, wod & stone whyche nether se nor E heare nor eate nor smell. Neuerthelater ye shal seke the Lord your God euẽ ther, and shall fynde him yf thou seke him wt al thyne herte and with all thy soule. In thy trybulacyon and when al these thynges are come vpon the, euen in the later dayes, thou shalt turne vnto the Lord thy God, & shalt herken vnto his voyce. For the Lorde thy God is a pitefull God: he will not forsake ye nether destroie ye, nor forget the apoyntment made wt thy fathers which he sware vnto them.

For aske I pray the of the dayes that are past which were before the, sence the daye that God created man vpõ the erth and from the one syde of heauẽ vnto the other whether any thing hath bene like vnto thys greate thinge or whether any soch thing hath bene herde as it is, yt a nacion hath heard ye voyce of God speaking out of fire as thou hast herde and yet liued: either whether God assayed to go and take him a people from amonge nacions, thorow temptaciõs and sygnes and wõders and thorow warre and with a mighty hande and a * stretched out arme and wyth myghtye terreble syghtes, accordyng vnto all that the Lorde youre God did vnto you in Egipte before youre eyes.

F Unto ye it was shewed that thou myghtest know, how that the Lord he is God & that there is none but he. * Out of heauen he made the heare his voyce to nourter the, and vpon the erth he shewed ye his greate fyre, and thou heardest his wordes out of the fyre. And because he loued thy fathers, therfore he chose their seed after them & brought the out with his presence and with his mightye power of * Egipt: Exod. xiii. a to thrust out naciõs greater & myghtyer then thou before the, to bryng the in & to geue the their land to enheritaũce: as it is come to passe this daye.

Understande therfore this daye and turne it to thyne hertes, that the Lorde he is God in heauen aboue and vpon thee erth beneth there is no moo: kepe therfore his ordynaunces, and his commaũdementes which I cõmaunde the this day, that it maye go well with the & with thy chyldren after the & that thou maist prolong thy dayes vpon the erth which the Lorde thy God geueth the thy lyfe longe.

G * Then Moses seuered. iii. cityes on ye other syde Jordan towarde the sonne rysyng, that he shoulde flee thither whyche had kylled his neighboure vnwares and hated him not in time past: therfore shuld he flee vnto one of the same cities & lyue: Bezer in the wildernesse euẽ in the plaine contre among the Rubenites: & Rameth in Galaad amonge the Gaddites & Golan in Basan among the Manassites. Nu. xxxv. b Exod. xxi. b deut. xix. a.

This is the lawe whych Moses set before the children of Israell, and these are the witnesses, ordinaũces & statutes, whych Moses tolde the children of Israel after they came out of Egypte, on the other syde Jordã in ye valey besyde BethPheor in the land of Schõ kig of the Amorites which dwelt at Hesbon, whõ Moses and the chyldren of Israel * smote after they Num. xxi. f were come out of Egipt, & conquered his land and the lãd of Og kinge of Basan. ii. kynges of thee Amorites on thee other syde Jordan towarde the sonne rysynge: from Aroer vpon the bancke of the riuer Arnon, vnto Mount Syon which is called Hermõ and all the feldes on the other syde Jordan eastwarde: euen vnto ye see in ye feld vnder the springes of Phasgah.

A AND Moyses called unto all Israel & said unto thē. Heare Israel ẏ ordinaunces and lawes which I speke in thine eares this daye, & lerne them Exod.xix.a and.b and take hede ẏ ye do thē. The Lord oure God made an appointmēt with us in Horeb. The Lord made not this bōd wt oure fathers, but with us: we ar they, which ar all here a live thys day. The Lord talked with you face to face in the mount out of the fyre. And I stode betwene the lord and you the same tyme, to shewe you the sayinge of the Lord. For ye were afrayed of the fire & therfore went not up into the mount & he saide. I am ẏ Lorde thy God whiche broughte the oute of the lande of Egipt the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue therefore none other Goddes in my presence.

Exod.xx.a Thou shalte not take the name of the Lorde thy God in vayne: for the Lorde wil not hold him giltlesse, that taketh hys name in vayne.

Exod.xx.b Gene.ii.a kepe the Saboth day that thou sanctifie it, as the Lord thy God hath cōmaun-B ded the. Syxe dayes thou shalt labour & do al ẏ thou hast to do, but the seuēth day is ẏ Saboth of the Lorde thy God: thou shalt do no maner worke, nether thou nor thy sōne nor thy daughter nor thy seruaunte nor thy maide nor thine oxe or thine asse nor anye of thy catell nor the straunger that is wythin thy cytye, that thy seruaūt and thy mayde may reste as wel as thou. And remembre that thou wast a seruaūt in the lande of Egypte and howe that the Lorde God, broughte the oute thence wythe a myghtye hande and a stretched oute arme. Thou shalt not luste after thy neyghboures wyfe: ẏ shalt not couet thy neyghbours house, felde, seruaunte, maide, oxe, asse nor ought that is thy neighboures. These wordes the Lorde spake unto all youre multytude in the mount out of the fyre, cloude and darckenesse, withe loude vayce and added nomoare therto, & wrote them in .ii. tables of stone and deliuered them unto me.

C But as sone as ye herd the voice out of the darknes and saw the hil burne with fire, ye came unto me al ẏ heedes of your tribes and your elders: & ye sayd behold, ẏ lorde oure god hath shewed us his glorye & his greatnesse, & we haue herde his voyce out of ẏ fyre and we haue sene this day that God may talke with a man & he yet lyue. And now wherfore shuld we die that this greate fyre shulde consume us: If we shuld heare the voyce of the Lord oure God any moare, we shulde dye. For what is any flesh that he shulde heare the voice of the lyuyng God speaking out of the fyre as we haue done & shuld yet liue: D Go thou & heare al that the lord our God sayeth, & tell thou unto us al that ẏ lorde oure God sayethe unto the, and we wyll heare it and do it.

And the lorde heard the voyce of your wordes when ye spake unto me, & he sayd unto me: I haue herde the voice of the wordes of people whyche they haue spoken unto the, they haue well sayde all that they haue sayde. corse: but haue herkened vnto the voice of D the Lorde my God, and haue done after all that he commaunded me, loke downe from thy holy habitacyon heauen, & blesse thy people Israell and the lande whyche thou hast geuen vs (as thou swarest vnto oure fathers) a lande that floweth wyth mylke and honye.

This daye the Lord thy God hath cōmaūded y to do these ordinaūces & lawes, kepe thē therfore & do them wyth al thyne hert & all thy soule. * ‡ Thou hast sette vp the Lorde thys daye to be thy God and to walke in hys wayes and to kepe hys ordinaunces, hys commaundementes and his lawes, and to herken vnto his voyce. And the Lorde hath sette the vppe thys daye, to be a seuerall people vnto hym (as he hath promysed the) and that thou kepe hys cōmaundementes, and to make the hye aboue all naciōs which he hath made, in pray se, in name and honoure: that thou mayest be an holy people vnto the Lorde thy god as he hath sayde.

The Notes.

‡ The Chald. interpre. readeth, The Syrian went about to destroye my father, meanynge (as some suppose) Laban, of whom Gene. xxxi. The Ebr. my fa ther lefte or forsoke Syria. The comen translacion readeth, the Syrian dyd persequute my father, signi fiyng, as some interpretate, that Syria the countrey of theyr fathers had expelled the & thrust them out. ‡ Or thou hast caused to be sayd that the lord shulde be vnto the for thy God: or, as many wyll, he made the to saye, that is, he was the cause that thou shuldest saye y the Lord shuld be vnto y for thy god.

The. xxvii. Chapter.

And Moses wyth y elders of Israell cōmaunded y people sayinge: kepe al the cōmaunde mētes which I cōmaūde you this day. * And whē ye be come ouer Jordan vnto the lande which the Lord thy God geueth the, set vp great sto nes & playster them with playster, & write vpō thē al the wordes of thys lawe, when thou art come ouer: that thou mayst come into the land which the Lord thy God geueth the: a land that floweth with milke & hony as the lord God of thy fathers hath promysed the. Whē ye be come ouer Jordan, se that ye sett vp these stones whyche I cōmaunde you this day in mount Ebal, & playster thē with plaister. And ther bylde vnto the Lord thy God, * an altare of sto nes & se thou lyfte vp no yron vpon them: But thou shalt make the altare of y Lord thy God of rough stones and offer burnt offringes theron vnto the Lord thy God.
And thou shalt offer peaceoffringes and shalte eate ther & reioyse before the Lorde thy God. And thou shalte wryte vpon the B stones all the wordes of thys lawe, manifestly and well.

And Moses wyth the priestes the Le-uites spake vnto all Israell sayinge: take hede and heare Israel, thys daye thou art become y people of the lord thy God. Her kē therfore vnto the voyce of the lord thy God & do his cōmaundemētes & his ordi naūces which I cōmaund you thys daye.
And Moses charged the people the same daye daye sayinge. These shall stande vpon mount Garizim to blesse the people, whe ye are come ouer Iordā: Symeon, Leui, Iuda, Isachar, Ioseph and Ben Iamin.

And these shal stande vpon mount Ebal to curse: Rubē, Gad, Aser, Zabulon, Dā & Nephtali. And ye Leuites shal beginne and saye vnto all the men of Israel with a loude voyce.

C *Cursed be he that maketh any grauē ymage or ymage of metall (an abhominacyon vnto the Lorde, the worke of the hādes of the craftesman) and putteth it in a secret place: and all ye people shal answere and saye Amen. (Exod.xx.a)

*Cursed be he yt curseth his father or his mother, & al ye people shal saye Amen. (Exod.xxi.b)

Cursed be he yt remoueth his neighbours marcke and al the people shal say Amen.

Cursed be he yt maketh ye blinde go out of his way, & al the people shal say Amē.

*Cursed be he yt hindreth the ryght of ye straunger fatherlesse and wedow, and al the people shall saye Amen. (...xxiiii.c)

Cursed be he that lyeth wyth hys fathers wyfe because he hath opened his fathers couerynge, and all the people shall saye Amen.

Cursed be he that lyeth wyth any maner beast, & all the people shal say Amen.

D Cursed be he that lyeth with his syster whether she be the daughter of his father or of hys mother, and all the people shall saye Amen.

Cursed be he that lyeth wt hys mother in lawe, & all the people shall saye Amen.

Cursed be he yt smyteth hys neyghbour secretly, and al ye people shall saye Amen.

*Cursed be he that taketh a reward to slee innocēt bloude, and al the people shal saye Amen. (Deu.xvi.c / Ezek.iii.b)

Cursed be he that mayntayneth not all ye wordes of thys law to do them, and al the people shall saye Amen.

The .xxviii. Chapter.

A Yf *thou shalt herkē diligently vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to obserue & do all his commaundementes which I commaunde the this day. The Lord wyl set the on hye aboue al nacions of the erthe. And al these blessynges shal come on the and ouer take the, yf thou shalt herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God. Blessed shalt thou be in the towne and blessed in the feldes, blessed shalbe ye frute of thy body, the frute of thy groūde and the frute of thy catell, the frute of thyne oxen, & thy flocke of shepe, blessed shal thine aulmery be & thy store. Blessed shalt thou be, both when thou goest out, and blessed when yu comest in. *The lord shal smite thine enemies yt rise against the before thy face. They shal come out agēst the one way, & flee before the seuen wayes. (Leu.xxvi.a; Deute.ii.d)

The Lord shall commaunde the blessing to be with the in thy store houses and in all that thou settest thyne hande to, and wyl blesse the in the lande which the Lord thy God geueth the.

The Lorde shal make the an holy people vnto him selfe, as he hath sworē vnto the: yf thou shalte kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde thy God and walke in hys wayes.

And al nacyons of the erth shal se that thou arte called after the name of the lorde, and they shalbe aferde of the. And the Lord shal make the plēteous in goodes, in the frute of thi body, in the frute of thy catell and in the frute of thy ground, in ye lande whiche the Lorde sware vnto thy fathers to geue the.

*The Lord shal opē vnto the his good treasure, euen the heauē, to geue rayne vnto thy lande in due ceason and to blesse al (Deute.xi.b) B the labours of thyne hād. And thou shalt lende vnto many naciōs, but shalt not nede to borowe thy selfe. Moreouer al these curses shal come vpon the ꝛ shal folowe the ꝛ ouertake the, tyll thou be destroyed: because thou herkenedest not vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, to kepe his cõmaundementes ꝛ ordinaunces whych he commaunded the, and they shalbe vpõ the as ✱ ✝ myracles ꝛ wonders ꝛ vpon thy sede for euer. And because thou seruedeste not the Lorde thy God wyth ioyfulnes and wyth a good herte for the abundaunce of al thinges, therfore thou shalt serue thyne enemye whych the Lord shal sende vpon the: in hunger and thurst, in nakednes and in nede of al thinge: and he shall put a yocke of yron upon thyne necke, untyll he haue broughte the to nought.

And the Lord shal bring a nacion upō the from a farre, euē from thee ende of the world, as swyft as an egle flieth: a nacion whose tongue thou shalt not understand: a harde fauoured nacion whyche shal not regarde the persoune of the olde nor haue compassyon on the younge. And he shall eate the fruyte of thy lande and the fruite of thy catell untyll he haue destroyed the: so that he shall leaue the nether corne, wyne, nor oyle, neyther thee encrease of thyne oxen nor the flockes of thy shepe: untyl he haue brought the to noughte. And he shall kepe the in, in all thy cytyes, untyl thy hye and stronge walles be come downe where in thou trustedest, thorow al the lande. And he shal besege the in all thy cyties thorow

F out all thy land whych the Lord thy God hath geuen the.

* And thou shalt eat the fruite of thyne owne body: the fleshe of thy sonnes and of thy doughters whych the Lorde thy God hath geuen the, in that straytnes and sege wherwyth thyne enemye shall besege the: so that it shall greue thee man that is tender and exceding delycate amonge you, to loke on hys brother & upon hys wyfe that lyeth in hys bosome, and on the remnaunt of hys chyldren, which he hath yet left, for feare of geuynge unto any of them of the fleshe of hys chyldren, whych he eateth, because he hath nought left hym in ẏ straytnesse & sege wherwith thyne enemyes shal besege the in al thy cyties.

Yea & the womā that is so tender & delycate among you that she dare not aduenture to sett ẏ sole of her fote upō the groūde for softnes and tendernesse, shalbe greued to loke on thee husbande that lyeth in her bosome, and on her sonne and on her daughter: euē because of the afterbyrthe, that is come out from betwene her legges and because of her chyldrē which she hath borne, because she wolde eate thē for nede of all thinges secretely, in the straytenesse and sege wherwith thyne enemye shal besege the in thy cyties.

Yf thou wylt not be dylygent to do all the wordes of thys lawe that are wrytten in thys booke, for to feare this glorious & fearful name of the Lord thy god: the lord he wyll smyte both the and thy sede wyth wonderfull plages & wyth greate plages and of longe continuaūce, and wyth euell sickenesses and of longe duraunce. Moreouer he wyl bringe upō the al the diseases of Egypt whych thou waste afrayed of, & they shal cleaue unto ẏ. Therto all maner sickenesses & all maner plages whych are not wrytten in the boke of this lawe, wyl ẏ Lord bringe upō the untyl thou be come to nought. And ye shalbe lefte fewe in nombre, where before ye were as thee * starres of heauen in multitude: because thou woldest not herken unto the voyce of the Lorde thy God. Deute.i.b

* And as the Lorde reioysed ouer you to do you good & to multyplye you: euē so he wyll reioyse ouer you, to destroy you & to bring you to nought. And ye shalbe wasted frō of the land whether thou goest to enioye hit. And the Lorde shall scatter the amonge all nacions from the one ende of the worlde unto the other, and there thou shalte serue straunge goddes, whych neyther thou nor thy fathers haue knowen: euen wood and stone. Jere.xxxi.f G

And among these nacions thou shalte be no smal ceason, & yet shalt haue no rest to the sole of thy foote. For the Lord shall geue the there a trembling herte & dasing eyes & sorowe of mynde. And thy life shal hāge before the, and thou shalt feare both daye and nyghte & shalt haue no trust in thy lyfe. In the mourning thou shalt say wolde God it were nyghte. And at nyghte thou shalt saye, wold God it were mourninge: for feare of thyne hert which thou shalte feare, and for thee syghte of thyne eyes which thou shalte se.

And the Lord shall bringe the into Egypte agayne wyth shyppes, by the waye which I bade the that thou shuldest * se it nomore. And there ye shalbe solde unto your enemies, for bondmen & bondwemē: and yet no man shal bye you. Exo.xiiii.d

The.xxix.Chapter.

A These are the wordes of the appointment which the lord cōmaūded Moses to make wt the chyldren of Israel in the lande of Moab, besyde ẏ appoyntment whyche he made with them in Horeb. And Moses called vnto al Israel and sayd vnto them: Ye haue sene al that the Lorde dyd before youre eyes in the lande of Egypt, vnto Pharao and vnto all his seruauntes, and vnto al his land, and the greate temptacyons whiche thine eyes haue sene and those greate myracles and wonders: and yet the lord hath not geuen you an hert to perceaue, nor eyes to se, nor eares to heare vnto thys daye.

* And I haue led you.xl.yere in the wildernes: ⁊ your clothes are not waxed old vpō you, nor are thi showes waxed old vpō thy fete. Ye haue eatē no bread nor drōck wine or stronge drincke: that ye mighte B know howe ẏ he is the Lord youre God.

* And ye came vnto this place, ⁊ Sehon the king of Hesbon and Og king of Basan came out against you vnto battel, and we smote thē and toke theyr lande and gaue it an heritaunce vnto the Rubenites and Gadites ⁊ to the halfe trybe of Manasse. Kepe therfor ẏ wordes of this appointmēt and do thē, ẏ ye may vnderstand all that ye ought to do. * Ye stād here this day euery one of you before ẏ Lord your God: both the heades of your tribes, youre elders, your officers ⁊ al the men of Israel: youre children, youre wyues ⁊ the straunger that are in thine host, from ẏ hewer of ẏ wod vnto ẏ drawer of thy water: ẏ thou shuldest come vnder the appointmēt of the lord thy God, ⁊ vnder his othe which the Lord thy God maketh with the this day. For to make the a people vnto him self, ⁊ ẏ he may be vnto the a God as he hath sayde vnto the ⁊ as he hath sworne vnto thy fathers Abraham, Isaac and Iacob.

C Also I make not this bōde and this oth with you only: but both wt him ẏ stādeth her with vs this day before the lorde our God, ⁊ also with him that is not here wt vs this daye. For ye knowe how we haue dwelt in the land of Egypte, and howe we came thorow ẏ middes of ẏ nacions whych we passed by. And ye haue sene their abhominaciōs and their ydolles: wod: stone, sylu⁊r and gold whyche they had.

Lest there be among you mā or womā kinred or tribe ẏ turneth away in his hert this day from the lord oure God, to go ⁊ serue ẏ goddes of these naciōs: ⁊ lest ther be amōg you some roote that beareth gal and wormwod, so that when he heareth ẏ wordes of this curse, he blesse hi self in his hert saying. I shal haue peace. I wil therfore worcke after the lust of myne awne hert, that the * dronkē may perish with ẏ thirstie. And so the lorde wyll not be mercyfull vnto hym, but then the wrath of ẏ lord ⁊ his gelousy, smoke agenst that mā, ⁊ al the curses that are writtē in thys boke light vpon hym, and the Lord do out hys name from vnder heauen, ⁊ seperate him vnto euell out of al ẏ trybes of Israel acordyng vnto al the curses of ẏ appointment that is writtē in ẏ boke of this law.

B So that the generaciō to come of your children that shal ryse vp after you and ẏ straūger that shal come from a ferre lād, say when they se the plages of that lād, ⁊ the diseases wherwith ẏ lord hath smyttē it how al the land is burnt vp with brimstone ⁊ salt, ⁊ ẏ it is nether sowne nor beareth, nor any grasse groweth therī, after ẏ ouerthrowing of Sodome, Gomor, Adama ⁊ Zeboim: which the Lord ouerthrew in hys wrathe and angre.

And thē shal al naciōs also say: * wherfore hath the lorde done of this faciō vnto this lāde? O how fearse is this greate wrath? And men shal say: because they lefte the testament of the lorde God of their fathers which he made with them, whē he brought thē out of the lād of Egipt. And they went ⁊ serued straunge goddes and worshipped thē: goddes which they knew not ⁊ which had geuē them nought. And therfore the wrath of the lord waxed whote vpon that lande to bring vpon it al the curses that are writtē in this boke. And ẏ lord cast them out of their lande in anger, wrath and greate furyousnesse, ⁊ cast thē in to a straunge lād, as it is come to passe C this day. The secrettes of the Lord oure God * are opened vnto vs and oure chyldre

chyldren for euer, that we do all the wordes of thys lawe.

The Notes.

*I By this is signified, that both the wicked teacher & the dyscyple which receaueth euell doctryne shall perysshe together. Some reade that the dronken maye be put to the thyrsty. Some, that dronkenesse maye be put to thyrst.

¶ The worde of God is not farre fro the that seke for it, but in their mouthes and hertes.

The.xxxii.Chapter.

A Heare O heauẽ, what I shal speake & heare O erth ÿ wordes of my mouth. My doctrine droppe as doeth the raine, & my speach flowe as doth ÿ dewe, as the myssellynge vpon the herbes, and as the droppes vpõ the grasse. For I wyll cal on the name of the Lorde: Magnyfye the mighte of oure God.

He is a rocke and perfect are hys dedes, for al his wayes are with discrecion. God is faythfull & without wickednesse, both righteous and iuste is he.

The frowarde and ouerthwart generaciõ hath marred them selues to himward, & are not his sonnes for their deformities sake. Doest thou reward the Lorde? O folish nacion and vnwyse: Is not he thy father and thyne owner? hath he not made ÿ & ordeyned the? Remembre the dayes that are past: consydre the yeres from tyme to tyme. Aske thy father and he wyl shew ÿ, thy elders and they wil tel ÿ. Whẽ ÿ most hyghest gaue the nacions an enheritaunce, & deuided the sonnes of Adam he put ÿ borders of ÿ naciõs, fast by the multitude of the chyldren of Israel.

B For the lordes part is hys folke, & Iacob is the porcion of hys enheritaunce.

He founde him in a deserte lande, in a voyde ground & a royinge wildernes. He led him about & gaue him vnderstãdinge, and kepte him as the aple of his eye.

As an egle that sterreth vp her nest & flotereth ouer her younge, he stretched oute hys wynges and toke him vp and bare hym on hys shoulders. The Lorde alone was hys gyde, and there was no straunge God with hym,

He sett him vp vpon an hye lande, and he ate the encrease of the feldes. And he gaue hym honye to sucke oute of the rocke, and oyle out of the harde stone. With butter of kyne and mylcke of ÿ shepe, wyth fatt of the lambes and fat rammes C and he gootes wyth the fatt kydneyes and with whete. And of the bloude of grapes thou dronckest wyne.

And Israel waxed fat & kicked. Thou waste fatt, thycke and smothe. And he let God goo that made him and despised the rocke that saued him. They angred him with straunge goddes and with abhominaciõs prouoked him. They offered vnto felde deuels and not to God, & to goddes which they knew not and to new Goddes that came newly vp whiche their fathers feared not. Of the rocke that begat the ÿ art vnmyndfull & hast forgott God that made the. And when the lorde sawe it, he was angre because of the prouokynge of hys sonnes and daughters.

And he sayde: I wil * hide my face frõ them and wyll se what their ende shal be. For they are a froward generacion & children in whom is no fayth. They haue angred me with that which is no God, & prouoked me with their vanyties. * And I againe wyl angre them wyth them whyche are no people, and wil prouoke them with a folyshe nacion. * For fyre is kynled in my wrath, and shall burne vnto the botome of hell. And shall consume the erthe with her encrease, & sett a fire the botoms of the mountaynes. I wyll heape myscheues vpon them and wyll spende all myne arowes at them.

wyl rewarde: theyr fete shal slyde, whē the tyme cometh. For ÿ tyme of theyr destruction is at hande, & the tyme that shal come vpon them maketh haste.

For the Lord wyll do iustyce vnto hys people, and haue compassyon on hys seruauntes. For it shalbe sene that theyr power shall fayle, and at the last they shalbe prisoned and forsaken.

E And it shalbe sayd: wher ar theyr Goddes and theyr rocke wherin they trusted?

The fatt of whose sacrifices they ate & drāke the wyne of theyr drynckofferinges, let them ryse vp & helpe you and be youre protection.

Se nowe howe that I, I am he, & that ther is no God but I. I can kyl and make alyue, and what I haue smytē that I can heale: nether is ther ÿ can delyuer any mā out of my hande.

For I wyl lyft vp myne hād to heauē, and wyl saye: I lyue euer.

Yf I whet ÿ edge of my swerd, & myne hād take in hād to do iustice, I wyl shewe vengeaūce on myne enemies and wyll rewarde them that hate me.

I wyl make myne arowes dronke wyth bloude, & my swerde shal eate fleshe of the bloud of the enslayne & of the captiue and of the bare head of the enemye.

Prayse ye hethē his people, for he wyll auenge the bloud of his seruauntes, & wyll auenge hym of his aduersaries, & wyll be mercyful vnto the land of his people.

And Moses wēt & spake al the wordes of this song in ÿ eares of the people, both he & Josua the sonne of Nun. And when Moses had spokē al these wordes vnto ÿ end to al Israel, thē he sayd vnto thē. Set youre hertes vnto al the wordes which I attestifie vnto you this day: that ye commaūde thē vnto your chyldren, to obserue & do all the wordes of this lawe. For it is not a vayne word vnto you: but it is your lyfe, & thorow thys word ye shall prolong your dayes in the lād whether ye go ouer Jordan to conquere it. G

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses the self same day saying: get thy vp into this mouūtayne Abarim vnto mouūt Nebo, which is in the land of Moab ouer agaynste Jericho. And behold the land of Canaan which I geue vnto the chyldrē of Israel to possesse. And dye in the mount which ÿ goest vpō, & be gethered vnto thy people As Aaron thy brother dyed in mount Hor and was gethered vnto his people. For ye trespased agaynst me amōg the chyldrē of Israel at the waters of strife, at Cades in the wyldernesse of Zin: because ye sanctified me not among the chyldrē of Israel. Thou shalt se the land before the, but shal not go thether vnto the land whych I geue the chyldren of Israell.

A This is ẏ blessing wherwith Moses Gods man blessed ẏ children of Israel before his death sayinge. The Lord came frõ Sinai and shewed his beames from Seir vnto them and apeared gloriously from mount Pharan, and he came with thousandes of sayntes and in his rightehande a lawe of fyre for them. How loued he the people? * All hys sayntes ar in hys hand. They torned them selues vnto thy fote & receaued thy wordes. Moses gaue vs a lawe which is the enheritaunce of the congregation of Jacob. And he was in Israell kynge when he geathered the heades of the people and the trybes of Israell to geather.

Ruben shal lyue and shal not dye: but his people shalbe few in nõbre. This is ẏ blessyng of Juda. And he said: heare lord the voyce of Juda & bryng hym vnto his people: let his hãdes fight for him: but be thou his helpe agaynst his enemyes.

B And vnto Leui he sayd: * thy perfectnesse and thy light be after thy mercifull mã whom thou temptedest at Masah & whõ thou striuedest at ẏ waters of strife. He that sayeth vnto his father & mother, I sawe him not, and vnto hys brethren I knewe not, and to his sonne I wote not: for they haue obserued thy wordes & kept thy testament. They shall teache Jacob thy iudgementes and Israell thy lawes. They shall put cens before thy nose and whole sacryfices vpõ thine altare. Blesse Lord their power & accept the workes of their handes: smyte the backes of them that ryse agaynste them and of them that hate them: they ryse not agayne.

Unto Ben Jamin he saide. The lordes derlyng shal dwell in saffetye by him and kepe him selfe in the heaue by him cõtinually, & shal dwell betwene his shoulders.

C And vnto Joseph he sayd: blessed of ẏ Lorde is his land with the goodly frutes of heauen, with dewe and with sprynges that lye beneth: and with frutes of the encrease of the sonne & wt rype frute of the monethes, and with the toppes of mountaines that were from the beginnĩg and with the daynties of hilles that last euer & wyth goodlye frute of the erth and of the fulnesse thereof.

And ẏ good wil of him ẏ dwelleth in ẏ * bush, shal come vpõ the head of Joseph and vpõ the toppe of ẏ head of hym that was separated frõ among his brethrẽ, his bewtie is as a firstborne oxe & his hornes as the hornes of an vnicorne. And wt thẽ he shal pushe ẏ nacions together, euẽ vnto the endes of the world. These ar ẏ many thousandes of Ephraim and the thousandes of Manasses. Exodi.iii.a

And vnto Zabulon he sayde: Reioyse Zabulon in thy goyng out, and thou Isachar in thy tentes. They shal cal the people vnto the hyl, and there they shal offer offeringes of righteousnes. For they shal * suck of the abundaunce of the see & of treasure hyd in the sande. D

And vnto Gad he said: blessed is ẏ * rowm maker Gad. He dwelleth as a liõ and caught the arme and also the toppe of the head. He saw hys beginning, that a parte of the * teacher was hyd there and came with the heades of ẏ people, and executed the ryghtuousnes of the lord and his iudgementes wyth Israell.

* Christ ca me with law grace. * The chald. interpre. was buried there

And vnto Dã he sayd: Dan is a liõs whelpe, he shall flowe from Basan.

And vnto Nephtali he sayd: Nephthali he shal haue abũdãce of pleasure & shalbe fylled with the blessyng of the lord & shal haue his possessions in the southwest.

And of Aser he sayd: Aser shalbe blessed with chyldren: he shalbe acceptable vnto his brethrẽ & shal dyppe hys fote in oyle: Yeron and brasse shall hange on thy showes & thyne age shalbe as thy youthe.

There is none lyke vnto the God of Israel: he that sytteth vpon heauen shall be thyne helpe, whose glory is in the cloudes, ẏ is the dwellyng place of God from the begynnyng and frõ vnder the armes of the worlde: he hath cast out thyne enemies before the and sayde: destroye. And Israel shal dwel in saffetye & alone. And the eyes of Jacob shal loke vpon a lande of corne and wyne moare ouer his heauen shal droppe wt dew. Happy art thou Israel, who is lyke vnto the? A people ẏ art saued by the lord thy shilde & helper and swerde of thy glory. And thine enemies shal hyde them selues from the, and thou shalt walke vpon their hye hylles.

¶ The walles of Jericho fal, and it is taken.

The.vi. Chapter.

A And Jericho shutt in her peo ple, & was shutte for feare of the chyldrẽ of Israel, so ẏ no mã wẽt out or in. And ẏ lord sayd vnto Josua: beholde, I haue geuen into thyne hãd, Jericho & her king & the men of warre. And ye shal com passe the citie, al that be mẽ of warre, & go rounde aboute it once: and so shal you do syxe dayes. And seuen preastes shall beare seuen trompettes of * rãmes hornes be fore the arcke. And the seuenth daye, ye shall compasse the cytie seuen times & the preastes shal blow with their trompettes.
And when there is a longe blaste blowen with the rammes horne, & assone as ye hea re the sound of the horne, lett al the people showte a myghte showte. And then shall the walles of the citie falle downe, and ẏ people shall ascend vp, euery mã straight before him. And Josua the sonne of Nun, called vnto the preastes and sayde vnto them: take vp the arcke of ẏ appointmẽt, & lett seuen preastes beare seuen trompet tes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the lorde. And he sayd vnto the people, go & cõpasse ẏ citie: & let the mẽ of armes go before the arcke of ẏ lord. And whẽ Josua B had spokẽ vnto the people the.vii. prestes ẏ beare the seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before ẏ arcke of ẏ lord, wẽt forth and blewe with the hornes, & the arcke of

the testamente of the Lord folowed after them. And the men of armes went before the preastes that blewe with the hornes, & the commen people came after the arcke: and as they went, they blewe with the hornes. And Josua commaunded ye people sayinge, showte not nor let your voyce be harde, or any worde proceade out of youre mouthes, untyll the day I byd you showte: and then showte.

And so the arcke of the lord compased the cytye and wente aboute it once: and then they returned into the hoste and lodged ther. And Josua rose erly in the mornyng, and the preastes toke up the arcke of the Lorde, and seuen preastes bare seuen trōpettes of rāmes hornes before ye arcke of the Lord, and as they went, blew wt ye hornes. And ye mē of armes wēte before them, and the cōmen people came after the arcke of the lorde: and as they wēt, they blewe wyth the hornes. And the secōde daye they compased the cytie once, and returned agayne in to ther hoste, and so they dyd sixe dayes longe.

And the seuenth day they rose erly: euen with the dawning of the day, & compased the citie after the same maner seuē times: only ye they cōpased the cytye seuē tymes.

C And at the seuenthe tyme, the preastes blew with the hornes, and Josua said unto the people, showte for the Lord hath geuen you the cytie. But the cytie shalbe excōmunicate, bothe it and al that is therin, unto the Lorde: onlye Rahab the harlot shall lyue, both she and al that is with her in the house, because she * hyde the messēgers that we sēt. And in any wyse beware of the excommunicate thynges, leaste ye make youre selues excommunicate. For yf thou take of the excōmunicate thinges, so shal you make the hoste of Israel excōmunycate and shall trouble it. But al the sylver, golde, vessells of brasse, and yron shalbe holy unto the Lord and shal go in to hys treasurye.

And the people cryed, and blewe wt the hornes: for when the people heard ye sounde of ye hornes, they showted a great showte: and the * walles fell downe, and the people went up in to the cytye, euerye man streyght before hym, and toke the cite. And they utterly destroyed al ye was in the cytie, bothe man and woman, yong and old, oxe, shepe, and Asse, with the edge of the swerde.

Then Josua sayde unto the two men that went to spye out the contrey: * go in to the harlottes house, & brynge out thēce, bothe the woman and all that pertayneth to her, * as ye sware to her. And the yong men ye were spies wēt in and brought out Rahab, & her father, & mother & al her brethren and al ye she had. And they brought out all her housholde and put them wythe out the host of Israell. D

And they burnt the cytye with fyre, & al that was therin. Onelye the sylver the golde, and the thynges of brasse and yrō they put unto the treasure of the house of the Lord. * And Josua saued Rahab the harlott, and her fathers housholde and al that pertayned unto her, and she dwelt in Israell, euen unto thys daye because she hyde the messengers whiche Josua sent to spye out Jericho.

And Josua cursed at that time, saying: cursed be the man before the Lord, that ryseth up and byldeth this cytie Jericho: so that he lay the foūdaciō with the * I death of his eldest sonne, and with the death of his yongest sett up the gates. And ye lord was with Josua and his fame was hearde, thorowe out all landes.

And Josua ascended frō Galgal, both he and al the people of warre with hym, & al the men of might, and the Lorde sayde

And ther was no daye lyke that before it, or after it, that the Lord obeyed the voyce of a man: & all because the Lorde fought for Israel.

*That is, after Josephus of manye) Moses wrytinge of such signes & tokens, as god had promised. The boke wherin he shulde wryte them remayneth not

And Josua returned & al Israel with him, vnto ye hoste to Galgal: but the fyue D kinges fled & hyd them selues in a caue at Makeda. And it was told Josua, sayng: the .v. kinges are founde hid in a caue at Makeda. And Josua sayde, rowle greate stones vnto the mouthe of the caue & apoynte men therto for to kepe thẽ. And stãde ye not stil, but folow after your enemies & smyte the hyndmost of thẽ. And suffre thẽ not to entre into their cyties, for ye Lord your god hath delyuered them into your hãdes. And when Josua & the chyldre of Israel had made an ende of slayinge thẽ wt a great slaughter tyll they were wasted, yet ther remayned a certen of thẽ, which entred into walled cyties.

And al the people returned to ye host, to Josua at Makeda in peace, so ye no man durst moue his tong agenst ye children of Israel. Then sayd Josua: open ye mouth of the caue, & bringe out these .v. kinges vnto me out of ye caue. And they dyd so, & brought those .v. kinges vnto hym, oute of the caue: the king of Jerusalem, ye king of Hebrõ, the king of Jerimoth, the king of Lachis, and the kyng of Eglon.

E And when they had brought out those kinges vnto Josua: Josua called for al ye men of Israel, & sayde vnto ye captaynes of the men of warre, which came wt hym, come nere & * put your fete vpõ the neckes of these kinges. And they came neare & put theyr fete vpõ ye neckes of thẽ. And Josua sayd vnto thẽ feare not nor dread But be strong & plucke vp youre hertes, for so shal the Lord serue al your enemyes agaynst whych ye fyght.

And then Josua smote thẽ & slewe thẽ & hanged thẽ on fyue trees tyl euen. And at the goinge downe of the sonne, Josua gaue commaundement, & they toke them downe of the * trees & cast them into the caue, where they hyd them selues, & layed greate stones on the caues mouth, which remayne vnto this daye.

And ye same day Josua toke Makeda & smote it wt the edge of the swerde, & the king therof also, & vtterly destroyed thẽ & al the soules ye were therin, & let nought remayne. And he dyd to the king of Makeda, as he dyd to the kinge of Jericho.

Then Josua wente frõ Makeda, & all Israell with him vnto Libna, & foughte agaynst Libna. And the lord deliuered it also into their hãdes, with the kyng also & smote it with the edge of the swerd and al the soules ye were therin, & let noughte remayne in it, & dyd vnto the king therof as he dyd vnto the king of Jericho.

After ye Josua departed from Libna, & al Israell with hym, vnto Lachis, and F beseged it, & assaulted it. And the lord deliuered into the hãdes of Israel Lachis, that they toke it the second day, & smote it with the edge of the swerde, & al the soules that were therin, according to all that he dyd to Libna.

Then Horam kynge of Geser came vp to helpe Lachis: But Josua smote hym and hys people, vntyll he lefte hym naught remayninge.

And frõ lachis Josua departed, vnto Eglon, & al Israell wyth hym, and there beseged it, & assaulted it, & toke it ye same day, & smote it with the edge of the swerd and al the soules that were therein: & vtterlye destroyed thẽ the same daye, accordinge to al that he dyd to Lachis.

Then Josua departed vp from Eglõ G and al Israel with him, vnto Hebrõ. And they fought agaynst it, and toke it, & smote it wyth the edge of thee swerde, and the kynge therof, and al the townes that pertayned too it, and all the soules that were therin, so that they left nought remaynig but in all thinges as they dyd to Eglon, so they destroyed it vtterlye, and all thee soules that were therein.

Then Josua returned & al Israel with him to Dabir, and they fought agaynste it, & toke it, and the king therof and al the townes that pertained therto. And smote

them with the edge of the swerde, and vt= terly destroied al the soules that were ther in, and let nought remaine. And as he dyd to Hebron, so he dyd to Dabir and ye king therof, and as he dyd to Lybna and her Gesurites and the Machathites, and all mount Hermon and all Basan vnto Selecah: euē al the kingdom of Og in Basā which raygned in Astharoth & Edrai whi ch same remained yet of ÿ rest of the ‡ Raphaites. But Moses smote them and de stroyed them.

Neuerthelesse the childrē of Israel expelled not the Gesurites nor the Machathites: But the Gesurytes & the Machathites dwelt amonge the Israelites euen vnto this day. Only vnto ÿ tribe of Leui, he gaue none enheritaunce: * for the offering of the lord God of Israel is their en heritaunce as he sayde vnto them.

And Moses gaue vnto the tribe of the C chyldren of Rubē by their kinredes. And their costes were from Aroer that lieth on the bancke of the riuer Arnō, and the cytie that lieth in the riuer, and al the playne a-boute Medba, Hesbō, and al her townes that lye in ÿ plaine: Dibō * Bamothbaal & Bethbaalmeō: Jahazah, Kedemoth and Mephaath, Kiriathaim, Sabamah & Za rath Zahar in mount Emak: & Beth Phe or and ÿ sprynges of Phasgah, & Bethie simoth: and al the cities in the plaine. And all the kyngdome of Sehon kynge of the Amorites which raygned in Hesbon, whō Moses smote * wt the lordes of Ma num.xxxi.a dian, Eui, Rekem, Zur, Hur and Reba, ÿ Lordes of Sehō, and the Enhabitoures of the contrey. And Balam also the sonne of Beor the sothesayer, the children of Is rael slewe with the swerde, amonge other that were slaine. And the borders of ÿ chil dren of Ruben was Jordan with the con trey that lyeth theron. This is the enherytaunce of the chyldren of Ruben in theyr kynredes, wythe the cytyes and vyllages pertaynynge therto.

And Moses gaue vnto the tribe of Gad euen vnto the chyldren of Gad he gaue by D kynredes. And their costes were Jazer, & al the cyties of Galaad, and halfe the lād of the chyldren of Ammon, vnto Aroer ÿ lyeth before Rabah: And from Hesbō vn to Ramoth maspha, and Betonim: and frō Mahanaim vnto the borders of Da bir. And in the valeye they had Betharā, Bethnimra, Socoth, and Zaphon, the reste of the kyngdome of Sehon kynge of Hesbon, & Jordan and the costes that lye theron, euen vnto the edge of the see of Cenerothe, on the other syde Jordan Est warde. This is the enheritaūce of the chil dren of Gad in their kynredes, the cyties with their vyllages.

And Moses gaue vnto the halfe tribe of Manasses. And the halfe tribe of Ma nasses had theyr parte by their kinredes.
And their costes were from Mahanaim, euē al Basā, the kingdom of Og, kynge of Basā and al the townes of Jair which lye in Basā, euē thre skore cities, and half Galaad & Astaroth, & Edrai, cities of the kingdome of Og in Basan, * whiche per nu.xxxii.g taine vnto the childrē of Machir the sōne of Manasses, & that vnto halfe the children of Machir by theyr kynredes.

These are they to which Moses gaue enherytaunce in the feldes of Moab, on the other side Jordan by Jericho Estwar de. But vnto the trybe of Leui Moses gaue none enheritaunce, for the lord God of Israell he is their enherytaunce, * as num.xviii.f he sayde vnto them.

Caleb requireth the heritage that was promised hym, and Hebron was geuen hym.

* I Hebron is a proper name of a Cytie which before was called the Cytie of Arbe whyche Arbe after the Hebre, was a Geaūt; bothe stronge & myghtye and of a famouse name.

¶ The Lotte of the childrē of Juda and the names of the cytyes and vyllages of the same.

The .xv. Chapter

A And the Lotte of the trybe of the children of Juda in their kinredes was the wildernes of Zyn ỷ stretched to the costes of Edom southwarde, & is the vtmoost parte of the southe costes. And their southcostes were from the brinck of the salt see & from a certē point of ỷ see that leaneth southwarde. And it went out on the south syde of the going vp to Acrabim and went a long to Zinna, & ascended vp on the southe syde of Cades Barne, & went a long to Hezron & wēt vp to Adar, & fett a compase to Karca & wēt a long to Azmon, & it went oute to the ryuer of Egypt: so ỷ the ende of that cost is the see. And these are their south costes.

B And their easte costes are the salt see euē vnto the edge of Jordā. And their borders in the north quarter were from another point of the see wher Jordan endeth. And went vp to Bethhagla and wente a long by the north syde of Betharabah & went vp to the stone of Bohen the sōne of Rubē. And then went vp to Dabir from the valey of Acor and so northward turning toward Galgal that lieth before the goyng vp to Adonim, which is of the south syde of the Riuer. And they wēt a longe to the water of Ensemes, & ended at ỷ wel of Rogel. And thē went vp to the valeye of the sonne of Hennō, euen vnto the southe syde of the Jebusites the enhabytours of Jerusalem. And thē went vp to the toppe of the hille ỷ lyeth before the valeye of Hennom, westward, & by the edge of the valey of Raphaim northward. And the it draweth frō the sande hylle unto the fountayne of water called Nephthoah, and goeth out at the cities of mount Ephron: & draweth to Balah, otherwise called Kariā thiarim: & then it compaseth from Balah westward, unto Seir, & then goeth alonge unto the syde of mount Jarim, otherwyse called Chesalon, on the northsyde therof.

And cometh down to Bethsames & goeth C to Thamnah, & goeth oute on the syde of Akaron northward: And then draweth to Secron & goeth a longe to mount Balah, and goeth out at Jabnel: & the ende of the costes is ẏ see. And the west borders are ẏ great see & the costes that lye theron. And these are the costes of the chyldren of Juda rounde aboute in theyr kynredes.

* And unto Caleb the sonne of Jephune was ther a part geuē amōge the chyldren of Judā, by the mouth of the Lord to Jo sua, euē the cytie of Kariatharbe father of Enack whych cytie is called Hebron. And Caleb droue thence the thre sonnes of Enack, Sesai, Ahiman, & Thalmai, the son-nes begottē of Enack. And he wēt up thēce, to the enhabitours of Dabir, whose nāme in thee olde tyme was Kariath sepher.
And Caleb sayd: * he that smiteth Kariath sepher & taketh it, to him wyll I geue Ac-D sah my doughter to wyfe. And Othniel ẏ sonne of Kenes, the brother of Caleb toke it. And he gaue hym Acsah hys doughter to wife. And as she wēt she moued him, to aske of her father a felde. And she * lyght ed of her asse. And Caleb sayde unto her: what ayleth the. And she sayde: geue me a blessing: for ẏ hast geuē me a southwarde & drye land: geue me also sprynges of water. Then he gaue her sprynges of water, both aboue & beneth. Thys is the enheritaunce of the tribe of the chyldrē of Juda in theyr kynredes.

And the cities of the tribe of the childrē of Juda in al quarters, toward the costes of Edō southward, were: Kabsel, Eder, & Jagur: Kinah, Dimonah, & Adada: Kedes Hazor, & Jethnā: Ziph, Telem, & Baloth Hazor, Hadathah, & Kerioth: Hesrō, other wyse called Hazor: Amam, Sama, & Mo-ladah: Hazargaddah, Hasmō, & Bethpheleth: Hazarsuall, Bersabe, & Baziothiah: Baalah, Jim, & Azem: Eltholad, Cesil, & Horma: Ziklag, Madmenah, & Sensen-nah: Labaoth, Selhim, Ain, & Remon: all these cytties are twentie & nyne wyth theyr E villages. And in the lowe cōtreye they had Esthaol, Zareah, & Asenah: Zonoah, En ganim, Thaphuah & Enam: Jerimoth, A dulam, Socoh, & Azekah: Saaraim, Adithaim, Gederah, & Gederothaim: fourtene cy-ties wyth theyr villages.

Zenā, Hadasah, & Magdalgad, Delēā Mazphah, & Jektheel: Lachis, Bazcath, and Eglon: Cabōn, Lahamam, & Cethlis Gaderoth, Bethdagon, Naamah & Makedah: Syxtene cities with theyr villages

Lebnah, Ether, & Asan: Jephthah, As-nah, & Nezib: Keilah, Akzib, & Maresah nyne cytties wyth theyr villages. F

Akron with theyr townes & villages.
And frō Akron out to the see, al that lyeth aboute Asdod wyth theyr vyllages. Asdod wyth her townes and vyllages. Azah with her townes and villages, euen unto the ryuer of Egypte: & the great see wyth the costes that lye theron.

And in the mountaynes, they had Sa mir, Jathir, & Socoh: Dannah: & Kariath sennah, which is Dabir: Anab, Esthemoh & Anim: Goshen, Holon, & Giloh: a leuē cy-ties wyth theyr villages. Arab, Dumah, & Esan: Janum, Beththapuah & Aphekah: Humatah and Kariatharbe: which is Hebron & nyne cytties wyth theyr vyl- G lages. Maon, Carmel, Siph, and Jutah: Jezrael, Jukadam, & Zanoah: Cain, Gi-baah, & Thamnah x. cytties with theyr vil lages. Halhull, Bethzur, & Gedor: Maa-rath, Bethanoth, and Eltekon: Syxe cy-ties wythe theyr villages. Kariath Baal whych is Kariath Jarim, & Harabba two cytties wyth theyr villages.

And in the wyldernes they had Beth-arabah, Meddin & Sacacah: Nebsan, the cytie of salte, & Engadi: Syxe cities wyth theyr villages. But the Jebusites ẏ were the enhabiters of Jerusalē: the chyldrē of Juda could not caste oute. Wherfore the Jebusites dwel among the chyldrē of Ju da unto thys daye.

¶ The lot or part of Ephraim.

The .xvi. Chapter.

nd the lot of the chyldren of A Joseph fel frō Jordā by Jericho, unto the water of Jerithe eastward, & the wildernesse that goeth vp frō Jericho thorow out mount Bethel: and then goeth out frō Bethell to Lus, & cummeth a long vnto the borders of Archi taroth: & goeth downe westwarde, euen to B the costes of Japhlethi, & vnto the costes of Bethhoron the nether, & so to Gasor, & the endes of theyr coostes came to the see.

And so the chyldren of Joseph Manasses and Ephraim toke theyr enheritaunce.

And the chyldre of Ephraim toke theyr costes by kynreds. And ỹ costes of theyr enheritaunce Eastward were, Ataroth A-dor, euen vnto Bethhoron the vpper, and C went oute westwarde to Machmathah on the Northsyde, & cōpassed Eastward vnto Thaanath Silo, & past it on the Eastsyde vnto Janoah, & went downe frō Ja-noah to Ataroth & Naarath, & met at Jeri cho, & wēt oute at Jordan. And theyr borders went frō Thaphuah westward vnto the ryuer Kanah, & the endes were the see.
D This is the enheritaūce of the trybe of the chyldren of Ephraim in theyr kinredes, & the borderinge cyties of the chyldrē of Ephraim, lye among the enheritaūce of the chyldren of Manasses: euen all the cyties wyth theyr villages. Notwithstandinge they dryue not oute thee Canaanites that dwelt in Gazer: but the Cananites dwelte amonge the Ephraites vnto thys daye, & paye tribute.

¶ The lot or porcion of the halfe trybe of Manasses. The Cananites become tributaries to the Israelites. Manasses & Ephraim requyre a greater porcion of heritage.

The .xvii. Chapter.

A And thee trybe of Manasses which was the Eldest sonne of Joseph receiued a lot. And Machir the Eldest sonne of Manasses which was the fa ther of Galaad (& a mā of warre) had Ga laad & Basan. And the rest of the children of Manasses receaued by theyr kinredes: which were the chyldrē of Abiezer: the chil dren of Helech: the chyldrē Asriel: the chyl dren of Sichē, thee chyldrē of Hepher: the chyldren of Semida. These are the male chyldren of Manasses thee sonne of Joseph in theyr kynredes. ⁊ But Zelaphead the sonne of Hepher the sonne of Galaad the sonne of Machir, the sonne of Manas ses, had no sonnes saue doughters. And Lordes saying: ⁊ the Lord commaunded Moses to geue vs an enheritaunce among our brethre. And he gaue thē at the mouth of the Lord, an enheritaunce amonge the brethren of theyr fathers. And there fell ten porciōs to Manasses besyde the land of Galaad & Basan whyche are on the other syde Jordan: because the daughters of Manasses dyd enherytte amonge hys sonnes. And Manasses other sonnes had the land of Galaad.

And the coostes of Manasses reached frō Aser to Machmathah that lyeth befo re Sichē & went a long on the right hand euen vnto the enhabiters of Enthaphuah & the land of Thaphuah belōged to Ma nasses, whych Thaphuah laye in the borders betwene Manasses and the children of Ephraim. And the costes descended vn to thee ryuer Canah on whose southesyde Ephraim hath cyties among the cyties of C Manasses. For the coostes of Manasses were on ỹ northsyde of the ryuer & ỹ endes of them was the see: so that the south pertayned to Ephraim, & the northe to Ma nasses, and the see is his border. And they met together in Aser northwarde, & in Isa car eastward. And Manasses had in Isa car & in Aser, Bethsean, and her townes: & the enhabiters of Dor, wythe the townes pertainyng to the same: & the enhabitours of Endor wyth the townes of the same: & the enhabitours of Thaanath wyth her townes and the enhabitours of Mageddo wyth the townes of the same, euē thre con treys. yet the chyldrē of Manasses coulde not ouercome those cyties: But the Cana nites began to dwel in the same land. Ne uerthelesse assone as the chyldrē of Israel were waxed strong, they put the Canani-tes to tribute, but expelled them not.

And the chyldrē of Joseph spake vnto D Josua, saying: why haste thou geuen vs but one lotte & one porciō to enherete, seing we be moche people, & for as moche as the Lord hath blessed vs so: & Josua answeout ỳ Cananites for al their yron charet= tes, and for all they be so stronge.

Certen are sente to deuyde the lande to the other seuen trybes. The lotte of the chyldren of Ben Jamin.

The.xviii.Chapter.

A AND the whole congregacyon of the childrē of Israel came to gether at Siloh ⁊ sit vp ỳ tabernacle of witnesse ther, ⁊ the lande was in subiectiō be fore them. But there remayned among ỳ children of Israel seuen tribes which had not their enherytaunce deuyded out. And Josua sayd vnto ỳ childrē of Israel, how lōg are ye so slacke to go ⁊ possesse ỳ land which ỳ Lord God of your fathers hathe

I may sende thē. And ỳ they may rise and walke thorowe the land ⁊ distribute it by their enheritaunces ⁊ come againe to me.
B Deuide it into seuē partes. For Juda shal abyde by their coostes in ỳ south, ⁊ ỳ hou= se of Joseph shal stand to their coostes in the north. Descrybe ye ỳ land therfore in= to seuē partes, ⁊ bryng ỳ descripciō to me hether, ỳ I maye caste lottes for you here before the Lord oure God. The Leuites haue no parte amonge you for the preast=

Gad, Ruben, ⁊ halfe the trybe of Manas ses haue receaued their enheritaunce beyō de Jordan Estwarde, whiche Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde gaue them.

And ỳ men arose and went their waye.
And Josua charged thē ỳ wēt to distribe the land saying: hence and go thorow the lande ⁊ describe it, ⁊ come againe to me he ther: and I will cast lottes for you before the Lorde in Siloh. And the men depar= ted, ⁊ walked thorow the lande and descri bed it by cities into seuē partes in a boke, and returned to Josua into the host at Si loh. And Josua caste lottes for thē in Si loh before the Lord, ⁊ ther he deuided the lande vnto the children of Israell, to eche their porcion. And the lotte of the trybe of C the chyldren of Beniamin came vp accor= dynge to their kinredes. And the coostes of their lotte came out betwene the childrē of Juda ⁊ ỳ childrē of Joseph. And their north coostes were frō Jordan and went vp to the side of Jericho on the north side, ⁊ wēt vp thorow the moūtaines westwar= de, ⁊ they ended at the wyldernesse of Be= endeth at ỳ point of the salt see north ther from, and at the ende of Jordā south ther from. This is the south cooste.

And Jordā is their east cooste, thys is the enheritaunce of the childrē of Benia= min wyth theyr coostes round about and by their kynredes. And these ar the cytyes of the trybes of the chyldrē of Beniamin in theyr kynredes: Jericho, Bethhaglah, and the valey of Kasis: Betharabah, Za maraim, and Bethell: Auim, Pharah, and Ophrah: Chephar Ammonai, Ophni, and Sabat, twelue cyties with their villages.

Gabaō, Ramah, and Beroth: Masphah, Caphairah and Mozah: Reke, Iarephel and Tharelah, Zela, Eleph, and the cytie of the Iebusytes which is Ierusalē, Gabaath, & Kariath, fourtene cyties wt theyr villages. This is the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Beniamin in their kinredes.

¶ The lottes or partes of Zabulon, Isachar, Aser, Nephthali, Dan, and Iosua.

The .xix. Chapter.

A And the seconde lott came out vnto the trybe of the children of Simeō by their kinredes.
And their enherytaunce fel in the myddes of ye enheritaūce of the children of Iuda. And their enheritaunce was: Bersabe, Sabe, and Mola-dah, Hazorsual, Balah, & Azem, Eltholad Bethul and Hormah, Ziklag, Bethmar caboth & Hazersusah, Bethlebaoth, & Sa ruhē thertene cities wythe their villages.
Ain Remō Ether, & Asan foure cities wt their villages: & therto al ye villages yt lye rounde about these cities, euē vnto Bala ath, Beer, & Ramath southwarde. Thys is the enheritaūce of the trybe of the chyl-drē of Simeon in their kinredes out of ye porcion of the children of Iuda came the enheritaunce of the chyldrē of Simeon.
For the part of the chyldrē of Iuda was to moch for them: and therfore the chyldrē of Simeon had their enheritaunce in the enheritaunce of them.

And the thyrd lotte came vnto the chyl dren of Zabulō according vnto their kin redes. And the coostes of theyr enherytaunce came to Sarid, & went vp to the B See, and to Marialah, and touched at Dabaseth, & mette at the riuer that lyethe before Iokneā: and turned from Sarid estward toward the sunne rising vnto the border of Chisloth in moūt Thabor: and then gothe out to Daberath and goth vp to Iaphia: and from thence gothe a long estwarde towarde the sunne rysynge, to Gethah, Hepher, Ittah, and Iasin, and goth to Remon, Methoar, & Neah. And cōpasseth it on the north syde and goeth to Nathan, and endeth in the valey of Ieph thahell. And Iattath, Nahaloll, Semron, Idalah, & Bethlehem: twelue cities with their vyllages. Thys is the enherytaunce of the Childrē of Zabulon, in their kyn-redes. The said cities with their villages.

And the fourth lott came out to the chil drē of Isacar by their kinredes. And their costes were Iesraelah, Casuloth, Sunē, Hapharaim, Siō, Anaharath: Harabith, Kision, and Abes: Rameth, Enganim, En hadah, & Bethphazes. And his costes mete at Thabor, Sahazimah, & at Bethsames & endeth at Iordā, syxtene cytyes wyth their villages. This is the enheritaūce of the trybe of the childrē of Isacar by their kinredes the cytyes and their vyllages.

And the fyft lott came out vnto ye tribe C of the chyldren of Aser by their kynredes.
And their coostes were Helkah, Hali, Be-ten and Achsaph: Alamelech, Amaad and Miseal: & mette at Carmel on the see, & at Sihor and at Labanath and turneth to-warde the sunne rysyng to Bethdagon, & mette at Zabulon & in the valey of Iehpthah, and toward the northsyde of Bethe mek & Negel, & goth out on ye left syde of Cabul: and Hebron, Rohob, Hamon, and Kanah euen vnto great Sidon. And then the coost turneth to Ramah & to the strōg cittie of Zor and turneth to Hosah and en deth at ye see: by the possessiō of Achzibah; Amah, Aphek, and Rohob: Twentye and two cities with their villages. This is the enherytaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Aser by their kynredes: These cytyes wyth theyr vyllages.

And the syxt lotte came out vnto the chyldren of Nephtali by theyr kynredes.
And their costes were frō Heleph & from Elon in Zaanānim, & Adami, Nekeb & Iabneel euen to Lakum, and go oute at Iordan. And then the cooste turnethe westward to Asnoth in moūt Thabor, & then gothe out from thence to Hukokah and meteth wyth Zabulon on the southe syde, and wyth Aser on the west, & at Iu-da vpon Iordā toward the sunne rysyng.
And their strong cytyes are Zidim, Ser, Hamath, Rakath & Cenerethe Adamah, Heremah and Hazor: Kedes, Edrai, & En-hazor: Ieron, Magdalel: Horem, Bethanah & Bethsames: ninetene cityes wt their vyllages. Thys is the enherytaūce of the trybe of the childrē of Nephtaly by theyr kynredes: these cyties and their villages.

And the seuenth lotte fell to the trybe of D

the childrẽ of Dã by their kynredes. And the coostes of their enheritaunce was zaraah Esthaol, Jrsames, Saalabin, Ialõ & Jethlah: Eglõ, Themnathah & Akarõ: Eltheketh Gibethõ and Baalath: Jehud, Banebarak & Gathremon, Meiarcon & Harcon with the contrey that lyeth before Japho. And ŷ coostes of ŷ childrẽ of Dã went out frõ beyond thẽ. For the chyldren of Dan went vp and fought agaynst Le sẽ and toke it, and smote it with ŷ edge of the swerde, and conquered it, and dwelte therin and called it Dã, after the name of Dan their father.

Thys is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Dan in their kinredes: these cyties with their vyllages. When they had made an ende of deuiding the lã de by her coastes then the chyldrẽ of Jsra el gaue an enheritaũce vnto Josua ŷ sõne of Nun amonge them: at the mouthe of the Lorde they gaue him the cytye whych he asked, euen Thamnab serah in mount Ephraim. And he bylte the cytye & dwelt therein. These are the enheritaunces why the Eleazar ŷ preaste and Josua the sõne of Nun, and the auncient fathers of the trybes of the chyldren of Jsraell deuided by lotte in Siloh before the Lorde, in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and so made an ende of deuydyng the cõtrey.

¶ The Cytyes of refuge or Sanctuaryes.

The .xx. Chapter.

Then the Lorde spake vnto A Josua saying: comen with ŷ chyldren of Jsrael and saye:
* Appoynt out free cities, of whych J spake vnto you by Moses, that the slear that kylleth any per son vnwares & vnwyttyngly, maye flee thether. And those cyties shalbe youre refuge from the auenger of bloude. And the slear shall flee vnto one of those Cytyes and shall stande in the entrynge of ŷ gate of the cytie and shal shew hys cause in the eares of the elders of the sayd cytie.
And they shal take hym in to the cytye vn to them, and shal geue him a place that he maye dwell amonge them.

And when the auenger of bloude folo B weth after hym they shall not delyuer the slear into his hande because he smote hys frend ignorantlye, and hated hym not before tyme. And he shall dwell in the sayde cytye vntyl he stand before the congrega cyon in Judgement, and vntyl the death of ŷ hye preast that shalbe in those dayes.
And then shall the slear returne and come vnto hys awne cytie and vnto hys owne house, & vnto the cytye frõ whẽce he fledd.
And they apoynted Kedes in Galyle, in C mount Nephthali, and Sichem in mõute Ephraim, & Karia: harbe which is Hebrõ, in the mõutaines of Juda. And on the o-therside Jordã ouer against Jericho estward, they gaue Bozor in the wildernesse vpõ the plaine, out of the tribe of Rubẽ & Ramoth in Galaad out of ŷ tribe of Gad & Golan in Basã oute of the tribe of Ma D nasses. These were the cities apointed for al the childrẽ of Jsrael, & to the straũgers that Sotourned amõge thẽ ŷ whosoeuer killed any persõ ignorãtly, ŷ same myght flee thether & shulde not dye by the hãd of the auenger of bloude, vntyll he stode before the congregacyon.

¶ The cytyes geue to the Leuites, in nõbre. xlviii. The promises of geuing the land of Canaan are fulfylled. The Jsraelytes are at rest.

The .xxi. Chapter.

And then came the principall heades of the Leuytes vnto A Eleazar the preaste, & vnto Josua ŷ sõne of Nũ, & vnto the auncietẽ heades of the try bes of the childrẽ of Jsrael, & spake vnto thẽ at Siloh in the lãd of Canaã saying:
* the lord cõmaunded by Moses, to geue vs cities to dwel in and the feldes aboute thẽ, for our catel. And the childrẽ of Jsra el gaue vnto ŷ Leuites out of their enheri taũces, at the bidding of the lorde, these ci ties folowynge with their Suburbes.

And the lott cam out vnto the kinredes of the Cahathites: & the children of Aarõ the preast which were of the Leuytes had geuen them by lott, out of the tribe of Ju da, out of the tribe of Simeon, & out of ŷ tribe of Beniamin .xiii. cities. And the rest of the chyldren of Cahath had by lott, out of the kynredes of the trybe of Ephraim, out of the trybe of Dan, and oute of the half tribe of Manasses tẽ cities. And the children of Gersõ had by lott oute of the kinredes of ŷ tribe of Jsacar out of ŷ try be of Aser, out of ŷ tribe of Nephthaly & out of ŷ other halfe tribe of Manasses in Basã .xiii. cities. And ŷ childrẽ of Meraby their kynredes, had out of the trybe of Ruben, out of the trybe of Gad, and oute of the tribe of Zabulō, twelue cities. And B the children of Israel gaue by lott vnto ÿ Leuites these cities with their Suburbes as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they gaue out of ÿ tribe of ÿ childrē of Juda, & out of ÿ trybe of the childrē of Simeō, these cyties by name: whiche the childrē of Aarō being of the kinredes of ÿ Cahathites, & of the children of Leui, ob-teined: for theirs was ÿ first lot. And they gaue them Kariath Arbe of the father of *Enack, which is Hebrō, in the hyl cōtrey of Juda, with the Suburbes of the same round about it. But the contrey that pertained to the citie and the villages therof, they gaue to Caleb the sōne of Jephune, to be hys possessyon.

*Arba was ÿ father of Enak. Of Enak ye haue in Judic. 1. b

And thus they gaue to the chyldren of Aarō the preast the fraūchesed cytes of ÿ slear, Hebron with her Suburbes: & Lib-na with her Suburbes, and Jathir wyth her Suburbes, & Esthimoa with her Suburbes, and Holon with her Suburbes, and Dabir with her Suburbes, and Ain with her Suburbes, and Jutah with her Suburbes, & Bethsames withe her Suburbes: nine cities out of those two tribes.
And out of ÿ tribe of Beniamin they gaue C Gabaō with her Suburbes: Gaba with her Suburbes: Anatoth w her Subur-bes: Almon with her Suburbes: foure cities. All these citis of ÿ chyldrē of Aaron preastes were xiii. cyties withe their Suburbes. And ÿ kynredes of the childrē of Cahath that were Leuites: ÿ is to say the other chyldrē of Cahath had the cyties of their lott, out of ÿ trybe of Ephraim. And they gaue them the fre cytie of the flear: Sichē wyth her Suburbes, in mount Ephraim: & Gazer withe her Suburbes: & Kabsaim wyth her Suburbes: Bethho-rō with her Suburbes: foure cities. And out of the tribe of Dan: Eltheke with her Suburbes: Gibethon wyth her Subur-bes: Aialon wythe her Suburbes, and Gathremō with her Suburbes: foure cytyes. And oute of the halfe trybe of Ma-nasses, Thanach w her Suburbes: Ga-thremō wyth her Suburbes: two cytyes.
So that all the cyties whych were geuen vnto the kynredes of the other chyldrē of Cahath, were ten wyth their Suburbes.
And vnto the chyldren of Gerson why-che were of the kynredes of the Leuytes: they gaue oute of the other halfe trybe of Manasses, the cytie of refuge for ÿ slear: Golan in Basan wythe her Suburbes: Beesthera wyth her Suburbes: two cy-ties. And out of the trybe of Isacar, Kisy-on wyth her Suburbes: Daberath wyth her Suburbes: Jarimoth with her Suburbes: Enganim wyth her Suburbes: foure cities. And out of the tribe of Aser: Miseal wyth her Suburbes, Abdō with her Suburbes, Halkath wyth her Subur-bes: Rohob with her Suburbes: foure cy-ties. And out of the tribe of Nephthali, ÿ cytie of refuge for the slear, Kedes in Ga-lile, wyth her Suburbes: Hamothdor, w her Suburbes: Carthan wyth her Suburbes: thre cytyes. So that all the cytyes of the Gersonytes in theyr kynredes B were xiii. wyth their Suburbes.
And vnto the kynredes of the children of Merari, the reste of the Leuytes, they gaue out of the tribe of Zabulon: Jecnā wyth her Suburbes: Carthah wyth her Suburbes Damna wythe her Subur-bes, & Nahalal wyth her suburbes: foure cytyes. And out of the tribe of Rubē, they gaue Bosor with her suburbes: Jahesah with her suburbes Kedmoth wyth her suburbes, & Mephaath wyth her suburbes foure cities. And out of the tribe of Gad, they gaue ÿ fraūchised citie of ÿ slear, Ra-moth in Galaad w her suburbes, Maha-naim w her suburbes, Hesbon w her suburbes: & Jaser w her suburbes: foure cy-ties in al, so ÿ al the cytyes of the childrē of Merari in their kynredes, whych were the rest of the kinredes of the leuites, were by their lot, twelue cities. And all the cities ÿ ÿ Leuites had in the possessiō of ÿ childrē of Israel were. xlviii. w theyr suburbes.
And these cyties had eche theyr suburbes round about her thorow out all the sayde cities. And the lorde gaue vnto Israel al ÿ lād whych he sware to geue vnto theyr fathers. And thei cōquered it, & dwelt ther in. And ÿ lord gaue thē rest round aboute accordyng to all ÿ he sware vnto theyr fathers. So ÿ ther stode not a mā of al their enemies before thē. But ÿ lord delyuered all their enemyes into theyr hādes. There spaked nothinge of all the good thynges which the Lord had sayde vnto the house of Israel, But al came to passe.

¶ Rubē, Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses are sende againe to their possessyons. They byld an al tare for a memoryal.

The.xxii. Chapter.

A THen Josua called vnto the Rubenites, ye Gaddites and to the halfe tribe of Manas-Num.xxxii.c ses and sayd vnto them: *ye haue kept al that Moses the seruaunt of the Lord cōmaunded you, & haue obeyed my voyce in all that I commaunded you: ye haue not lefte your bre thren of a lōg ceason vnto thys daye but haue kept the cōmaundement of ye Lorde your God. And now ye lord hath geuē rest vnto your brethren as he promesed them.
Wherfore returne and go vnto your ten tes & vnto ye lande of your possession, whi che Moses the seruaunt of the lord gaue you on the other syde Jordan.

¶ But in any wise take exceding good heade that ye do the cōmaundemēt & law which Moses ye seruaūt of ye lord charged you: which is, that ye loue the Lord youre God, and walcke in hys wayes and kepe hys commaundementes, and cleaue vnto him, and serue hym wythe al youre hertes and al youre soules. And so Josua* bles B sed them and sent them awaye. And they wente vnto theyr tentes.

Unto the one halfe of the trybe of Manasses Moses gaue possessyō in Ba san: and vnto the other halfe therof gaue Josua wythe their brethren on thys syde Jordan westward. And also whē Josua sent them away vnto their tentes and bles sed them, he sayde vnto thē, returne wyth moch richesse vnto your tentes, and wyth very moch catel, with siluer gould, brasse, yron, and wythe raymente aboue measure, and deuide the spoyle of youre ene-[illegible] myes wyth your* brethren.

And the chyldē of Rubē, the chyldren of Gad and half the tribe of Manasses, C returned and departed from the chyldren of Israel out of Siloh which is in the lā de of Canaan, to go vnto the contreye of Galaad, & to the land of their possessyon, wherin they were possessed at ye mouth of the Lorde by the hande of Moses. And when they came vnto the costes of Jordā that lye in ye land of Canaan: ther the chil dren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad and ye halfe trybe of Manasses, bylt an altare fast by Jordan & that a great altare to se to. And when the childrē of Israell hearde say: behold the chyldren of Ruben, the chil drē of Gad & the halfe tribe of Manasses haue bylt an altare in the forefrount of ye land of Canaā in the borders of Jordan on the syde of the childrē of Israel: ye hole congregacyon of the chyldren of Israell gathered them to gether to Siloh, to go vpon them wyth batel. And the childrē of Israel sēt vnto the children of Ruben, to the children of Gad and to the halfe tribe of Manasses into ye lād of Galaad, Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the preast, and with him tē lordes of euery chefe howse a lord thorow out all the trybes of Israell, which heades of their fathers housholdes were ouer ye thousādes of Israel. And they wēt vnto the childrē of Rubē, of Gad & to the half tribe of Manasses, vnto the land of Galaad and spake with them sayinge.
Thus say the hole congregacion of the D Lorde: what transgression is this that ye haue trangressed against the God of Israel, to turne away this day from after ye Lorde and to bylde you an altare for to rebelle this day against the lord, Is ther wicked deade of Peor to litle for vs, wher of we ar not cleansed vnto this day, & ther was a plage in the congregacyon of thee Lorde: But that ye also shoulde turne awaye thys daye from folowyng the lord: ye shall rebelle to daye agaynst the Lord, and to morow he shall be wroth wyth all the congregacyon Not withstandynge yt the land of youre possessyon be vncleane, then come ouer vnto the lāde of the posses siō of the Lord, wher the lordes tabernacle dwelleth, & be possessed amōg vs. But rebel not against the Lorde nor agaynste vs, to buyld you any other aulter saue ye aulter of the lord our God. Dyd not Acā the sonne of Zareth trespase in the excom municate thynges, and wrath fel on al the congregacion of Israel, so yt he alone pe-rysshed not for his wyckednesse?
Then the children of Ruben & of Gad, C and halfe the trybe of Manasses answered and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Israel: The myghty God Jehouah he knowethe, and Israell shall knowe yf it be to rebelle or transgresse a-gaynst the Lorde, then the Lord saue vs not thys daye. Or elles yf we haue bylte vs an aulter to turne from folowing the Lorde, or to offer theron burnte offrynge or meateoffringes, or to offer peace offrin ges thereon: let the Lorde requyre it: And haue not rather done it for feare of thys: leaste in tyme to come your chyldren shul de saye vnto oures: what haue ye to do with the Lord god of Israel, seyinge: Y ÿ lord hath made Jordã a border betwene vs & you ye childrẽ of Rubẽ & of Gad: ye haue no parte therfore in the lord: and so F shal your childrẽ make oure childrẽ ceasse from fearinge the lorde.

And therfore we sayd: Let vs cause an aulter to be made, not for burntoffriges, nor sacrifices, but it shalbe a wytnesse be-twene vs & you and our generacyons after vs, that we shuld serue the Lord, with our offeringes, sacrifyces and peaceoffe-rynges: and that your chyldren shuld not saye to oures in tyme to come, ye haue no parte in the Lorde.
And we thought yf they shuld so say to vs or to our generacyõs in tyme to come, ÿ we wold say agayne: Beholde the facyõ of the aulter which our fathers made, nether for burntoffriges nor sacrifices, but that it shulde be a wytnesse betwene vs & you. God forbydde that we shuld rebel a gainst the lord & that we shuld turne this day frõ after him, and byld an aulter for burntofferinges or sacryfyces, saue ÿ altare of the Lord, oure God that is before hys tabernacle.
G And when Phinches the Preast & the Lordes of the congregaciõ & heades ouer ÿ thousandes of Israel which were wyth him, hearde the wordes that the childrẽ of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad & the chyldrẽ of Manasses spake, they were wel cõtẽte.
And Phinches ÿ sone of Eleazar ÿ preast sayd vnto the chyldrẽ of Ruben, of Gad & of Manasses, this daye we perceaue ÿ the Lorde is amonge vs, because ye haue not done thys trespase agaynst the Lord.
And now ye haue riddẽ ÿ childrẽ of Isra el out of the handes of the Lorde.
And Phinehes the sõne of Eleazar ÿ Preast and the lordes returned frõ ÿ chil dren of Ruben & of Gad oute of the land of Galaad vnto the land of Canaan, to ÿ chyldren of Israel, & brought them word agayne. And the answere pleased the chyl drẽ of Israel wel, and they praysed God, and dyd not entend to go agaynst them in battell, to destroy the land whiche the chyldren of Rubẽ & Gad dwelt in. And ÿ chyl drẽ of Ruben & the chyldrẽ of Gad called the aulter Ed, because it is a witnesse be twene vs, that the Lorde is God.

The Notes.

a. Blessed them, that is, wysshed the the fauoure of God & happye continuaunce in their possessions, & a blessed lyfe in the Lord. So dyd Dauid blesse them also. ii. Regum vi.

b. The wicked dede of Peor, for ÿ wicked Idolatry done to Peor. Peor or (as some will) Phegor, was an Idolle of the Moabites, whiche was worshypped in an hyl in Moab called Peor, where the Israelites not only committed carnall whoredome wyth the women of the Moabites, but also spiritual whoredome, that is, became Idolaters & worshypped that Idoll Peor of the Moabites, by the which they were plaged, so that there dyed of them foure and twentye thousand at that tyme as ye rea de. Nume. xxv.

Josua exhorteth the people that they Joyne not them selues to the gentyles, and that they truste in none but in God only, which had fulfylled hys promeses to them.

The xxiii. Chapter.

And it came to passe a lõg ses son after that the Lorde had A geuen rest vnto Israel from al their enemyes roũd about, that Josua wared olde and was strycken in yeres. Wherfore he sent for all Israell and for their elders, their heades, their Judges and offycers, and sayde vnto them: I am olde & strycken in yeres. And ye haue sene all that the Lord your God hath done vnto all these nacyons before your faces: For ÿ Lorde your God he fought for you. Beholde, I haue appointed these nacyons that remayne, to be ÿ enheritaunce of youre trybes: euen from Jordan and all the nacyons that I haue destroyed, euen vnto the great See.
And the Lord your god he shal expel and cast thẽ out before you, and ye shall conquere their landes, as the lorde your God hath sayde vnto you. a Be therfore exceadynge stronge that ye B take hede to do all that is wrytẽ in ÿ boke of the law of Moses, & that ye bow not a syde there from, to the ryght hãd or to the lefte: and ÿ ye go not vnto these nacyons that remaine with you: and that ye nether make mencyon or sweare by the names of theyr goddes: and that ye nether serue thē nor bowe youre selues vnto thē. But that ye sticke fast vnto the Lord your God, as ye haue done vnto thys day. C So shall the Lord cast out before you great nacyons & myghtie, as ye se how no man hath stande before you hitherto. *One of you shal chase a thousād: for ẏ lord your God he fighteth for you, as he hath said vnto you. Take good hede therfore vnto your soules, ẏ ye loue the Lorde your God.

But & yf ye shal goo backe and cleaue vnto the rest of these naciōs that remayne wyth you and shal make Mariages with thē, and shall go to them and they come to you: be sure that the Lord your God wyll not cast out al these naciōs frō before you *But they shal be snares & trappes vnto you, & scourges for youre sydes, & prickes in your eyes, vntyl ye perysshe frō of thys good land which the Lord your god hath geuen you.

Beholde I walke this daye, by the waye of al the worlde: cal ye to mynde in al your D hartes and in al your soules, that nothing hath fayled of all the good thinges which the Lord your God promysed you. Al are come to passe, & nothing hath fayled therof. And as al good thynges are come vpō you, whych the Lord your God promysed you: so shall the Lord bring vpon you all euell vntyl he haue destroyed you from of this good land, which the Lord your god hath geuen you whē ye haue transgressed the apoyntmēt of the Lord your God, whyche he commaunded you: and haue gone & serued straunge goddes, and bowed your selues to them. Thē shall the wrath of the Lorde ware whote vpon you, and ye shal perysshe quickly, frō of the good land whiche he hath geuen you.

¶ Josua exhorteth the people to the keping of the lawe. He dyeth. The bones of Joseph are buried. Eleazar dyeth.

The.xxiiii. Chapter.

A AND Josua gathered al the tribes of Israel to Sichē, & called for ẏ elders of Israel, & for theyr heades Judges & officers which presented thē selues before God. And Josua sayd vnto al the people, thus sayth the lord God of Israel, *your fathers dwelt on the other syde of thee floude in olde tyme euē Thareth the father of Abraham & Nachor, and serued straunge Goddes. But I toke youre father Abrahā from the other syde of thee floude, & brought him into the land of Canaan, and multiplied his sede, & gaue him Isaac. And I gaue vnto Isaac Jacob & Esau. And I gaue vnto Esau mount Seir to possesse it. But Jacob & his childrē wēt downe into Egipt.

*Thē I sent Moses and Aarō. And I *plaged Egipt, after the maner as I dyd among thē, and after that I brought you oute & I brought your fathers out of Egipt. B And ye came vnto the see: & the Egiptians folowed after youre fathers wythe charettes & horsmē, vnto the redd see. And they cryed vnto the Lord. And he put darkenesse betwene you & the Egiptians and brought the see vpō thē & couered thē. And your eyes haue sene what I haue done in Egipt. And ye dwelte in the wyldernesse a long season. And I brought you into the land of ẏ Amorites which dwelt on the other syde Jordan. And they fought wyth you: & I gaue thē into your handes. And ye cōquered theyr contrey. And I destroyed them in your syghte.

Thē Balak the sonne of Ziphor kyng of Moab arose & warred agaynst Israel, & sent & *called Balam the sonne of Beor for to cursse you. But I wold not agre to herken vnto Balam, & therfore he blessed you: And so I delyuered you oute of hys hand. And whē ye went ouer Jordan, & came vnto Jericho, thee cytizens of Jericho fought agaynst you: the Amorites, Pherezites, Canaanites, Hethytes, Gergosytes, Heuites, Jebusites whych I delyuered in to your handes.

And I sent *hornettes before you & ye C cast out before you: euē the two kinges of the Amorites: but not wᵗ your own swerd or wyth your owne bowe. And I gaue you a land in which ye dyd no labour, & cyties which you bylt not, & ye dwelt in thē. And vynes, & Oliuetrees which ye planted not and ye ate of them.

And now feare the Lord and serue hym in purenesse and truth: And put away the Goddes which your fathers serued on the other syde of the floud, & in Egypt, & serue the Lord. But yf it seme euel vnto you to serue the Lord, then chose you thys daye, who ye wyll serue whether the Goddes which youre fathers serued ÿ were on the other syde of the floude, ether the Goddes of the Amorites in whose land ye dwelt, & I and my house wyl serue the Lorde.

And the people answered & sayde, God forbid that we shulde forsake the Lord & serue straūge Goddes. For the Lord oure God he it is ÿ brought vs & oure fathers out of the land of Egipt, the house of bondage, & which dyd those myracles in oure syght, and preserued vs in al the waye we went & amonge all the nacyons whych we came thorow. And the lord dyd cast out before vs al the nations with the Amorites which dwelt in the land, wherfore we wyl serue the Lorde for he is oure God.

E But Josua sayd vnto the people, ye cā not serue the Lord: for he is an holy god & cannot beare your transgressiō and synne But whē ye haue forsaken the Lord and haue serued straūge Goddes, he wyll turne and doo you euell & consume you, after that he hath done you good. And ÿ people answered Josua: naye, but we wyll serue the Lorde.

Thē Josua sayd vnto the folke, ye are wytnesses vnto your selues ÿ ye haue chosen you the Lord, to serue hym: & they said we are witnesses. Then putt awaye, sayde he the straūge Goddes which are among you, & bowe your hertes vnto the lord god of Israel. And the people āswered Josua the Lord our God we wil serue & his voyce

F we wyl obeye. And so Josua made a couenaūt wt the people the same day, & set ordinaūces & lawes before thē in Sichem.

And I sayde that I wolde neuer breake myne appoyntment wyth you, but ye shulde haue made no couenaunt with the enhabitours of this land ye shuld haue broken downe theyr alters: But ye haue not obeyed my voyce, why haue ye thys done? wherfore I haue lykewyse determyned that I wyl not caste the out before you: a but they shalbe in the sydes of you, and theyr Goddes shalbe snares vnto you. And when the angell of the b Lorde had spoken these wordes vnto all the chyldren of Israell, thee people cryed oute & wepte. And called the name of that sayde place, Bochim and offered ther vnto the Lorde.

And whē Josua had sent the people awaye, the chyldrē of Israel went euery mā into hys enheritaunce to possesse the land. And the people serued ÿ lord al the dayes of Josua, and al the dayes of the elders ÿ outlyued Josua, and had sene al the great workes of the Lord that he dyd to Israel. And Josua the sonne of Nun the seruaūt of thee Lorde dyed when he was an hundred and ten yeares olde: whom they buryed in the costes of hys enheritaunce: and in Thamnath hares in mounte Ephraim on the north syde of the hyll Gaas. And euen so all that generation were put vnto theyr fathers, and there arose another generation after them whych neyther knewe the Lord, nor yet the workes which he dyd vnto Israell.

And then the chyldrē of Israel dyd wickedly in the syght of the Lord, and serued Baalim, & forsoke the lord god of theyr fathers, which brought thē out of the lād of Egypte, & folowed straunge Goddes, eue of the Goddes of the nations that were rounde aboute them, and bowed themselues vnto them, and angred the Lorde. the sight of the Lord. And then the Lorde hardened Eglō the king of ẏ Moabites, agaynst the chyldrē of Israel, because they had cōmitted wickednesse before the lord.
And this Eglon gathered vnto him ẏ chil dren of Ammon and the Amalechites, and went and smote the childrē of Israel, and conquered the cytie of Palmetrees. And the chyldren of Israel serued Eglon theyr king of the Moabites .xviii. yeares. And then they cryed vnto the lord. And the lorde stered them vp a sauer, Ahud the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Jemini, a man that coulde do nothinge handsomlye wyth his ryght hande.

By whom the children of Israel sent a C present vnto Eglon the kinge of the Moabites whych Ahud made him a dagger wt two edges, of a cubite lengthe, and he dyd gyrde it vnder hys cote vppon hys ryghte thyghe and carryed the present vnto Eglō the kyng of the Moabytes, whych Eglō was a very fat man. And when he had presented the present, he sent the people that bare it awaye, but he hym selfe turned agayne frō the Idols by b Galgal, & sayd I haue a secret vnto the O king: and the king commaūded hym to holde his peace vntyl al that stode about hym, were gone out from hym.

And Ahud came in vnto him into a somer parler, which he had seueral vnto him selfe alone and sayd: I haue a c message vnto the frō God. And he arose out of his seate. And Ahud put forth hys lyfte hand and toke the dagger frō hys right thyghe and thrust it into hys belye, so that ŷ hafte went in after the blade. And the haft stopped in the fatte, for he drue not the dagger out of hys belye. And the dyrt came oute.
But Ahud gat him out at a posterne dore D and shutte the dores of thee parler vppon hym and locked them.

When he was gone out, his seruauntes came and loked. And behold, the dores of the parler were locked. And they sayde, A, he is a doynge of hys easement in his somer chamber. And when they had taryed tyl they were ashamed, for no man dydde the dores of the parler open: thē they toke a keye & opened them. And beholde their Lorde was fallen downe dead vnto thee earth. But Ahud eshaped whyle they taryed and was gone beyonde the Idolles & eshaped into Seirath.

And whē he was come he blew a trompet in mount Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israel went downe wyth him of ŷ hyll & he before thē. And he sayde vnto thē, folowe me: for the Lord hath delivered your enemies, the Moabites into your handes And they descēded after him and toke the Ephraim passages of Jordan frō the Moabites, and suffred not a man to passe ouer. And they slew of the Moabites, the same tyme vpon a ten thousand men, al fatt, and men of might: that ther shaped not a man, and so the Moabites were subdued that daye vnder the handes of Israell: and the land had rest .lxxx. yeares.

And after him came Samgar the sonne of Anath, which slew of the Philis. sixe .vi. hundred men wyth an oxe gode, & delyuered Israel also.

And Debora a Prophetisse, ŷ wyfe of Lapidoth iudged Israel the same tyme, & dwelt vnder the paulmetre of Debora, betwene Ramath and Bethel, in mount Ephraim.

And the chyldren of Israel came to her for iudgemēt. And she sent & called Barak the sonne of Abinoam, oute of Kedes Nephthalim, and sayd vnto hym.

The Lord god of Israel cōmaunded the, that thou go & drawe to mount Thabor, and take wyth the, x. thousande men of the chyldren of Nephthalim and of the chyldren of Zabulon. And I wyll brynge vnto the ryuer Kyson Sisara, the Captayne of warre vnto Jabin, wyth hys charettes, and his people, and wyll delyuer them them into thyne handes. And Barak sayd B vnto her, yf thou wylt go with me, I will go: But and yf thou wilt not go with me, then I will not goo. And she answered, I wyll surelye go wyth the, but the the pray se shall not be thyne, in the waye whyche thou goest, for ẏ Lord shall deliuer Sisa ra into the handes of a womā. And she arose and wente with Barak to Kedes. And Barak called Zabulō and Nephthalim to Kedes. And he wente vp a foote withe ten thousande men: and Debora wente wythe hym.

But Haber ẏ Kenite was remoued out Hobab of Kin, whych was of the childrē of * Ho-hab the father in lawe of Moses, and pyt ched his tēt vntill he was come to ẏ Oke of Zaanaim, by Kedes.

And then it was shewed vnto Sisara how ẏ Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mounte Thabor. And Sisara called for all hys charettes, euen .ix. hundred charettes of yron, and for all the peo ple that he had, from Haroseth of the gen tyles vnto the ryuer of Kison. Thē sayde Debora vnto Barak: vp, for thys is the daye in whych the Lorde hathe delyuered C Sisara in to thyne handes: for the Lord is gone oute before the. And so Barak wente downe from mounte Thabor, and ten thousande men after hym.

But the Lorde trounsed Sisara and al hys charettes and al hys host wyth the edge of ẏ swerde, before Barak. And Si sara lighted doune of hys charett & fled a fote. But Barak folowed after ẏ charettes & after the host, euen vnto Harosethe of the gentiles. And al the host of Sisara fel vpon the edge of the swerde, that there was not a man lefte. Howe be it Sisara fled a fote to the tent of Jaell the wyfe of Haber the Kenite: for their was peace betwene Jabin the kyng of Hasor, & the hou sholde of Haber the Kenite.

And Jael went out agaynst Sisara & sayde vnto hym: turne in my Lord, turne into me: & feare not. And he turned into her into her tēt: & she couered him wyth a mātel. And he said vnto her, geue me a lit tel water to drincke, for I am thirsty. And D she opened a bottel of mylke & gaue hym drincke and couered hym. And he sayde vnto her, stand in the dore of thy tent, & yf any mā come & aske the, or enquere of the whether there be any man here, saye naie.

Then Jael Habers wyfe toke a nayle of the tent, & an hamer in her hand & went softly vnto him, & smote ẏ nayle thorowe ẏ tēples of his head in to the groūd, as he slombered beyng wery: And so he dyed.

And beholde as Barak folowed after Sisara, Jael came oute against him, and sayde vnto him: come and I will shew the the mā whom thou sekest. And when he came into her tent: Beholde, Sisara laye dead & the nayle thorowe his tēples. And so God brought Jabin the kyng of Ca-naā into subiectyon that daye, before the chyldren of Israel. And the hande of the chyldren of Israel prospered & was sore vpon Jabin the kyng of Canaan, vntyll they had brought hym to naught.

¶ The song and thanckes geuing of Debora and Barack after the vyctory.

The .v. Chapter.

Then Debora & Barack ẏ sōne A of Abinoam, sange the same daye saying * & Praise ẏ lorde in them that were wyllyn ge whyle other sate styl in Is raell. Heare kynges and herken Lordes, I wyll synge, and geue prayse vnto the Lorde God of Israell.

Lord whē thou departedest out of Seir & camest frō the feldes of Edom the erth trembled, & the heuen rayned, & ẏ cloudes dropped water: the mountaynes mealted before the Lord, euē mount Sinai before the Lorde God of Israel.

In the dayes of Samgar the sonne of Anath and in the dayes of Jaell, th hye wayes were vnoccupied. And * they that walked by pathes, went by waies that fet cōpasses about. The vyllages were vnen habyted in Israell, were venenhabyted: vntyll I Debora arose vntyll I arose a mother in Israell.

God chose new facyons of warre, for B when they had warre at their gates: there was not sene among fourtye thousande, ether shilde or spere in Israell. Myne hert loueth the maynteners of the lawe in Israell, that are wyllyng among the people.
Blesse the Lord ye that ryde on goodly As ses and syte in iudgemente. And ye that walcke by the wayes make dyttyes.

How ỷ archers dyd crye, whē mē drawe water, ther shal they tel of the iustice of the Lord, & of the ✠ iustice of hys uplandyshe folcke in Israel. And thē the people of the Lord went downe unto the gates.

✠ Iustice for goodnes, as in the Psal. xxi. &.

Up up Debora, up up & synge a songe, up Barak, & take thy pray, thou sonne of Abinoam. Thē they ỷ had escaped, raygned ouer the proudeste of the people. The Lord raygneth ouer the strong.

Ephraim was ỷ fyrst agaynst Amalek, And after thē Bē Jamin, amōg ỷ people.

Of Machir came lerned mē in ỷ lawe, & of Zabulon that wel could drawe wyth the penne of a scribe.

The Lordes of Isakar were with Debora. And as Barak, euen so was Isakar sent into the valeye a fote. But in the [b] deuysyons of Ruben, were great ymaginacyons of herte.

C Wherfore abodest thou amōg the shepe foldes, to heare the bleatinges of the flockes. In the deuisyōs of Rubē great were the ymagynaciōs of herte. Galaad abode on the other syde Jordan, and why taryed Dan in shyppes. And Aser sate in the hauens of the see, & abode styll in hys owne costes. But Zabulon is a people that put theyr lyues in ieoperdye of death, & Nephthalim in lyke maner, euen unto the toppe of the feldes. [c] Kynges came & foughte. Then foughte thee Kynge of Canaan at Thanah, uppon thee water of Magedo. But the syluer that they coueted, they caryed not awaye.

From heauē came batteil: for the sterres being in their course, fought agaynst Sisara. The ryuer of Kison caughte them awaye: that auncient ryuer the ryuer Kison.

My soule: treade thou ỷ myghtie under fote. Thē they mashed the horses legges, ỷ theyr myghtie coursers lefte praunsing.

D Curse Meros sayd ỷ angel of the Lorde Curse, Curse ỷ enhabitours therof because they came not forth to helpe the Lord, to helpe the Lord among the myghtie.

Blessed be Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenyte, aboue other women: aboue other women blessed be she in the tente.

He asked water, & she gaue him mylke & brought butter in a goodly dyshe. She caught a nayle in her left hand and a workmans hamer in her right, & smyte Sisara and wounded his head and pearced & smot thorow his tēples. Betwene her fete he bowed him self, fel downe & laye styl: Betwene her fete he bowed hym self and fel. And whether he bowed him selfe, thyther he fel brought to nought.

Thorow a windowe loked Sisaras mother & howled thorowe a lattesse, why abydeth his charet so longe, that it cometh not why tarye ỷ wheles of his waggās. The wysest of her ladies āswered her: yea & she answered her owne wordes her self, haply they haue found, and deuyde the spoyle: a mayde, yea two maydes for a pece: a spoyle of diuerse colours for Sisara, a spoyle of dyuerse coloures wyth brodered workes, diuerse coloured brodered workes for the necke for a praye. So perishe al thine enemies Lorde: but they that loue the, let them be as the sunne ryseth in hys myghte.

And the land had rest fourtie yeres.

The Notes.

a [illegible] Some reade because he hath auenged the [illegible] geaunce done to Israel, the people offring them selues wyllingly, prayse ye the Lorde.

a [illegible] The meaning is, ỷ Sisara had done so great iniuries unto the Israelites, ỷ the wayes were not [illegible] that nether husbandmā nor [illegible] might safely passe to [illegible] marchaundyse or other [illegible], nor wayfaring men [illegible], nor [illegible] the feldes. Whosoeuer dyd once peype out of hys Cytie towne or vyllage, was straightway snatched up of the theues that belonged to Sisara.

b [illegible] The pryde of thee Rubenites is here noted, because they refused to go wyth Debora to [illegible] the oppressours of Israel.

c [illegible] By these wordes signifieth Debora that the Kynges hostes of the Cananites came to Thanach and Magedo thinking verely, because of the multitude of the hoste, that they came not to fyght: but to take a praye, but they were sore deceaued, for it so chaunced that they were rather a praye to Israel, than Israel to them.

¶ Israel is oppressed of the Madianites, because he returned agayn into Idolatrye. Gedeon is sente of God to be theyr delyuerer. The aulter of Baal is ouerthrowen.

The .vi. Chapter.

And the chyldre of Israell cōmytted wickednes in ỷ sighte 3 of the Lord. And the Lord delyuered thē into the hādes of the Madianites .vii. yeares. And whē the hād of the Madianites was sore upō Israel, ỷ chyldrē of Israel made thē dēnes in ỷ mountaynes & caues & strōg holdes. For whē Israell had sowē thē came ỷ Madianites ỷ Amalechites & thei of the East coūtry upō thē & pitched their tētes agaynst thē & destroyed ỷ encrease of the erth euē unto Azah, & left no sustinaūce came with theyr catel & housholdes eue as greshoppers in multitude: so yt both thei & also their camels were wtoute nōbre. And they entrede the land to destroy it. And so was Israel exceedingly impouereshed by ye B Madianites & cryed vnto the Lorde. And whē the chyldrē of Israel cryed vnto ye lor de because of ye Madianites, the lord sent a prophet vnto thē, & said vnto thē: Thus sayth the Lord God of Israel: I fett you frō Egipt & brought you out of the house of bōdage & I ridde you out of the hād of ye Egiptiās & out of ye hādes of al yt oppres sed you, & caste thē out before you, & gaue you theyr lādes. And I sayd vnto you, I am ye lorde your God, & therfore feare not the goddes of the Amorites in whose lāde you dwell. But you haue not obeyed my voyce. And the angel of the Lorde came & sate vnder an Oke in Ephrath, yt pertay-

But then the Lord sayd vnto him: I will

And he sayd I wyll tarye vntyll thou dye a kyd, and swete cakes of an Epha of flowre, & put the fleshe in a basket and the broth in a pot, & brought it out vnto hym vnder the Oke & presented it. And the angel of God sayd vnto hym: take the fleshe & the swete kakes & put thē vpō this rock & powre out the broth. And he did so. Thē the angel of the lord put forth the ende of the staffe that was in hys hand & touched the fleshe & the kakes. And there arose vp fyre out of the rocke & consumed the fleshe and the kakes, And the angel of the Lord vanished out of his sight. And whē Gede on perceaued yt it was an Angel, he sayde: Alas my Lord Jehouah, that I haue sene E an angel of the Lord face to face. And the Lord sayd vnto hym, peace be wyth the & feare not, for thou shalt not dye. Thē Gedeon made an altare ther vnto the Lord & called it * Jehouah Salom, whyche vnto That is, ye lord, of pea ce. thys daye is yet in Ephrath yt perteyneth night the Lord said vnto him, take an oxe of thy fathers & another of .vii. yeres old, & destroy the altare of Baal that belōgeth vnto thy father, & cutt downe the groue yt is about it, & make an altare vnto the lord thy god vpō the toppe of this rocke & fur nesshe it. And take the second oxe and offer burntsacrifyce wyth the wood of the gro-

Gedeon toke ten men of his seruauntes & dyd as the Lord bad him. But because he durst not do it by daye for feare of hys fa thers housholde & of the men of the cytye, he dyd it by nyght.

When the mē of the cytie were vp early in the mornyng: Behold the aultar of Ba- F it cut downe. And the secōd oxe offred vpō the altare that was made. And they sayde one to another, who hath done this thinge, & they enquered & asked. And it was tolde thē that Gedeō the sōne of Joas had done it. Thē the men of the cytie sayd vnto Jo-as, bring oute thy sonne yt he may dye, because he hath brokē the aulter of Baall, & cut downe the groue yt was about it. And Joas sayd vnto al yt stode by hym, wyl ye fyght for Baal, or wil ye be his defēders: he yt striueth for him shal dye this mornin ge. Yf he be a God let him striue with him that cast downe his aultare. And he called Gedeon Jerobaal the same tyme sayinge: let Baal stryue wyth him because he hath broken downe hys aultare.

Whē al the Madianites, the Amalek- G

And Gedeon sayd vnto God: yf thou the threshing place. And yf the dewe be on the flece only, & drye vpõ al the erth besyde thẽ I shal be sure that thou wylt saue Israel by my hand as thou saydeste. And it came so to passe. And he rose vp earlye on the morowe and he thrust the flece to geather and wrong the dewe therout & fylled a boole of water. And Gedeon sayde vnto Gedeon, the people yt are wyth the ar to many for me to geue ye Madianites into Lord sayd vnto Gedeon, wyth the. iii. hun dred men that lapped wyl I saue you, and delyuer the Madianites into thyne hand, And al the other people shal go euery man vnto hys owne whome.

And they toke vitayles with thẽ for the folke, & their trõpettes. And he sent al the C rest of Israel, euery mã vnto his tent, and kepte the thre hundred with hym. And the hoste of Madiã was beneth hym in a valeye. And the same nyght the Lorde sayde vnto hym, vp & go downe vnto the hoste, for I haue delyuered it into thyne hande.
But & yf thou feare to go downe, then go thou downe vnto the hoste, & Pharah thy ladde, & herke what they saye, & so shal thy ne handes be strong, & then thou shalt go downe vnto the hoste.

Thẽ he wẽt downe wt Pharah his lad, euẽ hard vnto the men of armes that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the A-malekites, & al they of the East, lay a long in ye valeye lyke vnto greshoppers in mul titude, & theyr camelles were without nõbre, euẽ as the sand by the see syde in multitude. And when Gedeon was come: Be-holde, there was a man that told a dreame vnto hys felowe & sayd: Behold I dream ed a dreame & me thoughte that a broyled D loosse of barleybread tõbled into the hoste of Madian, & came vnto a tent & smote it that it fel, & ouerturned it, that the tent lay a longe. And his felowe answered & sayde: this is nothing els saue the swerd of Gedeon the sonne of Joas a man of Israel, into whose hand the Lord hath delyuered Madian & all the hoste.

Whẽ Gedeon hearde the tellĩg of the dreame & the interpretation of the same, he bowed him selfe to the earth and returned vnto vnto the hoste of Israel, and sayd: vp for E the Lord hath delyuered into your hädes the host of the Madianites. And he deuy= ded the thre hundred mē into thre compa= nies and gaue euery mā a trōpet into hys hand, wᵗ an emptie pitcher & lampes ther= in, and sayde vnto them loke on me & do likewyse: and behold, when I come to the syde of the host, euen as I do, so do you.

And when I blow with a trompet and al that are with me, blowe ye wᵗ trompettes also on euery syde the hoste and saye, here be the Lorde and Gedeon.

And so Gedeon & the thre hundred mē ẏ were with him, came vnto the side of the host in the begynning of ẏ middel watch, and reysed vp the watche men. And they F blew with their trōpettes & brake the pyt= panyes blewe with trompettes & brake ẏ pitchers, & helde ẏ lāpes in their lefte hā= des, & ẏ trompettes in their right, to blow with all. And they cryed the swerde of the Lord & of Gedeō. And they stode stille, e= uery mā in his place round about ẏ host.

And al the hoste ranne & cryed and fled.
And as the thre hundreth blew with trō= pettes, ẏ lord sett euery mānes swerd vp= on his neyghboure, thorow out all ẏ host.
And ẏ host fled vntil they came to Beth= sitah, to Zererath, & to the edge of Abel= meholah beside Thabath. And the men of G Israel gathered together of the tribe of Nephthalim, of Aser, & of al Manasses, & folowed after the Madianites. For Gede on had sēt messēgers thorow out al mount Ephraim sayinge: come downe agaynst the Madianites and take from thē ẏ wa= ters both of Bethbarath and also of Jor= dan. Then all the men of Ephraim gea= thered together and came downe & toke the waters both of Bethbarath and also of Jordan. And they toke two captaynes of the Madianites, Oreb & Zeb, & slew Oreb vpon the rocke Oreb, and Zeb at the presse Zeb and folowed after Madi= an. And brought the heades of Oreb and Zeb to Gedeon on the otherside Jordan.

¶ Ephraim maketh insurrection agaynst Gedeon, but is sone pacifyed. The inhabiters of Socoth refuse to geue Gedeon & his armie breed. The towre of Phanuel is destroyed. Gedeon is chosen ruler ouer the Israelites. He hath lxx. sonnes. He dyeth.

The .viii. Chapter.

And the mē of Ephraim sayd A vnto him. Why hast thou ser ued vs thus, ẏ thou calledst vs not, when thou wentest to fight wᵗ ẏ Madianites. And they chode with him a good. And he sayd vnto them: What deade haue I done like vnto yours: are not ẏ clusters of Ephra= im better then the whole heruest of Abie= zer? God hath deliuered into your handes the Lordes of Madian, Oreb and Zeb.
And what was I able to do lyke as you haue done. And then their spirites abated frō of him, whē he had sayd that. And thē Gedeō came to Jordā & passed ouer, both he and the thre hundred men that were wᵗ him very faynte & yet folowed the chase.
And he said vnto the mē of Socoth: geue I pray you kakes of breed vnto ẏ people B ẏ folow me: for they be fainty, that I may folowe after Zebah and Zalmona kin= ges of Madian. And the Lordes of So= coth saide: are the handes of Zebah and Zalmona nowe in thyne handes that we shuld gyue breed vnto thy company. And Gedeon sayde, therfore when the Lorde hath delyuered Zebah & Zalmona into myne hande, I wyll teare the flesh of you with the thornes of the wildernes & wyth breers. And he went thence to Phanuel, & spake vnto them lykewyse. And the men C of Phanuel answered him, as dyd the mē of Socoth. And he sayd also vnto the mē of Phanuel, when I come againe in pea= ce, I wil breake downe this towre. Zebah & Zalmona were in Karkor & their hostes with thē, vpō a .xv. thousand, which were al that were lefte of all the hostes of them of the Easte. And they that were slayne were a hundred and twentie thousand mē that drewe swerdes.

And Gedeon went thorow them ẏ dwelt in tabernacles on the eastside of Nobah & Jegbahah, & smote the host: for the host did cast no perelles. Zebah & Zalmona fled But he folowed after them, & toke ẏ two kynges of thee Madianites, Zebah and Zalma and discomforted all the hooste.

And Gedeon the sonne of Joas retur= ned from battell, the sōne beyng yet vp, & D caught a ladd of the mē of Socoth, & en= quered of him. And he wrote him of the Lordes & Elders of Socoth .lxxvii. men.

Then he came unto the men of Socoth & sayd: Behold Zebah & Zalmona, wt why-che ye cast me in the teth saying: are the hā des of Zebah & Zalmona al ready in thy ne hande, that we shulde geue bread unto thy saynte men. And he toke the elders of the cytie, & thornes of the wyldernesse and breers, & al to teare them therwith. And he brake downe thee towre of Phanuell and slewe the men of the cytye.

And then sayd unto Zebah and Zal-E mona, what maner men were they whyche ye slew at Thabor: & they answered the ly kenesse of the & thē is all one, euē after the facyon of the chyldren of a kynge. And he sayd, they were my brethren, euen my mothers chyldren, & as truely as the Lord ly ueth, yf ye had saued theyr lyues, I wolde not sleye you. And he said unto Jether his eldest sonne, up & slee thē: But the lad drue not hys swerde, for he feared, because he was yet young. Then Zebah & zalmona sayd. Ryse thou & fall upō us, for as the mā is so is his strength. And Gedeō arose & slewe them: & he toke awaye the Chaynes that were on theyr camels neckes.

Thē ye men of Israel sayd unto Gedeō Raygne ouer us, bothe yu, thy sonne & thy sonnes sonne, for yu hast delyuered us out of ye hādes of ye Madianites. And Gedeō sayd unto thē, I wil not raygne ouer you nether shal my chyldren raygne ouer you, but the Lord shal raygne ouer you.

Neuertheleatter Gedeō said unto them I F wold desyre a certayne request of you, euē that you wold geue me euery mā the earin ges of his pray. For they had goldē earinges, because they were Ismaelites. And they sayd we wil doo it. And they spred a mātel & dyd cast ther into euery mā the ea ringes of his pray. And the weyght of the golden earinges was a thousand & .vii. C sycles of golde besyde brouches, ouches & garmentes of scarlette that were of thee kynges of Madian and besyde the chay nes, that were aboute theyr cameles nec-kes. And Gedeon made an Ephod thereof, and putt it in his cytie Ephrah. And al Israel wente a whoringe after him there, whych thynge was the ruine of Gedeons house. Thus were the Madianites brought lowe before the chyldren of Israel, so that they lyfte up theyr heades no moare, And the contreye was in quietnes fourty yeres in the dayes of Gedeon.

And Jerobaal the sonne of Joas wēt & G dwelt in his owne house. And Gedeō had lxx. sonnes of his body begottē, for he had many wyues. And his concubine yt dwelte in Sichē bare him a sonne also, whose na me he called Abimelech. And Gedeon thee sōne of Joas dyed, whē he was of a good age, & was buried in ye burial of Joas his father, euē in Ephrath that pertayned un to the father of the Ezrites.

But as sone as Gedeon was dead, the chyldren of Israel turned away and wēte a whoring after Baall, & made Baall be-ryth their god, & thought not on the Lord theyr God whych had delyuered them out of the handes of al theyr enemies on euery syde. Neyther shewed they mercye on the house of Jerobaall, otherwyse called Gedeon, accordinge to all the goodnesse whiche he shewed them.

The Notes.

a I In the clusters he signifieth the takyng of the two chefe captaynes Oreb and Zeb, which slayn the Ephraimites dyd as ye se in thee ende of the Chapter goynge before. In the wyne harueste the slaughter of the other common sorte of souldiers whō he with hys companye slue. By Abiezer understande the stocke of Abiezer, of whom Gedeon came.

Abimelech is ordeyned a kyng after he had kylled hys .lxx. brethren. He hym selfe was after kylled of a woman when he beseged Thebes. The parables of Joatham concernynge hys brother Abimelech.

The .ix. Chapter.

FOr Abimelech the sōne of Je vnto them: Herken vnto me you citezens of Sichem, y god may herken vnto you.

The trees went to anoynt a kynge ouer them, & sayd vnto the olyue tree, raigne ouer vs. But the olyue tree sayd vnto thẽ: shuld I leaue my fattenesse which bothe God & man prayseth in me, and go to be promoted ouer y trees. Thẽ said the trees to the figge tree, come y and be king ouer vs. And the figge tree answered thẽ, shuld I forsake my swetnes & my good frute, & shulde go to be promoted ouer the trees.
Then sayde the trees vnto the vine, come y & be king ouer vs. And y vine answese he is your brother, yf then ye haue dealt purelye and trulye wythe Jerobaal and with his house this daye: then reioyce ye in Abimelech, and lett hym also reioyse in you. But yf you haue not dealt truly, then I praye God a fyre maye come out of Abimelech & consume the cytezẽs of Sichẽ & the house of Mello. And y there come a fire out of the cytezens of Sichem, & out of the house of Mello & consume Abime-lech. And Joatham ranne away & fledde & went to Beer & dwelt there, for feare of Abimelech his brother. When Abimelech had raigned thre yere God sẽt an hate bet wene Abimelech & the cytezens of Sichẽ.

And the citezens of Sichem rayled vpon Abimelech, and wisshed that the wycked-nes done to the. lxx. sonnes of Jerobaall might come on him, & layd the bloude of thẽ vnto Abimelech their brother whyche slew thẽ, & vnto the other citezens of Si-chẽ which ayded him in the kylling of his brethrẽ. And y cytezens of Sichẽ set men to laye awayte for hym in the toppe of the mountaynes, whych men robbed all that came a longe the waye by them. And it was tolde Abymelech.

And Gaal the sonne of Abed & his bre threñ went & gat them to Sichem. And y D men of Sichẽ put their cõfidence in him.
And they went out into y feldes & gathe red in their grapes & troade them, & made mery: and wẽt into the house of their god, & dyd eate & drincke & cursed Abimelech.
And Gaal the sonne of Abed sayd: what is Abimelech? and what is Sichem? that we shulde serue hym, is he not the sõne of Jerobaal? and Zebul is his offycer? ser-ue soche as come of Hemor the father of Sichem, for what reasõ is it that we shul de serue him? wold God this people were vnder my hand, then I wolde take Abymelech out of the way. And one sayde vnto Abimelech, make thyne hoste greater & go out. And when Zebul y ruler of y cy-tie hard the wordes of Gaal y sõne of A-to Abimelech priuely saying: Behold Ga al y sõne of Abed & his brethrẽ be come to Sichẽ: & behold they set y cytie against y.

Now therfore vp by night, both y & al the people y is wt the, & lye in wayte in the fel des. And rise erly in the morning as sone as the sõne is vp & come vpõ y cytie. And whẽ he & y people y is wt him come out against y, do to hi what thine hãdes shalbe able. And Abimelech roase vp, & al y peo E ple y were wt him, by night. And they laid a wayt awayte to the cytie in foure cōpanyes. And Gaal the sonne of Abed wēt out & stode in the entring of the gate of the citie. And Abimelech rose vp & the folcke ỹ were wyth hym, frō laying awayte. And when Gaal sawe the people, he sayd to zebul: Beholde ther come people downe frō the top of the mountaynes. And zebul sayd vnto him, the shadowe of the hylles semis men vnto the.

And Gaal answered agayne and sayde: se ther come folcke downe by the myddle of ỹ land & another cōpany come a lōge by the charmars Ocke. Then sayde zebul vnto him: where is now thy mouth that sayde, what felowe is Abimelech, that we shul-de serue him. These are the people ỹ thou so despysedest. Go out now a felowshipe & fyght with the. And Gaal went out before ỹ cytyzens of Sichem, & foughte wt Abimelech. And Abimelech chased him ỹ he fledd before him & many were ouerthro wen and slayne, euen vntyl they came vnto the enterynge of the gate. And then Abimelech wēt & dwelt at Aruma. And then zebull thruste out Gaal & his brethrē and F wolde not suffre them to dwel in Sichem.
And on the morowe the people wēt oute in to the felde. And it was tolde Abimelech.
And he toke his people & deuided thē into thre cōpanies & lay awayte in the feldes.
And whē he sawe ỹ ỹ people were come out of ỹ citie he rāne vpō thē & layde vpō thē.

And Abimelech & the cōpanyes ỹ were wt him, ranne & stode in the entrynge of ỹ gate of the cytie. And ỹ two other companies rāne vpō al the people ỹ were in ỹ feldes and slue thē. And then Abimelech fought against ỹ citie al ỹ day, & toke it, & slewe the people that was therin, & destroy ed the cytie & a sowed salt in ỹ place. And when al ỹ mē of the towre of Sichē hear-de that, they entered into a strong hold of the house of their God Baal Berith. And whē it was tolde Abimelech, that all ỹ mē of the towre of Sichē were geathered together, he gat him to mount Selmon, both he & al that were wt him, & toke axes with him & cut downe an arme of a tree, & toke it vp, & put it on his shoulder, & said vnto ỹ folcke ỹ were with him, whatsoeuer ye se me do: spede your selues & do likewyse.
And all the people cut downe also euerye B man a bowghe, and folowed Abimelech, and put them into the holde, and sett the holde a fyre vpon them: so that all the mē of the towre of Sichem were slayne, vp-on a thousande personnes what of men & women to gether.

Then went Abimelech to Thebez and beseged it, & toke it. But there was a strōge towre in the myddes of the citye, and thither rānne al the men & women & al the cytezens of the citie & shut it to thē, & gott thē vp vpō thee top of ỹ towre. Thē came Abimelech vnto ỹ towre & fought against it, & went harde vnto the enterynge of the gate, to set it on fier. But a woman cast a pece of a mylstone vpon hys hedde and al to brake hys brayne panne.

Then Abimelech called hastelye vnto the young man that bare his harnes, and sayde vnto him: drawe thy swerd and slee me, that men saye not of me, a woman slewe hym. And his ladde thruste hym thorowe and he dyed.

And when the men of Israel saw that Abimelech was deed, they departed, euery man vnto hys awne house. And thus all the wyckednesse of Abimelech whyche he dyd vnto his father, in sleyng his .lxx. brethrē, and therto all the wyckednesse of the men of Sichem, God dyd brynge vpon their hedes: And vpō them came the curse of Joatham the sonne of Jerobaal.

And the children of Israel wrought

Goddes

Goddes of Siria, & the Goddes of Si-dõ the Goddes of Moab, the Goddes of the children of Ammon, & the Goddes of the Philistines, & forsoke the lord & serued him not. And the lord was wroth wt Isra el, and solde them in to thee handes of thee Philistines, & into the hãdes of the childrẽ of Ammõ: which vexed & oppressed ye chyldre of Israel in those dayes .xviii. yere, al ye were on the other side Jordã in ye lãd of ye Amorites in Galaad. Moreouer the chyldre of Ammon went ouer Jordã to fight against Juda, Bẽ Jamin, & the house of C Ephraim: so ye Israel was sore combred.
Thẽ ye children of Israel cryed vnto the Lord saying: we haue sinned agaynst the:
for we haue forsaken oure owne God, & haue serued Baalim. And ye lord sayd vn to ye childrẽ of Israel: did not ye Egypciãs, ye Amorites, ye chyldrẽ of Ammõ, ye Philistines, ye Sidonites, ye Amalechites, & the Maonites, oppresse you? And ye cryed to me, & I delyuered you out of their hãdes.
And for al that ye haue forsakẽ me, & ser-ue straung goddes, wherfore I will hel-D pe you no moare. But go & crye vnto the Goddes which ye haue chosẽ, & lett them saue you in the time of youre tribulacion.
But the chyldrẽ of Israel sayd vnto ye Lord we haue sinned: do yu vnto vs what soeuer please ye, & delyuer vs only at thys tyme. And they put awaye the straunge Goddes frõ thẽ, & serued the Lorde. And the mysery of Israel greued hys soule.
Then the chyldrẽ of Ammõ geathered togeather & pitched in Galaad. And the childrẽ of Israel geathered thẽ togeather & pitched in Maspha. And ye cõpanye of the lordes of Galaad sayde eche to other, whosoeuer wil beginne the battel against the childrẽ of Ammõ, the same shalbe hed ouer all the enhabiters of Galaad.

¶ Jephthah the sõne of a harlot delyuereth Israel frõ the Ammonites after they asked forgeuenes.

The .xi. Chapter.

A And ther was one Jephthah a Galaadite a stronge man, which was ye sõne of an harlot: How be it Galaad begat Jephthah. But Galaades wife bare hym sonnes, which when they were come to age, thruste oute of Jephthah, & said vnto him: thou shalt not enhe rite in oure fathers house, for thou art the sonne of a straung woman. Then Jephthah fledde frõ his brethrẽ and dwelt in ye lande of Tob. And there geathered Idle people to Jephthah, & wente out wt hym.
But it chaunced in processe of tyme, ye the chyldren of Ammon made warre against Israel, then the elders of Galaad went & fett Jephthah out of ye lãd of Tob, & said vnto him: come & be our captaine, & let vs fyght wt the childrẽ of Ammõ. And Jeph B thah sayd vnto ye elders of Galaad. Dyd not ye hate me & expelle me out of my fathers house? how happeneth it then ye you come vnto me nowe in tyme of youre try-bulaciõ? And the elders of Galaad answe red Jephthah. Therfore we turne agayne to the nowe, that thou go wt vs, & fight a-gaynst the chyldren of Ammon, & be oure heed ouer all the enhabiters of Galaad.
And Jephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad: If ye bryng me home againe, to fight wt the childrẽ of Ammõ, then yf the lord deliuer thẽ before me, I shalbe youre hed. And ye elders of galaad said to Jeph thah, the lord be witnes betwene vs yf we do not accordig to thy wordes. Thẽ Jeph thah wẽt wt ye elders of galaad. And ye peo ple made hi hed & ruler ouer thẽ. And Jeph thah rehersed al his wordes in Masphah.
Then Jephthah sent messengers vnto the king of the childrẽ of Ammõ, saying: what ayleth the wt me ye yu comest vpõ me to fight against my lãd? And the king of the children of Ammõ answered vnto the messengers of Jephthah, because Israel toke away my lãd, when they came out of Egipt: euen frõ Arnõ vnto Jabock, & frõ C thẽce vnto Jordan. Now therfore restore those lãdes againe wt faire meanes. And Jephthah sẽt messẽgers againe vnto the childrẽ of Ammõ, & sayde vnto him: thus saith Jephthah. Israel toke not awaye ye lãd of Moab, nor ye lãd of ye childrẽ of Am mõ. But whẽ Israel came out of Egipt, they walked thorow the wildernesse, euen vnto the redde see, and came to Cades, & sent messengers vnto the kyng of Edom sayig: let vs we pray ye go thorow thy lãd.
But the king of Edõ wold not agre ther to. And in like maner they sẽt vnto ye kig of Moab, but he wold not consẽt. And so Israel abode stil in Cades. And then they went a long thorow the wildernes, & com-passed passed the lãd of Edom, & the lãd of Moab, and came a long by the east syde of the lãd of Moab & pitched on y other syde of the ryuer of Arnon, & came not within the D coostes of the Moabites: for Arnon was their vtmost border. And then Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon kyng of the A-morites, and kyng of Hesbon, & sayd vn to hym: Lett vs passe thorowe thy lande vnto owre awne contreye. But Sehon trusted not Israel, to go thorowe hys costes: but gathered all hys people to geather & pitched in Jazah, & fought wt Isra el. But the Lord God of Israel delivered Sehon & all his folcke into the hãdes of Israel. And so Israel smote thẽ & conque red al the land of the Amorytes, the enhabiters of the said cõtrey. And they cõque-red al the coostes of the Amorites, frõ Ar-non vnto Jabok, & from the wyldernesse vnto Jordan. So now seing y lord God of Israel hath cast out y Amorites before his people shuldest thou possesse the lãde Naye, but what people Camos thy God dryueth out, that lande possesse thou. But whatsoeuer nacyons the Lord our god ex pelleth, that lande oughte we to enioye.

E And therto art thou better then Balack y sonne of Zephor kyng of Moab? dyd he stryue wyth Israell or fyght against thẽ? all the whyle Israel dwelt in Hesbon and her townes, & in Aroer & her townes, & in al the cities y be a lõg by y coostes of Ar-nõ.iii. hundred yeres? why dydest thou not recouer thẽ in al y space, wherfore I haue not synned agaynst the. But thou doeste me wronge to warre agaynst me. The lor de therfore be iudge this daye, betwene y children of Israel, and the chyldrẽ of Am mon. How be it the kyng of the childrẽ of Ammõ harkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah whych he sente hym.

Then the spryte of the Lord came vpõ Jephthah. And he passed ouer Galaad & Manasses, & came to Mazphah y lieth in Galaad & frõ thence vnto the children of F Ammõ. And Jephthah vowed a vow vn the lord & sayd: If thou shalt delyuer the childrẽ of Ammõ into my hãdes, the y thige that cometh out of the dores of my hou se against me, whẽ I come home in peace, from the chyldren of Ammon, shall be the Lordes, & I wil offer it vp a burntoffering.
ge. And so Jephthah went vnto the chyldren of Ammon to fyght wt thẽ. And the lord delivered thẽ into his hãdes. And he smote thẽ frõ Aroer vnto Menith, xx. cy-ties. And so forth to y plaine of the vyneyardes, made an exceding great slaughter. And thus the children of Ammõ were brought vnder, before y childrẽ of Israel

Then Jephthah came to Mazphah vn to his house. And se, his daughter came out against him, wt tymbrelles & daũses, which was his only childe: so y beside her G he had nether sonne nor daughter. And when he sawe her, he rent his clothes and said: Alas my daughter, y hast * made me stoupe & art one of them that trouble me.
For * I haue opened my mouth vnto the Lord, & cãnot go backe. And she sayd vn to him: my father, yf y haue opened thy mouth vnto the lord, then do wt me according to that procaded out of thy mouth, for as moch as the Lord hath auenged y of thyne enemies the chyldren of Ammõ.
And she sayde vnto her father, do this moch for me: lett me alone two monethes that I may go downe to the mountaines & bewaile my virginite with my felowes.
And he sayde: go, and so he sent her away two monethes. And she went with her cõ-panyõs & lamented her maydenheed vpõ y moũtaines. And after y two monethes she turned agayne vnto her father which dyd wt her accordyng to hys vowe which he had vowed, & so she knewe no mã. And it became an ordinaũce in Israell yere by yere, that the daughters of Israel shulde go & lamẽt the daughter of Jephthah the Galaadite, foure dayes in a yere.

The.xii. Chapter.

ANd the men of Ephraim gea-thered thẽ selues to gether, & I went northward, & sayde vn to Jephthah: Wherfore wen test y to fight wt y childrẽ of Ammõ, & dydest not call vs to go wt the?
we wil therfore burne thine house vpõ y, wt fire. And Jephthah said vnto them: I Moareouer the men of Galaad toke the passages of Jordan from the Ephraites.

And whē those Ephraites ÿ were escaped, sayd lett vs go ouer. Then the mē of Ga-what we shal do vnto the ladd, when he is borne. And God heard the voyce of Ma-noah, & ÿ angel of god came againe vnto ÿ wyfe as she satt in the feldes: But Ma noah her husband was not wt her. Then ÿ wife made hast & rāne & shewed her hus bād & sayd to him: Behold ÿ mā apeared vnto me ÿ came the other daye vnto me.

And Manoah arose and wēt after his wife and came to the man and saide vnto him: art thou the man that spakeste vnto C my wife? And he said, yea. Thē Manoah said, now whē thy saying is come to passe what shalbe the maner of the chylde, and what shal he do? And the Angel of the lor de sayd vnto Manoah: the wife must ab staine frō al that I said vnto her: she may eate of nothyng that cometh of the vyne tree, nor drincke wyne or strong drincke, nor eate any vncleane thynge: But muste obserue al that I bad her. Then said Ma noah vnto the Angel of ÿ lord, graūt vs to tary vntyl we haue made redy a kidd & haue set it before ÿ. And ÿ angel of ÿ lord saide vnto Manoah: though ÿ make me abyde abyde, I wyll not eate of thy meate. And moreouer yf thou wylt prepare a burntof fering, that thou must offer vnto the lord For Manoah wist not that it was an angel of the lord. And Manoah sayd vnto ŷ angel of ŷ Lord: what is thy name, ŷ whē thy saying is come to passe, we may do the some worship? And the angel of the Lord sayd vnto hym: why askest thou after my name? when it is maruelouse.

D And Manoah toke a kyd with a meat offring, & offered it vpon a rocke vnto the Lord. And the angel did wonderslye, Ma noah & his wyfe loking vpō. For whē the flame came vp out of the altare, the angel of the Lord ascended vp in the flame of the aulter. And Manoah & his wife loked vp on & fel flat on theyr faces vnto the grounde But ŷ angel of ŷ lord dyd no more apeare vnto Manoah & his wyfe. And thē Ma-noah knew that it was an angel of ŷ lord & sayd vnto his wyfe: we shall surely dye, because we haue sene God. But his wyfe sayd vnto hym: Yf the Lord wold kyl vs he wold not haue receaued a burntoffring and a meatoffring of our handes, neyther wold he haue shewed vs all these thinges nor wold haue tolde vs as he hath of thin ges to come. And the wyfe bare a sonne, & called hys name Samson. And the ladde grewe, and the Lorde blessed hym. And the spyrite of the Lorde beganne fyrste to be wyth the house of Dan, betwene Zara ah and Esthaol.

The mariage of Samson. He kylleth a Lyon. He propoundeth a rydle, & he kylleth .xxx. men. Hys wyfe forsaketh him & taketh another.

The.xiiii. Chapter.

A Samson wēt downe to Tham nath & sawe a womā in Thā nath of the daughters of the Philistines, & came vp & tolde his father & hys mother, & sayd: I haue sene a womā in Thānath of the daughters of ŷ Philistines. And now geue her me to wyfe. Thē his father & mo ther sayd vnto him, is ther neuer a womā of the daughters of thy brethrē, amōg all my people: but that thou must go & fett a wyfe of thee vncircumcysed Philistines?
And Samson sayd vnto hys father, geue me thys woman for she pleaseth me well.
But his father & mother wyste not that it was the Lordes doyng, & that he sought an occasyō of ŷ Philistines, whych at that tyme raygned ouer Israell.
Thē went Samson & hys father and his mother downe to Thānath. And whē B they came to the vyneyardes of Thānath behold a young Lion rored vpō him. And the spirite of the Lord came vpō him. And he tare him, as a man wold rent a kydde, & yet had nothing in his hande. Neuerthe later he told not his father & mother what he had done. And he went downe & talked with the womā, which semed wel fauored in the syght of Samson.
And wythin a shorte space after, as he went thyther agayne to take her to wyfe, he turned out of the waye, to se the carkes-se of the Lyon. And beholde ther was a swarme of bees in the carkasse of the lyon and honye. And he toke of the hony in hys handes and went eating, and came to hys father and mother & gaue them also. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken the honye out of the carkesse of the Lyon.
And whē his father was come vnto the C womā, Samson made ther a feast, for so vsed the younge men to do. And whē her frendes sawe him, they brought .xxx. cōpa nyons to beare felowshyp. And Samson sayd vnto them: I wyl put forth a rydle vnto you. And yf you cā declare it within vii. dayes of the feast & fynd it out, I wyl geue you thyrtye shertes & thyrtye chaunge of garmentes: But & yf you cannot decla re it me, then shal ye geue me thyrtye sher-tes & thyrtye chaunge of garmentes. And they answered hym, putt forth thy rydle & let vs heare it. And he sayd vnto thē. Out of the eater came meat: and out of the strō ge came swetenesse. And they could not in thre dayes expounde the rydle. And when the seuenth daye was come, they sayd vnto Samsons wyfe. Flatter with thyne hus- D band, that he maye declare vs thy rydle, or elles we wyl burne the & thy fathers house with fyre, haue ye called vs to make vs beggers or not? Thē Samsons wyfe wept vnto hym and sayde: it cannot be but that thou hatest me and louest me not: for thou haste putte forth a rydle vnto the chyldrē of my folke and wylte not tell me what it meaneth. And he sayde: Beholde, I haue not tolde it my father, nor my mother, and shulde I tell it the?

And she wepte vnto hym. vii. dayes, while the feast lasted. And the seuenth day he tolde her, because she laye so sore vpon him. And she told it ẏ children of her folke. And ẏ men of the citie said vnto him ẏ seuenth daye before the sonne wente downe, What is swetter then honye, and what is stronger then a Lion. Then sayd he vnto them: If ye had not * plowed with my caulfe, ye had not found out my ridle. Then ẏ spirite of the Lorde came vpon him. And he went downe to Askalon, & slewe thyrtie men of them, and spoiled them, and gaue their garmentes vnto them whyche expounde the rydle. And he was wrothe and wente vp to his fathers house. But Samsons wyfe was geuen to one of hys companyons that bare hym companye.

¶ Samson tieth fyre brandes to Fox tayles & letteth them runne in to the corne and burne it, to be auenged of them ẏ toke his wife from him. With the Jaw bone of an Asse he kylleth a thousand men. & vse of a great toth in the Jawe god geueth him water, to satysfye hys thyrst.

The .xv. Chapter.

A But it chaunced within a whyle after, euen in ẏ time of whete heruest, ẏ Samson vysyted his wyfe wyth a kydde. And when he supposed to haue gone in vnto hys wife into the chamber, her father wolde not suffre hym to go in: But sayd: I thought that thou haddest hated her, & therfore gaue I her vnto one of thy companions. How be it, her younger sister is fayrer then she. Take her in steade of the other. Then sayd Samson vnto them: Now I am blamelesse concerning the Philistines, though I do them euell.

And Samson went out & caught thre hundred Foxes, and toke fyre brandes, & fastened tayle to tayle, and put a fyrebrande in ẏ myddes betwene two tayles. And he sett ẏ fyre brandes on fyre, & put them into the corne of ẏ Philistines, and burnt vp bothe the reped corne and also the standynge, with vyne & olyues. Then the Philistines asked, who had done that? And it
B was tolde them that Samson ẏ sonne in law of the Thamnite, because he had taken his wife and geuen her to one of his companyons. And the Philistines came and burnt her and her father with fyre.

And Samson sayd vnto them: shuld ye do so? I wyl surely be auenged of you, and then I wyll cease. And he smote them * legge and thyghe with a myghtye plage. And then he went and dwelte in the caue of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philistines came vp & pytched against Juda & laye in Lehi. And ẏ men of Juda sayde, why are ye come against vs? And they answered to bind Samson are we come, euen to do him as he hath done to vs. Then thre thousande men of Juda went downe to the caue of ẏ rocke Etam, and sayde to Samson: wottest ẏ not that the Philistynes are rulers ouer vs? Wherfore then haste thou serued vs thus? And he answered them, as they serued me, so haue I serued them. C

And they sayde vnto him, we are come to bynde the & to delyuer the into ẏ handes of the Philistines. And Samson said vnto them: swere vnto me, ẏ ye shall not hurte me your selues. And they sayde we wyll not hurte the, saue only bynd the & deliuer the vnto their handes: But we wil not kil the. And so they bounde him with two new cordes and brought him vp from the rocke. And when he came to Lehi, the Philistines showted agaynste hym. And the spirite of the Lorde came vpon hym, and the cordes ẏ were vpon hys armes became as flaxe that was burnt with fire, and the bandes loused from his handes. And he founde a Jaw bone of a rotten Asse, and put forthe hys hande and caught it, and slue a thousande men therwith.

And Samson sayd: with the Jawe of an asse, haue I made heapes: wyth the Jaw of an asse haue I slayne a thousand men. D
And when he had left speakyng, he cast away ẏ Jawe out of his hand & called the place * Ramath Lehi. And he was sore a thirst, & called on ẏ Lord & sayde. Thou Lorde hast geuen this great victory, thorowe the hand of thy seruaunt. And now I must dye for thyrst & falle into the handes of the vncircumcysed. But god brake a great toth ẏ was in the Jawe, and there came water therout. And when he had dronke his spirite came agayne, & he was refresshed, wherfore the name therof was called, * the well of the caller on, whyche is in Lehi vnto this day. And he iudged Israel in ẏ daies of the Philistines twentye yeres.

¶ Samson lyfteth vp the Gates of Gaza & carieth them vp into the mountayne. He was deceaued by Dalilah & made blynde. He pulleth downe the house vpon the Philistines and dyeth with them.

The. xvi. Chapter.

A Then went Samsō to Gaza, and saw there an whore, and went in vnto her. And it was tolde ŷ Gasites, that Samson was come thither. And they wēt about and layde awaite for him all nyght in the gate of the cytie, but were styl al the night saying: Tarye tyl ŷ mornyng that it be daye, & then let vs kyl him And Samson toke hys reste tylle myd-nyghte, and rose at mydnyghte and toke the dores of the gate of the cytie, and the two syde postes, and rente them of, barres and al, and put them vpon his shoulders, and caried them vp to the toppe of an hyl that lyeth before Hebron.
And after that he loued a woman, vpō the ryuer of Sorek, called Dalilah, vnto whom came the Lordes of ŷ Philistines, and sayde vnto her: Flatter with him & se wherin hys great strength lyethe, and by what meane we maye haue power ouer B him, that we may bynde him, to bring him vnder, and we wyll geue euerye man a le-uen hundred syluerlynges.
And Dalilah sayde to Samson. Oh, tel me where thy great strength lyeth, and yf thou were boūde wherwith men might constrayne the. And Samson sayde vnto her. If men boūd me with. vii. grene with thes ŷ were neuer dried, I shuld be weake and as another man. And then the lordes of the Philistines brought her. vii. with-thes ŷ were yet grene & neuer dryed & she bound him therwith. Notwithstandynge she had men lying in waite withe her in ŷ chambre. And she sayde vnto hym, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he brake the cordes as a strynge of towe brakethe, when it feleth fire. And so his strength was not knowen.
C Then saide Dalilah to Samson: Se thou haste mocked me and tolde me lyes.
Now yet tel me I pray ŷ, wherwith thou myghtest be bounde. And he sayde: If I were bound with new ropes ŷ neuer were occupyed, then shulde I be weake, & as another mā. And Dalilah toke new ropes & bounde him therwith, & sayd vnto him, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyers of wayte in the chamber, and he brake them from of his armes, as they had bene but a threde. And Dalilah sayd vnto Samson, hitherto thou hast be gyled me & tolde me lyes: I praye the yet tell me wherwith me may bynde ŷ. And he sayd vnto her. If thou plattedest the seuē lockes of my heed wythe an hearte lace & fastnedest them wythe a nayle. And she sayde vnto hym, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awaked out of hys slepe, & plucked & went away wt the nayle that was in the plattinge & wyth ŷ hearte lace. Then she sayde vnto him: How canst D thou say ŷ thou louest me, when thine hert is not wt me: for ŷ haste mocked me this.
iii. tymes, & hast not told wherin thy great strength lyeth. And as she lay vpō him wt her wordes cōtinually vexyng of him, his soule was encombred euē vnto the death.
And he tolde her al his hert, and sayd vnto her: there neuer came raser nor sheres vpō mine heed, for I haue bene an abstai ner to God euen frō my mothers wombe: If myne hearte were cut of, my strengthe wold go frō me, & I shuld waxe & be lyke al other men. And when Dalilah saw ŷ he had tolde her all hys hert, she sente for the Philistines saying, come vp yet this once, for he hath shewed me all his herte.
Then the Lordes of the Philistines E came and brought the money in their hādes. And she made him slepe vpō her lapp and sent for a man, and cut of the seuē loc kes of hys heed & beganne to vexe hym.
But his strength was gone frō him. And she saide the Philistines be vpō ŷ Samson. And he awoke oute of his slepe and thought to go oute as at other tymes before & shake him selfe, & wist not that the lord was departed from him. But ŷ Phi listines toke him and put out his eyes, & brought hym doune to Gaza, and bounde hym wyth fetters. And he was made to grinde in the preson house, howe be it the F heare of his heed begāne to grow again after that he was shorne.
Then the lordes of ŷ Philistines gather ed thē to gather, for to offer a solempne offrig vnto Dagō their god, & to reioyce: for they sayde, oure God hathe delyuered Samson oure enemye into oure handes.

And

And when the people saw him, they praysed their God: for they sayd our god hath delyuered into our handes our enemye, ẏ destroyed oure contreye and slue many of vs. And whē their hertes were mery, they sayd: sende for Samson & lett him playe before vs. And they fett Samson out of ẏ presonhouse, & he played before them, & they set him betwene ẏ pillers. And Sāsō G said vnto the ladd that leed him by ẏ hād: sett me that I may touche the pillers that the house stande vpō, & that I may leane to them. And the house was full of men and wemen. And there was al ẏ lordes of the Philistines. And there were vpon the rouse a thre thousād mē & wemen, that be-helde how Samson played.

And Samson called vnto the Lord, & sayde: my Lorde Iehouah thynke vpon me, & strengthen me, at this tyme only O God, that I may be auēged of the Philistines for my two eyes. And Samson caught the two myddel pyllers on whych ẏ house stode and on whiche it was borne vp, the one in his ryght hande, & the other in his lefte, & sayde: my soule dye with the Philistines, and bowed thē with mighte.
And the house fel vpō the lordes and vp-on al the people ẏ were therin. And so the deed which he slew at his deeth, were moo then they which he slewe in hys lyfe. And then his brethren and all the house of his father came downe and toke hym vp, & broughte hym and buryed hym betwene Zarah and Esthaol, in the buryng place of Manoah his father. And he iudged Israel twentye yere.

¶ Of Micah whose mother made him an Idoll of siluer. Of the young preast of the lynage of Leui of Bethlehem.

The .xvii. Chapter.

There was a mā in mounte Ea phraim, named Micah why-che sayd vnto his mother: ẏ leuē hundred siluerlynges ẏ were takē frō ẏ, about which ẏ cursedst & saidest in mine eares: Beholde the syluer is with me for I toke it away.
Thē sayd his mother, blessed be thou my sōne, in ẏ lord. And so he restored the leuē hūdred siluerlinges to his mother agayne.
And hys mother sayde: I vowed the syluer vnto the Lorde of myne hand for my sōne: to make a grauē ymage & an ymage of metall. Nowe therfore I geue it the a- B gaine. And he restored the moneye agayne vnto his mother. Then his mother toke two hūdred siluerliges & put thē to a gold smyth, to make therof a grauē ymage & a ymage of metal, which remained in ẏ hou se of Micah. And ẏ mā Micah had a cha pel of gods & made an Ephod & ymages, & filled the hād of one of his sōnes whych became his preast. For in those daies ther was no king in Israel, but euery mā dyd C what thought hym best.

And there was a younge man oute of Bethlehē Iuda, & oute of the kinredes of Iuda: whiche young mā was a Leuite & soiourned ther. And the mā departed out of ẏ citie of Bethlehem Iuda to go dwel wher he could find a * place. And he came to moūt Ephraim, & to ẏ house of Micah as he iourneyed. And Micah sayde vnto hym, whence comest thou? and the Leuite answered him: I am of Bethlehē Iuda & go to dwell where I maye fynde a place.
And Micah sayde vnto him dwel wt me, and be vnto me a father and a preast. And I wyll geue the ten syluerlynges by yere and raymente of all sortes, and thy meate and drynke.

*understandes where he might get more profete or auauntage

And ẏ Leuite went & beganne to dwel with the man, & was vnto him as dere as one of his owne sōnes. And Micah filled ẏ hand of the Leuite, & the young mā became his preast, and cōtinued in the house of Micah. Then sayd Micah now I am suer ẏ ẏ lorde wilbe good vnto me, seyng, I haue a Leuite to my preast.

¶ The chyldrē of Dan take the goddes & the preast of Micah away. They destroye Lais, & after bylde it agayne.

The .xviii. Chapter.

In those dayes there was no A king in Israel. And in those daies ẏ trybe of Dā soughte thē an enheritaūce to dwelin, for vnto that tyme ther: fell none enheritaūce vnto thē amōg ẏ tribe of Israel. And the childrē of Dā sēt of their kynredes fyue mē of actiuite, out of their coostes, euē out of Zaraah and Esthaol, to vewe the lād & search it out, & said vnto thē: go & searche out ẏ lande. And they came to moūt Ephraim, euē to ẏ house of Micah & lodged ther. And whē they were come vnto ẏ house of Micah, thei knew ẏ

B voice of ŷ yoũg mã ŷ Leuite, & turned in thither, & sayde vnto him: who brought ŷ hither? & what makest thou in this place?
& what hast ŷ here. And he sayd vnto thẽ, thus and thus dealeth Micah wyth me & hathe hired me to be his preaste. And they said vnto him: Aske of God I pray the, ŷ we may knowe whether ŷ way whiche we go, shalbe prosperous or no. And ŷ preast sayd vnto thẽ: go in peace, for ŷ way why-che ye go is before the Lorde.

Then the fiue men departed and came to Lais, & sawe ŷ people that were therin, how they dwelte carelesse, & after the maner of ŷ Sidõs, still, & without castyng of parelles, & that no man made any trouble in the lande or vsurped any domynion, & howe they were farre from the Sidons & had no busynes with any naciõ. And they came vnto their brethren to Zaraah and C Esthaol. And their brethren sayde vnto them: what tydinges brynge you?

And they sayd vp and lett vs go vnto Num.xiii.d them, * for we haue sene the lãd, ŷ it is ve-rye good. Hast therfore & be not slouthful to departe and to go and cõquere the lãd.
When ye be come, ye shall come vnto a people that casteth no parelles, and vnto a large contreye: for God hathe geuen into your handes a place wherin is no lacke of any thyng that is in the worlde.

And there departed thence of the kynred of the Danites, oute of Zaraah and Esthaol sixe hundred men apointed with instrumẽtes of warre. And they wẽt & pit ched in Kariath Iarim in Iuda. Wherfore the place is called Mahanah Dã vn to this day, which is on ŷ backside of Kariath Iarim. And they wente thence vnto D mounte Ephraim, & came to the house of Micah. Then answered the fyue mẽ that wẽt to spye out the cõtrey of Lais, & sayde vnto their brethrẽ wot ye not that there is in these houses an Ephod & Images, & a grauẽ Image and an Image of meatal?
Now therfore cõsyder what ye haue to do.

And they turned thither warde & came to the house of the yonge man the Leuite in the house of Micah, & saluted hym peasably. And ŷ syxe hũdred men gyrded wt wepons of warre which were of ŷ chil-E drẽ of Dã stode in the entering of ŷ gate.
And the fyue mẽ that went to spye oute ŷ land, went in thyther and toke the karued Image, & ŷ Ephod the karued Image, & the Image of metal. And ŷ preast stode in the enteryng of the gate with the syxe hũdred men ŷ were armed vnto battel while ŷ other went to Micahs house, and fette the karued Image, the Ephod, the karued Image and the Image of metall. Then sayde the preast vnto thẽ: what do ye, and they answered him, holde thy peace & * put thyne hande vpon thy mouthe, and come Iob.xxi. b with vs, & be vnto vs a father & a preast, whether is it better for the to be a preaste vnto the house of one man, or to be preast vnto a tribe or a kynred in Israel? And ŷ preast was glad & toke the Ephod and ŷ Images, and the grauen Image, & went wt ŷ people. And they turned & departed, & put the childrẽ, the catell & their costlye thynges before them. F

When they were a good way frõ the hou se of Micah, the mẽ ŷ were in the houses ŷ were by Micahs house, made an oute crye, & folowed after the chyldrẽ of Dan & called vnto thẽ. And they turned their fa ces, and sayd vnto Micah, what ayleth ŷ, that thou makest an out cry? And he sayd, ye haue take away my Goddes whiche I made also the preast, and go your wayes wyth them: And what haue I more, how then say ye vnto me, what ayleth the? And the chyldrẽ of Dan sayd vnto him, let not thy voyce be hearde amõg vs, lesse angrye felowes runne vpon the, & thou loose thy lyfe, with the lyues of all thyne housholde to. And so the chyldrẽ of Dan went theyr wayes. And when Micah sawe that they were to strõg for him, he turned & wẽt bac ke vnto hys house agayne.

And they toke the thynges which Mi- G cah had made, and ŷ preast whiche he had, and went vnto Lais, euẽ vnto a people ŷ were at reast and without mystruste, and smote thẽ wyth the edge of the swerd and burnt the cytye wyth fyre. And there was no mã to helpe, because it was farre from Sydon, & they had no medelynge wythe anye other nacyon. And the cytye stode in the valey that lyeth by Bethrehob. And they bylt the cytye and dwelt therin. * And Iosu.xix. called it Dã, after ŷ name of Dã their father which was borne vnto Israell. How be it in verye deade the name of the cytye was

was Lais at the begynnynge.
And the chyldren of Dan set them vp the grauen Image. And Jonathan the sonne of Gerson, the sõne of Manasses & hys sonnes were the preastes vnto ye tribe of the Danites, vntyll they were caryed awaye out of the lande captiue. And they sett them vp the kerued Image whyche Micah made, all the whyle that the house of God was in Siloh.

¶ Of the Leuite whose wife was vyllanously abused in Gabaah, She is deuyded into.xii. partes & ech of her sent to euery trybe of Israel a peace.

The.xix. Chapter.

A IT chaunced in those dayes, whẽ ther was no king in Israel, that a certẽ Leuite dwel lyng on ye syde of mounte Ephraim, toke to wyfe a cõcubine out of Bethlehem Juda: which concubine played the whore in his house, and went awaye frõ him, vnto her fathers hou se to Bethlehem Juda, & there contynued foure monethes. And her husbande arose and went after her, to speake frendly, vnto her, & to bring her home agayne, & hys lad with him and a couple of Asses. And she brought him vnto her fathers house, & when the father of ye damosel saw him he reioysed of his coming. And his father in law the damoselles father kepte him yt he aboade withe him thre dayes and so they ate and dranke and lodged there.
The fourth daye they arose erly in the B mornyng, & the man stode vp to departe.
But the damoselles father sayd vnto his sõne in law, cõfort thine hart wt a morsell of breed & then go youre waye. And they sate downe & did eate & drinke both of thẽ to geather. Then sayd the damoselles father vnto the man go to I praye the and tarye al nyght and let thyne hert be mery.
How be it the mã stode vp to departe: but his father in law cõpelled him to turne againe & to tarie al night ther. And he rose vp erly ye fyfth day to departe. Thẽ saide ye damoselles father cõfort thine hert: & so

¶ The battel of al the Israelites agaynst the tribe of Ben Iamin for the Leuites wyfe kylled.

The xx. Chapter.

A That is all of one consent, or generally as beneth in this chap. b.

When al the chyldren of Israel went out: and there gathered a cōgregation to gether * as it had ben but one man, euē frō Dā to Bersaba & out of the lande of Galaad, vnto the lande to Marphah and there stode folke oute of al quarters of all the trybes of Israell, in the cōgregatyon of thee people of God, foure hundred. M. footemē that drwe swerdes. And thee chyldren of Ben Jamin hearde that the chyldren of Israel were gone vp to Marphah.

Then sayd the chyldren of Israell, tell vs how thys wyckednesse happened. And the Leuite the womās husband that was slayne, answered & sayd: I came into Gabaah that is in Ben Jamin with my cōcubyne to lodge al nyght. And the cytezēs of Gabaah rose agaynst me, & sett the house round about vpō me by nyght, & thought to haue slayne me: and caughte my concubyne and forced her, that she dyed. And I toke my concubyne and cutte her in peces and sent her thorowe oute all the landes of the enheritaunce of Israell. For they haue cōmitted abhominacion and folly in Israell. Beholde ye are al chyldren of Israell. Se therfore and geue youre aduyse in the case.

Then al the people arose, as it had ben one man sayinge: ther shall not a mā of vs go to hys tent, nether turne into his house And now this is it that we wyl do to Gabaah & cast lottes agaynst it. And we wyl B take ten men of the hundred thorowe oute all the trybes of Israell, & an hundred of the thousande, and a thousande out of the ten thousande, to fette vitayle for the people to make that they may go agaynst Gabaah Ben Jamin, according to al the foly that they haue wrought in Israel. And so all the men of Israell gathered together, vnto Gabaah, knit together as it had ben but one man. And the trybes of Israell sent men thorow all the trybe of Ben Jamin sayinge: what wickednes is thys ȳ is happened amōg you. Now therfore delyuer vs the men, those wycked wretches of Gabaah that we maye sley them, and put awaye euell from Israell.

Neuerthelater the chyldren of Ben Jamin wold not herkē vnto ȳ voyce of their brethren the chyldren of Israell: but gathered them selues together out of the cyties vnto Gabaah, to come out in batayle agaynst ȳ chyldrē of Israel. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin were nombred at that tyme, out of the cities .xxvi. thousande mē that drewe swerdes beside the enhabiters of Gabaah which were nombred seuen hūdred chosē mē. And among all these folke were seuē hundred lefte hāded mē, which euery one could slig stones at an hear brea C dedth, & not misse. And the childrē of Israell beside the children of Beniamin, were nombred foure hundred thousand men ÿ drewe swerdes, and al men of warre.

[illegible] And the children of Israel arose & wēt vp to * Bethel, & asked of God, who shulde begynne the battell agaynste the chyldren of Beniamin, and the Lord sayd Juda shal begynne. And the chyldren of Israell stode vp erlie and beseged Gabaah. And the mē of Israell went out to battel against Beniamin, and put thē selues in aray agaynst them to fyght against Gabaah. And the chyldrē of Beniamin came oute of Gabaah and destroyed in Israell that daye .xxii. thousande men, and brought them to the erth.

And the folke of the chyldrē of Israel plucked vp their hartes, and wente to agayne and made battell in the same place where they dyd the first day: but they wēt fyrst vp and wept before the Lorde vnto euen, and asked of the Lord saying: shall we go agayne to battel against ÿ children of Beniamin oure brethren. And the lord
D sayde: go vp vnto them and when ÿ chyldren of Israel were come to the chyldren of Beniamin the second day, the chyldren of Beniamin went against thē out of Gabaah, the seconde daye, and destroyed to the erth of the chyldren of Israell once agayne .xviii. thousande men ÿ drew swerdes euery man of them.

Then the children of Israel and al the people wente vp and came vnto Bethell, and wepte and sat ther before the Lord, & fasted the same daye vnto euen, and offered burnt offerynges & peace offerynges before the Lorde. And they asked the Lorde: for there was the arcke of the apoyntement of God, in those daies. And * Phinehes ÿ sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron waytinge vpon it at that tyme & they sayd shall we go out any moare to battell against the children of Beniamin our brethe, or shall we cease? And the children of Israel wēt against ÿ childrē of Beniamin ÿ thirde tyme, & put thē selues in araye against Gabaah, as twyse before. Then came ÿ childrē of Beniamin against ÿ people, tyl they were drawē a great way frō the citie. And they began to smite of ÿ people deed (as twise before, by two hie waies of which one goeth vp to Bethell & the other to Gabaah thorowe the felde) vpon a thyrtye men of Israel. For the chyldrē of Beniamin though ÿ the other had ben beatē before them, as at the fyrst tyme. But the chyldren of Israell sayde, let vs flee and plucke them away from the cytye, vnto the hye wayes.

And then al the men of Israel rose vp out of their standing, & put them selues in aray at Baal Thamar. And likewyse the laiers in wayte of Israel came forth oute of their places, euē oute of ÿ medowes of Gabaah, & came before Gabaah: ten thousande chosen men out of al Israel, & there was sore battel. But ÿ other wyst not ÿ euyl was so nye them. And the lord plaged Beniamin before Israel, so that the children of Israell destroyed in Beniamin ÿ same daye .xxv. thousande and a hundred men, that drue swerdes euerye one of thē.
It semed the children of Beniamin, that the other had ben put to the woorsse. For F the men of Israel gaue Rome to Beniamin, because they trusted vnto the layers in wayte whiche they had layde agaynste Gabaah. And the layers in wayte hasted and ranne vpon Gabaah, and wente and smote al the citie wt the edge of the swerd. And the apoyntement of the mē of Israel wt the laiers in waite to runne vpō Beniamī wt ÿ swerd, was whē they shuld make ÿ smoke rise vp out of the citie. And ÿ mē of Israel fled in the battell. And Beniamin begā to smite deed of ÿ childrē of Israel, about a thirty persōnes, for they supposed ÿ the other had ben put to ÿ woorsse before them, as in the fyrste battell. Then began to aryse oute of the cytie, a piller of smoke. And the Beniamites loked backe: and beholde the wastynge of the hole citie began to ascende vp to heuen.

When ÿ men of Israel turned againe, the men of Beniamin were abasshed: for they sawe that euell approched them. And they turned before the men of Israell vnto the waye that leadeth to the wildernes, the other folowing thē at the harde heles.

G And besyde that they of the citie destroyed

A And the men of Israell sware in Masphah saying: ther shal none of vs geue hys daugh-wyfe. And the people came to Bethel & abode ther tyll euen, before God & lyfte vp theyr voyces & wept sore & said O Lord God of Israel, why is this chau ced in Israel, that ther shuld be thys daye one trybe lackinge in Israell? And on the morowe the people rose vp be tyme & made there an altare and offered burntoffrin ges and peaceofferinges.

And the chyldren of Israel asked, who are they among all the trybes of Israell ÿ came not with the congregation vnto the Lord? for they had made a great othe con cerning thē that came not vp to the Lorde to Masphah saying that they shuld surely dye. And the chyldren of Israel had py tie on Ben Jamin theyr brethren, & sayde: ther is one trybe cutt of from Israel this daye: what shal we do vnto the remnaunt B of them, for too gette them wyues, for as moch as we haue sworne by the Lord that we wyll not geue them of oure daughters of the trybes of Israel that came not vpp to Masphah to the Lorde. And beholde there came none of the enhabitours of Ja bes Galaad vnto the congregation. And when the people were veiwed: behold there were none of the enhabiters of Jabes Ga ke wyth the chyldren of Ben Jamin that were in the Rocke of Pomgranettes, and called peaceably vnto them and Ben Jamin came agayne at that tyme, and they gaue them the wemen whych they had saued a lyue of the wemē of Jabes Galaad But they so suffised thē not. And the people had compassion on Ben Jamin, becau se that God hadde * made a gappe in the trybes of Israell. And then the elders of the congregation sayde: what shall we do to the remnaunt of them, to get them wy-ues seyinge all thee wyues of Ben Jamin are destroyed? And they sayde there must be an enheritaunce for them that be escaped of Ben Jamin that a trybe be not destroyed out of Israel: howe be it we maye not geue them wyues of oure daughters.

For thee chyldren of Israell had made an abiuration saying: acursed be he that ge ueth a wyfe to Ben Jamin.
D Then they sayd: beholde, ther is a feaste of the Lord yearlye in Siloh which is on the northsyde of Bethel, & on the east syde of the waye that goeth frō Bethel to Si-chem and southe from Libanon. And they commaunded the children of Ben Ja wyll saye vnto them, haue pytye on them, because we reserued not to eche man hys se that ye gaue them none in due tyme, ye were to blame.

And the chyldrẽ of Ben Jamin dyd euen so: & toke thẽ wyues accordinge to the nōbre of them of the dauncers which they caught. And then they went and returned vnto theyr enheritaunce, and bylt theyr cy-

And the chyldren of Israell departed thence at that tyme and wente euerye man to hys trybe, and to hys kynred, and went ¶ Elimelec goeth with his wyfe & chyldren into the land of Moab. After his death hys wyfe Noemi returneth agayne into her countreye, & wyth her Ruth, her daughter in lawe.

The. I. Chapter

In the time when the Judges A iudged, ther fell a dearth in ÿ land. Wherfore a certen man of Bethlehẽ Juda wente for to soiourne in the coūtreye of Moab with hys wyfe & two sonnes. The name of thee man was Elimelec, and hys wyfe Noemi, and the names of hys two sonnes were, Mahalon and Chilion and they were Ephrattes, out of Bethlehẽ Ju da. And when they came into the lande of Moab, they continued there. And Elime-lec Noemies husbande dyed, and she remayned wyth her two sonnes whiche toke them wyues of the nacions of the Moabi tes: thee ones name Orphah & thee others Ruth. And when they hadde dwelled ther about a ten yeare, Mahalon and Chilion dyed also euen both two of them, so that ÿ wyfe was lefte desolate of her two sonnes and of her husbande thereto. Then she sto B de vp wyth her daughters in lawe and returned frō ÿ coūtrey of Moab: for she had heard say, being iñ ÿ coūtrey of Moab: how that the Lorde hath vysyted hys people & geuen them fode. Wherfore she departed out of the place wher she was and her two daughters with her. And as they went vp the waye returnyng vnto the land of Juda, Noemi saide vnto her two daughters in lawe: go and returne eche of you vnto youre mothers house: the Lorde deale as kyndlye with you, as ye haue dealt wythe the deed and with me. And the Lord geue you that you maye fynde reaste ether of you in the house of her husbande: and so she kyssed them.

Then they cryed and wepte & sayd vnto her we will go with the vnto thy folke.
But Noemi said, turne agayne my daugh ters: for what cause welde you go wythe me, thinke you that ther be any more children in my bowelles, to be youre husban-des? Turne agayne my daughters & go:

for I am to olde to haue an husbãd. yt I C said I haue hope also yt I toke a mã this nyght: ye & though I had all ready borne sonnes, wold ye tarye after thẽ, tyl they we re of age? or wold ye for thẽ so long refray ne from takyng of husbandes? Not so my daughters: for it greuethe me moche for your sakes, that the hande of the Lorde is gone out agaynst me.

Ther with they cryed and wept agayne howbeit, Orphah kyssed her mother in law but Ruth abode styll by her, thẽ she sayde: se, thy syster in lawe is gone backe agayne vnto her people & vnto her god: returne þu after her. But Ruth sayd: entreate me not to leaue the, and to returne from after the, for whether thou goeste, I wyll goo, and where thou dwellest, there I wyll dwelle: thy people are my people, and thy God is my God. Where thou dyeste, I wyll dye, & ther wylbe buried. a The Lord do so & so to me, except that death only departe the & me a sondre.

D Whẽ she saw that she wold neades go wt her, she lefte speakyng vnto her. And so they wẽt both together vntill they cam to Bethlehem. And when they were come to Bethlehẽ it was noysed thorow all þe cytie and the wemen sayd: is not thys Noemi? that is pleasaunt — But she sayd vnto them, cal me not * Noe mi: cal me * Mara, for the al myghtie hath that is bitter — made me very bitter. I went out ful: but þe lord hath brought me home empty. Why shuld ye then cal me Noemi: seyng the lord hath hũbled me & þe almyghti hath brough te me vnto aduersite? And the tyme when Noemi wt Ruth the Moabitesse her daughter in lawe returned out of þe countreye of Moab & came to Bethlehem, was in þe ce wher he layeth hym downe, ⁊ then go ⁊ lyft vp the clothes that ar on his fete, and laye the downe ⁊ so shal he tell the what yͧ shalt doo. And she answered her: al yͭ thou B biddest me I wil do. And so she went vnto the floure, ⁊ dyd according to al yͭ her mother in lawe bad her. And when Booz had eaten ⁊ drõken ⁊ made hym mery, he went ⁊ laye downe by the syde of the heape. And she came softly ⁊ lyft vp the clothes of his fete, ⁊ layde her downe. And at midnighte the mã was afrayd ⁊ groped. And behold a womã laye at his fete. Thẽ he said what art thou, ⁊ she answered, I am Ruth thine hendmayde, sprede thy mãtell ouer thyne handmayde, for yͧ art the next of the kinne And then he sayd blessed be yͧ in the Lord my daughter, for thou haste shewed more goodnes in the later ende, thẽ at the begin ning, in asmoch as yͧ folowdest not yõge mẽ, whether they were poore or ryche. And C now my daughter feare not, I wil do to yͤ al that yͧ requerest, for all the gates of my people know that yͧ art a womã of vertue And it is true yͭ I am of thy nexte kynne: how beit, ther is one nyer then I. Tary al nyght. And when morninge is come yf he wil marye yͤ it is good, so let hym do. But ⁊ yf he wyl not haue the, a ✝ as sure as thee D lord liueth I wil haue the, lye stil vntil the morning. And so she laye at his fete vntyl the morning. And she arose vp before one could know ãother. And he said: let no mã beware, yͭ there came any woman into the throshig floure. And he said: bring thy mã tel yͭ yͧ hast vpõ the ⁊ holde it vp. And she held it vp. And he mette in .vi. mesures of barley ⁊ layed it on her. And she gat her in to thee citie: ⁊ she came in to her mother in law which said: what tidinges my daugh ter? And she tolde her all that the man had done to her. And said therto, these .vi. mea sures of barleye gaue he me ⁊ sayde: thou ¶ Booz taketh Ruth to wyfe, of whõ he begetteth Obed.

The .iiii. Chapter.

Then went Booz vn A to the a ✝ gate ⁊ satt hym downe there: ⁊ beholde, the kynsmã of which Booz spa ke came by. Vnto whõ he sayd come ⁊ syt downe here, and called him by hys name. And he turned in ⁊ sate down. Thẽ he he toke ten mē of the elders of the cytye, & sayd, syt ye downe here. And they sat dow ne. Thē he sayd vnto the kynsmā: Noemi that is come agayne oute of the cōtreye of Moab, wyl sell a parcel of lād which was our brother Elimelecs. And I thought to do the to wete & bidde the bye it before the enhabitoures and elders of my people, yf thou be dysposed to calenge it: but and yf thou wilt not purchase it, then tell me that I may wete it. For there is none to calēge it saue thou, & I next the. And the other an swered I wyll purchase it.

B Then sayd Booz, what day thou byest the feld of the hand of Noemi, thou must take also Ruth thee Moabite the wyfe of the dead, to steare vp the name of the dead vpon his enherttaūce. Thē sayd the kinsmā, I cannot purchase it for marringe of my owne enherttaūce; take thou my righte to the, for I cannot purchase it. Now this was the maner of olde tyme in Israel con cerning purches & chaunginge, for to sta-blishe al thing: that a man must plucke of hys showe & geue it hys neyghboure, and thys was a wytnesse in Israell.
And the kynsman sayd to Booz, bye it C thou: & so drue of hys showe. Then sayde Booz vnto the elders & vnto al the people ye are witnesses thys daye, that I haue boughte all that was Elimelecs, & all that was Chilions & Mahelons, of the hande of Noemi. And moreouer Ruth the Mo abite the wyfe of Mahelon, do I take vn to me to wyfe to stere vp the name of thee dead vpon hys enherttaunce, that hys name be not put oute from amonge hys brethren, and from the gate of hys cytie: ye ar witnesses thys daye.
And al the people that were in the gate, & the elders sayd we ar witnesses: the lord make thee woman that is come into thyne house like Rahel & Lea, which twayne did bylde the house of Israell: that she may * do vertuously in Ephrathah, & be famou se in Bethlehem, & that thyne house be like the house of Phares, whom Thamar bare vnto Iuda, out of the sede which the Lord shal geue the of this young woman.
D And so Booz toke Ruth, & she was his wyfe. And he went in vnto her, & the Lorde gaue that she cōceaued and bare a sonne.
And the women sayd vnto Noemi: blessed be the Lorde, the whyche hath not lefte the wythoute an heyre thys daye * that shall haue a name in Israell, and that shal brin ge thy lyfe agayne and cherishe thyne old age. For thy daughter in lawe whych lo-ueth the hath borne hym that is better to ỹ then seuen sonnes. And Noemi toke the chylde and layed it in her lappe, and became nourse vnto it. And her neyghboures gaue it a name sayinge: there is a chylde borne to Noemi, and called it Obed: he is thee father of Isai, thee father of Dauid.
Thys is thee generatyon of Phares, Phares begat Hezron: Hezron be-¶ Thus endeth the Boke of Ruth.

The fyrst Boke of Samuel, called the fyrst boke of the kynges.

¶ Elkanah hath two wyues, Hannah and Phenen nah, Phenennah vpbraydeth Hannah, because she is chyldlesse. Hannah after prayer made to god, bye geth forth Samuel.

The. I. Chapter.

There was a mā of Ramatha im Zophim of mount Ephra 1 im named Elkanah, the sonne of Ierohā, the sonne of Elihu, the son of Thohu, ỹ sonne of Zuph an Ephrathite: whyche had two wyues, the one called Hannah & the other Phenennah. And Phenennah had childre but Hannah had none. And the sayd man went out of hys cytie euery feastful daye to praye and to offer vnto the lorde of hostes: where thee two sonnes of Eli (Hoph ni & Phinehes) were the Lordes priestes.

And it fel on a day as Elkanah had offe= red ẏ he gaue to Phenēnah his wife & to al her sōnes & daughters porciōs. But vn to Hānah he gaue a *porcion wyth a he= uye chere, for he loued her, neuertheles the Lorde had made her barren. And therto her enemye Phenennah vexed her a good in castynge her in ẏ tethe how ẏ Lord had made her barren. And so did she yere by yere as oft as she wēt vp to the house of ẏ lord. And so chafed her, wherfore Hānah wepte & ate not. Then saide Elkanah her husband to her: Hannah why weapest ẏu? and why eatest thou not? & why is thyne herte so troubled? am not I better to the, then ten sonnes? Thē Hannah rose vp af B ter ẏ they had eaten & droncke in Siloh.
And Eli the preast sate vpō a stole by one of ẏ syde postes of the tēple of the Lorde.
And she was troubled in her spretes, and prayed vnto the Lord & wepte sore, & vo= wed a vowe & sayde. Lord of hostes, yf ẏu wilt loke on the wretchednes of thine hād mayde & shalt remembre me & not forget thine hādmayde, & shalt geue vnto thyne hādmayde a mā chylde I will geue hym vnto ẏ lord al the dayes of hys life & ther shal nether rasor or sheres come vpon hys hed. And as she cōtinued praying before ẏ Lord, Eli marked her mouth. For Han= nah she spake in her hert, & her lippes dyd but moue onli, but her voice was not hear de. And therfore Eli toke her for drōcken & said vnto her, how lōg wilt thou be drōc C kē? put away frō the, ẏ wyne ẏ thou hast.
Hānah answered & sayd: not so my lorde, I am a woman sorowfull in myne hert, & haue droncke nether wyne nor any strong drincke but I haue a *poured out my soule before the Lorde. Count not thyne hand= maide to be like a daughter of vnthrifti= nes: for out of the aboundaunce of my me= ditaciō and greafe haue I spokē hitherto.
Eli answered and sayd: go in peace the god of Israel shal graunt the thy peticiō that thou hast asked of him. Thē she said let thine hāmaide find grace in thy syght.
And so the woman went her way, and did eate and loked no more so sadd. And they rose vp erly & bowed them selues before ẏ Lord, & thē returned & wēt to their house to Ramath. And Elkanah lay by his wife D Hannah, & the Lord remembred her. And in processe of tyme she conceaued & bare a sonne and called his name * Samuell: That is, asked of god. because she had asked him of the Lorde And Elkanah and al hys house went vp to offer vnto the Lorde, bothe the offerin= ges due for the feast and also his vowes: but Hannah went not vp for she sayd vn to her husbande: I wyll tarye vntyll the ladd be wened, and thē I will bryng him, ẏ he maye apeare before the Lord & there abyde for euer. And Elkanah her husban de sayd to her: do what semith the best: ta= rye vntyll thou hast wened hym, onlye the Lorde make good his sayinge. And so the womā abode and gaue her sōne sucke, vn til she wened him. And thē she toke him wt her, when she had wened him, wt thre bul= lockes & an Epha of floure & a bottell of wine, & brought him vnto ẏ house of the Lorde in Siloh howbeit ẏ child was yet younge. And they slue the bullockes and brought in ẏ ladd to Eli, & then she sayde Oh my lord: as truly as thy soule liueth my lord: I am ẏ womā ẏ stode by ẏ here, praying vnto the Lord & for thys ladd I praied, & ẏ Lord hath geuē me my desyre whiche I asked of him: & therfore I also lēde him ẏ Lord as lōg as he may be let ẏ lord. And so they praied ther vnto ẏ lorde.

The. ii. Chapter.

AND Hannah prayed & sayd: A mine hert reioyseth in the lor= de, myne horne is hye in thee Lord, and my mouth is wyde open ouer mine enemyes, for I reioyse in thy sauynge. There is none so holye as ẏ Lord: there is none saue ẏu.
Nether is there any strength lyke vnto our God. Talke not to moch proudlie: let old thinges depart out of your mouthes, for the Lord is a God of knowledge and Iudgeth the thoughtes. The *bowes of the strong are broke: and the weake are en= dued with strēgth. They that were ful, ha ue hired out the selues for breed, and they that were hongrey ceast so to be: in so moch that the barren hath borne seuen, and the that had many chyldren is waxed feble. b † The Lorde kylleth and maketh a

He reyseth vp the pore out of the duste, & lyfteth vp the begger from the dong hyl: to sett thẽ among prynces, and to enherett them with the seate of glorye. For the pillers of the erth are the Lordes, & he hathe sett the round world vpõ thẽ. He wil kepe ye fete of his † sayntes but the wycked shal kepe silence in darcknes. For in his owne myghte shall no man be stronge. The lor-des aduersaryes shall be made to feare hym: and out of heauen he shal thũder vp on thẽ. The Lord shal iudge the endes of the world, and shal geue myght vnto his kynge, and exalt the horne of hys anoyn-C ted. And Elkanah wẽt to Ramath to hys house, and the ladd dyd mynystre vnto ye Lorde before Eli the preaste.

But the sõnes of Eli were * † vnthrif-tye childrẽ and knewe not the Lorde. For the maner of the preastes wyth the people was, whensoeuer any mã offered any offe ringes the preastes ladd came, whyle the fleshe was in sethyng, and a fleshoke wyth thre teth in his hand, and thrust it into the panne, ketle, cadren, or potte. And all that the fleshe hoke brought vp the preast toke awaye. And so they did vnto all Israell that came thither to Siloh. Yee: & therto before they had offered the fatt, ye preastes ladd came and sayde to the man that offered: geue fleshe to rost for ye preaste, for he wil not haue sodden flesh of the, but raw.
And yf any mã sayd vnto him let the fatt D be offered according to the day, and then take as moche as thine hert desireth. The ladd wold ãswere him ye shalte geue it me now, or els I wil take it wt violence. And the synne of ye yõgmẽ was very great be fore the lord. For they dispised the people and also the offeryng of the Lord.

But the ladd Samuel ministred before the lord girded about with a lyne Ephod.
Moreouer hys mother made hym a lytle coote, & brought it to him frõ feast to feast when she came vp wt her husband to offer ye offering of ye said feast. And Eli blessed Elkanah & hys wyfe, and sayd: the Lord geue the seede of thys womã, for that she hath lẽt ye Lord. And they wẽt vnto their awne whome. And ye lord visited Hannah so ye she conceaued and bare thre sonnes & two daughters. But the boye Samuel grewe dwellyng styll with the Lorde.

Eli was very olde and herd al that his sõnes did vnto al Israel, & how they slepe wt the wemen that * wayted in the dore of ye tabernacle of wytnesse, & sayd vnto thẽ: why do ye soch thinges? For I heare your C wicked deades of al these people. Oh, nay my sonnes: for it is no good report that I heare how ye ye make the lordes people to trespas. If one mã synne agaynst another * dayesmen may make his peace: but yf a man synne agaynst the Lord * who can be his dayesman? Notwythstandynge they herkened not vnto ye voice of their father, because the Lorde wolde slaye them. The chylde Samuel profited and grewe, and was in fauoure both with the lord and al so withe men.

And ther came a man of God vnto E- F li & sayde vnto him: thus saith the lord, I apeared vnto the house of thy father, whẽ they were in Egypte in Pharaos house.
And I chose thy father out of al ye tribes of Israel to be my preast for to offer vp-on myne aultare & to burne incense, & to were an Ephod before me. And I gaue vnto ye house of thy father al ye offeringes of the childrẽ of Israel. Wherfore kycke ye against my sacrifyce and against mine offeryng which I cõmaũd in the tabernacle, and honorest thy children aboue me, & make your selues fat of the first frutes of al the offeringes of Israel my people Wherfor the lord God of Israel saith: I sayd ye thine house and the house of thy fa ther shoulde haue walked before me for euer. But now ye lord sayth ye be farre frõ me: for thẽ ye worshype me I wil worshipe, & they that despyse me, shalbe despised. † G Behold the daies wil come ye I wyl cut of thine arme & the arme of thy fathers house ye ther shal not be an elder in thyne house.
And thou shalt se thyne enemye in the ta bernacle, in al that shall please Israell, & there shall not be an elder in thyne house whyle the worlde standeth. Neuerthelesse I wil not destroye al thy males from my aultare, to dase thy syghte with all and to make thine herte melt. And all the multy-tude of thyne house shall dye younge.

And thys shalbe a signe vnto the, that shal come vpō thy two sonnes, Hophni ȝ Phinches: euen in one daye they shall dye both of thē. And I wyl stere me vp a faith ful * priest ẏ shal do as it is in myne herte ȝ in my mynd. And I wyl byld him a sure house. And he shal walke before mine annoynted for euer. And they that are left in thyne house, shal come ȝ crouch to him for a lyttle pece of sylucr ȝ a cake of bread, ȝ shal saye: put me I praye the in one offyce or other among the Priestes, that I maye

¶ After the Lord had left to speake by open vision in Siloh for a long ceson: he yet calleth Samuel thre tymes, ȝ sheweth him what shulde be fal on Eli.

The. iii. Chapter.

A AD the child Samuel ministred vnto ẏ lord before Eli: ȝ the word of the Lord was precyous in those dayes for ther was none ope̅ visiō. And it chaūsed at that tyme, that Eli lay in his place, ȝ his eyes began to ware dimme ẏ he coulde not se. And yet the * lāpe of god wēt out Samuel laid him doune to slepe, in the tēple of the lord, where the arcke of god was. And the lord called Samuel: ȝ he sayd, here am I, and he ran vnto Eli ȝ 6 sayd here am I for thou caledest me. And he sayde I called the not: go agayne and slepe. And he wente and layde him downe to slepe. And the lord called once agayne: B Samuel and Samuel arose ȝ wēt to Eli ȝ sayd: I am here, thou dyddest cal me.
And he answered: I called ẏ not my sōne.
Go agayne ȝ take thy reste: but it was yet Samuel knew ẏ lord ȝ yet ẏ word of the Lord was opened vnto him. And the lord wēt to ȝ called Samuell the thyrd tyme.

And he arose ȝ wēt to Eli and sayd: I am here, for thou hast called me. Thē Eli perceaued ẏ the Lord had called the lad. And sayd vnto hym, go ȝ lye downe: ȝ yf he cal the agayne, thē saye, speake on Lorde, for thy seruaūt heareth. And Samuel wēte ȝ layed him down in his place. And the lord came ȝ stode ȝ called as before, Samuel, Samuel. And Samuell sayd: speake on, for thy seruaūt heareth the. And the Lord sayd to Samuel: behold I wil do a thing in Israel, that ẏ eares of as many as heareth it, shal tingle. In that day I wyl per-forme to Eli, al that I haue spokē concer-ninge hys house: I wyl begin it ȝ ende it.
For I haue tolde hym ẏ I wyl iudge hys house for euer. For the wyckednes whych he knoweth, how hys sonnes are vngraci-ouse ȝ he was not wroth therewyth. And C therfore I haue sworne vnto the house of Eli, that the wyckednesse of Elies house, shal not be purged with sacrifice nor offering, whyle the worlde standeth. And Sa muel laye tyll the mornyng ȝ then opened the dores of the house of the Lord.

But Samuel feared, to shewe Eli the vision. Then Eli called Samuel ȝ sayd: Samuel my sonne. And he answered here I am. And he sayde what is that he sayde vnto thee? Se ẏ hyde it not frō me. * The Ruth. i. c Lord do so ȝ so to the, yf thou hyde anye thing frō me, of all that he sayde vnto the.
And Samuel tolde him euery whit ȝ hyd it not frō hym. And he answered: it is thee Lord, let him do what semeth hym best.

And Samuel grewe, ȝ the Lorde was D with him, ȝ left none of his wordes vnper formed. And al Israel frō Dan to Bersa be wist that Samuel was truly made the Lordes prophete. And the Lord apeared agayne in Siloh: for the lord opened him selfe to Samuell in Siloh, thorowe the worde of the Lorde.

¶ The batel of the Philistines. Israel fleeth. The Arcke of the Lorde is taken, Elies children dye, and he hym selfe also.

The. iiii. Chapter

AND Samuell spake vnto all Israel. And Israel went out A against the Philistines to ba tel, ȝ pitched besyde the * help [illegible] stone. And the Philistines pit ched in Aphek. And put thē selues in aray against Israel. And in ẏ ende of the battel

 Israel

Israel was put to the worsse before the Philistines. And the Philistynes slue in araie alonge by the feldes, about a fowre thousande men.

And when the people were come into their tētes the elders of Israel said: wher fore hath the lord beaten vs this daye before yͤ Philistines? let vs fetch yͤ arck of yͤ apoyntment of yͤ lord, out of Siloh vnto vs, & let it come amōge vs & saue vs oute of yͤ handes of our enemies. And yͤ people sēt to Siloh, & fet frō thence yͤ arck of yͤ a B poyntmēt of yͤ lord of hostes which dwel leth betwene yͤ Cherubins. And ther were yͤ two sōnes of Eli, Hophni & Phynehes wt yͤ arck of yͤ apoyntmente of God. And whē yͤ arck of yͤ apoyntmēt of yͤ lord came into the host, all Israel showted a myghtie showte, so yͭ the erth range agayne.

Whē the Philistines herd yͤ noise of the showte they said: what meaneth yͤ sound of this myghtye showt in the host of the E-brues? And they vnderstode how that the arck of the lorde was come into the hoste.
And yͤ Philistines were afrayed, when it was told how that God was come into yͤ host & said: Wo vnto vs, for it was neuer so before this. Wo vnto vs, who shal deli uer vs out of the hād of this mighty god? this is the god yͭ smote the Egipciās wt al C maner of plages in yͤ wildernes. Be strōg & quite your selues like mē, ye Philistines, Iudi.xiii.a yͭ ye be not seruauntꝭ vnto yͤ Ebrues, as they haue ben to you. Be mē therfore and fight. And the Philistines fought & Isra el was put to the worsse & fled, euerye mā into his tēt. And ther was a mightey great slaughter, so yͭ ther were ouerthrowen of Israel, thirty thousād fotemē. And yͤ arck of god was takē, & the two sōnes of Eli, Hophni & a Phinehes were deed. And ther cā a mā of Beniamin out of yͤ aray & came to Siloh the same daye, withe his clothes rent & erthe vpō his heed. And when yͤ mā came in, Eli sate vpon a stole by the waye syde lokynge: for hys herte feared for the arcke of God. And the man came in and tolde it in the cytie. And all the cytie cried.

Whē Eli heard the noise of the criēge, he asked what the noyse of yͤ rumor mēte.
And the man hasted & came in & told Eli.
Eli was foure skore & eighten yere olde, i.Reg.iii.a & his syght fayled him yͭ he could not se.

And the man said vnto Eli: I am he that came out of the aray & fled out of the host thys day. And he said: how is it fortuned, my sonne? And the messēger answerd & sayd: Israel is fled before the Philistines D & ther is a great slaughter chaūsed amōg the people, & thy two sōnes, Hophni & Phy nehes are deed, & therto the arck of God is takē. And whē he made mētiō of the arck of God, Eli fel frō of hys stoole backwar de toward the gate, & hys necke brake, & he dyed: for he was olde and vnweldye, & he had iudged Israel fourtye yeres.

And hys daughter in law Phynehes wife was with child & nye the byrth. And whē she heard the tydynges of the taking of the arck of god, & yͭ her father in law, & her husband were deed, she bowed her self & trauelled, for her paynes came vpō her.
And about the time of her deeth, the wemē yͭ stode about her, sayd vnto her: feare not for yͤ hast borne a sōne. But she answered not nor regarded it. And she named yͤ chyl de Ichabod saying: honoure is departed frō Israel. Because the arck of god was taken, & her father in law and her husbād were deed. And therfore she sayd, honour is gone from Israel, because the arche of God was taken.

The Notes.

a Of another Phinehes whiche was the sonne of Eleazar, ye reade, Numeri xxv.

Dagon the God of the Philistines is cast flat before the arck. The Philistines are plaged in the secret places. The Enhabiters of Akaron refuse to receaue the arcke.

The. v. Chapter.

AND the Philistines toke the arcke of god & caried it from I & the help stone, vnto Asdod, [illegible] & brought it into the house of Dagon, & sett it by Dagon.
And when they of Asdod were vp in the mornyng behold, Dagō a lay grouelyng vpō the erth before the arck of the Lord.
And they toke Dagon & sette hym in hys place agayne. And when they were vp erly in the next mornyng behold, Dagō lay grouelyng vpō yͤ the grounde before yͤ arck of the Lord, & hys heed and his two hādes cut of vpō yͤ threshold, yͭ the body on ly was lefte on hym. Wherfore nether the prestes of Dagō, nether any mā yͭ cometh B into Dagōs house might treade on yͤ thre shold of Dagō in Asdod, vnto this daye.

But the hande of the lord was heuy vp on thē of Asdod, ⁊ he destroyed them, and smote thē wt Emerodes, both Asdod ⁊ all the coostes thereof. And when ẏ mē of Asdod saw ẏ it was so, they said: ẏ arcke of ẏ C God of Israel shal not abyde here wt vs, for his hand is sore vpō vs ⁊ vpō Dagō our god. And so they sēt ⁊ geathered al ẏ lordes of ẏ Philistynes vnto thē ⁊ sayde: what shal we do wt ẏ arcke of the God of Israel. Then sayd they of Geth let ẏ arck of the god of Israel be caried about. And they caried ẏ arke of the god of Israell about. And whē they had caried it about, ẏ hand of the Lord was in ẏ citie wt a migh tye greate plage, and he smote the men of the cytye bothe smalle and greate: and they were smytten in theyr secrete places, D wythe the Emerodes. Then they sente the arcke of God to Akaron. And as sone as the arcke of God came to Akaron, the Akaronites cryed out sayinge: they haue brought the Arcke of the God of Israell to vs: to slee vs and oure people.

Then they sent and fette al the Lordes of the Philistines vnto them ⁊ sayde: sēd away the arcke of the God of Israel, ⁊ let it go home againe vnto his awne place, ẏ it slee vs not wt our people. For ther was a plage of deeth thorow out al the cytye, ⁊ the hād of God was excedyng sore ther, in so moch ẏ they which died not, were smytē with ẏ Emerodes: so that the crie of the ci tie went vp to heauen.

The Notes.

a At the presence of the arcke falleth the Idoll when the Gospel of the Lord raungeth thorow the gentiles, then is all superstició vtterly ouerthrowē. When the worde of God is preached are heresies, the faultes of maners, and erroures of faythe destroyed.

¶ The heyfers brynge home the arcke with the rewardes. The Bethsamites were plaged after they had sent the arcke.

The. vi. Chapter.

A And so whē arcke of ẏ Lorde had bene in ẏ contreye of the Philistines seuen monethes, ẏ Philistines called for ẏ pre stes ⁊ the sothsayers saying: what shal we do with ẏ arcke of the lord? tell vs wherwith we shal sende it home againe. They answered yf thou sende the arck of the god of Israel home againe sē de it not emptye: But rewarde it wythe a trespasse offeryng: ⁊ then ye shalbe whole, ⁊ it shalbe knowen to you, why hys hand departeth not from you.

Then sayde they, what shalbe the trespaceofferyng whych we shall reward hym wt? And they answered: fyue golde arsses wythe Emerodes and fyue golden myce accordyng to the nōbre of the lordes of ẏ Philistines, for it was one maner of plage ẏ was on you all, and on your Lordes to.
Wherfore ye shall make images lyke to your arsses wt Emerodes ⁊ images lyke to your mice ẏ destroyed your land, ⁊ shal B geue glory vnto the God of Israell: that he may take his hād frō of you, ⁊ from of youre Goddes, and from of youre lande.
Wherfore shuld ye hardē your hertes as the Egypcians ⁊ Pharao hardened their hertes, whyche for all that (when he had played his pageauntes withe them) were fayne to lette the people go and depart.

Now therfore make a new carte ⁊ take two mealche kyne, on whose necke neuer came yock. And tye the kyne in the carte, ⁊ bring the calues whom frō thē. Thē take the arck of the lord ⁊ put it in the cart, and put the Iuelles of gold (which ye rewar-de him wt for a trespace offering) in a forcer by the side therof ⁊ send it awaye ⁊ let it go. And marke yf he go vp by the way ẏ leadeth vnto his owne cost to Bethsames, thē it is he ẏ did vs this great euyll. But and yf he do not, then it is not hys hande that smote vs, but it was a chaūce that ha pened vs. And the mē did euē so: they toke two kine that gaue milck ⁊ tyed thē in the cart, ⁊ kept the calues at home, ⁊ they laid the arck of the lord vpō the cart ⁊ the for- C cer withe the myce of golde ⁊ the images of their arsses wt Emerodes. And the kine toke the straight way to Bethsames, both one way, ⁊ as they wēt, lowed, turning ne ther to the ryght hād ner to the lefte. And ẏ lordes of ẏ Philistines wēt after thē vn tyl they came to ẏ borders of Bethsames.

And they of Bethsames were reppynge their wheteharuest in the valeye. And they lift vp their eyes ⁊ spied ẏ arcke. And re-ioysed whē they saw it. And the cart came into the groue of one Iehosua a Bethsamite, ⁊ stode styl ther. Ther was ther also a great stone. And they claue the wood of the cart ⁊ offered the kine a burntoffering vnto the Lorde. And the Leuytes toke downe the arcke of the Lorde & the forcer y was thereby, wherein the Juelles of gol de were & put thē on the greate stone. And ÿ mē of Bethsames sacrificed burnt sacri fice & offered offerynges ÿ same daye vn-D to the Lord. And whē the fyue Lordes of the Philistines had sene it, they returned to Akaron the same daie. These are ÿ gol den arsses wyth Emerodes whyche thee Philistines gaue to amēdes for a trespace offering to the Lorde: for Asdod one: for Gaza one: for Askalon one: for Geth one: & for Akarō one. And ÿ golde myce were according to the nōbre of al the cities of ÿ Philistines thorow ÿ .v. lordshipes: both of walled townes & of townes vnwalled, euē vnto the greate stone, wherō they sett downe ÿ arck of ÿ lord: which stone remai neth vnto this day in ÿ feld of Jehosua ÿ Bethsamite. And he plaged ÿ mē of Beth sames, because they had sene the arcke of the lorde. And he slue of the people fyftye thousād & thre skore & tē persones. And ÿ people lamēted, because the lord had slain so great a slaughter of thē. And the mē of bethsames said who is able to stād before the lord so holy a god & to whō shal he go from vs? And they sent messengers to the enhabyters of Kariath Jarim sayinge: The Philistines haue broughte home againe the arcke of the lorde: come downe & fet it vp to you.

¶ The arck is brought to Kariathiarim. The people wepe, for whych Samuell maketh intercession to the Lord. The Philistines are smytten.

The .vii. Chapter.

A Nd the mē of Kariathiarim cam & fet vp ÿ arck of ÿ lord, i. Reg. vi. a & *brought it vnto the house of Abinadab in Gabaah and sāctified Eleazar his sōne to waite vpō the arck of the lord. And while the arck abode in Kariathiarim, the daies multiplyed, that it was twentye yeres, & all Israell lamented after the Lorde.
And Samuell spake vnto all Israell saying yf ye become agayne vnto the lord wyth all your hertes, thē *put away the straū Jos. xxiiii. c ge goddes frō amōg you, & Ashtaroth, & prepare your hertes vnto ÿ lord & serue hī alone, & so shal he ryd you out of the hā-B des of the Philistines. And thē the childrē of Israel did put away *Baalī & Ashtaroth, & serued ÿ lord onli. Thē said Samuell gather al Israel to Maspha, ÿ I may pray for you vnto the lord, & they gathered together to Maspha, & drew water & pow red it out before the lord & fasted the same day & sayd there: we haue synned agaynst ÿ Lord. And Samuel iudged the causes of the chyldrē of Israel in Maspha. When the Philistines heard, ÿ the chyldrē of Israel were gethered together to Maspha, the lordes of ÿ Philistines wēt vp against Israel. And whē ÿ chyldrē of Israel heard ÿ, they were afrayde of thee Philistines & said to Samuel: cease not to crie vnto the Lord our god for vs, that he may saue vs C out of the handes of the Philistines. And Samuel toke a suckīng lābe & offred it al together for a burntoffring, vnto the lord & a*cryed vnto the Lorde for Israel: & the Lord heard him. And as Samuel offered the burntoffring, the Philistines come to fyght agaynst Israel. But the Lord thūdred a great thūder the same day vpō the Philistines, & turmoyled thē, ÿ they were beatē before Israel. And Israel issued out D of Maspha & pursued the Philistines & slue thē, vntyll they came vnder Bethcar.
And thē Samuel toke a stone & pitched it betwene Maspha & Sen, & called the na me therof *the stone of helpe, saying: thus farre hath the lord holpe vs. And so ÿ Phi listines were broughte vnder ÿ they came nomore into the coostes of Israel: for the hād of the lord was vpō the philistines al the dayes of Samuel. Therto the cytyes which the Philistines had takē frō Israel came agayne to Israell, euē frō Akarō to Geth, wyth the coostes of the same, which Israell plucked oute of the handes of the Philistines. For there was peace betwene Israell and the Amorites. And Samuell iudged Israell all thee dayes of hys lyfe, and wente aboute yeare by yere, to Bethel Galgall and Maspha, and iudged Isra ell in all those places, and came agayne to Ramath: for ther was hys house, and ther he iudged Israel, and there he bylt an aul ter vnto the Lord.

The Notes.

a¶ To crye here, signifieth not to make a loude noyse but to praye effectuously & wyth all his harte & mynde, Exodi. xiiii. d ¶ Because Samuels sonnes dyd minister euil: the people requyre a kynge to whō is descrybed the facion of a kyng.

The .viii. Chapter.

A When Samuel was olde, he made hys sonnes iudges ouer Israel. The name of his eldest sonne was Joell, & the name of the seconde Abiah, which were iudges in Bersabe. Neuerthe lesse his sonnes folowed not his steppes: but turned a syde after lucres & * toke rewardes, & peruerted the right. Thē al the elders of Israel geathered thē together & came to Samuel vnto Ramath and said vnto him: behold, thou art olde & thy son-nes folow not thy waies. Now therfore * make vs a king to iudge vs, as all other naciōs haue. But the thig displeased Samuel, whē they sayde, geue vs a kynge to iudge vs. And Samuel prayed vnto the B lord. And y lord sayd vnto samuell, heare the voice of the people in al y they say vnto the. For they haue not caste the awaye, but me: that I shuld not raigne ouer thē.
And as they haue euer done (sence I brought them out of Egipte vnto this daye, & haue forsaken me & serued other goddes) euē so do they vnto the. Now therfore her ken vnto their voice howbeit yet, testyfye vnto them & shew them y duty of the kig y shal raigne ouer them. And Samuell told al the wordꝭ of the lord vnto the people y asked a king of him, & he saide: thys C shalbe the * duty of the king y shal raigne ouer you: he wil take your sōnes & put thē to his charettes & make his horsemē of thē & they must rūne before his charet, & wyll make hi captaines of thē ouer thousādes & ouer fifties, & wil set thē to eare his grōd, & to gether in his heruest, & to make instru mētes of warre & apparel for hys charets And he wyll take youre daughters & make thē the dressers of his oyntmētes, & hys cokes & bakers. And he shal take y beste of your feldes, & of your vineyardes & of your oliue trees, & geue thē to his seruaūtes. And he shal take y tēth of your seed & of your vines, & geue it to his lordes, & to his seruaūtꝭ. And he shal take the beste of your menseruaūtes & maydeseruaūtes & yoūg men, & of your asses, & do his worke w thē. And he shal take the tenth of youre shepe, & ye shalbe his seruaūtes. And whē D ye crye out at that tyme vpon your king, which ye shall haue chosen you, the Lord wyll not heare you at that daye.

Neuerthelesse the people wold not heare the voyce of Samuell, but dyd saye: naye not so: But ther shalbe a kyng ouer vs, & we wilbe like al other naciōs. And our kin ge shal iudge vs, & go oute before vs and fight our battels. And Samuel hearde al the wordes of the people & rehersed thē in the eares of the lord. And the lord sayd to Samuel: herkē vnto theyr voyce & make thē a king. Then sayd Samuell vnto the men of Israel go euery man to his cytie.

The.ix. Chapter.

Now ther was a mā of Bē Ja A min named Cis the sonne of Abiell, the sonne of Zeror, the sonne of Bechorath, the sōne of Aphiah, the sonne of a mā that was a Jeminite, a mā of might the sa me had a sōne called Saul, a goodli yoūg mā, so y amōg the chyldrē of Israel, there was none goodlyer thē he, and was therto frō the shoulders vpward hier then al the other people. And it chaūced that the asses of this Cis Sauls father were lost. Then sayd Cis to Saul hys sonne: take one of the laddes with the & vp & go seke the Asses. And they wēt thorow moūt Ephraim & thorow the lād of Salisa, & foūd thē not Thē they wēt thorow the land of Salim, & ther they were not. Then they wente also thorow the lād of Jemini, & they foūd thē not. Then whē they were come to the land of Zuph, Saul sayd to the yoūge mā that was with him: come let vs returne, lest my father leue caringe for the Asses, and take thought for vs. And he answered him: behold, ther is in this citie a worshipfull mā of god, & al y he saith, cometh to passe, now then let vs go thether: peraduenture he shal shew vs what way we may go. Thē sayd B Saul to his ladde yf we go what shal we bring the mā? For our bred is al spent out of our vessels, & ther is none other presente to bring the man of God, what haue we?
And the yoūg mā answered Saul agayn & sayd: I haue foūd about me the fourthe part of a Sicle, that wyl we geue the man of God to tell vs our waye.

Before tyme in Israel whē a mā wēt to seke an āswere of god, thus wise he spake come & let vs go to ye Sear. For he that is now

now called a prophet, was in the old tyme called a Sear. Then sayde Saull to hys yoūg man: wel sayd of the: come let vs go And so they went vnto the cytie where the man of God was. And as they were goyinge vp into the cytie, they met with damo selles that came out to drawe water, & sayd vnto thē: is ther here a sear. And the may-dens answered thē, yea: beholde, he goeth before you. Make haste nowe, for he came thys day to the cytie, for ȳ people must offer this day in ȳ hyl. Whē ye be come into the cytie, so shal you finde him, yet he goo vp to the b hil to eate: for the people wyll not eat vntil he come, because he must bles se the offring. And thē eat they that be bid dē to ȳ feast. Now therfore get you vp for euē now shal ye fynd hym. And they wēte vp into the cytie. And whē they were come into the middes of ȳ citie: behold, Samuel came out agaynst thē, for to go vp to the hyl. But the lord had told Samuel a day C before Saul came, saying: to morow this tyme I wyl send the a mā out of the lande of BēIamin, him shalt thou anoynte to be captaine ouer my people Israel: that he may saue my people oute of the hād of the Philistines, for I haue loked vpō my peo ple, and theyr crye is come vnto me. Whē Samuel saw Saul, the Lorde answered him: se, this is the mā whō I spake to ȳ of This same shal raygne ouer my people.

Thē went Saul to Samuel in ȳ mid dle of the gate, & sayd: tell me I praye the, where about the sears house is, & Samuell answered Saul & sayd: I am the sear, go vp before me vnto the hyll, for ye shall eate with me to daye. And to morow I wil let the go earlye, & wyll tel the al that is in thyne herte, & as for thyne asses that were lost thys daye thre dayes, care not for thē, for they are found. And Moreouer whose shal the bewtiful thinges of Israel be? be longe they not to the, & vnto al thy fathers D house? But Saul āswered & said: am not I the sonne of a Jemynite of the smalleste tribe of Israel, & my kinred the least of al the kynredes of thee trybe of BenJamin, wherfore then spakest thou so to me.

And Samuell toke Saul & his ladd & brought thē into the parler and made thē syt in the chefest place amonge thē ȳ were bidde: which were vpō a thirtye persōnes.
Thē sayd Samuel vnto the cooke: bring forth the portion whyche I gaue the, & of which I said kepe it wt the. And the cooke toke vp the shoulder & brought it, & sett it before Saul. And Samuel sayd: behold ȳ which is left: put it before the & eate, for I kept it for the of purpose, whē I called the people. And so Saul dyd eate wt Sa muell that day. And when they were come downe frō the hyll into the cytie, Samuel comuned with Saul vpō the toppe of the house: & thei arose erly. And about ȳ sprig of the day Samuel called Saul vpō the top of the house saying: vp ȳ I may send the away. And Saul arose. And they wēt out at ȳ dores both of thē, bothe he & Samuel. And whē they were come almost out of the towne, Samuel sayd to Saul: byd the lad go before vs, & he wente, but stand thou styll a whyle euen now, that I maye shewe the what God sayth.

* Tary for me seuē dayes, tyl I come to þ & shew the what thou shalt do. And assone as he had turned hys shoulder to go from Samuell, God gaue hym another maner of herte, & al those tokēs cam to passe that same day. Whē they came to þ hyl: behold the cōpanie of prophetes mett hym, & * the spirite of God came vpō him, & he prophesyed amōg thē. And al that knew hym before, whē they saw þ he prophesied amōge þ prophetes, they sayd eche to other: what C is happened vnto the sonne of Cis? * Is Saul also amōg the prophetes? And one of thee same place answerid & sayde: who is theyr father? And thereof sprang a pro-uerbe: what is Saul also amōg the Prophetes? And when he had made an ende of prophesieng, he came to thee hyll. Saules fathers brother sayd vnto hym & hys lad: whether wēt ye? And he answered: to seke the asses, & when we saw that they were no where, we wente to Samuel. Then sayde Sauls vncle: tell me what Samuel sayd vnto you? And Saul āswered hys vncle: he told vs þ the asses were foūd. But of þ kingdō wherof Samuel spake told he hi not. After that Samuel called the people together vnto the lord to Mazphah & said vnto the childrē of Israel: thus sayth the lord god of Israel, I brought you out of Egipt, & deliuered you out of the hand of the Egiptiās, & out of the hādes of al kig dōs that oppressed you. And ye haue thys day cast away your God þ helpe you out of al your aduersities & tribulations. And ye haue sayd vnto him, * make a kinge ouer vs: Now therfore stād before the lord by your tribes and your thousandes: And D whē Samuel had brought all þ tribes of Israel the tribe of BeIamin was caught When he had brought the tribe of BeIa min by theyr kinredes, the kinred of Me-tri was caught: & Saul the sonne of Cis was caught. And they sought him: but he could not be foūd. Thē they asked the lord further: whether þ mā shuld come thither.
And the lord āswered: behold, he hath hyd him self amōg the stuffe. And they rāne & fet him thēce. And whē he stode amōg the people, he was hyer then any of the people frō the shoulders vpward. And Samuel sayd to al the people: there se ye whō þ lord hath chosen & how ther is none like him among all the companie. And al the people showted & sayd: God sende the king lyfe.
Then Samuel tolde the people the due tie of the kingdō, & wrote it in a boke, and layd it vp before the Lord, & so sent al the people awaye, euery mā to his house. And Saull also wente home to Gabaah. And ther went wyth hym an hoste, soch as god had touched theyr hartes. But the chyldrē of vnthriftinesse sayde: how shall he saue vs? and despysed hym and broughte hym not presentes. And he made as though he had not hearde it.

¶ The people delyuered frō the tyrāny of Nahas, reneweth the kingdom of Saul.

The .xi. Chapter.

Then Nahas thee Ammonite came & beseged Jabes in Ga A laad. And al the people of Ja bes sayd vnto Nahas: make a couenaūt with vs & we wyl be thy seruaūtes. And Nahas the Ammonite sayd: hereto wyl I make a couenaūte with you, euen to thrust out al your right eyes, þ I may bring þ shame vpō al Israel Then sayde the elders of Jabes: geue vs vii. dayes respite þ we may sende messengers vnto al þ costes of Israel. And thē yf ther come no mā to helpe vs, we wyl come out to þ. Then came þ messengers to Gabaah where Saul dwelt, & told this tidin ges in the eares of þ people. And al þ people lift vp theyr voices & wept. And behol de Saul came folowig hys oxen out of þ B feld, & asked what ayled þ people to wepe And they tolde him þ tidinges of the men of Jabes. Thē cam the spyrite of god vpō Saul, when he heard those tidinges, & he was exceding angrye. And toke a youke of oxen & hewed thē in peces, & sent them tho-rowe out al þ costes of Israel by þ hādes of messengers sayinge: whosoeuer cometh C not forth after Saul & after Samuel, so shall hys oxen be serued. Then the feare of the Lord fel on the people, & they came out as it had bene but one man. And whe they were nombred in Bezek the childre of Israel were thre hundred thousande, and the me of Juda thirtie thousad. And they sayde vnto y messengers that came, so say vnto y me of Jabes i Galaad: to morowe by y tyme the sonne be hote, ye shal haue helpe. And the messengers came and shewed the men of Jabes, & they were glad.

And then the men of Jabes sayde: to mo-rowe we wyll come oute vnto you, that ye may do with vs all y pleaseth you. And on y morow Saul put the people in thre partes. And they came in vpo y host in the mornyng watche, & slue y Ammonites vn tyl y heat of y day. And they y remayned, skattered: so y two of them were not lefte together. Then said y people to Samuel: D what are they y said: shal Saul raigne ouer vs? bringe the y we may slay the. But Saul sayd: ther shal no ma die this day, for to day the lord hathe saued Israell.
The sayd Samuel vnto y people: come & let vs go to galgal, & renew y kingdome ther. And y people wet to Galgal & made Saul kyng ther, before y Lorde in Gal-gal. And ther they offered peace offeriges before the Lord. And there Saul and all the people reioysed excedyngly.

The .xii. Chapter.

A The said Samuel vnto al Is rael: beholde I haue obeyed your voice in al y ye sayd vn to me, and haue made you a kyng. And se your kyng wal keth before you. But I am old & gray hea ded: & behold my sons are w you & I haue walked before you fro my childhode vnto this day. Beholde here I be: answere me before y lord & before his anointed, whose oxe haue I take? or whose asse haue I take? who haue I done wrong to? or who haue I pilled? And of whose hand haue I recea-ued any bribe to blynd myne eyes therwt? and I wil restore it you againe. And they say thou hast done vs no wrong, nor pilled vs, nether hast thou taken ought of any mannes hande. Then sayde he to them: the Lord is witnesse vnto you, and hys anoynted is wytnesse this day, that ye haue founde noughte in my handes. And they answered: we are witnesses. Then sayde B Samuel vnto the people it is the Lord y y made Moses & Aaro, & which brought youre fathers oute of Egipte. Now therfore stande styll, and let me reason wythe you before the Lord, of al the ryghtewesnesses of the Lorde which he shewed both you and youre fathers.
After that Jacob was come into Egipt, youre fathers cryed vnto the Lorde, & the lord sent Moses & Aaron, which brought your fathers out of Egipte, & made them dwel in this place. Neuerthelater they for gat the Lorde their God. And he sold the into the hande of Sisara chefe captayne of Jabin kynge of Hasor, and into the ha des of the philistines and into the handes of the kynge of Moab, which fought against them. Then they cryed vnto the lor de and sayde: we haue synned, because we haue forsake the Lord & haue serued Baalim and Astharoth. But now deliuer vs out of the handes of our enemyes and we wyl serue the. And y Lorde sent Jeroba- C al & Badan, Jephthah and Samuel, and delyuered you out of the handes of youre enemyes on euery syde, so that ye dwelled w out feare. And for al that whe you saw that Naas the kyng of y children of Am mo came against you, ye sayde vnto me: not so, a kyng shall raigne ouer vs, when yet y Lord your God was youre kynge.
Now therfore behold y kyng, whome ye haue chosen & whom ye haue desired: se, y Lord hath geuen you a kyng. Oh that ye wolde feare the Lord & serue hym & heare his voyce & not disobeye the mouth of the Lord: & that both ye & the kyng that raig neth ouer you wolde folow the Lord your God. For yf ye shall not herken vnto the voice of the Lord, but shal disobeye y lor des mouth: then shal the hand of the lord be vpon you & on youre fathers. Now al so stad & se this great thyng which the lor D de will do before youre eyes: is it not now whetherueste. And yet for all that, I wyl call vnto the Lorde, and he shall send thū der and

der & rayne. Wherbye perceaue & vnderstand: how that your wyckednes is great which ye haue done in the sight of the lord in asking you a kyng. And whe Samuel called vnto the lord, the Lord sent thunder & rayne the same daye. And all thee people feared the Lord and Samuel exceedingly. Thē sayd al ẏ people vnto Samuel: pray for thy seruauntes vnto thee Lorde thy God, that we dye not: for we haue synned in askyng vs a kyng besyde al the synnes that euer we dyd.

Thē sayd Samuel vnto ẏ people, feare not. And thoughe ye haue done all thys wyckednes yet depart not frō the Lord in any case. But serue him with al your hartes. Nether turne ye after vayne thinges, which cānot delyuer you, for they are but vanities. But the Lorde wyll not forsake hys people, because of his great names sake: because * the lord hath begon to make you hys people. Moreouer God forbidde that I shulde synne agaynste the Lord in leuynge prayinge for you and too shewe you the good and right waye. Only feare you the Lorde and serue hym truely with all youre hartes: for se, he hath done great thinges for you. But & yf ye shall do wickedly: then shal both ye and youre kynge therto perysshe.

C The Philistines are [illegible] of Saul & Jonathas. Saul being disobedient to Goddes cōmaundement is [illegible] of Samuel that he shal not raygne.

The.xiii. Chapter.

A Saul was as a chyld of a yere olde, whē he begā to raygne. And whē he hath raygned. ii yeares ouer Israell, he chose hym thre.M. men out of Israel. Two thousande were wyth Saul in Machmas & mount Bethel, & a thousand wyth Jonathas in Gabaah BenJamin. And the rest of the people he sent, euery mā to hys owne house. And Jonathas slue ẏ Philistines in an holde they had in Gabaah, & it came to the Philistines eares. And Saull caused the trompette to be blowen thorowout al the lande sayinge: let the Ebrewes heare. And all Israel hearde saye, how ẏ Saul had destroyed an hold of the Philistines, & how that Israel stancke vnto the Philistines. And all the people cried after Saul to Galgall.

Thē the Philistines gethered thē selues to geather to fight wt Israel, thirtie thousand charettes & sixe thousande horsemen with other people lyke ẏ * sand by the seis syde in multitude & came vp and pytched in Machmas eastward from Bethauē. And whē ẏ men of Israel saw thē selues in a straite, & ẏ the people were accombred, they hidd thē selues in caues, in preuy holes, in rockes, dennes & pittes. And ẏ Ebrues went ouer Jordan vnto the land of Gad & Galaad. But Saul was yet in Galgal, & al ẏ people ẏ folowed him were astonied. And he taried seuē daies as Samuel * had appointed. But Samuell came not to Galgal, & ẏ people skatered frō hi. Wherfore Saul said: bring burnt sacrifice to me & peaceofferinges. And he offered burnt sacrifice. And as sone as he had made an ende of offringē burntofferinges behold Samuel cam. And saul wēt against him, to salute him. Thē said Samuel to Saul: what hast thou done? And Saull said, because I saw ẏ the people skatered frō me, & ẏ thou camest not * wt in ẏ daies appointed & ẏ ẏ philistines gethered them selues together to Machmas: then said I, ẏ Philistines shal come downe vpō me to Galgal yer I haue made supplicatiō vnto ẏ lord. And therfore I toke a courage wt me & offred burntoffringes. Thē said Samuel to Saul, ẏ hast done folishly & hast not kept ẏ cōmaūdemēt of ẏ lord thy god which he cōmāded ẏ, for at this time wold ẏ lord haue stablished thy kyngdom vpon Israell for euer. But nowe thy kyngdome shall not contynewe. The Lord hath * sought him a mā after hys owne hert, & hath cōmaūded him to be a captayne ouer his people: because ẏ hast not kept ẏ whyche ẏ lord cōmaūded ẏ. And Samuel arose & gat him frō Galgal to Gabaah Beniamin. And Saul nōbred the people ẏ were foūd wt him, about a sixe hūdred mē. And Saul & Jonathas his sonne & the people ẏ were foūd with thē, had their abiding in Gabaah Beniamin. But the Philistines had pitched in Machmas. And ther came out of the hoste of the Philistines thre cōpanyes, too destroye: one companye turned vnto the way ẏ leadeth to Ephrah vnto the lande of Sual. And another cōpanye turned the waye to Bethorō. And the thyrd cōpany turned to ẏ way of the cost ẏ a I The Lorde is counted to seke for hym selfe, not because he knoweth not any thing of any man: but he speaketh after the maner of men, as thoughe a man spake to hys neyghboure: & this is to shewe hys wyll upon thē which he hathe euerlastyngly chosen, as it is sayde in Actu.xiii.b.

¶ Jonathas cōpanied whith his harnes bearer putteth ȳ Philistines to flight. He tasteth the hony which his father, vnknowing to him, had forbidde ȳ whole host. He shulde therfore haue bene slayne but the people delyuer hym.

The .xiiii. Chapter.

A And it fel on a daye, that Jonathas the sonne of Saull sayd vnto his yoūg mā that bare his harnes: come and let vs go ouer to ȳ watchmē of ȳ Philistines that are yonder on the other syde, & tolde not his father. But Saul ta-ryed in the vtmost part of Gabaah vnder a pomegarnet tree, that was in Magron, & the people that were wt him were vpon a sixe hūdred men. And Ahiah ȳ sonne of A-hitob Ichabodes brother, the sōne of Phinehes, the sōne of Eli, was ȳ lordes prest in Siloh and bare an Ephod. But ȳ people wist not that Jonathas was gone.

And in ȳ way ouer by whiche Jonathas sought to go ouer vnto ȳ garisō of ȳ Philistines, were there two sharpe rockes, euen one on the one syde, & ȳ other on the other B syde: the one called Bozez, & the other Se-neh. And the one leaned the northwarde toward Machmas, & ȳ other southward to ward Gabaah. Then sayd Jonathas to the young mā ȳ bare his harnesse: come & let vs go ouer vnto ȳ stādinge of these vn circūcised, paraduenture ȳ Lord wil worke wt vs: for ȳ lord is fre to saue wt many or wyth fewe. And his harnesbearer sayd vnto hym: do al that is in thyne hart: sette the forwarde: and se I am wyth the, as thyne hert lusteth. Then sayd Jonathas: behold whē we go ouer vnto the men, & shew our selues vnto thē: yf they sayd on thys wyse to vs: tarye vntyl we come to you, then we wyll stand styll where we be & goo not vp vnto thē. But & yf they so say vnto vs: come vnto vs, thē we wyl go vp, for the lord hath delyuered them into our hādes. And thys shalbe a sygne vnto vs. And when they had both shewed thē selues vnto the garison of the Philistines, the Philistines sayde: se, the Ebrues come oute of the holes wher they had hydd thē selues in. And the men of ȳ garison answered Jonathas and his harnesbearer & sayd: come vpp to vs, & we wyll shew you a thing. Thē sayd Jonathas vnto hys harnesbearer: come vp after me, for the Lorde hath delyuered them into the handes of Israell. And Jonathas clame vpon handes and fete, and hys harnesbearer after hym. Thē they fel before Jonathas: and hys harnesbearer slue them after hym. And the fyrst slaugh ter whych Jonathas and hys harnesbearer made, was vpon a twentie men, wythin the compasse as it were aboute an halfe aker of land. And there was a feare in the C hoste that was in the felde, and among all the people: in so moche that they that kept the holde, & they that were gone to robbe, were afrayde also: and the earth trymbled and ther was a feare sent of God. And the watche men of Saul in Gabaah BenJamin, saw. And behold, the people skattred and raune hyther and thyther. Then sayd Saul vnto the people that was with hym nombre and se who is gone away frō vs.
And when they had tolde: beholde, Jona-thas and hys harnesbearer were not there And thē saul said vnto Ahia: brīg hither ȳ arke of God. For the arke of God was at the tyme wyth the children of Israel. And whyle Saul talked vnto the prest, the people ȳ were in ȳ hoste of the Philistines, ra ne more and more. And Saull sayd vnto the preiste: wyth drawe thyne hande. And Saull cryed and all the people that were wyth him, and went to battel. And behold euery mās swerd was agaynst his felow, wyth a myghtie great slaughter. More-yet the ouer ÿ Ebrues ÿ were wt the Philystines before ÿ tyme, & were come wt them in all partes of ÿ hoste, they turned to Israel ÿ was withe Saul & Jonathas. And they also which had hyd them selues in mount Ephraim, as sone as they hearde howe ÿ the Philistines were fledde, they folowed D after them in battell. And so God holpe Israell that daye. And the battell continued vntyll they came to Bethauen.

And the mē of Israel ioyned thē selues together ÿ daye: & Saul adiured the people saying: Cursed be he that eateth anye fode vntyll nyghte, that I maye be avenged of myne enemyes. And so there was none of ÿ people that tasted any sustinaūce. And ✶ al the land came to a wood wher The live ... al ÿ pro ... ÿ lād honye lay vpon the groūd. And when the people were come into the wodde: Beholde, the honye dropped. How be it ther was no mā that moued his hād to his mouth, because that ÿ people feared the curse.
But Jonathas heard not whē his father adiured ÿ people, wherfore he put forth ÿ end of the staffe ÿ was in his hand & dept it in an hony combe, & put his hand to his mouth, & ✶ his eyes receaued syght. Thē spake one of the people & sayd: thy father adiured ÿ people saying: Cursed be ÿ mā that eateth any sustinaūce this daye, & yet the people were faintye. Then sayde Jonathas: my father hath troubled ÿ ✶ lād: for se, myne eies hath receaued sighte, because I tasted a lytle of this honye: howe thē yf al ÿ people had eaten of ÿ spoile of ther enemies which thei foūd had ther not ben thē a moch greater slaughter amōg ÿ E Philistines? And they laied on the Philistines that daye, frō Machmas to Aialō.
And the people were exceding faintye.

Then the people gate thē to the spoyle & toke shepe oxen & calues, & slue them on the groūd & dyd eate with the bloud. Thē men tolde Saul sayinge: Beholde the peo ple synne agaynst the Lorde, in that they eate wyth the bloude. And he sayd: ye haue trespaced: But rowle a great stone vn to me now, and go abroade amōg the peo ple & byd them brynge euery mā his oxe & euery man his shepe, & slay them here, & synne not agaynst the Lord in eatyng wt the bloude. And the people brought euery man his oxe in hys hande by nyghte & slue them ther. And Saul made an altare vn to the Lord. And ÿ was ÿ first altare that he made vnto the Lord. And Saul sayd: lett vs go downe after the Philistines by nyghte, & lett vs make hauocke amōg them vntyl it be daye in the mornynge, & let vs not leue one of thē. And ÿ people answered: do whatsoeuer thou thinkest beste. Then F sayd ÿ preist: let vs come hither vnto god.
And Saul asked of god: shal I go downe after ÿ philistines? & wilt ÿ deliuer thē into mine hādes? But he answered him not at ÿ tyme. Then sayd Saul let the people come hyther out of al quarters, & know & se, in whō this synne is chaūced thys day: for as truly as the Lord lyueth whyche hath saued Israell, thoughe it be in Jonathas my sonne, he shall dye for it. But no man answered him of al the people.

Then he sayd vnto all Israel: be ye on one syde, & I and Jonathas my sōne wil be on another. And the people sayde vnto Saul: what thou thynkest beste that do.
And Saul said vnto the Lord god of Israel: geue perfect knowledge. And Saul and Jonathas were caught, & the people skaped free. Thē said Saul: cast lotes be-twene me & Jonathas my sōne. And Jonathas was caught. Thē Saul sayde to G Jonathas tell me what thou haste done.
And Jonathas tolde him & said: I tasted a lytle honye vpon the ende of my staffe ÿ was in myne hande, and se, I must dye.

Then sayd Saul ✶ God do so & so to Ruth. i. me, excepte ÿ thou die Jonathas. But the people sayd vnto Saul: shall Jonathas dye which hath so mightelye holpe Israel? God forbyd As truly as the Lord lyueth, there shal not one hearre of his head fal to ÿ groūd: for he hath wrought wyth god this day. And so the people deliuered Jonathas, ÿ he dyed not. And thē Saull departed frō folowing ÿ philistines. And ÿ philistines wēt to their owne place. And so Saul toke ÿ kyngdom ouer Israell, & fought against al his enemyes on euerye syde: against ÿ Moabites: against ÿ children of Ammō: agaīst ÿ Edomites: agaist the kinges of Zobah & against the Philistines. And whether soeuer he turned him self, ther he wanne, & played the mā & slue the Amalechites, & ryd Israel out of the hādes of them ÿ spoiled them. The sonnes of Saull were, Jonathas, Je-sui, & Melchisua. And his two daughters were thus named: ỹ elder was called Merob & the younger Michol. And the name of Saules wife was Ahinoam the daughter of Ahimaas. And the name of his cheafe captaine was Abner the sonne Saules father. And Ner ỹ father of Ab ner was the sõne of Abiel. And there was sore warre wt ỹ Philistines, al ỹ dayes of Saul. For wheresoeuer Saul sawe a strõg mã, & an actiue, he toke hi vnto him

Then sayde Samuell vnto Saul: ỹ lord sẽt me to anoit A the kyng ouer his people Is the voice of the wordes of ỹ vnto them & se thou haue no cõpassiõ on thẽ. But slay bothe man & womã, infante

And Saull tolde it the people, & nom-bred them in Celaim two hundred thousand footemen, & ten thousãd men of Ju da. And Saul came vnto a citie of the A malechites, and foughte in a valeye. But Saul said vnto the Kenites go & depart & get you downe frõ amõg ỹ Amalechites lesse I destroye you with them for ye shewed mercy wyth Israel when they came B out of Egipte. And the Kenites departed from among the Amalechites.
And Saull slue the Amalechites frõ Heuila to Sur that lyeth before Egipte, and toke Agag the kinge of the Amaleckites a liue, & vtterly destroied al ỹ people with the edge of the swerde. But Saul & the lambes & al that was good, and wold not destroy thẽ. But al that was noughte worth & raggye, that they destroyed vtter ly. Then came the word of the Lorde vn to Samuel saying: it ✠ repenteth me that C I haue made Saul kĩg. For he is turned frõ me & hath not parformed my cõmaũ-demẽtes, wherfore Samuell was euell a payde & cried vnto ỹ Lord al nyghte. And Samuel rose erly, to mete Saul in ỹ mor ning. And it was tolde Samuel ỹ Saul was come to Carmell, and had sette hym vp a piller of triumphe. And was turned and departed and gone to Galgal.

And whẽ Samuel was come to Saul, Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be ỹ in the Lord. I haue done the cõmaundement of the Lord. And Samuel answered: what D meaneth thẽ the bleatynge of the shepe in mine eares, & the noyse of the oxe which I heare? And Saul said, thei haue brought thẽ from the Amalechites. For the people spared the best of the shepe & of the oxe, to sacrifice: vnto the lord thy god. And the remnaunt we haue destroyed.
But Samuel sayde to Saul: cease & let me tel the what the Lorde hathe sayde to me thys nyght. And he sayd vnto him: saye on. And Samuell sayde when thou wast ✠ lytle in thyne owne syght, wast ỹ not made the hed of the trybes of Israel?
And the Lorde anoynted the kynge ouer Israel. And then ỹ Lord sẽt the on a iour neye, & sayd vnto the, se that thou vtterlie destroye those synners, the Amalechites & fyght against them vntyll ye haue vtterly destroyed thẽ. And wherfore hast thou E now not obeyed the voice of ỹ Lord: But dydest turne to the pray & hast wroughte wickednesse in the syght of the Lorde.
And Saull sayde vnto Samuell: I haue obeyed the voyce of the Lorde, and went the waie which ỹ Lord sent me, & ha ue brought Agag the kinge of the Amalechites. And haue vtterly destroyed ỹ A-malechites. And ỹ people toke of ỹ spoile, shepe, oxen, & the chefest of ỹ thinges why che shuld haue bene destroied, to offer vn to ỹ lord thy god in galgal. The said Sa muel hath ỹ lord as great plesure in burnt sacryfyces & offerynges, as he hathe that thou shuldest obeye his voyce? Beholde, to ✠ obeye is better then offerynge, and to geue hede is better then the fat of rammes.

For rebellyousnes is as ŷ synne of witch crafte, and stoburnesse is wyckednes and Idolatrye. Because therefore thou haste cast awaye the word of the Lord, therfore F hathe the Lorde cast away the also, from beynge kynge.

Then sayd Saul to Samuel: I haue synned for I haue trespaced the mouth of the Lord, and thy wordes, because I feared the people & obeyed their voyce. But now take awaye my synne, & turne agayne wyth me, that I may worshipe the Lord.
Then sayde Samuel vnto Saul: I wyl not returne wt ŷ: for thou hast cast awaye the byddyng of God, & therfore the lorde hath cast away the also, ŷ thou shalt not be kynge ouer Israell. And as Samuell turned to go away, he caught the lappe of his coote, and it rent. Thē Samuel sayd, the Lord hath rent the kyngdome of Israell from the thys daye, & hathe geuen it to a neybouře of thyne that is better then thou. And therto he that geuethe vyctorye to Israell, wyll not begyle nor repent: for he is not a man, that can repent.

Then he sayd: I haue synned. But yet honoure me before ŷ elders of my people, and before Israel, and turne agayne with me, that I maye pray vnto the Lorde thy God. And Samuell turned agayne and folowed Saull. And Saul prayed vnto the Lorde. Then sayd Samuel: Brynge G ye hither to me, Agag the kyng of the A-maleckites. And Agag came vnto hym delycately. And Agag sayd: truly ŷ bitternes of deth cometh on. And Samuel sayd: As thy swerd hath made wemē childlesse, so shal thy mother be chyldelesse amōg other wemē. And so Samuel hewed Agag in peces before ŷ lord in Galgal. And the Samuell departed to Ramath. And saul wēt home to his house to Gabaah Saull.
But Samuel came no moare to se Saul vntyl the daye of his deeth. Neuerthelesse Samuell mourned for Saull, because the Lord repented that he had made hym kynge ouer Israel.

Joseph de Antiq. lib. vi. capite. ii expresseth Samuels sayinge in lyke manner. But hys wordes are to longe to reherse.

d ¶ To be cast away from the Lord is, to be blin-ded and to dispayre of the goodnes of god. Esa. i. c ¶ Dauid is anoynted kyng, and reteaneth ŷ holye goost. An euil spyrite cometh vpon Saul whyche de-parteth when Dauid playethe.

The. xvi. Chapter.

And then the Lord sayd vnto A Samuel: How longe wylt ŷ mourne for Saul, seyng I haue cast him away frō rayg-nig ouer Israel: fyl an horne with oyntmēt, and come: I will sende ŷ to Isai ŷ Bethlehemite, for I haue spied me a kynge among his sōnes. But Samuel answered: how shall I go? For Saul shal heare it & wyl kyll me, and thee Lord sayde: Take an heyfer wyth the, & saye thou gost to offer to the Lord. And calle Isai to the offeryng, and I wyll shew the what thou shalt do: And thou shalt anoine him whom I say vnto the. And Samuel did as the lord bad him. And whē he came to Bethlehem, the elders of ŷ towne were astoned at hys comynge, and sayde: Brokeneth thy comynge peace? and he sayde yee, for I am come to offer vnto the lorde. B *Clense youre selues and come wyth me The chyld enter [illegible] to the offerynge. And he puryfied Isai & his sonnes, and bad the to the offerynge.
And whē they were come, he loked on Eliab & sayd: ŷ lords anoynted is before hym.
But ŷ lord sayd vnto Samuel: loke not on his facion nor on the heyght of his stature, for I haue refused him. Because it C is not as mā seyth. For man loketh on the outward appearaunce: but the Lorde beholdethe the harte. Then Isai called Abinadab & made him come before Samuel.
And he said: nether hath ŷ lord chosē this.
Then Isai made Samah come, and he sayd: nether yet hath ŷ Lorde chosen him.
Then made Isai seuē of hys sōnes come before Samuell. And Samuel sayde, ŷ Lorde hath chosen none of these.

Then sayde Samuel to Isai: are here D al thy chyldren? and he sayde: ŷ youngest is yet behynd: Beholde, he kepeth the shepe. Thē Samuel sayd vnto Isai: send & fetc hym for we wyl not syt downe, tyll he be come hyther. And he sent & broughte hym in. And he was browne with goodly eyes, and well fauoured in syght. And then the Lorde sayde vp and anoynt hym: for this is he. And Samuell toke the horne wythe the oyntemente and annoynted hym in the presens of hys brethren. And the sprete of the Lorde came vppon Dauid, from that daye forward. And Samuel rose vp and went to Ramath.

But the sprete of the Lord departed frō Saul, & an euel sprete sent of the Lord, vexed him. Thē sayd hys seruaūtes vnto hym: Beholde, an euell sprete sent of God vexeth the, let our Lord therfore cōmaunde his seruaūtes to seke a man that is a cōning player wt an harpe. And thē whē the euel sprete sent of God, cometh vpō the, y he may play with his hande, & thou shalte D be eased. And Saul said vnto his seruaūtes: seke me a mā that can wel play, & bringe hym to me. Then answered one of hys seruaūtes & sayd: Beholde, I haue sene a sonne of Isai thee Bethlehemite, that can play vpō instrumētes, & is an actiue felowe & a mā of warre & prudēt & wel made, & the Lord is wyth hym. Whē vpō Saul sent messengers vnto Isai & said: send me Dauid thy sonne which is with the shepe. And Isai toke an asse ladē with bred, and a flacket of wyne, & a kydde, & sent thē by Dauid hys sonne vnto Saull. And Dauid went to Saul and came before hym, and he loued him very wel, so that he was made hys harnesbearer. And Saull sente to Isai saying: lett Dauid remayne wyth me, for he hath found fauour in my syght. And when the sprete of God come vppon Saull, Dauid toke an harpe and played wyth his hande, and so Saul was refresshed, and dyd amende and the euell sprete departed from hym.

The philistines gethered theyr hooste to battel, & came toge- A ther to Socoh in Iuda, and pitched betwene Socoh & Azekah, in the ende of Domim. And Saul and the men of Israel came & pitched in Okedale & put thē selues in araye, to fyghte agaynste thee Philistines. And the Philistines stode on an hyll on y one syde, & Israel stode on an hyll on the other syde, & a valey betwene thē. And thē came a mā & stode in the myddes, oute of the tentes of the Philistines named Goliath, of Geth syxe cubites & an hādbredth longe, & had an helmet of brasse vpon hys head, and a cote of maple about hym. And the weyght of hys coote of maple was fyue thousand Cicles of brasse. And he had harnesse of brasse vpō his legges, & a shilde of brasse vpon hys shoulders. And the shaft of his speare was like a weuers beame. And his spearehead weyed. vi. hūdred sikles of yron. And one bearinge a shylde went before hym.

And he stode & called vnto the hoste of Israel, & sayd vnto thē: what nedeth that ye shulde come oute in araye to battel: am not I a Philistine, and you seruauntes to Saul: chose you a mā, & let him come down to me, yf he be able to fyght with me & too beate me, then we wyl be your seruauntes. But yf I can ouercome hym & beate hym then ye shalbe our seruauntes & serue vs. And the Philistine sayd: I haue defyed y hoste of Israell thys daye: geue me a man B & let vs fight together. When Saul & al Israel hearde those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged & greatlye afrayed. And this Dauid was the sonne of an Ephrathite of Bethlehē Iuda, named Isai, which Isai had eyghte sonnes. And was an olde mā in the dayes of Saull among the people. And the thre eldest sonnes of Isai wēt and folowed Saul to battell. And the names of hys thre sonnes y went to battel, were: Eliab the eldest, & the next to him Abinadab, & the thyrde Samah, & Dauid was y youngest. And whē the thre eldest were gone after Saull, Dauid went and departed from Saul, to fede hys fathers thers shepe at Bethlehem. And the Phili stine came forth euery mornyng ⁊ euenin ge, and contynued fourtye dayes.

And Isai sayd vnto Dauid hys sone: take for thy brethren thys Epha of parched corne, and these ten loues, ⁊ runne to the hoste, to thy brethren. And carye these ten freshe cheses vnto the captaine, ⁊ loke how thy brethrē fare, ⁊ * fet out their pled ges. And Saul ⁊ they and all the men of Israel were in ocke valey fyghting wt ye Philistines. And Dauid rose vp erlye in the morning and left the shepe with a ke-per, ⁊ toke and wēt, as Isai had cōmaunded him, and came where ye host laye. And ye host was goyng out in aray, and show C ted in the battel: for Israel ⁊ the Philistines had put thē selues in araye, the one a gainst ye other. Thē Dauid put ye panyer from him, vnto the hādes of the keper of the vessels, ⁊ ranne into the host ⁊ came ⁊ saluted hys brethrē. And as he talked wt them: Beholde, there stode a mā in ye mid-des, Goliath the Philistine by name, of Beth, which came out of the Araye of the Philistines, ⁊ spake of the manet aboue rehersed, yt Dauid hearde it. And all ye mē of Israel, whē they saw the man, ranne away frō hym, ⁊ were sore afrayed. And e-uery man of Israel sayde: Se ye this mā that is come forthe, euen to reuyle Israel is he come. And to hym yt beateth hym wil the kynge geue great ryches, ⁊ wyll geue him his daughter therto: ye and make his fathers house fre in Israel.

Then spake Dauid to the men yt stode by and said: what shalbe done to the mā that beateth this philistine ⁊ taketh away the shame from Israel? for what is thys vncircumcysed Philistine, that he shulde D reuyle the hoste of the lyuinge God? And the people answered as it is rehersed sayinge: so shall it be done to the man yt bea-teth hī. And Eliab his eldest brother hear de when he spake vnto the man ⁊ was an grie withe Dauid ⁊ sayde: why camest thou away, ⁊ with whom haste thou lefte those few shepe in ye wildernesse? I know thy pryde and the malice of thyne herte, yt thou art come to se ye battell. And Dauid answered, what haue I now done? is ther any moare saue a worde? And departed frō by him into another frونte, and spake of the same manet, ⁊ the people answered him agayne, as before.

And they that heard the wordes which Dauid spake, rehersed thē before Saull, which caused hym to be fett. And Dauid sayde to Saull: Lette no mannes herte fayle him because of him. Thy seruaunte wil go ⁊ fyght with this Philistine. And Saul sayde to Dauid agayne, thou arte not able to go vnto this philistine, to fight wt him. For thou art but a ladd, ⁊ he hath ben a mā of warre euē frō his youth. Thē sayd Dauid vnto Saul, as thy seruaūte kept hys fathers shepe, there came a Lyō ⁊ likewise a Beare, ⁊ toke a shepe oute of ye flock. And I wēt out after him ⁊ smote him, ⁊ toke it out of his mouth. And whē he arose agaynste me, I caught hym by the bearde and smote him ⁊ slue him. For both a Lyō and also a Beare hath thy ser uaūt slayne. And this vncircumcised phi listine shalbe as one of thē, for his railing E on the host of ye liuynig God. And Dauid spake moreouer, the Lorde that deliuered me oute of the hādes of ye Lyon ⁊ oute of ye handes of ye Beare, he shall deliuer me also oute of the handes of the Philistine.

Then sayd Saul to Dauid go, ⁊ the lord be with the. And Saul put hys ray-ment vpon Dauid, and put an helmet of brasse vpon his heede, and put a coote of mayle vpō hym, ⁊ gyrde Dauid with his owne swerd vpon his raymente. And he as sayed to go, for he neuer proued it. Then sayd Dauid vnto Saul: I can not go in these, for I haue not bene vsed therto, and put thē of him ⁊ toke his staffe in his hā-de, ⁊ chose him fyue smothe stones oute of a broke ⁊ put thē in a shepardes bagge which he had, ⁊ in a poke, ⁊ hys slinge in his hande, ⁊ went to the Philistine.

And ye Philistine came ⁊ drue nere to Dauid, withe the man yt bare a shylde before him. And whē ye philistine loked and saw Dauid: he disdained him, for he was but a lad, roudy ⁊ goodlye to loke vpon. F And ye philistine said vnto Dauid: am I a dog, yt thou comest to me wt a staffe? ⁊ he cursed Dauid in the name of his goddes And he sayd to Dauid: come to me and I wyll geue thy flesh vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the felde.
Then sayd Dauid to the Philistine: thou comest to me wyth a swerd a speare and a shylde: But I come to the in the name of ẏ Lord of hostes, the god of the host of Israel whom thou hast rayled vpon. Thys daye shal the Lord delyuer the into my hã de, and I shal smyte the & take thyne head from the, & I wyl geue the karcases of the hoste of the Philistines thys day vnto the fowles of the ayre: & to the beastes of thee earth, and all the worlde shall knowe, that there is a God in Israel. And all this con gregation shall knowe, that the Lorde saueth not with the swerd & speare. For thee battel is the Lordes, and he shal geue vou into our handes.

And whẽ the Philistines arose & came & drue nye vnto Dauid. Dauid hasted & ranne in araye euẽ agaynst the Philistine And Dauid put his hand in his poke and toke out a stone and slange it, & smote thee Philistine in his forheade that the stoone soncke into his forhead, & he fel groucling G to the earth. And so Dauid ouercame the Philistine with a slyng & a stone, & smote ẏ Philistine & slue him. And because Dauid had no swerde in his hand, he ranne & stode vpõ the Philistine, & toke his swerde & drue it out of hys shethe & slue hym & cutt of his head therwith. And whẽ the Philistines sawe that theyr chãpion was dead, they fled. And the men of Israel & of Iu-da arose & showted and folowed after the Philistines, vntyl they came to the valeye & vnto the gates of Akaron. And the Phi listines fel downe dead by the waye, euen vnto Geth & Akaron. And thẽ the chyldrẽ of Israel returned from chasing after the Philistines & robbed theyr tẽtes. And Da uid toke the head of the Philistine & brou ghte it to Ierusalem: But he put hys armoure in hys tente.

Whẽ Saul sawe Dauid goo forth a-gaynst the Philistine, he sayd vnto Abner the captayne of his host: Abner, whose son is this lad? And Abner answered as truly as thy soule lyueth, O king, I cannot tel.
Thẽ sayd the king: Enquere thou, whose sonne the youngeling is. And so whẽ Da uid was returned frõ the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner toke him & brought him before Saul, wyth the head of the Philistine in his hand. And Saul sayd to him: whose sonne art thou, ẏ lad? And Dauid answered the sonne of thy seruaunt Isai the Bethlehemite.

¶ The bõd betwene Dauid & Ionathas. Saul goeth aboute to sley Dauid. Dauid marieth Michol the daughter of Saul.

The. xviii. Chapter.

AND when he had made an en de of speakyng vnto Saul, A the soule of Ionathas was knit withe ẏ soule of Dauid.
In so moche ẏ he loued hym as his *owne soule. And Saul toke hym Quite vnite that daye and wolde let him go no moare home to his fathers house. And Ionathas & Dauid boũd them selues the one to the other, for Ionathas loued hi as his owne soule. And Ionathas put of hys owne coote ẏ was vpon him, & gaue it Dauid, & therto his mãtle, his swerde, his boowe & his gyrdle. And Dauid went out to al that Saull sente hym, and behaued him selfe wysely. And whẽ Saul had set him B ouer his men of warre, he pleased al ẏ peo ple, and Sauls seruauntes therto.

And it happened as they wẽt, whẽ Da uid was returned from the slaughter of thee Philistine, that wemen came oute of al cyties of Israel synging & daunsing, a gaynst Saul, wyth tymbrelles, wyth ioy, and wyth fidilles. And the wemen ẏ played sange therto, and sayde: Saul hathe slayne his thousande, and Dauid hys ten thousande. Then was Saull excedynge wroth & ẏ sayig displeased him, & he said: they haue ascrybed vnto Dauid tẽ thousand, & to me but a thousande, & what can he more haue saue the kyngdome? wherefore Saul loked on syde of Dauid frõ ẏ daye forward. And it happened on ẏ mo- C row, that ẏ euel sprete sent of god came vpõ Saul, so that he prophesyed in ẏ myd des of the house. And Dauid plaied on ẏ instrument with his hãde as he was day-ly wõt. And Saul had a speare in his hã-de, & hourlde it entẽding to to haue nailed Dauid to the wall. But Dauid auoyded out of his presẽce two tymes. For Saull was aferd of Dauid, because ẏ lord was with him, and was departed from Saul.
And then Saul put Dauid from hym & made him a captayne ouer a thousande, & he wente oute & in before the people. And Dauid was wyse in al that he toke in hã-de, and the Lorde was wt him. Wherfore when

whē Saul saw that he was so exceadynge D wise, he was afraid of hym. But al Jsra-el & Juda loued Dauid, because he went out and in before thē. Thē sayd Saul to Dauid. Beholde my eldeste daughter Merob, her J wyl geue the to wife: Only play the man & fyght the lordes battelles.
For Saul thought: myne hād shall not be vpō him, but the hāde of ỹ philistinz. And E Dauid answered Saul: what am J? & what is my life or the kinred of my father in Jsrael, ỹ J shuld be sonne in law to the king: How be it when the time was come ỹ Merob Sauls daughter shoulde haue bene geuen to Dauid she was geuen vnto Adriel a Meholothite, to wife. How be it Micholl Sauls daughter loued Da-uid. And when it was shewed saul: ỹ thin ge pleased hym wel. And he sayde: J wyl geue hym her that she maye be a snare to hym, to bring the hande of the philistines vpon hym. And Saul sayd to Dauid: ỹ shalte thys day be my sōne in law againe.
And Saul commaunded his seruauntes to comen wyth Dauid secretly & say: Behold the kyng hath a fauoure to the, and al hys seruauntes loue the, be therfore the kynges sonne in lawe.

F And Sauls seruauntes spake those wordz in the eare of Dauid. But Dauid āswered: semeth it to you a lyght thing to be the kynges sonne in lawe, when J am a poore man & of smalle reputacion? And Sauls seruauntes told hym agayne say ing: of thys maner āswered Dauid. Thē sayde Saull: thys wyse saye to Dauid: the kyng careth for no nother dowrye but for an hūdred foreskynnes of the Philisti nes, to be auēged of the kinges enemies.
For Saull thoughte to make Dauid fal into the handes of the Philistines. Then his seruauntes tolde Dauid these wordz, and it plesed Dauid wel to be the kinges sōne in lawe. And shortlye after ỹ Dauid G arose wyth hys men, and wente, and slue of the Philistines two hundred men, and brought their foreskynnes, & satisfyed the king therof to be his sonne in law. * And so Saul gaue him Micholl hys daughter to wife. And when Saul saw & vnder stode how that the Lord was wt Dauid, & that Micholl hys daughter loued hym, he was the moare afrayed of Dauid, & be came Dauids enemie for euer. And when the Philistines went out to warre, Dauid behaued hym self wyselyer then all the ser uauntes of Saull: so that hys name was moche sett by.

Then Saul commned wyth Jonathas hys sonne, & wyth all A hys seruauntes, ỹ they shulde

Sauls sonne had a great fa uoure to Dauid, & tolde Dauid sayinge: Saul my father goeth aboute to slee the.
Now therfore take hede to thy self, by tymes & abide in some secret place & hyd thy self. And J wyl go out & stande by my father in the felde where thou art: & wyl come with my father of the, & yf J can par-ceaue ought J wyll tell the.

And Jonathas spake the best of Da-uid vnto Saul his father and sayd vnto him: let not the king synne against his ser uāt Dauid, for he hath not sinned against the, and his workes are to the warde: very good. For he dyd put his lyfe in his hāde & slue the Philistine, and the Lord gaue a great victorie to al Jsrael. And ỹ sawest it, & thou reioysedest, wherfore then shul- B dest thou synne against innocent bloud, & slee Dauid for nought? And Saull harkened vnto the voyce of Jonathas & swa re: as trulye as the Lorde lyueth, he shall not dye. Then Jonathas called Dauid & shewed him al those wordes, and brought him to Saul. And he was in hys presens as in tymes past.

And the warre began agayn, & Dauid wēt out & fought wt the philistines & slue a great slaughter, & put thē to flyght. And the euel spyrte of the lord was vpō Saul as he sat in hys house hauing a Jaueline hym selfe. And then she toke an Image & layed it in the bed, & put a pyllowe stuffed with goates hayre vnder thee head of it, & couered it with a cloth. And when Saull sent messengers to fetch Dauid, she sayde þ he was sycke: Then Saul sent the messengers to se Dauid sayinge: bringe hym to me, bed and all, that he maye be slayne.

And when thee messengers were come in:
Behold there laye an Image in the bedde Michol answered Saul: he said vnto me let me go, or els I wyl kyl the. And so Da uid fled and escaped and wẽt to Samuel to Ramath & tolde hym al that Saul had done to hym. And he, and Samuel wente and dwelt in Naioth.

D And it was tolde Saul saying: Beholhym selfe to Ramath, & when he came to a great welle that is in Socoh, he asked and sayd: where are Samuell & Dauid? And they said: se they be at Naioth in Ramath cõcluded of my father, to come vpõ the: & shuld not tell it ye. Thẽ saide Dauid, who shal tel me, yf thy father answere cruelly? Thẽ said Jonathas to Dauid, come & let vs go out into the feldes. And they wente out both of them into the feldes.

And Jonathas sayd vnto Dauid: O
C Lord god of Israell, whẽ I haue groped my fathers mynde, one time or other within this thre dayes, that it stand well wyth Dauid: and I then sende not vnto the & shew it the, the lord do so & so vnto Jonathas. And in lyke maner, yf euell to ye warde please my father, I wyl shewe the and sende the awaye, that thou mayste go in peace, And the lord be with the as he hath ben with my father. And ye shalt performe vnto me the mercy of the Lorde, not only whyle I lyue: but euen when I am deed [illegible] pluck not thy mercye awaye from my house for euer: No not when the Lorde hathe destroied ye enemies of Dauid euery one from the face of the erth.

And so Jonathas made a bonde wyth the house of Dauid, desyringe that the Lorde shoulde seke oute of the handes of Dauids enemyes their wickednesse. And wyth other wordes Jonathas adiured Dauid, because he loued him. For as hys owne soule he loued him.

D The said Jonathas to Dauid: to morowe shall be the fyrste daye of the mone. And thou shalt be missed, because ye place shall appere emptye. But thys daye thre dayes come in anye wyse vnto the place where thou shalt hyde thy selfe, when it is worckedaye, euen by the stone Esell. And I wil shote thre arowes by ye one syde therof, as though I shott at a marke, & wil sende after a ladd, and bidde him go seke the arowes. If I saye vnto the ladd: se the arowes are on this syde ye, brynge thẽ: then come ye: for it is peace & nothing to do, as sure as ye lord liueth. But & yf I say thus vnto the yoũg felow, behold, ye arowes are beyõd ye, thẽ go, for the lord hath sent the away. And of this which ye & I haue spoke: behold the Lord is witnesse betwene the & me for euer. And so Dauid hyd him selfe in the felde. And when the new mone was come, ye king sat him downe at meate, for E to eate. And the king sat him downe after the old maner, in his seat by the wall. And Jonathas arose, & Abner sate by Sauls syde, & Dauids place was emptie. Neuerthelesse yet Saul sayd nothing at al that day. For he thought some thing had chaũced him that he is not cleane. But on the morow which was the seconde day of the mone, whẽ Dauids place apered emptye. Saull sayde vnto Jonathas hys sonne: wherfore cometh not the sonne of Isai to meate, nether yesterdaye nor to daye. And Jonathas ãswered vnto Saull. Dauid asked lycence of me to go to Bethlehẽ saying: let me go I pray the, for our kynrede holde an offerynge in the cytie, & my brother hath sent for me. Now therfore yf I haue found fauour in thyne eyes, lett me go and se my brother. And therfore he cometh not vnto the table of the king. Thẽ F was Saul angrie with Jonathas & said vnto him: O froward & rebellyous, thinkest thou I knowe not howe thou haste chosẽ the sonne of Isai vnto thyne owne rebuke, & vnto the rebuke & shame of thy mother. For as longe as the sonne of Isai lyueth vpon the erthe, thou shalte not be stablished, nor yet thy kingdome, wherfore nowe sende and fett hym vnto me, * [illegible] for he is the chylde of deeth.

But Jonathas answered Saull hys father & sayde to him: wherfore shulde he dye? what hath he done? Then Saul cast a speare at him to hyt him, wherby Jonathas wiste well, ye it was vtterlye determyned of hys father, to sleye Dauid. And so Jonathas arose frõ ye table in a great anger & dyd eate no meat the second day of the moneth, for he was sory for Dauid, because his father had done hi shame. On the next morning Jonathas went out into the felde, at the tyme apoynted wt Dauid, & a lytle lad with him. And he said vnto the boy: runne & find out myne arowes which I shote. And as the boye ran, he shote an arow beyonde him. And whẽ the ladd was come to ye place whether Jonathas had shot the arowe, Jonathas cryed G after him & sayd: the arow is beyõde the. And he cried after ye lad: hast, make spede & stãd not still. And Jonathas lad gathered vp the arowe & came to his mayster. But ye lad wist nothĩg of ye matter: Only Jonathas & Dauid wist it. Then Jonathas gaue his wepõs vnto the lad & sayd vnto him: go & carie the to the towne. And as sone as the lad was gone, Dauid arose out of a place that was towarde the south & fel on his face to the grou͂d & bowed him self .iii. tymes. And they kissed ether other & wept to gether, but Dauid more abundantly. And Jonathas sayd to Dauid: go in peace whyche * we haue sworne bothe of vs in thee name of thee Lorde saying: the Lorde be betwene the and me, and betwene thy sede and myne for euer. And he rose and departed. And Jonathas we͂t in to the towne.

¶ Dauid fleeth in to Nob to Ahimelech the priest & getteth of him shew bread to satisfye hys hongre & that with a cleane conscyence. After he flyeth to kyng Achis, and ther feyneth him selfe to be mad.

The .xxi. Chapter.

A Then came Dauid to Nob to Ahimelech the priest: And Ahimelech was astonied at his coming & said vnto hi͂: Why comest thou thy selfe alone, & no man with the? And Dauid sayd to Ahimelech the priest: the king hath commaunded me to do a certe͂ thing & said vnto me, let no man know where aboute I sende & what I haue commaunded the to do. And therfore I haue appoynted my seruauntes to soche and soche places. And nowe what hast thou vnder thyne hande? geue me fyue loaues of bread or what commeth to hande.

And the priest answered Dauid & said ther is no comen bred vnder myne hande, but ther is halowed bred yf þ yong men

B had abstained onli fro͂ weme͂. And Dauid answered the priest & sayde vnto him: of a truthe wemen hathe bene locked vp from vs about a thre dayes, when I came out: and the * vesseles of the yong men were holy. Howbeit a this way is vnpure, but it shal be halowed in the vessel. And so the priest gaue hym halowed bread, for there was none other bred ther saue shewe breades that were taken from before the lord, to putte freshe bread there, the daye that it was taken awaye.

*That is, ꝥ bodies.

And ther was ther the same day a certen man of the seruau͂tes of Saull abidinge before the lord named Doeg an Edomite

C the chefest of Sauls heard me͂. And Dauid sayde vnto Ahimelech: is not here vnder thyne hande other speare or swerde? for I haue nether brought my swerde nor myne harnes wyth me, because thee kynges busines requyred haste. Then the Priest answered: the swerd of Goliath the Philistine whome thou sluest in Ockdale, that is here wrapt in a cloth behind the Ephod yf thou wylt take that, take it: for there is no nother saue that here. And Dauid said there is none to that, geue it me.

And Dauid arose & fled the same daye fro͂ the presence of Saul, & we͂te to Achis the kinge of Geth. And the seruauntes of Achis sayd of him: is not this Dauid the king of the lande? dyd they not syng vnto this felow in daunses saying: Saul hath slayne his thousand, & Dauid hys .x. thou

D sand? And Dauid putt those wordes into hys hart & was sore afrayed of Achys the king of Geth. And he chaunged his countenaunce before them, and raued in theyr hādes, & scrabled on the dores of the gate, and lett hys spittell fall downe vpon hys bearde. Then sayde Achis vnto hys seruaunt. Loo ye sawe that this mā was besyde hym self, wherfore then haue ye brought hym to me? lacke I mad men, that ye haue brought thys felow to play the mad man in my presence? he shal not come into my house.

a ☞ Thys way is vnpure &c. That is, in the wayes we take [illegible] vncleanesse (as ye wolde saye) wyth pollucions in the nyght or other thinges, which are fylthy by Moyses lawe, so that perfectly cleane are we not, [illegible] that is a small matter & wyl sone be clensed, because we haue absteyned our bodyes [illegible] wyues & kept the holy & clene. This example of Dauid teacheth that [illegible] hath no lawe, and that man ought not to be a seruaunt to ceremonies, but ceremonies ought to serue the vse of man. Thys is [illegible] as doth Christ send the Pharises hyther. Mat. xii.

¶ Dauid fleeth into the caue Odollam. After that into Maspha to the kyng of Moab. And therafter to Hareth. Doeg betrayeth Dauid. Ahimelech is accused of treyson and slayne, and [illegible] priestes [illegible] with him because they releued Dauid. Nob is destroyed of Saul. Abiathar fleeth to Dauid.

The .xxii. Chapter.

A And Dauid departed thence & scaped, and came vnto the caue Odollam. When his brethren & all hys fathers house hearde it, they went thither to hym. And there gathered vnto hym all all men that were in combraunce and in det and troubled in their hertes and he became a captayne ouer them. And there were with him vpon a foure hundred men. And Dauid went thence to Mazphah in the land of Moab, and sayde vnto the kynge of Moab: Let my father and mother I pray the, haue their abydynge with you, tyll I knowe what God will do wyth me. And he left them with the king of Moab, and they dwelt with him all the whyle that Dauid kepte him selfe in holde. And the prophete Gad sayd vnto Dauid: Abide not in castelles, but departe & go to the land of Iuda. Then Dauid departed and came into the forest Hareth. And Saul hearde of it: for Dauid was knowen & also the men that were with him. And as Saull satt in Gabaah vnder a groue vpon a hye bancke with his speare in hys hand and al hys men about him, he sayde vnto his seruauntes that stode

B about him.. Heare I pray you you sonnes of Iemini: will the sonne of Isai also geue euery one of you feldes & vyneyardes, & make you all captaines ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes: that ye haue al conspired agaynst me, so that ther is none of you that * openeth myne eare, in so moche that my sonne hath made a bonde with the sonne of Isai, nether is there anye of you that mourneth for me or sheweth it in myne eare: because my sonne hath set vp my seruaunte to lye a wayte agaynste me, as it appeareth this daye.

Then answered Doeg the Edomite, which had the ouer syght of the seruauntes of Saul and sayd: I saw the sonne of Isai, when he came to Nob, to Ahimelech the sonne of Ahitob, which asked counsell of the Lord: for him, & gaue him vitayles, & the swerde of Goliath the Philistine also. Then the kynge sente to calle Ahimelech the preast the sonne of Ahitob, & al hys fathers house: that is to say, the preastes that were in Nob. And they came al to the king.

C And Saul said: here thou sonne of Ahitob. And he said: here I am my lord. Then sayd Saull to him: why haue ye conspyred agaynst me, thou and the sonne of Isai, in so moch that thou hast geuen him vytaile & a swerd, & hast asked counsel of god for him, that he shulde aryse agaynste me and lye awayte as it is come to passe thys day. And Ahimelech answered the kynge and sayd: who is so faythful amonge all thy seruauntes as Dauid, & therto the kinges sonne in lawe, and gothe at thy byddinge, and is had in honour in thyne house. Haue I thys day begonne first to aske councel of god for him? God forbid that from me: let not the kyng put soche a thyng vnto his seruaunte & on all the house of my father. For thy seruaunt knoweth nothing of all this, ether lesse or moare.

But for al that the kyng sayd: thou shalt surelye dye Ahimelech, both thou and all D thy fathers house. Then sayde the kynge vnto hys fote men that stode aboute him, turne & sley the preastes of the Lord, both because theyr hande is wyth Dauid and because they knewe when Dauid fled and shewed it not to me. But the seruauntes of the king wold not moue their handes, to runne vpon the preastes of the Lorde. Then said the king to Doeg: turne thou and smyte the preastes. And * Doeg the Edomite turned & ranne vpon the preastes & slue that same daye foure score and fyue persones that dyd weare eche man a linnen Ephod. And Nob the cytie of the preestes he smote with the edge of the swerd, both man and woman, chylde and sucklynge, wyth oxe asse and shepe.

*i. Reg. ii. g

But yet one of the sonnes of Ahimelech the sonne of Ahetob named Abiathar, escaped & fled to Dauid, and shewed Dauid, how that Saul had slaine the lordes preastes. And Dauid sayd vnto Abiathar: I wist it the same day, that Doeg the Edomite which was there wolde tell it Saul. And I am cause of the dethe of all the soules of thy fathers house. Abide with me & feare not: he that seketh thy soule, shal seke mine, & with me thou shalt be in sauegard.

¶ Dauid delyuereth Keilah. He fleeth in to the wyldernes of Ziph. He is comforted of Ionathas. The Ziphites wold haue betrayed him, but he escapeth.

The .xxiii. Chapter.

Then men tolde Dauid saying: Behold, the philistines fighte A agaynst Keilah, & spoyle the bernes. Then Dauid asked the lordes aduise saying: shall I goo and smyte the Philistynes? And the Lorde sayde vnto Dauid: go & smyte the Philistines and saue Keilah. Then sayde Dauids men vnto hym: se we be afrayed

here

here in Juda. What shal we the be, when we come to Keilah, to the hoste of the Phi listines. Then Dauid asked the Lorde a-gayne. And the lord answered him & sayd: vp & goo to Keilah, for I wyl delyuer the Philistines into thyne handes.

And so Dauid and hys men wente too Keilah and fought with the Philistines, & draue awaye theyr catell and slue a greate slaughter of them. And so Dauid saued the enhabiters of Keilah. And it chaunced whē Abiathar the sōne of Ahimelech fled to Dauid to Keilah that he brought an Ephod in hys hande.

B And it was tolde Saull, that Dauid was come to Keilah. Then sayde Saull: God hath delyuered him into myne hand.
For he is shut in, ẏ he is come into a town wyth gates and barres. And Saul called all the people to warre, for to go to Keilah to besege Dauid and hys men. But Da-uid had knowledge that Saul ymagened myschefe agaynst him, and sayde therfore i. Reg. 30. b to Abiathar the prest: * Bring the Ephod.
Then sayd Dauid. O Lorde God of Israel, thy seruaūt heareth that Saull is about to come to Keilah to destroye the cy-tie for my sake: wyll the men of Keilah de-liuer me into his hande? or wil Saul come as thy seruaunt heareth saye? Lorde God of Israel tell thy seruaunt. And the Lord sayd: he wyll come. Thē sayd Dauid: wyl the men of Keilah deliuer me and my men into the hand of Saul? and the Lord said they wyl delyuer you.

Then Dauid and his men which were vpō a. vi. hundred, arose and departed out of Keilah and went whether chaunce dra-ue thē. And when it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was fled from Keilah, he lefte the iourneye alone. And Dauid abode in thee wyldernesse in stronge holdes, & in a moū tayne in the wyldernesse of Ziph. And Saul sought hym all hys lyfe, but God C delyuered hym not into hys hande. And Dauid sawe that Saul was come out, to seke his lyfe, whyle Dauid was in the wil dernes of Ziph in a thicket. And Jona-thas Saules sōne arose & went to Dauid to the thicket, & strengthed hym in God, & sayde vnto hym: feare not, for the hand of Saul my father shall not fynde the, and thou shalte be kynge ouer Israell, and I muste be nexte vnto the: And Saul my fa ther therto knoweth that it shalbe so. And they made * a bonde both of them to gether before the Lorde. And Dauid taried styll in the thicket, and Jonathas went to hys house.

Then came the Ziphites to Saul, to Gabaah sayinge: Dauid hydeth hym selfe faste by vs in stronge holdes that are in a thycket in the hyl of Hachilah on the right syde of the wyldernesse. Now therfore (sir) kynge, come downe wyth all the lust that thy soule hath to come. And our part shall be to delyuer hym in to the handes of the kynge. Then sayde Saul: Blessed are ye in the Lord: for ye haue compassyō on me.
Go I praye you and marke more dylige-ly, & know & se his haunte, where hys fote hath bene, and who hathe sene hym there: D for it is tolde me that he is very sotel. Se therfore and knowe all the lourkyng places where he lourkethe, and come agayne to me wyth certentye, and I wyll go wyth you. And then yf he be in the land, I wyll hunte hym oute wythe all the thousandes of Juda.

And they arose & went to Ziph before Saull. But Dauid and hys men were in the wyldernesse of Maon, in the wylde fel de, on the ryghte hand of the wyldernesse.
For when Saul was gone with hys men to seke, it was tolde Dauid. And therfore he wente vnto a Rocke and dwelte in thee wyldernesse of Maon. And when Saull hearde that, he folowed after Dauid into the wyldernes of Maon. And Saul and hys men went on the one syde of the moū-tayne, and Dauid and hys men on the other. And Dauid as a man amased, made haste to gette from Saul. For Saul and hys men had compased Dauid & his men round about to take them.

But there came a messenger to Saull sayinge: Hast the and come, for the Phili-stynes are come in and roue thee lande.
Wherfore Saull returned from persecu tynge Dauid, and went agaynst the Philistines. And therfore the place is called, * Sela Mahelecoth. And then Dauid went thence and dwelte in stronge holdes at Engaddi.

¶ Dauid fleeth into Engaddi and there [illegible] art for a token, but hurteth him not. Dauid goth out of the caue after Saul and speaketh to him.

The .xxiiii. Chapter.

A WHē Saul was come againe from the Philistines, there were ỹ tolde him saying: behold, Dauid is in the wilder nesse of Engadi. Thē Saul toke thre thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and went to seke Dauid & his mē in the Rockes, where nothing haūted but ỹ wild gootes. And he came to the flockes of the shepe by awayes side where was a caue. And Saul wēt i* to couer his feate.
And Dauid & his men sat a longe by the sides of the caue. And the men of Dauid saide vnto him: se ỹ day is come, of which the Lorde sayd vnto the: Beholde I wyl delyuer thyne enemye into thine hande, & thou shalt do ꝟ him what it pleaseth the.
Then Dauid arose and cut of a lappe of sauls cote priuely. And immediatly Da-uids hert smote him, because he had cut of B a lapp of Sauls cote. And he sayde vnto his mē: the lord kepe me frō doyng ỹ thin ge vnto my master ỹ is the Lordes anoin ted, to laye myne hande vpon him, seying he is the lordes anoynted. And so Dauid kept of his seruaūtes ꝟ wordes, and suf fred them not to go vpon Saul.
And when Saul was vp out of ỹ caue & gone awaye, Dauid arose and wēt out of the caue and cried after Saul saying: My Lord king. And Saul loked behinde him. And Dauid stouped to the erth & bowed him self, & sayde to Saull: wherefore geuest ỹ an eare to mennes wordes, C that say, Dauid seketh the euel? Beholde this day thyne eyes haue sene, howe ỹ the lord had deliuered the this day, into myne hād in the caue. Whē they bad kil ỹ mine eye had compassyon on the: and I sayde: I wil not lay my hādes on my master, for he is ỹ Lordes anoynted. And more ouer my father, se yet the lap of thy cote in my hand. And in as moche as I kylled ỹ not to, when I cut of the lapp of thy cote, vn-derstand & se, ỹ there is nether euell nor re belliousenesse in me, & that I haue not sin ned against the. And yet thou huntest after my soule to take it. The lord be iudge bet wene the & me, and the Lord auenge me of the. But myne hād be not vpō ỹ. Accor dynge to the olde prouerbe, wyckednesse shal procede out of the wicked: But mine hand be not vpon the. After whom arte ỹ come out, thou king of Israel? After whō chasest thou? euen after a deed dogge, & after a flee. The Lorde be iudge & iudge betwene ỹ and me, & se & pleate my cause, and iudge me fre out of thyne hād. Whē D Dauid had made an ende of speakyng al these wordes to Saul, Saul said: is this thy voyce my sōne Dauid? and he lift vp his voyce and wept, & sayde to Dauid: ỹ art ryghteouser then I, for thou haste rewarded me with good, and I haue rewar ded ỹ ꝟ euel. And thou haste shewed this day how that thou hast dealt louingly ꝟ me, for as moche as when the Lorde had locked me in thyne handes, thou slewest me not. For who shall fynde hys enemye and lett him depart a good way. Wherefore the Lord rewarde the with good, for ỹ thou haste done vnto me this day. And now I wot well that thou shalt be king, and that the kyngdom of Israel shall be stablysshed in thine hande. Sweare therfore vnto me by ỹ Lord, ỹ thou shalt not destroy my seade after me, & that ỹ shalte not destroy my name oute of my fathers house. And Dauid b swore vnto Saull, & Saul went home. But Dauid and his men gatt vp vnto an holde.

¶ Samuel dyeth. Dauid fleeth in to the wyldernesse of Pharan. He is angry with Naball: but is pacyfyed by the wysdom of Abigall. Nabal dyeth & Dauid maryeth Abigail.

The .xxv. Chapter.

AND thē Samuell dyed, & all A Israel gethered together, & la mented him & buryed hym in his owne house at Ramath.
And Dauid arose & gat him to ỹ wildernes of Pharan. And ther was a man in Maon whose catel was in Carmel, & ỹ mā was exceding mighty, & had thre thousād shepe and a thousād gootes.
And he was sherynge hys shepe in Car-mell. The name of the man was Naball, & the name of his wyfe was Abigail, and was a womā of good wysdom and bewti full. But the man was churlyshe and of shrewde condicions, and was a Calebite.

And when Dauid hearde in the wyldernesse, that Nabal share his shepe, he sente oute ten of his younge men, & sayde vnto thẽ: get you vp to Carmel and go to Nabal and grete him in my name. And thus B wise saye vnto my frende: peace be to the, peace be to thine house and peace be vnto all that thou hast. I haue hearde say that thou hast sherers. Nowe thy sheperdes were wyth vs, and we dyd them no spite, nether was there ought missing vnto thẽ, all ye whyle they were in Carmel: aske thy laddes, & they wyll shewe the. Wherfore let these young men finde fauour in thine 1.Re.18.6. eyes (for we come in a good ceason) and* geue I praye the whatsoeuer cometh to thyne hande vnto thy seruauntes and to thyne sonne Dauid.

And Dauids youngmẽ came & told Na bal al those wordz in ye name of Dauid & thẽ stopped. And Nabal ãswered dauids seruaũtes & said: what is Dauid & what is the sonne of Isai? ther is plentie of seruaũtes now a dayes, that breake awaye euery mã frõ his master. I shuld take my bred, my water & my fleshe ye I haue killed for my sherers, and geue it mẽ whych I wot not whence they be?

C And Dauids seruaũtz turned their way and went agayne, & came and tolde hym accordyng to al those sayinges. Thẽ Da uid sayd vnto his mẽ: girde euery mã his swerd about him. And they gyrded euery man his swerde on, & Dauid therto gyrd on his swerde. And there folowed Dauid vpon a foure hundred men, & two hũdred abode by the stuffe.

But one of the laddes tolde Abigaill Nabals wife sayinge: se Dauid sent mes sengers vnto oure master out of the wyldernes to salute him, and he railed on thẽ.
And yet the men were very good vnto vs and dyd vs no dyspleasure, nether myssed we any thyng, as long as we were cõuer-sãt wt thẽ, whẽ we were in the feldes. But they were a wall of defence vnto vs both by nyght and also by day, al the while we were with them keping shepe: Now take hede & se what thou hast to do, for it is cõ-D cluded to be myschefe vnto oure master and to all hys housholde. And he is vn-gracyous to speake to. Then Abigaill made hast and toke two hundred loues & two botelles of wyne & fyue shepe ready dressed & fiue measures of parched corne, and an hundred bondelles of reasinges & two hũdred frayles of figges, & laded thẽ on asses, & sayde vnto her younge mẽ: go before me, & se I come after you, & tolde her husband Nabal nothing therof. And as she rode on her asse and was commyng downe i a slade of ye hyl, Dauid & hys mẽ came downe agaynst her, & she met them.

And Dauid sayde: in vayne haue I kept all that this felowe had in the wilder nesse: so that nought was myssed that per tayned vnto hym, for he hathe quytte me wyth euell for good. So & so do God vn to the enemyes of Dauid, as I wyll not leaue of all that pertayne to hym, by the dawnynge of the daye, oughte* that pys-seth agaynste the walle.

When Abigail saw Dauid, she hasted and lyght of her asse & fell before Dauid on her face and bowed her selfe to ye groũ de, and fell at hys fete and sayd: Let this vnhappie deade be counted myne, my lorde, and lette thyne handemayde speake in thyne audyence, and heare the wordes of thy handmayde. Let not my Lord regard thys vnthryftie man Naball, for as hys name is, so is he. * Naball is hys name & follye is wyth hym. But I thyne handemayde sawe not the younge men of my Lorde which thou sendest.

And now my Lord as sure as the lord lyueth and as thy soule lyueth, the Lorde C hath with holden the frõ cõmyng to shede bloude & from aduengyng thy selfe with thyne owne hande. Furthermore I praye god that thyne enemyes & they that entẽd to do my Lorde euell, may be as Naball.
And now this * blessing which thine hãd mayde hath brought, lett it be geuẽ vnto ye young men that folowe my Lorde. For geue the trespace of thyne handemayde & the Lorde maye make my Lorde a sure house, because my Lorde fyghteth ye battelles of the Lord, and ther could none euel be founde in the in al thy lyfe. And yf any man rise to persecute the & to seke thy soule, yet the soule of my Lord be bounde in a bondell of lyfe wt the Lorde thy God.
And the soules of thy enemyes be slõg in the mydle of a slyng. And moreouer when the Lorde shall haue done to my Lorde al the good that he hathe promysed the, and shall haue made the ruler ouer Israel: the shall it be noo grudge of conscience vnto the or discourage of herte vnto my Lord, that thou sheddeste bloude causelesse and dydest auenge thy selfe.

And moreouer whe the Lord shal haue dealt wel wt my Lord, then thinke on thine F handmayde. Thē said Dauid to Abigail blessed be the Lord God of Israel whych sent the this daye to mete me. And blessed be thy behaueour, & blessed be thou which hast kept me this daye frō coming to shed bloud & frō auenging my selfe with mine owne hand. For in very dede assure as the Lorde God of Israell lyueth whyche hath kept me backe frō hurting the, except thou haddest hasted and met me, there had not bene left Nabal by the dawninge of ÿ daye, a pysser agaynst ÿ wal. And so Dauid receaued of her hād that she brought hym, and sayd to her: go in peace to thyne house. And se I haue obeyed thy voyce & haue receaued the to grace.

And whē Abigaill came to Nabal: behold, he held a feaste in hys house lyke the feast of a king, & Nabals herte was mery win him & he was dronke a good. Wherfore she tolde him naught nether little nor more, vntyll the morowe daye. But in thee morning, when the wyne was gone out of Nabal, his wyfe told hym these wordes, &
G hys herte dyed within him, and he became as a stone, and vpon a ten dayes after the lord smote Nabal, that he dyed. And whē Dauid hearde that Naball was dead, he sayd: Blessed be the lord that hath iudged the cause of my rebuke of the hand of Nabal, & hath kept his seruaunt frō euel, and hath turned the wyckednes of Naball agayne vpon hys owne head. And Dauid sent to comē wt Abigail, to entrete to take her to his wyfe. And whē the seruaūtes of Dauid were come to Abigaill to Carmell, they spake vnto her saying: Dauid sent vs vnto ÿ, to take the to hys wyfe. And she arose and bowed her selfe on her face to the earth, & sayd: Beholde thy handmayde, to be a seruaūt to c wasshe the fete of the seruaūtes of my Lord. And Abigail hasted & arose & gat her vp vpō an Asse, with fyue damoselles of hers ÿ wēt at her fete, & wēt after the messengers of Dauid & was his wyfe. Dauid also toke Ahinoā of Iezrahel, & they were both his wyues. But saul gaue Michol his daughter Dauids wife to Phalti the sonne of Lais of Gallin.

a Blessing for rewarde or present, after the maner of the Hebrues.

b The meaning is, The lyfe of my Lord Dauid shalbe so preserued of the Lord, as it were in the bondel of Gods prouision, in which are al ÿ haue lyfe: And the lyfe of hys aduersaryes shalbe cast in the rowling of gods iudgement as it were with a sling and so horrybly whyrled, and without hope of reste that they shal not knowe whether to turne them, tyll they be consumed.

c By thys washing of fete is signified that she wolde be so gentyl and so seruisable to Dauid, that she wolde not refuse to washe the fete of hys seruauntes. Timo. v. b.

The. xxvi. Chapter.

After that came the Ziphites vnto saul to Gabaah saying A Dauid hydeth him self in the hyll of Hachilah euē before ÿ wildernes. Thē Saul arose & wēt to the wildernes of Ziph & thre. M. chosen men of Israel with him, for to seke Dauid in the wyldernesse of Ziph. And Saul pitched in the hyll of Hachilah whiche lyeth before thee wyldernesse, by thee wayes syde. But Dauid dwelt in the wyldernesse. And when he sawe that Saul came after hym into the wyldernesse, he sent out spies and vnderstode that Saul was come of suertye.

Wherfore Dauid arose & wente to the place where Saul had pitched, & beheld ÿ place where Saul laye wt Abner ÿ sonne of Ner his chefe captayne. For Saul lay within a round banke, and the people pitched round about him. Thē aūswered Dauid & spake to Ahimelech the Hethite and to Abisai the sonne of Zaruiah & brother to Ioab saying: who wil go downe wt me to Saul to ÿ hoste? & Abisai sayde: I wyl B go downe wyth the.

And so Dauid & Abisai came to ÿ people by night. And beholde, Saul laye slepinge within a rounde banke & his speare pitched in the groūd at his head, Abner & the people lying round aboute him. Then said Abisai to Dauid: God hath closed in thyne enemie vnto thyne hande this daye. Now therfore let me smyte hym a felowshyp wyth my speare to the earth, euē one stroke, and I wyl not smyte him the secõ-de tyme. But Dauid sayde to Abisai: destroy him not, for who can lay his hãd on ye Lordes anoynted & be giltles? And Da-uid sayd furthermore: as sure as the lord lyueth, the Lorde shall smyte hym, or hys daie shall come to dye, or he shal descende into batell & there perysshe: but the Lorde kepe me frõ laying myne hand vpon the Lordes anoynted. Now then take a felow shippe ye speare yt is at hys heed, & ye crewse of water, & let vs go. And Dauid toke the speare & the crewse of water that were at Sauls heed, & they gat them awaie, & no mã saw or wist it or awoke. For they were al a slepe, because the Lord had sent a slõ-C ber vpõ thẽ. Thẽ Dauid wẽte ouer to the other syde & stode on the toppe of an hil a ner? and Abner answered & sayde: What art thou that * cryest to the kyng? and Da-uid sayd to Abner: art not thou a mã? and who is lyke the in Israell? But wherfore hast thou not kept thy Lord the kynge? For ther came one of the folke to destroye the king thy lord. It is not good yt thou haste done. As truly as the lord liueth ye are worthy to dye, because ye haue no better kept the lordes anoynted. And nowe se where the kinges speare is and the crewse of wa ter that were at his heed.

That is, which waketh the kynge.

Then Saul knew Dauids voyce and said: is this thy voyce my sõne Dauid? & Dauid sayde: it is my voyce my Lorde king. And he sayd therto: wherfore dothe my lord persecute his seruaũt: for what ha ue I done? or what euel is in mine hand?
D Now heare therfore (my lord kyng) ye wor Beholde, I haue played the fole & haue red and saide: Behold ye kinges speare: let one of the younge men come ouer and fet it. The lord rewarde euery mãnes righte-wesnes & faith: for the Lord deliuered the into my hãd this day, but I wold not lay mine hãd vpõ ye lordes anoynted. And as thy lyfe was moch set by this time i mine eyes: so be my lyfe set by in ye eyes of the Lord, that he delyuer me out of al tribula cion. And Saull sayd to Dauid: Blessed art thou my sonne Dauid, for thou * shalt be a doer and also able to brynge to an end.

And so Dauid went his waye, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

¶ Dauid fleeth to Achis kynge of Geth, which geueth him Ziklag to dwel in. He kylleth the Philistines. And when Achis demaunded agaynst whom he had roued, he geueth him a folish answere and deceyueth hym prouely.

The. xxvii. Chapter.

Then thought Dauid in hys A

The. xxviii. Chapter.

A And it chaūced in those daies, that the Philistines gethered their host to gether to warre, entendynge to fight with Israel. And Achis sayd to Dauid: Be sure, thou shalt go out wt me in ÿ host and thy men also. And Dauid sayde agayne to Achis: then thou shalt knowe, what thy seruaunt cā do. And Achis sayd to Dauid: Then I wyll make the *keper of my heed for euer. Samuel was then deed, & all Israel had lamēted hym & buried hym in Ramath his owne cytye. And Saul had put the wemē ÿ had sprites of prophesy & the Sorcerars out of the lād. And the philistines geathered to gether & B came and pitched in Sunam. And Saul & al Israell geathered to geather and pitched in Gelboe. And when Saul sawe ÿ host of the Philistines, he was afrayed, & his hert was sore a stonied. And Saul asked councel of the Lord: But the lord answered him not, nether by dreame nor by Vrim, nor yet by prophetes.

Then sayd Saul vnto his seruauntes: seke me a woman ÿ is maistres of a sprete of prophecye ÿ I maye go to her & aske of C her. And his seruauntes sayd to him: se ther is a wyfe ÿ hath a sprete of Prophesye in her possessiō at Endor. And Saul chaūged his clothes and put on other raumēt, & then wente he and two men with him, & they came to the wife by nighte. And he sayd: prophesie vnto me by the sprete, and bring me him vp whō I shall name vnto the. And the wife said vnto him: Behold, B thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath destroyed the wemen that had prophesying sprites, & the Sorcerars out of the lād. Wherfore thē * layest thou a net for my soule to kyl me? And Saul swore to her by the Lorde sayinge: As surely as the Lord liueth, ther shall no harme chaūce the for thys thyng. Then said the wife: whom shall I fetche vp vnto the? and he sayde: Bringe me vp Samuel. Whē the woman saw Samuell she cryed wyth a lowde voyce & spake to Saull sayinge: why haste thou mocked me? for thou arte Saul. And the king said vnto her be not afrayde. But what seyst thou. And the wyfe sayd vnto Saul: I se * a God ascēding vp out of ÿ erth. And he sayd: what facion is he of? And the woman sayde:
C there cometh vp an olde man wt a mantel vpon him. And Saul perceaued ÿ it was et Samuel, & stouped with his face to the ground & bowed him self. And Samuell sayd to Saul: why haste thou vnquieted me, to make me be brought vp? And saull answered: I am sore encombred. For the philistines make warre against me, & god is departed frō me & āswered me nomore, nether by Prophetes, nether by dreames. And therefore I haue called the, to tell me what I shal do. Thē said Samuel: wherfore doest thou aske of me? while the lord is gone frō the & is thyne enemye, the lord wyl do the as he sayd by my hād. For the Lord wil rent the kyngdome out of thine hande, & geue it thy neyboure Dauid, because thou obedist not ÿ voice of the lord, nor executedst his fearce wrath vpō ÿ Amaleckites. Therfore hath the lorde done this vnto the this day. And moreouer the lord wil deliuer Israel wt the, into the hādes of ÿ philistines. And to morow shalt ÿ & thy sōnes be wt me, & the lord shall geue the host of Israel into the hādes of ÿ philistines. Then Saul fell streyghte waye starre on the erth as lōg as he was, & was sore a dread of the wordes of Samuel.

That is, lest on deede I might be brought to deeth.

Neuertheles ŷ lordes of ŷ philistines were wroth wt him and sayd vnto him: Make this felow returne, and let him go agayne to his place which thou haste appoynted hym. For he shal not go wt vs to battel, lest he be an aduersarye to vs in the battell. For wherewythe coulde he better obtayne the fauour of his mayster, thē vpō the heades of our mē. Is this not Dauid to whō thei sang in daūses: & Saul slue his thousand but Dauid his. x. thousand. Then Achis called Dauid & sayde vnto hym: As sure as the Lord lyueth ŷ art honest, & it pleaseth me wel ŷ thou shuldest accōpanye me in the hoste, for I haue foūd none euel wt the sence thou camest to me vnto this day

C Neuerthelesse the Lordes of the Philistines fauour the not: wherfore returne & go in peace, that thou displease not thee Lordes of the Philistines. And Dauid sayde agayne to Achis: Why what haue I done and what hast thou founde in thy seruaūt as long as I haue ben with the vnto this daye: that I may not go fight against the enemies of my Lord the kinge.

D Achis answered and said to Dauid: I wot wel thou pleasest me, as it were an Angel of God. Notwithstādinge the Lordes of the Philistines haue sayd, that ŷ shalte not go with them to batel. Wherfore ryse vp early in the morning with thy masters seruaūtes that are come with the. And whē ye be vp early as sone as ye haue light departe. And so Dauid & his men rose early to departe in the morning & to returne into the lāde of the philistines. And the Philistines went vp to Iesrahel.

¶ Dauid cõmaũdeth to slee the messenger, ẏ sayde he had kylled Saul. The Lamẽtacion of Dauid for Saul and Jonathas.

The .I. Chapter.

A After the death of Saul, whẽ Dauid was returned frõ the slaughter of ẏ Amalechites ⁊ had ben .ij. dayes in Ziklag: Beholde, ther came a man the thyrde day out of the hoste frõ Saul with hys clothes rent ⁊ erth vpõ hys head. And whẽ he came to Dauid, he fell to the earth ⁊ dyd obeysaũce. To whõ Dauid sayde: whence comest ẏ? And the other answered him: Out of the host of Israel am I escaped. And Dauid said to him agayn: How hath it chaũced? tel me. And he sayd: ẏ peo ple fled frõ the battell: ⁊ many of ẏ people are ouerthrowẽ ⁊ dead: ⁊ Saull ⁊ Jona-thas hys sonne are dead therto.
And Dauid sayd vnto the yoũg mã ẏ B told hym: how knowest thou that Saul ⁊ Jonathas his sonne be dead? ⁊ the young mã that told him, sayd: I was by chaũce in moũt Gelboe. And se, Saul lened vpõ hys speare, and the charettes ⁊ horsmen folowed him at ẏ heles. And Saul loked backe ⁊ called me. And I answered: here am I. And he sayd vnto me: what arte ẏ? and I sayd vnto him: I am an Amalechite And he said vnto me: come on me ⁊ slee me For anguishe is come vpõ me ⁊ my life is yet al in me. And I wẽt on him ⁊ slue him: for I was sure ẏ he coulde not lyue, after that he was fallẽ. And I toke the crowne that was vpõ his head ⁊ the Braselet that was on his arme ⁊ haue brought them vn to my Lorde hyther.
Thẽ Dauid toke hys clothes ⁊ rent thẽ, ⁊ so dyd all the men ẏ were with hym.
And they mourned, wepte ⁊ fasted vntyll euẽ, for Saul ⁊ Jonathas his sonne, and for the people of the Lord, ⁊ for the house of Israel, because they were ouerthrowen wyth the swerde.
Thẽ said Dauid vnto the young mã ẏ C brought him tydinges. Whẽce art ẏ? And he sayd: I am the sonne of an alyaunte an Amalechite. And Dauid sayde vnto hym: Howe is it that thou wast not afrayed to laye thine hãd on the Lordes anoynted, to destroy him? And Dauid called one of his young mẽ ⁊ sayd: Go to ⁊ runne vpõ him And he smote him ẏ he dyed. Then sayde Dauid vnto him: ✱ thy bloud vpõ thyne owne head. For thine owne mouth hath te stifyed agaynst the saying: I haue slayne the Lordes anoynted.
And Dauid sang thys song of mour-nyng ouer Saull ⁊ Jonathas hys sonne, ⁊ bad to teache the chyldren of Israell the staues therof. And Behold it is written in the ✱ boke of ẏ ryghteous. The glory of Israel is slayne vpõ ẏ hie hilles. Oh how were the mightie ouerthrowen? Tel it not in Geth: nor publysshe it in thee streetes of Askalon: lest the daughters of the Philistines reioyse, & that the daughters of the vncircumcised triumphe therof. Ye moun D tayns of Gelboe, vpō you be nether dew ges come. For ther the shildes of the migh tye were cast frō them: the shilde of Saul as though he had not bene anoynted with oyle. The bowe of Jonathas and the swerd of Saul turned neuer backe agay ne emptye, from the bloude of the wouded and frome the fatte of the myghtye war-ryowres.

Saul & Jonathas louely & pleasaunt in theyr lyues, were in theyr deathes not deuided, men swifter then Egles & stronger then Lyons. Ye daughters of Israel, wepe ouer Saull, whyche clothed you in purple & garmentes of pleasure, and * bor dered your raymente with ornamentes of goulde. Howe were the myghtye slayne in wounded to death: Woo is me for the my brother Jonathas: delectable to me waste thou excedyng. Thy loue to me was wonderful passinge the loue of wemen. Howe were the mightie ouerthrowē, & how were the wepons of warre forlorn.

¶ David is anoynted in Hebron. The battel of the seruauntes of David and Isboseth.

The. ii. Chapter.

A After thys David asked thee Lord saying: shal I go vp in to any of the cytyes of Juda?
And the Lord sayde: go. And David aūswered whither shal I go? He answered, vnto Hebron. And so David went thether wyth hys two wyues also Ahinoam the Jesrahelite & Abigaill Nabals wyfe the Carmelyte. And the mē that were with hym, dyd David carye vp also euery man wyth his house. And they dwelte in the townes of Hebron. And the B men of Juda came and there annoynted David king ouer ȳ house of Juda. Whē it was tolde David, howe the men of Jabes in Galaad had buried Saul, he sente messengers vnto them & sayd vnto them: blessed are ye vnto the Lorde, that ye haue shewed soche kyndnes vnto youre Lorde Saul, and haue buried hym. Wherfore ȳ Lord shew you mercy and truth agayne.
And I wyll do you good also, because ye haue done thys thing. And now lett youre handes stere thē & playe ye the mē, though your mayster Saul be dead. And finally vnderstande that the house of Juda haue anoynted me kyng ouer them. But Abner thee sonne of Ner that was captayne of C Sauls hoste, toke Isboseth thee sonne of Saul and brought hym to Mahanaim & made hym kynge ouer Galaad and ouer the Assurites, & ouer Jesrahell: & ouer Ephraim & Ben Jamin & ouer all Israell.
And Isboseth Sauls sonne was fourtye yeare olde when he began to rayne ouer Israell, and rayned two yeare. But the house of Juda onelye folowed David. * ii. Reg. v. b And the tyme whyche David rayned in Hebron ouer the house of Juda, was. vii. yere & syxe monethes. And Abner the sōne of Ner & thee seruauntes of Isboseth the sonne of Saul went out of Mahanaim, to Gabaon. And Joab thee sonne of Zaruiah & the seruauntes of David wēt out & mett them by the Pole of Gabaon. And they satt downe, the one part on ȳ one syde the Pole & the other on the other side. And Abner sayd to Joab: let the young men aryse & playe before vs. And Joab answered: be it. Then there arose and went ouer: D twelue of Ben Jamin by nombre whyche pertayned to Isboseth the sonne of Saul and twelue of the seruauntes of David.
And they caught eche hys felowe that came agaynste hym, by the head and thruste hys swerde in hys syde, and so fell downe all at once. Wherfore the place was called * Helath Zurim whych is in Gabaon That is, ȳ syde of the stronge or myghtie.
And there beganne an excedyng cruell bat tell that same day. But Abner and the mē of Israell were put to the worsse of the ser uauntes of David.

And ther was thre sonnes of Zaruiah there: Joab, Abisai & Asahel: whych Asahel was as swifte of fote as a wild Roo, & folowed after Abner & * turned nether to Gen. xxiii. f the ryghte hande nor to the lefte from Abner. Then Abner loked behynde hym and sayde: arte thou Asahel? And he sayde: ye. E

Then

Then sayde Abner: turne the ether to the right hand or to the left and catche one of the yonge men and take the hys spoyle.
But Asahell wolde not departe frō hym.
And Abner sayd agayne to Asahel: turne from me, for I were loth to smyte y to the grounde. For then how shulde I hold vp my face before Joab thy brother. howbeit he wolde in no wyse departe.
F * Then Abner with the hinder ende of ii.Reg.iii.d y speare smote hym vnder y short rybbes, that y speare came out behynde hym: & he fell downe in the same place & dyed there.
And as many as came to y place wher Asahel fel down & dyed, stode still. But Joab & Abisai folowed Abner tyll the sunne wēt downe. And when they were come to y hil Amah that lyeth before Giah in the way y goeth thorow the wildernes of Ga baō, y children of Beniamin gethered them selues together after Abner on a plumpe & stode stil on y toppe of an hil. Thē Abner called to Joab and sayd: shal y swerd deuoure without ende? knowest y not y bitternes is wont to come in y later ende? how long shal it be, yer thou bydde y people returne from folowing their brethrē?
G And Joab answered: as truly as God li-ueth, yf y haddest so sayd, thē euē in y mor ning had y people departed, eche frō folo blew a trōpet, and al the people stode still and pursued after Israell no more nor fought no more. And Abner & his mē wal ked all that nyghte by the wylde feldes, & went ouer Jordan, & past thorow al Beth horon and came to Mahanaim.

And Joab returned frō after Abner & gethered al y people to gether. And there lacked of Dauid seruaūtes nyntene persons & Asahel. But the seruaūtes of Da-uid had slayne of Beniamin & of Abners mē, thre hūdred & thre skore mē. And they toke vp Asahel and buried him in y sepul chre of his father in Bethlehem. And Joab and hys men went al nyght, and came in the dawnyng to Hebron.

¶ Abner cometh to Dauid & bryngeth him hys wyfe Michol. Joab kylleth Abner. Dauid bewepeth his deeth and curseth Joab.

The .iii. Chapter.

A There was long strife betwene the howse of Saull and the house of Dauid. But dauid waxed stronger and stronger, and y house of Saul waxed weaker & weaker. * And i.Para.iii.
Dauid had chyldren borne him in Hebrō: his eldest sonne was Amnon of Ahinoam the Jesrahelite: the secōde Chelead of Abi gail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite: the thyrde Absalom the sonne of Maachah y daughter of Tholmai the kyng of Ge-sur: the fourth Adoniah the sonne of Hagith: the fyfte Saphatiah the sonne of A bital: the syxt Jethraā by Egla Dauids wife. These were borne to Dauid in He-brō. And as long as there was battell bet wene the house of Saul & y house of Da uid, Abner helde vp the house of Saull.
And Saul had a * cōcubyne named Riphah the daughter of Aiah. And Isoseth sayd to Abner. Wherfore lyest thou with my fathers concubine? Then was Abner B verye wroth for the wordes of Isoseth & sayde: Am I not a * dogges heed, whiche Agaynste Juda haue shewed mercye this day vnto the house of Saul thy father & to his brethren & frendes, & haue not de-liuered thē into y hāde of Dauid: seynge y fidest a fault in me this day for a womā?
* So do God to Abner and so therto: except that as the lord hath sworne to Da-uid, I so do to him, and bryng the kyngdom from the house of Saul, & set vp y throne of Dauid ouer Israel & ouer Juda, euen from Dan to Bersabe. And he coulde geue Abner never a worde to an- C swere because he feared hym.

And Abner sent messengers to Dauid forthwith, saying: whose is the lande? & he sayde therto: make a bonde with me, & se, my hād is wt the, to bryng al Israell vnto the. And Dauid āswered wel sayd, I wil make a bōd wyth the. But one thing I re quere of the, y thou se not my face, excepte y fyrst bringe Michol Sauls daughter, when thou comest to se me.

And Dauid sente messengers to Isbo-seth Sauls sonne saying: delyuer me my wyfe Michol whych I maryed wyth an hundred forskinnes of y philistines. And Isboseth sent and toke her from her husband Phaltiel the sōne of Lais. And her husband wēt wt her, and came weping be hinde her, tyl they came to Bahurim. Thē sayde Abner vnto him go & returne. And he returned. And Abner had cōmunicaciō with the elders of Israel, sayinge: ye haue long gone about ŷ Dauid shuld be kinge ouer you. Now the do it: for the lord hath sayd of Dauid, by ŷ hand of my seruaũt D Dauid, I wyl saue my people Israel out of the hãdes of the Philistines, & out of ŷ hand of al their enemies. And like wordes had he with Bẽ Iamin, & then went to tell in the eares of Dauid in Hebrõ al ŷ Isra el was content wyth, & the whole house of Bẽ Iamin. And whẽ Abner was come to Dauid to Hebrõ & twentie men with him Dauid made him & the mẽ that were with him a feast. Then Abner sayde vnto Da-uid: I wyl vp & go gather all Israel vnto my Lord the king, that they may make an appoyntmẽt wyth the, that thou mayst be kyng ouer all that thyne hart desyreth.

And so Dauid lett Abner departe, and he went in peace.
And se, the seruauntes of Dauid & Ioab came frõ chasing robbers and brought a great praye wyth thẽ. But Abner was not with Dauid in Hebrõ: for he had sent him E away to depart in peace. Whẽ Ioab & all the host that was with him were come, mẽ tolde Ioab saying: Abner ŷ sonne of Ner came to ŷ king, & he hath sent him away ŷ he is gone in peace. Then Ioab went to ŷ kyng & sayde: what hast thou done? Se, Abner came vnto the, why hast thou sente hym awaye, that he shoulde skape quyte?
Thou mightest know Abner the sonne of Ner, ŷ he came to flater with the, & to know thy cõuersation & behauoure, & to knowe al ŷ thou doest. And whẽ Ioab was come out frõ the king, he sent messengers after Abner, which brought him agayne frõ the well of Sirah vnwetting to Dauid. And whẽ Abner was come agayne to Hebron, Ioab toke hym a syde in ŷ gate, to speake with him gilefully, & there smote hym vnder the short rybbes ŷ he dyed, for the blou F de of Asahel his brother. And whẽ it after warde came to Dauids eare, he sayd: I & my kingdõ are gyltlesse before the Lorde for euer, cõcernyng the bloud of Abner the sonne of Ner, It fall therfore on the head of Ioab & on all hys fathers house, ŷ the house of Ioab be neuer without one or other ŷ hath running issues or bout lepers & goers on crouches, & that fal on ŷ swerd and that lacke bread. And the cause why Ioab & Abisai slue Abner was, ŷ Abner had slayne theyr brother Asahel at Gabaõ in battell. And Dauid sayde to Ioab & to all ŷ people that were with him, rent your clothes & aputt on sacke clothe & mourne before Abner. And king Dauid hym self folowed ŷ bere. And whẽ they had buryed Abner in Hebron, the king lift vp his voy ce & wept ouer the sepulchre of Abner, & so dyd al the people. And the king lamented ouer Abner & sayde: Abner dyed not as a wretche dieth. Thy hãdes were not mana-cled nor thy fete brought into gyues: but as men fall before wycked chyldren, so fel lest thou. And al the people wept yet more ouer hym.
And whẽ al the people came to eat meat G with Dauid, while it was yet day, Dauid sware saying: so do God to me & so therto yf I tast bred or ought elles, tyl the sunne be downe. And the people wist it, & it pleased them, as wel as al other good thinges which the king dyd in the syght of the peo ple. And al the people & al Israell therto vnderstode that daye how that it was not the kinges mynde, to sle Abner the sonne of Ner. And the king sayd vnto his seruã tes: know ye not, how that ther is a Lorde & that a great fallen this daye in Israell?
And I am thys daye tender, though I be anoynted king. And these men the sonnes of Zaruiah be * to good for me too rule.
But the Lord rewarde the doer of euel ac or to stiffe cording to his wyckednesse.

Saul.

The. iiii. Chapter.

When Sauls sonne heard that A Abner was dead in Hebron, his handes fainted & al Israell was troubled. Nowe thys Saules sonne hadde twoo men that were become Captaynes ouer the Souldiars, the one called Baa-nah & the other Rechab, the sonnes of Re-mon a Berothite, and of thee chyldren of Ben Iamin: (or Beroth was rekened too pertayne to Ben Iamin. And these Berothites fledde too Gethaim and soiourned there vntyl the same tyme. And Ionathas Saules sonne, hadde a sonne that was lame

lame on hys fete: .v. yere olde was he whē the tydinges came of Saull & Jonathas out of Jesrahel. And hys nourse toke him vp & fled away. And as she made haste to flee & was amased, the chyld fel & became halt & was called Mephiboseth. And these sonnes of Remō the Berothite, Rechab & Baanah went, & came in the heate of the daye to the house of Isboseth, as he slepte on a bed at none. And behold they came in to the house as thought they wolde haue bought * whete, & smote him vnder ŷ short rybbes & fled. For they came into the house

* Lest they shuld haue ben knowē

C as he slept on his bed in his resting chamber, & smote him & slue him & beheded him & toke his head & gat them away thorowe the wylde feld al night. And they brought the head of Isboseth vnto Dauid to Hebron & sayd to the kyng: beholde there the head of Isboseth Sauls sonne thyne enemye, which sought thy soule. But the lord hath auenged my Lorde the kinge thys daye of Saul and of hys sede.

And Dauid answered Rechab & Baanah

D hys brother, the sonnes of Remon the Berothite & sayd vnto thē: * as surely as the Lord lyueth whych hath delyuered my soule out of al aduersytes: hym * that told me how that Saul was dead, thynkynge too haue broughte me good tydynges, I caught & slew in Ziklag, to geue him a reward for his tidinges bringing. And how moch more ought I so to deale with wycked mē that haue slayne a ryghteouse person in his owne house vpō hys bed. Now therfore thinke ye that I will not require his bloud of your hādes & take you frō ŷ erth? And Dauid cōmaunded his yonge men, & they slue thē & cut of theyr hādes & theyr fete and hanged thē vp by the poole in Hebron. And they toke the head of Isboseth and buryed it in thee sepulchre of Abner in Hebron.

Re. i. d.

¶ Dauid is yet agayne anoynted kyng: and taketh the arke from Sion. He casteth out the blynde and the lame. He marieth mo wyues and getteth mo chyldren. He stryketh the Philistines.

The .v. Chapter.

A Then came al the tribes of Israel to Dauid to Hebron and sayde: se, we are thi bones and thy fleshe. And therto in time past when Saul was kynge ouer vs, thou leddest Israel in & out. And the Lord hath sayd to the: thou shalt fede my people Israel, and thou shalt be a captayne ouer Israel. And so all the elders of Israell came to the kinge to Hebron. And king Dauid made a couenaūt with them in Hebron before the Lorde. And they anoynted Dauid kynge ouer Israel. Dauid was thyrtie yeare olde when he began to raygne, and he rayned fourtye yeare. In Hebron he raygned ouer Juda seuen yeare and syxe monethes. And in Jerusalem he raygned thyrtye and thre yeres ouer all Israell and Juda.

1. Par. xi. a.

Then wente the kinge and hys men to B Jerusalem, vnto the Jebusites the enhabiters of the land. And they sayd vnto Dauid: excepte thou take awaye the blinde & thee lame thou shalte not come in hyther, meaninge therby that Dauid shoulde not haue come in thither. Neuertheles Dauid toke the holde of Sion, which is the cytie of Dauid. Then sayd Dauid the same day. Whosoeuer winneth the walles and the lame and the blynd hated of Dauids soule. * Wherfore ŷ blind & the lame shal not come into ŷ house. And Dauid dwelt in the towre & called it the citie of Dauid. And Dauid bylt round about it frō Millo inwarde. And Dauid waxed great and the Lorde God of hostes was wyth hym. And Hiram kyng of Tire sent messēgers to Dauid wyth Cedar trees and carpenters & Masons to bylde Dauid an house

C Wherby Dauid perceaued that the Lord had stablished hym kynge ouer Israell & had exalted hys kyngdom for hys people Israels sake. And Dauid toke hym mo concubines and wyues out of Jerusalem after he was come from Hebron, and mo sonnes and daughters were yet borne too Dauid. And these be the names of the sonnes that were borne hym in Jerusalem: Samua, Sobab, Nathan, Salamō, Ibahar, Elisua, Nepheg, Japhia, Elisama, Eliada, and Eliphalet.

But when the Philistines hearde that they had anoynted Dauid king ouer Israel, they came al vp to seke Dauid. And as sone as Dauid hearde of it, he gat him to an hold. And ŷ philistines came & layed them a longe in thee valeye of Raphaim. And Dauid asked of the Lorde saying: shal I goo to the Philistines, & wilt thou deliuer

D delyuer them into my hādes? And the lord sayd vnto Dauid: go for I wil deliuer ẏ Philistines into thy handes. And Dauid came to * Baal Pharazi ꝛ smote thē there ꝛ sayd: the Lorde hath deuided myne ene-myes a sondre before me, as a man wolde deuyde water. And therefore he called the name of the sayd place, Baal Pharazim.
And ther they left their Images and Da-uid ꝛ his men toke them vp. And the philistines came yet agayne ꝛ layd them in ẏ valey Raphaim. And Dauid asked ẏ lorde, ꝛ he sayde go not. But compasse them on the backside ꝛ come vpon them from ẏ Peretrees. And when thou hearest the noyse of a thing going in the toppes of ẏ Peretrees, then moue. For then ẏ lorde is gone out before the, to smite ẏ hoste of the philistines. And Dauid did as ẏ lord cō-maunded hym and smote the Philistines from Gobaah to Gezer.

[illegible]

¶ The arcke is brought forth of the house of Abinadab. Ozah is stryken and dyethe because he touched the arcke. The arcke is broughte in to the house of Obed Edom, ꝛ from thence into Ierusalē.
Dauid daunceth before it, ꝛ is therfore despysed of hys wyfe Michol.

The. vi. Chapter.

A After ẏ, Dauid chose oute all the chefe yoūg men in Israel to the sōmme of thirty thousā de, ꝛ arose ꝛ went and all the folke that were ꝡ him of the men of Iuda, to fett away ẏ arcke of god vpon which is called the name of the lord of hostes that dwelleth betwene ẏ cherubyns. And they put the arck of God vpō a new cart and brought it oute of ẏ house of Abinadab that dwelt at Gabaah. And Ozah and Ahio the sonnes of Abinadab draue ẏ new carte. And whē they brought it out of that house of Abinadab ẏ dwelt at Gabaah withe the arcke of God, Ahio wente before the arck. And Dauid and al the house of Israell playde before the lorde wythe al maner instrumentes of fyrre woode, ꝡ harpes, psalteryes, timbrelles, fedylles and cymbals.
And whē they came to Nachōs threshig B floure, Ozah put his hād to ẏ arck of god ꝛ held it, for the oxē stōbled. And the lorde was wrath with Ozah ꝛ god smote hym in the same place for his faulte, and there he died by ẏ arck of god. And dauid was displeased because ẏ Lord had smit Ozah.
And the name of the place was called Perez Ozah vntyll this daye. And Dauid was the afraied of the Lorde and sayde: how shuld the arcke of ẏ lord come to my house? And so Dauid wold not bring the arcke of the Lord with him into ẏ citie of Dauid. But caried it into the house of Obed Edom a Gethite. And the arck of the lorde contynued in the house of Obed Edō the Gethite, thre monethes, ꝛ the lorde blessed Obed Edō and al hys housholde.
And whē it was tolde kyng Dauid how C ẏ the lorde had blessed the house of Obed Edō ꝛ all ẏ pertayned vnto him, because of ẏ arck of god, he wēt ꝛ brought ẏ arck of God frō the house of Obed Edō vnto the citie of Dauid ꝡ gladnesse. And euer whē they ẏ bare the arck of the Lord had gone syxe passes, he offered an oxe ꝛ a fat shepe. And Dauid daunsed before the lorde ꝡ al his might in a lynnē Ephod gird vnto him. And Dauid and all the house of Israell brought the arcke of the Lord with showtyng and trompet blowyng.
And as the arcke of the Lord came into the cytye of Dauid, Micholl Sauls daughter loked thorow a wyndow ꝛ saw king Dauid spryng ꝛ daunce before the lord, ꝛ therfore dyspysed hym in her hert.
And when they had brought in the arcke of the lord, ꝛ had set it euē in his place, eas well to the wemen as mē euerye one a Cake of bread ꝛ a pece of fleshe and a flac-ket of wyne. And so the people departed euery man to hys house.

Then Dauid returned to salute hys housholde. And Michol the daughter of Saul came out agaynst him ꝛ sayd: Oh how glorious was the king of Israell to day, which stripte him self to day before the eyes of the maydēs of his seruauntes, as a light brained felow is wōt to stripe him self. But Dauid sayd agayne to Michol, I wil make sporte before the lord whiche chose me before thy father ꝛ before al his kynne, cōmaundynge me to be ruler ouer al his people Israell. And I wilbe yet more vile then so and wilbe meke in mine owne syght: & shall for all that of ẏ verye same mayde seruaūtes which thou speakest of, be had in honour. But ẏ sayd Michol daughter to Saul had no childe vnto the daye of her deeth.

¶ Dauid of a good entente, entendynge to bylde an house vnto the Lord, is forbidden of God. He prayeth that the promeses of god maye be fulfylled.

The. vii. Chapter.

A And in processe as the kynge thyne enemyes. And the Lord telleth the that he wyll bylde the an houshold.

And whē thy dayes be fulfilled & thou lyeste to rest with thy fathers, the I wil set vp thy seede after the, whych shal pro-ceade out of thy body, & wyll stablysh his kyngdome. And he shall bylde an house for my name, & I wyll stablyshe the seate of hys kyngdome for euer: I wylbe hys C for euer. And when Nathan had told Da uid al these wordes and al thys vision, Then wēt kyng Dauid & set hym downe before the Lord and sayd: what am I lor de Jehouah, and what is my kynne, that thou shuldest haue brought me this farre forthe? And is this a small thynge in thy ¶ Dauid restoreth all y feldes of Saul, to Miphi boseth the sonne of Jonathas.

The. ix. Chapter.

Then sayd Dauid: is ther yet A any man left of the house of Saull, that I maye shewe hym mercye for Jonathas sake? And there was of the houshold of Saul a seruaūt named Zi-bah which was called vnto Dauid. And the kyng sayd vnto him: art thou Zibah And he sayd: thy seruaunt is the mā. Thē sayd the kyng: remaineth ther yet any mā of the kynred of Saull, whō I may shew the mercye of God vpō? And Zibah sayd vnto the kyng: Jonathas hath yet a sōne which is lame on both fete. And the kyng B sayd vnto hi: wher is he? And Zibah said vnto the kĩg: behold he is in the house of Machir: the sonne of Amiel in Lodaber.

Then kyng Dauid sent & fet him out of the house of Machir ẏ sõne of Amiel, out of Lodaber. Now when Miphiboseth the sõne of Ionathas the sõne of Saul was come vnto Dauid, he bowed him self and fel on his face. Then said Dauid: Miphi B boseth? And he answered. Behold thy seruaũt. And dauid said: feare not for I wil surely shewe the kyndnesse for Ionathas sake & wil restore the al the feldꝫ of Saul thy father, and thou shalte eate meate on mine owne table all waye. And the other bowed him self & said: what is thy seruaũ te that thou shuldeste vouchesafe to loke vpon soche a deed dogg as I am.

Then the kyng called vnto Ziba Sauls yoũg mã saying vnto him: I ge-ue vnto thy masters sonne al ẏ pertained to Saul & to all hys kynne. Se therfore ẏ thou & thy sõnes and thy seruaũtes tyll the lande for him and bring in, ẏ thy masters sonne maye haue fode to eate. For Miphiboseth thy masters sonne shal eate D meate all waye vpon my table. For thys Zibah had fyftene sonnes & twentye ser-uãtes. Thẽ said Zibah vnto ẏ kyng: al ẏ my Lorde hathe sayde vnto hys seruaũt, thy seruaũt shall do. For (sayd the kyng) Miphiboseth must eate vpõ my table, as one of the kynges sonnes. Thys Miphiboseth had a sõne ẏ was yonge named Micha, & all that dwelled in the house of Zibah were seruauntes vnto Miphibo-seth. And Miphiboseth dwelt in Ierusalem, for he ate euer at the kynges table, & was therto haulte on bothe legges.

¶ The messengers of Dauid are spitefully & villa-nously entreated of the kyng of Ammon: which thin-ge Dauid avengeth.

The .x. Chapter.

IT happened after this ẏ the A kĩg of ẏ childrẽ of Ammõ died, & Hanõ his sõne raygned in his steade. Thẽ sayd Da-uid: I wil shew kĩdnes vnto Hanõ ẏ sõne of Nahas, as his father shewed kindnes vnto me. And ther vpõ Da uid sent to cõfort hym by ẏ hãd of his ser uaũtꝫ ouer ẏ deth of his father. Now whẽ Dauids seruaũtes were come into ẏ land of the chyldren of Ammon, the Lordes of the children of Ammon said vnto Hanon their Lorde: thynkeste thou that Dauid dothe honoure thy father, because he hath sente to comforte the? Naye, he hathe rather sent his seruauntes vnto the, to sear-che the cytye and to spye it oute, euen to ouerthrow it.

Wherfore Hanõ toke Dauids seruaũ tes and shaued of the one halfe of euerye mannes berd & cut of their garmẽtes euẽ in the myddle, euen harde by ẏ buttockes of thẽ and sent thẽ awaye. When it was told Dauid he sent agaynste thẽ (for they were mẽ exceedingly a shamed) & saide: tary at Iericho vntil your berdꝫ be growẽ, & thẽ returne. And whẽ ẏ children of Ammõ saw ẏ they stancke vnto Dauid, they B sẽt & hired ẏ sõnꝫ of Bethrehob & of ẏ Si-riẽs of Zobah .xx. thousãd fote men & of kĩg Maacah a thousãd men, & of Isob twelue thousãd mẽ. And whẽ dauid hard of it, he sent Ioab & al ẏ host of strõg mẽ.
And the chyldrẽ of Ammõ came out & waged battell before the gate & the Siriens of Zobah, of Rehob, Isob & Maacah were by them selues in the feldes.

When Ioab saw that the front of the battell was before and after, he chose of all the best of Israel & put them in araye agaynst the Siriens. And the reste of the people he delivered in ẏ hãd of Abisai his brother, which put them in aray agaynste the children of Ammon. And he sayde: yf the Siriẽs ouercome me, thẽ succour me. C But yf ẏ children of Ammon be to good for ẏ, I will come & succoure ẏ, quyte the like a mã, & let vs fight lustelye for oure people & for the cities of our god. And the lord do what semith best in his eyes. And forth wͭ Ioab proceded & the people that was wͭ him into battel against ẏ Siriẽs, which fled before him. And whẽ ẏ childrẽ of Ammõ saw ẏ the Siriẽs were fled, thẽ fled they also before Abisai, & entered into the citie. And so Ioab returned frõ ẏ childrẽ of Ammõ & came to Ierusalem. And whẽ ẏ Siriens sawe ẏ they were put to ẏ worse before Israel they gethered thẽ toge ther. And Hadadezer sent & brought out ẏ Siriens ẏ were beyõd the ryuer. And ẏ host of them came, & Sobah the captayne of the host of Hadadezer before them.
And when it was shewed Dauid, he ge- D thered al Israel and passed ouer Iordã & came came to Helam: where the Sirians put them selues in araye agaynste Dauid and fought wyth him: howe be it the Si-riens fled before Israell. And Dauid destroyed seuen hundred charettes of thẽ & fourtye thousand horsemen, & smote So bab the captayne of hys hoste, that he ther dyed. And when all the Kinges that were seruauntes to Hadadezer sawe that they were put to the worsse before Israel, they made peace with thẽ and serued thẽ. And so the Siriens feared to helpe the childrẽ of Ammon any moare.

o Urias. Urias is vnrightfully slayne. After that Da uid taketh Bethsabe to wyfe.

The .xi. Chapter.

A AND it came to passe in the be-Par.20.a ginning of a new yere, in the tymes whẽ kinges are wõt to go forthe to battell, ẏ Dauid sent Joab & hys seruauntes with him & al Israel. And they destroyed the childrẽ of Ammon, & beseged Rabah.
But Dauid taryed styl at Jerusalẽ. And it chaũced in an euenynge ẏ Dauid arose frõ his cowche & walked vpõ the roufe of ẏ kynges palace, & frõ the roufe saw a ve ry bewtiful womã wasshyng her self. And he sẽt to enquyre what womã it shuld be.
And it was answered agayne, ẏ she was Bethsabe the daughter of Eliã & wife to Urias ẏ Hethite. And Dauid sẽd messengers & fett her, & she came vnto hym & he laye wt her. And she was streyght wayes* That is, her flowres or monethes [illegible] purified frõ her vnclẽnes, & returned vnto her house. And when the woman had perceaued that she had cõceaued, she sẽt & tolde Dauid, and sayde: I am with child.
Then Dauid sente to Joab, to send vnto him Urias the Hethite. And Joab sẽt B Urias to Dauid. And when Urias was come vnto him he demaunded how Joab dyd, and how the people fared, and howe ẏ warre prospered. And Dauid said more ouer to Urias: go downe to thine house & washe thy fete. And Urias departed out of the kinges place, and ther folowed hym a seruice frõ the kyngs table: But Urias slept at the dore of ẏ kynges palace withe all ẏ seruauntes of his Lorde, and wẽt not downe to his house.

Then they told Dauid saying: Urias descended not into his house. Then sayd Dauid vnto Urias: Seyinge that ẏ arte come frõ iourneyinge, why doste thou not go downe vnto thyne house? And Urias said vnto Dauid: ẏ arcke & Israel & Ju da dwell in pauylions: & my Lord Joab & the seruauntes of my Lord lye in tẽtes vp on ẏ flat earth: & shuld I thẽ go into mine house, to eate and to drynke & to lye wyth ij.Reg.xiiij.a my wife? *By thy life and as sure as thy soule liueth I wil not do that thing. Thẽ said Dauid vnto Urias: *tary here this Judi.ix.e day also, & to morow I will lett ẏ departe.
And so Urias abode in Jerusalẽ ẏ daye C & on the morow. And Dauid called hym, and he ate & drãcke before him, & he made him droncke. And at euẽ he wẽt out to lye on his couch wythe the seruauntes of ẏ lor de, & went not downe to his house. Wher fore on ẏ morow Dauid wrote a letter to Joab and sent it by Urias. And he wrote in the letter saying: put Urias in the forefront of the battel where it is most strõg, and come back from him that he maye be smyttẽ to deeth. And as Jacob beseged ẏ citie he assigned Urias vnto a place wher he wist ẏ strõg men were. And the men of ẏ citie came out & fought with Joab. And there were certen one throwen of the peo ple and of the seruauntes of Dauid, and Urias the Hethite dyed also.

Then Joab sent and tolde Dauid all the processe of the warre and charged the messengers saying: when thou hast made an ende of tellyng the story of warre vnto the kyng yf he begynne to fume & saye vnto the: wherfore approched ye so nie vn to the citie to fyght? wyst ye not that men wolde hurle and shote from the walles? D who smote Abimelech sonne of *Jerobe- That is, Ge-seth? did not a woman cast a pece of a mil deõ, other-stone vpon hym from of the walles, that wise called he dyed in Thebes? why then went ye nye Jerobaal the walles, then saye thou: thy seruaunte Urias the Hethite is deed also.

And the messengers went and came & shewed Dauid al that Joab had sẽt him wyth, and sayde vnto Dauid: ẏ men preuaile against vs, & came oute vnto vs into the feld, & we stack vnto thẽ, euẽ vnto ẏ enteringe of the gate. And the shoters shote frõ the walles, & some of the seruaũ-tes of the kyng be deed: And thy seruaũte Urias the Hethite is deed also. Thẽ sayde

Dauid vnto ŷ messēgers, thus wyse saye vnto Ioab, let not that thing trouble the. For the swerd deuoureth one as wel as a nother: make thy battel more strōg against the citie and destroye it, and se that ŷ courage Ioab. And when the wyfe of Urias hard that her hu{s}bād was deed, she mourned for hym, & as sone as the mournynge was ended, Dauid sente & fett her to hys house, and she was his wyfe & bare him a sonne. But the dede that Dauid had committed, displeased the Lorde.

¶ Dauid is reproued for the slaughter of Urias, & then repenteth. The chylde conceaued in aduoutry dyeth. After it, is Salomon borne.

The .xii. Chapter.

A And ŷ lorde sent Nathā vnto Dauid. And he came vnto him and sayde vnto hym: there were two men in one cytye, a ryche and a poore. And the ryche hadde exceadinge greate aboundaunce of shepe and oxen. But thee poore hadde nothynge saue one litle lambe whyche he bought and norysshed vppe. And it grewe vp with him and hys children, and dyd eate of hys owne meate and dranke of his owne cuppe and slepte in hys bosome, & was as dere vnto him as his daughter. And there came a straunger vnto the rycheman. And he coulde not fynde in hys hert to take of his owne shepe nor of hys beestes to dresse for ŷ straunger ŷ was come vnto him. But toke the poore mans lābe & dressed it for the mā that was come to him. And Dauid was exceding wroth
B wythe the man, and sayde to Nathan: as surelye as the Lorde lyuethe the felowe that hathe done thys thynge, is the childe of deeth & shall restore the lambe foure folde, because he dyd thys thynge and because he had no pytye.

Thē Nathā sayd to Dauid: ŷ art the mā. Thys sayth the Lord God of Israel: I anoynted the kyng ouer Israel & ryd de the out of the handes of Saul. And I gaue ŷ thy maisters house & thy maisters wyues into thy bosome, and gaue the, the house of Israell and of Iuda, and wolde yf that had bene to lytle: haue geuen the suche so moche moare. Wherefore hast ŷ despysed the commaundemente of the lorde, to do wyckednesse in hys syght? thou haste kylde Urias the Hethite wythe the swearde and haste taken hys wyfe to thy wife, & hast slayne hym with the swerd of the chyldren of Ammon.

C Now therfore the swerd shal neuer departe frō thyne house, because (sayth the Lorde) thou hast despysed me & taken the wyfe of Urias the Hethite, to be thy wyfe. Thus sayth the Lord: beholde I wil stere vp euell agaynste the euen of thyne owne house and wil take thy wiues before thine eyes, and geue them vnto thy neyboure, which shall slepe with them in the syght of the sunne. And thou dydest it secretlye, yet wil I do this thing before all Israell and in the open sunne lyght.

Then sayde Dauid vnto Nathan: I haue synned agaynst the Lord. And Na-D thā sayd agayne to Dauid: the lord hath put away the synne ŷ shalt not dye. Howe be it because in doynge thys deade thou haste geuen the enemyes of the Lorde a cause to rayle, ŷ child that is borne, ŷ shal dye surely. And Nathā departed vnto his house. And ŷ lord stroke ŷ child that Urias wife bare Dauid and it sickened. And Dauid besought god for the boy & fasted & went & laye al nyght vpō the erthe. And the elders of his house arose & wēt to hym to take him vp frō the erth. But he wolde not, nether yet eate meate with them.

And it hapened the seuenth daye that the child dyed. But ŷ seruaūtes of Dauid E durst not tel him that the child was deed. For they sayde: lo, while the chyld was yet alyue, we spake vnto hym, and he wolde not herken vnto oure voyce. How moche moare then wyll he vexe hym selfe yf we tell him that the chylde is deed? But Dauid saw his seruauntes whysperinge and therby perceaued that the child was deed, & said vnto his seruaunte: is ŷ child deed? And they sayd ye. Then Dauid arose frō the erth and wasshed & anoynted him self and chaunged his apparel, and went into the house of the lorde and prayed, & after came to hys owne house & bade that they shulde set meate before him, & he dyd eate. Then sayd his seruaūtes vnto him: what is this ŷ thou hast done? Thou fastedste and wepest for thy chyld while it was a lyue, and ue, and as soone as it was dead thou dyd-dest ryse vp & dyddest eate meate. And he F answered: whyle the chyld was a lyue, I fa sted & wept. For I thys thought: who can tel whether God wyl haue mercy on me þ þ child may liue. But now sing it is dead wherfore shuld I fast? can I bring him a-gayne any more? I shall go to him: but he shall not come agayne to me. And Dauid cōforted Bethsabe hys wyfe, & wēt in vnto her & laye with her, & she beare a sonne whose name was called * Salomō, & the Lord loued him. And he sent by the hād of Nathan the prophete & called his name * Jedidiah, of the Lordes behalfe.

And as Joab fought agaynst Rabah þ G citie of the children of Ammon he toke the kinges Towre, & sent messengers to Da-uid sayinge: I haue made assawte to Ra-bah, & also haue takē * the castel frō where they had theyr water. Nowe therfore geather the rest of the people together, & come & besege the citie & take it: lest yf I take it, the victory be ascribed to me. And Dauid geathered al the people together, & wēt to Rabah & assawted it & gat it. * And he to-ke the kinges crowne frō of his head whiche wayed an hundred wayght of golde, & was set with precious stones. And Dauid ware it on his head. And he brought out þ spoyle of the citie in exceding great aboun dance. And he brought out þ people þ was therin & sawed thē asōdre wt harowes of yrō vpō thē, & shred some of thē with shreding kniues of yrō, & thrust some into fornaces And so he serued al the cities of the childrē of Ammō. And then Dauid & all the people returned vnto Jerusalem.

¶ Ammon Dauids sonne defileth his sister Thamar Absalom therfore kylleth Ammon and after fleeth a way for feare of hys father.

The. xiii. Chapter.

And it chaunced that Absalom Dauids sonne had a fayre sy-A ster named Thamar, whō afterward Ammon another sōne of Dauid loued. And this Am non was so vexed that he fel sycke for the loue of his syster Thamar: for it thought him harde to come by hys purpose of her, seinge she was yet a virgyn. But Ammon had a cōpanion called Jonadab the sonne of Simeah the brother of Dauid: whiche Jonadab was a verye wyse man. And he sayd vnto him how cometh it that thou be inge the kynges sonne art thus consumed euery mornyng? mayst thou not tell it me?
And Ammon answered hym: I loue Tha-mar my brother Absaloms syster. Then sayd Jonadab vnto him: lye on thy bedde and fayne thy selfe sycke. And whē thy fa ther is come to se the, say vnto hym, let my sister Thamar come & geue me meate and dresse it in my syght, that I maye se it and eate it of her hand.
And Ammō laye downe & made him self B sicke. And whē þ king was come to se him Ammō sayd vnto him: let Thamar my syster come & make me a couple of frytters in my syghte, that I may eat of her hande.
And Dauid sent home to Thamar saying go to thy brother Ammons house & dresse hym meat. Whē Thamar cam to her bro ther Ammons house he laye. And she toke flowre and made paste and made frytters in hys syghte and dyd bake them, and to-ke a platter and powred them oute before hym. And Ammon wolde not eate, but cō-maunded to haue oute all men from hym.
And they went all oute from hym.
Then sayd Ammon vnto Thamar: bringe the meate into the chambre that I maye eate of thyne hande. And Thamar toke the frytters whyche she hadde made, and broughte them into thee chambre too Ammon her brother and sette them before hym to eate. And he toke her and sayde vn C to her, come lye wyth me my syster. And she answered hym: naye, my brother doo not force me, for it oughte not too be so in Israel, doo not thys folly. * For whether shall I goo wyth my shame? And thou shalte be as one of thee fooles in Israell.
But speake vnto the kyng & he shall not denye me vnto the.
Howbeit he wolde not herken vnto her voyce but was to stronge for her and * forced her and laye wyth her. And then Ammon hated her exceadyngelye: so that the hate wherwyth he hated her was grea ter then the loue wyth whyche he before lo D ued her. And he sayde vnto her: vp and awaye. Then she sayde vnto hym, thys greate cruelnesse that thou puttest me awaye passeth the other that thou dyddest vnto me. Neuerthelesse he wold not heare her

heare her, but called his lad ẏ wayted vpō him & sayd: put her out at the dores frō me & bolt the dore after her. And she had a kir tel of diuerse coloures vpō her: for wt soch were the kinges daughters ẏ were virgi-nes appareled, made strayt vnto thē. Thē his seruaūt brought her out at the dores & C locked the dores after her. And Thamar put ashes on her head & rent her gaye kyr-tell that was on her & putt her hand on her head & so went & as she went cryed. Then Absalom her brother sayd vnto her: hathe Amnon thy brother bene wyth the? Nowe then be styl my syster: for he is thy brother And let not thys thyng greue thyne herte.
And so Thamar remayned discōforted in her brother Absalōs house. And king Da uid heard of al these thinges & was verye wroth. And Absalom sayde vnto hys brother Amnon nether good nor bad. How be it Absalō hated Amnō because he had for ced hys syster Thamar.

And it happened two yere after ẏ Absa lom had a shepe shering in Baal Hasor be sydes the trybe of Ephraim, & bad all the kinges sonnes & he came to the king & say de: behold thy seruaūt hath a shepesheringge let the king & his seruaūtes come wyth thy seruaūt. And the king said vnto Absa lō: Oh naye my sonne let vs not go euery one of vs that we be not chargeable vnto ẏ. And Absalō laye sore vpō him: how be it he wold not goo, but blessed him. Then sayd Absalō: then lett my brother Amnon go with vs. And the king answered what nedeth it that he go with the. But Absalō made soch instance that he let Amnon goo wyth hym, & all the kynges chyldren.

Then Absalō cōmaunded hys younge men saying: marke when Amnons hert is mery with wyne, & when I byd you smyte Amnon then kyl hym: feare not, for it is I that byd you, be bold therfore & playe the F lusty bloudes. And the young men of Absalom serued Amnō eue as Absalō cōmaū ded thē. And all the kinges sonnes arose & toke eche man hys Mule & fled. And why le they were yet in the way, tydinges came to Dauid that Absalom had slayne al the kinges sonnes, so that none was left a ly-ue. Then the kynge arose and tare his gar mentes and laye alonge on the earth: and all hys seruauntes stoode by wyth ther clothes rent. Then Jonadab the sonne of Samah Dauids brother answered and sayde: let not my Lorde suppose that they haue slayne all the young men the kinges sonnes, saue Amnon onely is dead. For ẏ hath bene euer in Absaloms mouthe sence he forced his syster Thamar. Now therfo G re lette not my Lorde the Kynge take the thinge so greuouslye to thincke that al the kynges sonnes were dead, when Amnon onelye is dead.

But Absalō fled. And the yōge man ẏ kept the watche lyfte vp hys eyes & loked about. And behold, ther came moch people by a waye that was behynde hys backe along by an hilles syde. Thē said Jonadab vnto the kyng: behold, ẏ kinges sonnes ar come, and as thy seruaunte sayde, so it is.
And as sone as he had left speakinge: behold, the kinges sonnes came and lifte vp theyr voyces & wept. And therto the king and al his seruauntes wepte exceedinglye.
But Absalō escaped & wente to Tholmai the sōne of Ammihud kyng of Gesur. And the king mourned for his sonne cōtinnally. And so Absalom escaped and went to Gesur, & was there .iii. yeres. And by that tyme the king turned hys mynde frō pur suing Absalō. For he had left mournynge for the death of Amnon.

¶ By the wysdō of the womā of Thekoa Absalom is called. The comelinesse & bewtie of Absalō. Absalom fyreth Joabs corne. His father kysseth hym.

The .xiiii. Chapter.

When Joab the sōne of Saruiah perceiued that ẏ kinges hert A was turned agayn to Absalom, he sen te to Thekoa and fette thence a wise woman, and saide vnto her, feyne thy selfe to be a mourner, & put on mourning ap parel. And anoynt not thy self wt oyle, but be as a womā ẏ had longe tyme mourned for ẏ death of some body, And go to ẏ kin ge & speake of this maner vnto him. And so Joab taught her what she shuld saye.
And whē the wife of Thekoa was come B to speake with the king, she fel on her face to ẏ grounde & dyd obeysaūce & sayd: helpe me O king. And the kynge sayd vnto her what ayleth ẏ? & she answered. I am a widow, and myne husband is deed. And the hãdmayde had two sõnz whych fought to gether in ye feldes wher was noman to go betwene thẽ, & the one slewe the other. And behold, yt whole kinred arose agaynst thy hãdmayde & said: deliuer vs him yt smote his brother: yt we may kil him for ye * soule of his brother whõ he slue, for we wyll destroy ye heyre also. And so they shal quẽche my sparkle which is left yt he shal fere vp nether name or issue vpõ the erth vnto my C husbãd. And the king sayd vnto the wyfe go hõe to thine house, & I wyl geue a charge for ye. And ye womã of Thekoa said vnto ye king. My Lorde kyng, the trespace be on me & on my fathers house, & the king & hys seate be giltlesse. And thẽ sayd the kinge: yf any man saye ought vnto the, bring hym to me, & he shall no more trouble the. Then sayd she: let the king remember hys Lord God, that the next of the bloude geather not on heapes to gether to destroye, & yt they sleye not my sonne. And he sayde as sure as the Lord lyueth, there shal not one hearre of thy sonnes head fall to the erth.

Then the womã sayd: let thine hãdmay D de speake one word more vnto my Lord ye kynge & he sayd: saye on. And the woman sayd wherfore then hast thou determyned on thys same maner against the people of god: that the king shuld speake this thing & be fautye therein, so that the kyng shuld not fett home agayne hys banesshed. For we must nedes dye and perysshe as water spylt on the grounde whych cãnot be geathered vp agayne & God wyll not take awaye the lyfe but fynde the meanes that ye banysshed be not vtterly expelled frõ hym. And now cõcernyng yt I am come to speake of this thing vnto the king my Lord in the presence of the people: thy handmayde thoughte: surelye I wyll speake vnto the kyng, paraduenture the kyng wyll heare the request of his handmayde. And the kin
E ge shal heare hys hãdmayde & delyuer her out of the hande of the mã that wold haue destroyed me & my sonne also out of the enheritaunce of God. Then thine handmayde sayd: I praye God that the word of my Lord the king maye be * unmutable. For my Lord the king is as an Angel of God in hearinge of good or badd: and therfore the Lord thy God be wyth the.

Thẽ the king answered & sayd vnto ye womã: hide not frõ me I pray the: ye thing that I shal aske the. And the womã sayd: let my Lord the kyng say on. Then sayde the king. Is not the * hand of Joab with the in al this matter? And ye womã answered & sayd: as sure as thy soule lyueth my Lord king, it is * nether on the right hand nor on ye lefte that my Lord the kyng hath spokẽ. For thy seruaunt Joab he bad me, & he put all these wordes euẽ in the mouth of thyne handmayde. And the turning of my tale another way, yt made thy seruaũte Joab. And so I se that my Lorde is wyse euẽ as an Angell of God, to vnderstande all thinges that are in the earth. Thẽ sayd the king to Joab: behold, I am content to do this thing. Go therfore fett home ye lad
F
Absalõ. And Joab fel to the groũd on his face & bowed him self & * blessed the kyng and sayd: now thy seruaunt knoweth that I haue founde grace in thee syghte of my Lorde the kynge in that he hath fulfylled the request of hys seruaunt. And so Joab arose & went to Gesur & broughte Absalõ to Jerusalẽ. Then sayd the king: let hym turne to hys owne house, but se that he come not in my presence. And so Absalõ wẽt to his owne house, but came not in the kinges presence.

Moreouer in al Israel ther was not so goodly a mã as Absalõ, or so greatly praysed, frõ the soole of his fote to ye top of his head there was no blemisshe in hym. And whẽ he shaued his head (for at euery yeres ende he shaued it because it was heuye on hym, & therfore he shaued it) ye hearre therof wayed two hundred cycles weyghte of the kynges weyght. And this Absalõ had thre sonnes borne hym & one daughter named Thamar, which was a fayre woman to loke vpon. When Absalom had dwelt G two yeare in Jerusalẽ wythoute cominge into the kinges presence he sent for Joab to haue sent hym to the king. But he wolde not come to him. And he sent agayne, & for all that he wold not come. Thẽ he said vnto his seruaũtes: behold, Joab hathe a parcell of land fast by mine, & hath barlye therin. Go and set it on fyre. And Absalõs seruauntes went & set it on fyre.

Thẽ Joab arose & came to Absalom vnto hys house & sayde vnto hym: wherfore haue thy seruaũtes burnte my felde wyth

fyre

that is, the councell.

that is, my lord ye king hath swarued on no syde, but spokẽ euẽ ye very thinge as it is. Deute. v. D kyre? And Absalō sayd to Joab: behold, J sent for the desiring the to come, because J wolde haue sent the to the kinge, for to say wherfore am J come from Gesur. It had ben as good for me to haue bidde ther stil. Nowe therfore lett me come to the kinges presence, or elles yf ther be anye trespace in me, kyll me. And Joab went to the king & tolde hym. And he sent for Absalō: whiche whan he was come, fell to the grounde on hys face before the kynge. And the kyng kyssed hym.

¶ Absalom maketh insurrection agaynst his father. Dauid is fayne to flee for feare of him

The .xv. Chapter.

After thys Absalom gatt hym A charettes & horsses & fyftie mē to runne before him. And ther to he vsed to ryse vp earlye in the mornynges & to stande by the wayes syde that led to the gate of the cytie. And all the men of Jsraell that had cōplayntes & came to ye king for iudgemēt he called vnto him & sayde: of what cytye arte thou? And when the other answered: thy seruaunt is of soch a trybe of Jsraell.
Thē sayd Absalom vnto hym: se, thy mat ter is good & ryghteousse, & yet no man is deputed of the kinge to heare the. Thē Ab salom sayde moreouer: Oh, that J were a iudge in the land, & that al mē which haue pleyes & matter in the lawe, shuld come to me. For J wold do them iustice. And also when any mā came nye to hym to do hym obeysaunce, he put forth hys hand & toke hym to hym and kissed hym. And on thys maner dyd Absalom to all Jsrael that ca me to the kyng for iudgement, & therwith B stale the hartes of ye mē of Jsrael. And at fourtye yeres ende Absalom sayd vnto the king: let me go J praye the to Hebrō, & paye my vowe which J haue vowed, vnto the Lord: for thy seruaunt vowed a vowe when J was in Gesur in the land of Sy ria saying: yf the lord shal bring me agay ne to Jerusalē, J wyl serue the lorde. And the kynge sayd: go in peace. And so he aro se and went to Hebron.

Then Absalom sent spies thorow oute al ye tribes of Jsrael saying: as sone as ye heare ye voyce of the trompett blowe, saye: Absalom raygneth kinge in Hebron. And with Absalom went two hundred mē oute of Jerusalem that were called. And they C went wyth pure hertes and wist nothinge of the matter. And Absalom sente also for Ahithophel the Gelonite Dauids counse ler, and fet him out of his citie Giloh, whe he sacrifyed sacrifyces. And there was wrought stronge treason. And the people drue to Absalom in great multitude. And there came a messenger to Dauid & sayde: the hartes of the men of Jsrael are to fol lowe Absalom. Then sayde Dauid vnto al his seruauntes that were with him at Je rusalē: vp & let vs flee, for we shall not else escape from Absalom. Make spede to de part: lest he come sodenly & catche vs & brin ge some mischeue vpon vs, & smyte the ci tie with the edge of the swerd. And the kin ges seruauntes sayd to hym: behold thy ser uauntes are redy to what soeuer my Lord the kynge shal appoynte.

And the king & al his houshold depar ted a fote. And he left behind him .x. wiues D that were his concubines, to kepe ye hou se. And so the kinge & al the people wente out a fote & taryed farre frō ye house. And al his seruauntes went by his syde. And all the Cerethites & all the Phelethites, & all the Gethites euen .vi. hundred men which were come a fote frō Geth, wēt before the king. Then sayd the kyng to Ethai ye Ge thite, wherfore shouldest thou go with vs also? Returne & abide wyth the kinge, for thou art a straūger & art remoued frō thy ne own place. Thou camest but yesterday and shuld J vnquiet the to daye to go wt vs? J wyl go whether J go. But returne thou & carie agayne thy brethrē. Mercy & truth be with the. And Ethai answered the kyng & sayd: as surely as the lord lyueth, & as surely as my lorde the king lyueth, in what place my Lord the king shalbe, whe ther in death or lyfe, euen there wyl thy ser uaūt be. Then sayd the king to Ethai, co me & go forward. And Ethai the Gethite went forth, & all his men, & all the children E that were wyth hym. And al the countrye wepte wyth a lowde voyce. And al ye peo ple went forwarde the straughte waye to the wildernes. And behold, Sadock & al ye Leuites were wt him & bare the arcke of ye appoyntmēt of god. And whē they had set downe the arke of god, Abiathar came vp vntyl the people were all come ouer oute out of the cytie. Then sayd the kynge vnto Sadock. Carye the Arke of God agay ne into the citie. Yf I shal fynd fauour in the eyes of the lord, he wyl bryng me agay ne, & shewe me both it & the tabernacle ther of also. But and yf the Lord thus saye: I haue no luste vnto the. Beholde, here am I, lett hym do wyth me what semeth beste in hys eyes.

F The king sayd also vnto Sadock the priest thou art a Sear. Returne therfore into the citie in peace. And take youre two sonnes with you: Ahimaas thy sonne, & Jo nathas the sonne of Abiathar. And see, I wyll tarye in the feldes of the wyldernesse vntyll ther come some worde from you to be tolde me. And so Sadock & Abiathar caryed the Arke of God agayne to Jerusalem, & they taryed ther. And Dauid wēt vp on mount olyuet & wepte as he went, & had his head couered & wēt therto barefote. And al the people that was wyth hym, had euery man hys head couered, and as thei went wepte also. And one told Dauid saying: Ahithophel is one of them that ha ue conspyred wyth Absalom. Then sayde G Dauid: O Lord, turne the councell of A-hithophel into folishnes: Whē Dauid was come to the top of ye mount & had bowed him selfe vnto God: behold, Husai the Arachite came agaynste him wt his coote torne & erth vpō his head Unto whō Dauid sayd: yf thou go with me thou shalt be a burthen vnto me. And yf thou returne to the cytie: thē shalt thou saye vnto Absalom I wyl be thy seruaūt O king: thus lōg haue I bene thy fathers seruaūt, & now I am thyne. And destroye me the counsel of Ahithophel. And ye haste ther with the Sadock & Abiathar the prestes, vnto which thou shalt shew al ye thou canst heare out of the kinges house. And behold ye haue ther with you theyr .ii. son-nes: Ahimaas Sadockes sonne, & Jona-thas Abiathars sonne, by whyche ye shall send me all that ye can heare. And so Hu-sai Dauids frend gatte hym to the cytie.
And Absalom also entred into Jerusalē.

The Notes.

f ℥ Betwene wyues & concubynes, in the olde testament, is this differaunce: wyues had the honoure (as they cal it) of ye mastresse of ye house, Concubines were as vnderlinges & bedbearers. Theyr chyldren were also legitimate & leaful chyldre, but might not enherete, only had they but bequestes of their father the patrimonie pertayned properly vnto the chyldre of the wyues. genes. xxv. a a couple of Asses sadelled, & vpō thē .ii. hūdred loues & one hūdred bō-ches of Resinges, & an hundred fraylkes of dryed figges, & a bottel of wyne. Thē said the kinge to Ziba: what haste thou there?

And Ziba sayd: Asses for the kinges hou sholde to ryde on, & bread & fruyte for the young men to eate, and wyne to drynke, yf any man faynt in the wyldernesse. Then sayd the king: wher is thy masters sonne? and Ziba sayd vnto the king: beholde, he taryeth styl at Jerusalē. For he sayd: this daye shal the house of Israel restore me ye kingdom of my father. Thē said the king to Ziba: behold thyne are al that pertayned vnto Miphiboseth. And Ziba answered: I beseche the that I maye fynde grace in thy syght my Lord kinge.
And whē kynge Dauid came to Bahu B rim: behold, thence came oute a man of the kinrede of the house of Saul named Semei the sonne of Gera & he came oute cursing. And therto he caste stones at Dauid and at al the seruaūtes of king Dauid, al the people & all the men of warre goynge part on his right hand, & part on his lefte And thus sayd this Semei as he cursed: come forth, come forth, thou bloud sheder & thou vnthriftie mā. The lord hath brou ghte vpon the al the bloud of the house of Saul, in whose stede thou hast raygned, & he hath delyuered the kingdom into the hand of Absalom thy sonne. And thou art wrapped about wyth thyne owne myschie ue, because thou art a bloudsheder.
Thē sayd Abisai the sonne of Zaruiah C vnto the king: why doth this dead dogge curse my Lord the kinge? let me go & take of the head of him. And ye king said: what haue I to do wt you ye sōnes of Zaruiah let him curse: for the lord hath biddē hym curse,

curse Dauid. And who dare presume to say wherfore doth he so? And Dauid said to Abisai, & to al his seruauntes: behold, my sonne which came oute of myne owne bo-welles seketh my lyfe. Howe moche more then may thys sone of Iemini do it? Suf fre hym therfore to cursse, for ŷ Lord hath biddē him: haply ŷ Lorde wyl loke on my wretchednes, & do me good for his cursyn-ge this day. And thus as Dauid & his mē wēt by the waye. Semei wēt along on the hilles syde ouer agaynst him, & cursed as he went, and threw stones at hym and cast dust. And the king and al that were with hym came werye, and refresshed them sel-ues there.

And Absalō & al the people of the men of Israel came to Ierusalē & Ahithophell with hym. And as soone as he was come: Husai the Arachite went vnto Absalom & D sayde vnto hym: God saue the kyng, God saue the kyng. And Absalom sayd agayn to Husai: is this the kindnesse thou owest to thy frende? Why wentest thou not with hym? And Husai sayd vnto Absalom: nay not so, but whō the Lorde & thys people & al the men of Israel chose, his wyl I be, & with him wyll I dwell. And forthermore vnto whō shal I do seruice but euē to his sonne? And as I was seruaūt before wyth thy father, euen so shal I be with the. Thē spake Absalō to Ahithophel geue councel what is best for vs to do. And Ahithophel said vnto Absalom: get the in vnto thy fa thers * cōcubines which he hath left to ke Aboue in ŷ xv. b. pe the house. For whē al Israel shal heare that thou hast made thy father to stincke, then shal the handes of al that ar with the

The howses were ther flat tent vpō the * toppe of the house. And he wente in vnto hys fathers concubynes in the syght of all Israell.

And the coūcel of Ahithophel which he coūceled in those dayes, was as a mā had asked councell of God: euen so was al the councell of Ahithophel, both vnto Dauid and also vnto Absalom.

¶ Ahithophel, seing his coūcel disalowed of Husai and forsaken, hangeth hym selfe.

The. xvii. Chapter.

Then Ahithophel sayd vnto Absalom: let me A chose out I praye the twelue thousande mē,
And I wyll vp & fo-lowe after Dauid by nyght. And I wyl co me vppon him whyle he is werye & weake handed, & wyll feare hym, that all the people that are wyth him shal flee. And so wyl I smyte the kyng on ly, & wyl bring agayne al the people vnto the. And when all these men whyche thou sekest are turned to the, al the people shall haue rest. And the saying pleased Absalō well and all the elders of Israel. Thē say de Absalō: call also Husai thee Arachite & let vs heare hys sentence. When Husai was come to Absalom, Absalō spake vnto him saying: Ahithophel hath geuē soch councel: whether it be best we do after hys sayinge or not, tell thou.

Then sayd Husai to Absalom: the coū cell ŷ Ahithophel hath geuen is not good at this tyme. For (sayde Husai) thou kno- B west thy father & the mē that are with him how that they be strong men. And they be chafed in theyr myndes, euen as a * beare Pro robbed of her whelpes. And thy father is a man practised in warre, & wyll not lye a nyghtes among the comen people. Behol de he lurketh now in some caue or in some other place. And therto thoughe some of hys men be ouerthrowē at the fyrst brunt, yet they that heare it wyll thynke the people that foloweth Absalom be putte to the worsse. By the reason wherof the best men thou haste whose hartes are as the hartes of Lyons, shall shrynke thereat. For all Israel knoweth that they father is a man and that they whych be wyth hym be chyldren of actiuite.

But my councell is, that all Israell be C geathered vnto the, from Dan to Bersabe, as the sande of the see in nombre, & that thou go to batayle in thyne owne person.
And we wyll come vpon hym in one place or other, where we shall fynde hym, & we wyll pytche a felde agaynst hym, euen as thicke as the dewe falleth on the grounde.
And ther shal not one of them be lefte, ne ther he nor any of all that are wyth hym.
Moreouer yf he take a towne then shal al the mē of Israel * bryng ropes to that ci-tie, and we will drawe it into the ryuer, vntil ther be not one stone found vpon another. And Absalō and all the men of Isra el said: that the councel of Husai the Arachite was better then the cōsel of Ahitho phell. For it was euē the lordes determy-nacyon to destroye ÿ * councel of Ahitho-phel: which was good, that ÿ lord myght D bring euel vpō Absalō. Then sayd * Hu-sai vnto Sadock & Abiathar ÿ prestes: of this & that maner did Ahithophel & the elders of Israel cōsel Absalō. And thus & thus haue I cōuceled. Now therfore sēde quickly & shew Dauid saying: tary not al night in the feldes of ÿ wildernes, but gett the ouer, lest the king be deuoured & al the people ÿ are with hym. Now Jonathas & Ahimaaz abode by ÿ well Rogel: for they myght not be sene to come into the cytye.

And a wenche went and tolde them. And they to go and shewed kynge Dauid.
E Neuerthelesse there was a lad saw thē whiche tolde it to Absalom. But they wēt bothe of thē awaye quyckly & came to a māns house in Bahurim, whyche had a well in his yarde, into whiche they wente downe. And the wife toke & spred a couer let on the top of the wel & strawed theron stamped barleye to drye. And ÿ thing was not spyed. And whē Absaloms seruaūtes came to ÿ wife to the house & asked where one Ahimaaz & Jonathas were, the wyfe said vnto thē: they be gone ouer ÿ litel broc ke of water. And whē they had sought thē & could not finde thē, thē they returned to Jerusalē. And as sone as they were depar ted, the other came out of ÿ well, & went & tolde kynge Dauid & sayd vnto hym: vp & get you quyckly ouer ÿ water for soche cōucel hath Ahithophel geuē. Then Da-F uid arose & al the people ÿ were wyth hym, & they were come ouer Jordan be ÿ it was day, that ther lacked not one of thē ÿ was not come ouer Jordā. And when Ahitho-phel saw ÿ his cōucel was not folowed, he sadelled his asse & arose & gate him home to his owne house and to hys owne cytie, and put hys housholde in order and hanged hym selfe and died, and was buried in the sepulchre of hys father.
Thē Dauid came to Mahanaim. And Absalom passed ouer Jordā, both he & all the men of Israell wyth him. And Absalom made Amasa captaine of the host in stede of Joab which Amasa was a mannes sō ne named Jethra a Jesrahelite that went G into Abigail the daughter of Naas suster to Zaruiah Joabs mother. And Israell & Absalō pytched in the land of Galaad.
And whē Dauid was come to Mahanai, Sobi ÿ sōne of Naas out of Rabath the cytie of the children of Ammō, & Machir ÿ sonne of Amiel out of Lodaber & Ber-zelai ÿ Galaadite out of Rogell, brought beddes, basens, & erthen vessells: and also corne, barly, floure & parched corne, benes & rice honye, butter, shepe & chese of kyne, for Dauid & al the people that were with hym to eate. For they supposed that the people should be hongrye, faintye, and thurstye in the wyldernesse.

The .xviii. Chapter.

And ÿ kynge nōbred ÿ people A that were with hym, and sett captaynes of thousādes and of hūdredes ouer them. And he sēt one part of thē wyth Joab, & a nother parte wyth Abisai the sōne of Zaruiah Joabs brother, & the thyrde part with Ethai the Gethite. And ÿ kinge sayd vnto the people: shall I go wyth you?
And the people answered: naye, for yf we fle, oure aduersaryes wyl not care for vs: nether though halfe of vs were slayne, shall they regarde vs. But thou were worth ten thousande of vs. And therto it is better ÿ thou be readye to succoure vs out of ÿ cytie. Then sayd the kyng: what semeth you best, that wyll I do.
And the kyng stode by the gates syde, & al the people came out by hundredes & by thousādes. And the kyng cōmaunded B Joab Abisai, & Ethai saying: intreate me gently my sonne Absalō. And al the people heard whē the king gaue all the captaines charge ouer Absalō. And the people wēt out into the felde against Israel, & the battel was in ÿ woode of Ephraim, where ÿ people of Israel were put to the worsse before ÿ seruaūts of Dauid, & ther was a great slaughter ÿ day, euē of twen-tie thousād men. And ÿ felde was fought in diuerse places, all abrode vpō ÿ erthe.

And the woodes deuoured moo people ỹ daye than dyd the swerde. And it chaunced Absalom to come before the seruauntes of Dauid rydyng vpon a Mule whyche caryed hym vnder the thycke bowes of a great Ocke. And hys heed caughte in the Oke, & he was lefte betwene heuē & erth, and the Mule that was vnder him went his waye. And one that saw it tolde Joab C saying: beholde, I saw Absalom hang in an Ocke: and Joab sayde vnto hym that told him: lo, sawest ỹ him? And why didest not thou there smyte him to the ground, ỹ I shuld haue geuē ỹ ten sicles of syluer & a soudyoures gyrdle.

And the man answered Joab: though I had a thousand sicles of syluer tolde in my hande yet wolde I not stretche oute myne hande agaynste the kynges sonne.
For we heard wt oure eares whē the king charged ỹ, Absai and Ethai, saying: spare me the lad Absalō. Moreouer thoughe I had ieoparded my life & done falslie ther-to, yet could nought of al the matter haue bene hid frō the kynge: ye & thou thy selfe wouldest be agaynst me. Thē sayd Joab* I may not stand taryeng with the.

And therwythe he toke thre speares in his hand & thrust thē into the hart of Absalom, while he was yet a lyue on ỹ bodye D of ỹ tree. And ten seruaūtes that bare Jo abs wepōs, turned & smote Absalom and slue him. Then Joab blew a trōpet, & the people returned frō folowing Israel: for Joab spared ỹ people. And they toke Ab salō & cast him into a great pit ỹ was in ỹ wood, and cast a mightye greate heape of stones vpon him. And all Israel fled eue-ry mā to his tent. And thys Absalom yet in his life tyme, toke & reared vp a pyler, which is yet in kynges dale. For he sayd: E I haue no male chylde. And therefore to kepe my name in remēbraunce do I it. And he called ỹ piller after his owne name. And it is called vnto this day, Absalōs pyller.

Then sayd Ahimaas ỹ sōne of Sadock: let me runne I pray the, & beare the kyng tydinges, how that ỹ Lorde hath iudged him quyte of the hādes of al his enemies.
And Joab said vnto him: thou art no mā to beare tydinges to day: thou shalt beare tydynges a nother tyme: but to daye thou shalt beare none, because ỹ kynges sonne is deed. Then sayde Joab to Chusi: go & tel ỹ kyng what thou hast sene. And Chu si bowed him self vnto Joab & rāne. Thē sayde Ahimaas the sonne of Sadock againe to Joab: come what come wil, let me rūne I praye the after Chusi. And Joab sayd: wherfore shuldest thou rūne my sō-ne? for & thou rūne thou gettyst no rewar de: wel come what wyl let me runne. And he said vnto him: rūne. Thē Ahimaas rā-ne by the playne and ouer ranne Chusi.

F And Dauid sat betwene the two gates.
And the watchmen went vp to the toufe ouer the gate vnto the walle, and lyft vp his eyes and saw: and behold, there came a man runnyng alone. And the watchmā called & tolde the kynge. And the kynge sayde: yf he come alone, ther is tydynges in his mouth. And he came and drew nye.
And the watchmā saw a nother man run-nyng, and called vnto the porter & sayde: behold ther cometh a nother runnynge alone. And the king answered: he is also a tidinges brīger. And ỹ watchmā said: me thinketh the rūning of the formost is like the rūning of Ahimaas the sonne of Sadock. And the king sayd: he is a good mā & cometh wt good tydyngs. And Ahimaas called and sayd to the kynge: good tydin-ges, and bowed him selfe to the erthe vp-on hys face before the kynge and sayde: blessed be the Lorde thy God which hath *shut vp al ỹ mē that lifte vp their hādes G agaynst my Lord the king. And the king sayde: is the lad Absalom safe? And Ahi-maas āswered I saw a greate a do, when the kinges seruaūt Joab sent me thy seruaūt. But I wotte not what it was. And the kyng sayd: turne and stand here. And he turned and stode.

And behold Chusi came and said: tidin ges my Lorde the kyng, the Lorde hathe quytte the thys day out of the handes of all that rose agaynste the. And the kynge sayde to Chusi: is the lad Absalom safe?
And Chusi answered the enemyes of my lord the kynge & all that ryse agaynst the, to hurte the, be as thy lad is. And the king was moued & wēte vp to a chābre ouer ỹ gate & wept. And as he wēt thus he saide: my sonne Absalom, my sonne, my sonne, my sonne Absalō: wold to god I had dyed for the Absalom, my sonne, my sonne.

That is, it is not beste ỹ I tarye wt the, & lokest thou Quiddest go with hym.

¶ Dauid is restored to hys kyngdom, and brought agayne to Jerusalem.

The.xix.Chapter.

And it was told Joab, how ŷ the king wept & mourned for A Absalō. And the victory was turned that daye into mour= nyng vnto al the people. For the people heard say that day, how ŷ kin= ge sorowed for hys sōne, & the people wēt stealynge into the cytye, as people confoū ded stele awaye, when they flee in battel.
And the kynge hyd hys face and cryed wt a loude voyce: my sonne Absalom Absa= lom my sonne my sonne.

And Joab went into ŷ house to ŷ king & saide: thou hast shamed thys day the fa ces of al thy seruaūtes, whych thys daye haue saued thy lyfe, & the liues of thy sō= nes & daughters, & ŷ lyues of thy wyues & cōcubines, in ŷ ŷ louest thine enemyes & hatest thy frendes. Thou hast declared thys day ŷ thou camest nether for thy lor= des nor seruaūtz. For this daye I do per= B ceaue, yf Absalō had lyued, & all we dyed this day, ŷ thē it had pleased ŷ wel. Nowe therfore vp & come out, & speake kidly vn to thy seruaūtes, I sweare by ŷ lord except ŷ come out, ther wyl not tary one mā with the this nyght. And that wilbe worsse vn= to the, thē al the euell that fell on the from thyne youthe vnto thys houre. Then the kyng arose and sat downe in ŷ gate. And it was tolde vnto all the people, howe the kynge satte in the Gate. And then all the people came before the king. But Israell fled euery man to his tent.

And all the people were at stryffe tho= row out al the tribes of Israel saying: the kyng delyuered vs out of the hād of oure enemyes. And he deliuered vs out of the hād of the philistines. And now he is fled out of the lāde for Absalō. But Absalom whō we anoynted ouer vs is deed in bat= C tel. Now therfore why ar ye so stil, that ye bring not the king againe. And king Da uid sēt to Sadock & Abiathar the prestes saying: speake vnto the elders of Juda & say: why shuld ye be the last ŷ shuld brin= ge againe ŷ king to his house, seig ŷ soch tidinges is come frō al Israel vnto ŷ kin ge eue to his house? ye are my brethrē, my bones and my fleshe: wherfore then shuld ye be the last that shulde come to bryng ŷ kyng home agayne? And saye to Amasa: art thou not my bone and my fleshe? And god do so to me & so therto: except thou be captaine of ŷ host to me for euer in ŷ rou= me of Joab. And he bowed the hertes of al the mē of Juda, as a man wolde bowe the herte * of one man: so ŷ they sēt worde Judi.[illegible] i. Reg.[illegible] to the kynge, that he shulde returne wt all his seruaūtes. And the king returned and came to Jordā. And Juda came to galgal for to go against the king to cōuey him o= uer Jordan. And Semei * ŷ sōne of Ge= ii. re. xvi. [illegible] ra the sōne of Jemini which was of Bahu ri, hasted & came wt ŷ mē of Juda agaist king Dauid, & a thousād mē of Bēiamin wt him, & * Ziba the seruaūte of the house ii. re. [illegible] of Dauid & hys .xv. sonnes and twentye seruauntes wyth him. And they whypt o= uer Jordā before the kyng. And ther wēt ouer a Bote to carye ouer the kynges hou sholde and to do hym pleasure.

And Semei the sonne of Gera fell be= D fore the kyng, as he was come ouer Jor= dan & sayd vnto him: let not my lorde im= pute wickednes vnto me, nor let hym not remēber the wyckednesse ŷ thy seruaunte did, whē my Lord the kyng departed out of Jerusalem that the kinge shuld take it to hert. For thy seruaūt dothe know how that I haue done amisse. And therfore be hold, I am the first this day, of al ŷ house of Joseph ŷ am come to mete my lord the king. But Abisai the sōne of Zaruiah ā= swered & sayd: shall Semei not die for ŷ cause: which cursed the Lordes anointed?
And the kyng sayde: what matter is bet= wene you & me ye sonnes of Zaruiah, ŷ ye shuld this day be aduersaries vnto me?
C [illegible]r shal no mā dye thys daye in Isra= el: for I know that I am this day kynge ouer Israel. And the kyng said vnto Se mei: thou shalt not dye, & sware vnto him.

And Miphiboseth the sonne of Saul E came to mete ŷ king, & had nether dressed his fete ner shaue his beerde ner wasshed his clothes from the time the king depar= ted, vntil he came agaīe i peace. And whē he was come to Jerusalē toward thee kin ge, the king said vnto him: wherfore wen= te not ŷ wt me Miphiboseth? And he said: my lord kig, my seruaūt deceaued me. For thy seruaunte sayde: that I wolde haue myne Asse sadled to ride theron, for to go to ye kig, because thy servaũt is lame. And he hath therto cõplained on my servaũt vnto my lord ye kig. But my lord ye kinge is as an angell of God: do therfore what semeth best in thine eyes. For al my fathers house were but deed mẽ vnto my lord ye kinge: & yet didest yu put me amõge thẽ yt eate at thine owne table. What right therfore have I yet, to crie any more vnto ye kyng? And ye kig said: it neadeth ye not to speake any moare, for I have sayde: yt thou & Ziba shal devide ye lãdes betwene you. And Miphiboseth sayd vnto ye kyng: yee let hi take al: for so moche as my lord the kinge is come in peace vnto hys owne house.

F And Berselai ye galaadite came frõ Rogeli & wẽt over Jordã wt ye kyng to accõpanie hi over Jordã: which Berselai was a very aged mã, evẽ foure skore yeres old, & had provided ye kig of sustenaũce while he lay at Mahanaim: for he was a mã of very great substaũce. And ye king said vnto Berselai: come yu wt me, yt I may fede ye wt me i Jerusalẽ. But Berselai said vnto ye king: of what age am I of, yt I shuld go wt ye kig vnto Jerusalẽ. I am this day foure skore yere old: & therfore cãnot decerne savery frõ vnsavery, nether hath thy servaũte pleasure in yt he eateth or drincketh: nor yet delectaciõ in ye sõgz of mẽ or womẽ. It is no nede yt thy servaũt be a burthẽ vnto my lord ye kynge: let thy servaũt go a litle way over Jordã wt ye king: for why shuld ye kyng rẽder me soche a rewarde? But let thy servaũt turne back agayne, yt I maye die in mine owne citye, by the grave of my father and mother. But lo here is thy servaũt Chamaã: let him go wt my lorde the king, & do to hym, what shal please the.

G go wt me. And I wyl do to hym that thou shalt be cõtent wt. And therto whatsoever thou shalt require of me, that same wyl I do for the. And al the people wẽt over Jordã. And whẽ ye king was come over Jordã, he kissed Berselai & toke hys leave of him, & he wẽt back againe vnto his owne place. And then the king wẽt to Galgal, & Chamaam went wt him. Now al the men of Juda were at the bringing over of the king, and but halfe the men of Israel.

Wherfore al the mẽ of Israel came to ye kig & said vnto hym: why have oure brethren the men of Juda stolen the away & have brought the kig & his housholde & al Davids men wt him over Jordã? And al the mẽ of Juda ãswered ye men of Israel, for ye kig is nere of kynne to vs: wherfore be ye angrye for that matter? thynke ye yt we eate of the kinges cost, or yt the king geveth vs any gyftes? And ye men of Israel ãswered the men of Juda & said: we have ten partes in the kynge, & have therto more right to David then ye. Why then did ye despise vs, that oure advise had not bene first had in restorynge our kynge agayne? And the wordes of the mẽ of Juda were fearcer thẽ the wordes of the mẽ of Israel.

¶ Seba the sõne of Bochri raiseth Israel against David. Joab kylleth Amasa traiterously. The hed of Seba is delivered to Joab. Davids servauntes are nombred.

The. xx. Chapter.

And there happened to be an vnthriftie felow named Se- A ba ye sõne of Bochri a mã of Gemini which blew a trõpet & said: we have no part i David, nor enheritaũce in the sonne of Isai, O Israel, lette vs departe therfore everye mã to hys tent. And all Israell went from David & folowed Seba the sonne of Bochri. But the mẽ of Juda claue fast vnto the king, from Jordan to Jerusalem.

And whẽ David was come to his house to Jerusalem, he toke the ten wives his cõcubines yt he had left behinde hi to kepe ye house, & put thẽ in warde & mynystred all thynges vnto them: but lay no moare wt thẽ. And so they were enclosed vnto ye day of the deeth of thẽ, & lived a widowes life.

Then said the king to Amasa: cal me ye men of Juda togeather wt in thre dayes & present thy selfe here. And Amasa went to gether the men of Juda together: but taried lõger thẽ ye tyme which was apoynted B him. Wherfore ye kig said to Abisai: now shal Seba ye sõne of Bochri be wors to vs then Absalõ. Take yu therfore thy * lordes servaũtz & folow after hi: lest he gett hym walled cities & escape vs. And ther wente out after him Joabs mẽ & ye Cerethites & ye Phelethites & ye mẽ of mighte. And they departed out of Jerusalẽ to folowe after Seba ye sonne of Bochri. And when they were come to the great stone in Gabaõ, A- C masa met thẽ. And Joab had hys garmẽt the womā said: art thou Ioab? And Ioab F āswered yͤ am I. And she said to hī: heare yͤ wordes of thy hādmaid? And he said: I am ready to heare. And she said: it hath ben a fullest cities yͤ ar in Israel. And yͤ goest a bout to destroy a citie that is as a mother in Israel. Why deuowrest thou yͤ enheritaunce of the Lord.

And Ioab āswered & said: god forbid, God forbid it me, yͤ I shuld ether deuow-re or destroy it. The matter is not so: But there is a mā of mount Ephraim, Seba yͤ sōne of Bochri by name, which hath * lifte vp his hād against king Dauid. Deliuer vs him only, & I wyl depart frō the citie,

And the womā said vnto Ioab: Behold, G

And Rezphah ye daughter of Aiah toke Sackclothe & spred it vnder her vpõ the Rocke, euẽ frõ ye begining of haruest vntill raine dropped vpõ thẽ out of heuen & suffered nether ye birddes of ye Aire to fal on thẽ by day nor beastes of the felde by C night. And whẽ it was told Dauid what Rezphah ye daughter of Aiah ye cõcubyne of Saul had done, he wẽt & toke ye bones of Saul & of Jonathas his sõne, of ye mẽ of Jabes in Galaad, which they had stolẽ frõ ye strete of Bethsã, wher ye Philistines had hãged thẽ in ye dayes whẽ ye philistinz had slaine saul i Gelboe. And he brought thẽce ye bones of Saul & the bones of Jonathas his sõne, & they set away ye bones of thẽ that were hãged, & buryed thẽ with the bones of Saul & Jonathas his sonne in the cõtrey of Bẽiamin, in Zela, in ye sepulchre of Cis his father. And when they had performed al ye the kyng cõmaũded, God was then at one with the lande.

And ye Philistines had yet againe warre wt Israel. And Dauid went downe & his seruaũtes wt him, & fought with ye Philistines. And Dauid waxed faintie, & Jesbi of * Nob one of the sõnes of * Haraphah whose speare hed waied thre hũdred sycles of Brasse, & was gyrd with a new swerde thought to haue slaine dauid. But Abisai D ye sõne of Zaruiah succoured hĩ & smote ye philistine & killed him. Thẽ ye seruaũtes of dauid sware vnto hĩ saying. Thou shalt go no more out with vs to battel, that the lighte of Israell be not put out. And ther was yet after this battel wt ye Philistines at * Nob, i which Sobochai ye Husathite slew Saph of the sonnes of Haraphah.

And ther was yet ye third battel in Gob, wt the philistines, wher Elhanan the sõne of ye Jaere Orgi, a Bethlehemite slue one goliath a gethite: ye staffe of whose speare was as great as a weuers cloth beame.

And ther was yet battel in Geth, wher was a mã of a syse & had on euery hãd. vi. fyngers & on euerye fote. vi. toes. xxiiii. in al. And was also of ye kired of Haraphah, & defied Israel. And Jonathas the sonne of Samaah ye brother of Dauid slue hĩ. These foure were of ye sõnz of Haraphah in Geth, & were ouer throwen by the hand of Dauid & by the hãdes of his seruaũtes.

C The Canticle or song of Dauid for ye delyuerance from his enemyes.

The. xxii. Chapter.

And Dauid spake ye wordz of this sõg vnto the lorde, what tyme ye lord had deliuered hĩ out of the hãdz of all his enemies, & out of ye hãdz of saul. A

And he said: the Lord is my * rocke, my castel & my deliuerer. God is my strẽgth, & in him wil I trust: my shyld & the horne that defẽdeth me: mine hie hold & refuge: O my Sauer, saue me from wronge.

I wyl prayse & cal on the lord, & so shal be saued from myne enemyes. For ye waues of deeth haue closed me aboute, & the flodes of belial haue feared me. The copz of hel haue cõpassed me about, & ye snares of deth haue ouertake me. In my tribulaciõ I called to the lord, & cried to my God. And he heard my voyce out of his tẽple, & my crye entered into his eares. And yerth trimbeled & quoke, & the foũdacions of heuẽ moued & shoke, because he was angrie.

Smoke wẽt vp out of his nostrelles, & consuming fyre out of his mouth, ye coles were kẽdled of him. And he bowed heuẽ & came downe, & darcknesse vnder neth hys fete. And he rode vpon Cherub & flewe: & B apered vpon the winges of the wĩd. And he made darcknesse a tabernacle round about hym, wt water gethered togeather in thycke cloudes. Of the bryghtnes, ye was before hym, coles were sett on fyre.

The Lord thundred from heuen, & the most hye put out hys voyce. And he shot arowes & skatered them, and hurled lyghtenyng & turmoyled thẽ. And the bottoms of the see appered, and the foũdacyons of the worlde were sene, by the reason of the rebukynge of the Lorde, and thorowe the blastynge of the breth of hys nostrelles. He sẽt from an hye & fet me, & plucked me out of myghtye waters.

He deliuered me frõ my mightie enemy, & frõ thẽ that hated me & were to stronge for me. Whẽ they had compased me in the day of my tribulatiõ, the Lorde stayed me vp. And he brought me out into rowmeth & delyuered me, because he delyted in me.
The lord rewarded me according to my C right wysnes, & according to the purenesse of my hãdes he dealt with me. For I kept the wayes of the Lord, & dyd no wyckednes forsaking my God. But I had al his lawes in my sight, & turned my face from none of his ordinãces. But was pure vnto hi ward, & kept my selfe frõ wickednes.
And the Lord dyd to me agayne, according to my rightewysnes, & after my pure nes that I had in his sight. With the holy thou shalt be holy, & wyth the man that is vncorrupte, ẏ shalt be vncorrupt. With ẏ pure ẏ shalt be pure, & with the froward ẏ shalt be froward also. And the people that ar in aduersite thou shalt help. And on the proude shalt thou caste thyne eyes. Thou art my light O Lord, & the lord shal light my darkenesse.
With thy helpe I wil runne thorow an hoste of mẽ, & by the ayde of my God wyl spring ouer a walle. The * way of God is vndefyled, & the word of the lord tried as gold, & he a shilde to al that trust in hym.
Who is a god saue the Lord, and who mightie saue our god? God is my strength in warre, & ryddeth the waye cleare before me. And maketh my fete as swyfte as an hindes & setteth me fast vpõ my hye hold.
And teacheth my hãdes to fight, ẏ a bowe of brasse is to weake for myne armes.
D And thou hast saued me with thy shyld, & keppest me euer in mekenes. And thou madest me space to walke in, that my fete shuld not stõble. I folowed myne enemies & destroyed thẽ, & turned not agayn vntyl I had consumed them.
I wasted thẽ & so clouted thẽ, that they could not aryse: but fell vnder my fete.
And ẏ compasedest me about wt might to battel, & madest them that rose agaynst me to stoupe vnder me.
And ẏ madest myne enemies to * turne theyr backes to me, & them that hated me, & I destroyed them. They loked for helpe But none came to saue thẽ vnto the Lord they cryed, but he heard them not,
And I wyl beate them as small as the dust of ẏ erth, & wyl stãpe thẽ as the myre of the strete, & wyll spreade them abroade.
And ẏ delyueredst me frõ the dyssenciõ of my people, & kepest me to be an head ouer naciõs, for the people whych I knewe not be came my seruauntes.
And the aliantes crouched vnto me, and obeyed me at a word, And the alyentes ẏ shrinke away shall treble for feare in theyr * defenced places.
The lord lyue, & blessed be he that is my strength: & exalted be God ẏ strength that saueth me. It is God that auẽgeth me, & bringethe downe ẏ people vnder me. And delyuereth me frõ myne enemies, thou lyf test me vp on hye frõ thẽ that ryse against me, & delyuerest me from the wicked men.
And therfore I wyl prayse the O Lord amõg the heathẽ, & I wil sing vnto thy na me. For thy great & manifold sauig of thi king, & shewing mercy vnto thyne anoynted, euẽ to Dauid, & hys sede for euer.

The Notes.

a Godly men haue called the Lord by diuerse names according to theyr faythes is, as they thought of God within thẽ selues, & as they also had proued. So Dauid here called him hys Rocke, hys castel, hys deliuerer, hys strength, hys shylde, hys horne of defence &c. Psalme xviii. a.

b To sing vnto the name of God is a commẽ maner of speaking to the Psalmist, for to geue thãkes & to shewe the verite & glory of god, as in ẏ psa. xxi. c.

a Understãd, sayd, yt he wold rayse vp of my stock a king, which shuld be Messias, yt shuld rule in ye feare of ye lord, yt is, in ye true worshipping of the one & true god. For the kingdõ of Christ is the kingdõ of thẽ that beleue & worship god, in spret & truth: & that kepe his cõmaundementes, & earnestly & wyth al theyr trust leane to that, that pleaseth hym.

b Joseb. i. Para. xi. c. is he named Isabal ye sonne of Hachamoni. Josephus de antiq. lib. vii. cap. x. calleth him Jesobus after some opiniõs. After other som Ealebus: Affirming also yt he was ofte wont to rushe into the forwarde of his enemies, & not leaue fighting, tyll he had kylled nyne hundred.

c Not ouer ye fyrst thre, but ouer ye thre yt were inferiour & vnder thẽ, that is, ouer thẽ that were of ye second degre of Dauids mightie mẽ or worthies.

C Because Dauid caused ye people to be nõbred, is Israel plaged wt pestilẽce, so yt in .iii. dayes ther died lxx. thousand.

The .xxiiii. Chapter.

AND the Lorde was wroth againe against Israel, & stered I vp Dauid against thẽ saying go & nombre both Israel and Juda. And forth with ye king sayde to Joab the captayne of hys Host: go abroade I praye the, thorowout al the trybes

trybes of Israel, evē frō Dan to Bersabe ⁊ nōbre the people that I maye know the nōbre of thē. And Ioab sayd unto ye king I beseche ye the Lorde thy God make the people as many moo as they be: ye ⁊ an. C tymes so many moo, ⁊ that the eyes of my lord ye king may se thē. But how is it ye my lord ye king hath a lust in this thing? not w stādinge ye kinges wordes prevailed agaīst Ioab ⁊ against al ye captaynes of ye hoste.

Thē Ioab ⁊ the captaynes of the hoste went out frō the king, to vewe the people of Israel. And they passed over Iordā ⁊ pit ched i Aroer on the right syde of the citie ye lieth in the myddes of the valey of Gad ⁊ so forth to Iazer. And thē they wēt to Galaad ⁊ to the nether lande of Hodesi, ⁊ frō thence to Dan Iaan, ⁊ aboute to Sidon, ⁊ came to the stronge towne of Tyre, ⁊ to al the cyties of the Hevites ⁊ of the Cananites, ⁊ thē wēt out to the South of Iuda evē to Bersabe. And so whē they had ben abroade thorowout al ye lande they returned to Ierusalē agayne at the ende of .ix.
B monethes ⁊ .xx. dayes. And thē Ioab dely-vered up the rekeninge of the nōbre of the people unto ye king. And ther were foūd in Israel .ix. hūdred thousand men of might that drew swerdes. And the men of Iuda were fyve hundred thousand men.

And Davids hert smote him after that he had nōbred the people. And he sayd un to the Lord: I have sinned exceedingly in ye I have done. And now Lord take awaye the trespace of thy servāt: for I have done folishlye. And when David was up in a morning, the word of the Lord came unto the prophet Gad Davids sear saying: go and saye unto David, thys sayth the lord I offer the thre thīges, chose whych of thē I shal do to the.

And Gad came to David ⁊ shewed him ⁊ sayd unto him: whether wylte thou have vii. yeres hūger in thy lād, or that thou flee thre monethes before thine enemies ⁊ they folowing the, or that ther be thre dayes pe stilence in thy lāde. Now understand and se, what word I shal bring agayne to him that sent me. Thē sayd David unto Gad C I am in a marveylous strayte. But let me fal I pray the, into the handes of the Lord for moch is his mercy, and let me not falle into the handes of men.

And the Lord sent a pestilēce in Israell frō the morning unto the ende of the tyme apointed. And there died of the people be-twene Dan ⁊ Bersabe .lxx. thousand men And whē the angel stretched out his hand unto Ierusalē to have destroyed it, ye lorde had cōpassion to do that evel ⁊ sayd to the Angel that destroyed the people: it is sufficient: let thyne hand cease. And the Angell was at ye thresshinge place of Areunah the Iebusite. Thē spake David unto the lord whē he saw the Angel ye smote the people, and sayd: loo, it is I that have synned, and I that have done wickedly. But the shepe what have they done? let I pray the thyne hand be on me and on my fathers house.

And Gad came the same day to David ⁊ sayd unto him: go up ⁊ reare an aultare unto the lord in the thresshing flowre of A-reunah the Iebusite. And David accordin ge to the saying of Gad wēt up as ye lorde cōmaunded. And when Areunah loked ⁊ D sawe the king ⁊ his servaūtes coming to-warde hym, he went out: ⁊ bowed him self to the king flat on his face to the ground, ⁊ sayd: wherfore is my Lord the king come to his servaunt? And David sayd: to bye the thresshing flowre of the, for to make an aultare unto the Lord that the plage may cease from the people.

And Areunah sayde unto the king: lete my lord the king take ⁊ offer what semeth him good in his eies: Behold oxē for sacre fyce, ⁊ sleades ⁊ the other instrumentes of the oxē for wood. And Areunah ye kynges frend gave al to the king, and sayd moreo ver unto the king: the Lord: the Lorde thy God accept the. But the kinge sayd unto Areunah: not so, but I wyl bye it of the at a pryce, ⁊ wyll not offer sacrifice unto the Lord my God that shall cost me noughte And so David bought ye thresshing flowre, ⁊ the oxen for fyftie sycles of sylver. And David bylt ther an aultar unto the Lorde ⁊ offred burntsacrifices ⁊ peaceoffringes, And so the Lord was agreed wyth the lande. And the plage ceased from Israel.

Abisag ẏ Sunamite ministred vnto him.
And Bethsabe stouped & made obeysaūce vnto the king. And the kinge sayde: what is thy matter? And she answered & sayde: My Lord thou swarest by the Lorde thy God vnto thyne hādmayde: Salomō thy sonne shal raygne after me & he shal sit vpon my seate. But now se, Adoniah is kin ge and thou my Lord king wottest it not.
And he hath offred oxē, fatlinges & shepe aboundantly, & hath called all the sonnes of the king, & Abiathar the priest, & Joab the captayne of the hoste. But Salomon of my Lord the kyng after him. For elles whē my lord ẏ kynge is layde to rest with hys fathers, I & my sonne Salomō shall be ✶ sinners.

And behold while she yet talked with ẏ king, Nathā the prophete was come. And they told the king saying: here cometh Na thā the prophet. And whē he was come be fore the king, he made obeysaunce vnto ẏ king vpō his face vnto ẏ groūde, & sayd: My Lord king, hast thou sayde, Adoniah

Then

Then kynge Dauid answered & sayde: cal me Bethsabe. And she came in & stode before him. And ẏ king sware saying: As sure as the Lord (that hath rydd my soule out of al aduersite) lyueth: euē as J sware vnto the by the Lord God of Jsraell sayinge: Salomon shal raygne after me, & he shal syt vpō my seate for me, so wyl J do thys daye. And Bethsabe bowed on her face to the earth & dyd obeysaunce vnto the kynge and sayde: J praye God my Lorde kyng Dauid may lyue euer. Then sayde king Dauid cal me Sadock the prieste & Nathan the Prophet & Banaiah the sōne of Jehoiada. And when they came before the kyng, The king said vnto thē: take wt you the seruaūtes of your Lord, & set Salomon my sonne vpon myne owne Mule and carye hym downe to Gihon. And lette Sadock the Priest and Nathan the prophet anoynte hym there, to be kynge ouer

C Jsraell. And then blowe ye wyth a trōpet & saye: God saue king Salomō. And thē come vp after hym, & let him come and syt vpon my seate. For he shalbe kinge in my stede. And hym J haue cōmaunded to be captayne ouer Jsrael and Juda. And Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada āswered the kyng & sayd, Amē, & so J praye God that the Lord God of my Lorde the kyng saye so to. And as the Lord hath bene wyth my Lorde the kynge, euen so, J praye God he maye be, with Salomō and that he make hys seate gloriousser then thee seate of my Lord kinge Dauid.

And Sadock the Prieste & Nathā the prophet & Banaiah ẏ sōne of Jehoiada & the Cerethites & Phelethites wēt down, & set Salomō vpō kinge Dauids Mule &

D led him to Gihon. And Sadock the Priest toke an horne of oyle out of ẏ tabernacle & anoynted Salomon. And they blew a trōpett, and all they sayde: God saue kynge Salomon. And all the people came vp after hym pypynge wythe pypes and reioysynge greatlye, so that the erth range with the sounde of them.

And Adoniah & all the gestes that were with him, heard it euē as they hadde made an ende of eatinge. And whē Joab hearde the soūde of the trōpet, he said: how happeneth it ẏ there is soche a noyse in the cytie? And as he yet spake, se, Jonathas ẏ sōne of Abiathar the priest came. And Adoniah sayd: come for thou art a lusty bloud and bryngest good tydynges. And Jonathas answered and sayde to Adoniah: Verelye oure Lord kynge Dauid hath made Salomon kyng. And the kynge sente wythe hym, Sadock the priest & Nathan the prophet: & Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada & the Cerethites & the Phelethites, & they haue set hym vpō ẏ kinges Mule. And Sadock the priest & Nathan the Prophet haue anoynted hym king in Gihon. And as they came vp agayne they reioysed that ẏ cytie dyd sounde agayne. And that is thee E noyse that ye haue heard. And therto Salomon sytteth on the seate of the kingdom And moreouer the kynges seruaūtes wēt in to blesse our Lord king Dauid saying: thy god make the name of Salomō more fauource then thyne, and hys seate moare gloryouse then thyne. And the kynge bowed hym selfe vpon the bedd. And laste of all thus sayde thee kynge: blessed be thee Lorde God of Jsraell whyche hath made one to syt on my seate thys daye, euen myne eyes seynge it.

And all the gestes that were wyth Adoniah were afrayed & rose vp & went euery mā hys waye. And Adoniah fearing Salomon arose & went & caught holde on the hornes of the altare. And it was told Salomō, how that Adoniah for feare of king

Salomō hath caught handfast vp ẏ hornes of the aultar sayng: let king Salomō Or thus, to ẏ [illegible]

sweare vnto me thys daye, that he wyll not sley his seruaunt with the swerd. And Salomon sayde, yf he wilbe a chyld of vertue ther shal not an hearre of hym fal to ẏ erth But & yf wickednesse shalbe found in him he shal dye for it. And therupon king Salomon sent & fet him downe from the aultare. And he came & dyd obeysaunce vnto kyng Salomon. And Salomon sayd to hym: get the to thyne house.

The Notes.

a) Here it appeareth that to be sett vppon the seate, signifieth to beare rule and to haue dominion or iurisdiction, as in manye places here after, and Mathe. xix. d

b) That is, shal seame to haue offended & synned agaynste the, when we be depryued frō the kingdom.

¶ Dauid dyeth. Adoniah requireth to haue Abisag to his cōpanyon, and therfore Salomō cōmaundeth to sley hym. Abiathar is putte from his Priesthode. Semei and Joab are slayne.

And ther vppon Bethsabe wente vnto D kinge Salomon to speake vnto hym for Adoniah. And ẏ king rose vp against her and bowed hym self vnto her, and sat him downe on hys seate. And there was a seate sett for the kinges mother, & ✱ she satt on hys ryght syde. Then she sayde: I muste my mother: for I wyll not saye the naye.

And she sayd: lette Abisag the Sunamite be geuen to Adoniah thy brother to wyfe.
And king Salomon answered & sayd vn to his mother: why doest thou aske Abisag the Sunamite for Adoniah? but rather aske for him the kingdom, seing he is my ne elder brother: Euen for him aske it and for Abiathar the priest, & for Joab the son re as surely as the Lord liueth which hath by the hand of Banaiah the sonne of Je

And vnto Abiathar the priest sayd the king: get the to Anatoth vnto thyne awne feldes, for thou art worthy of death: but I wyll

wil not at this time kyll the, because thou barest ŷ arck of the lorde Jehouah before Dauid my father & because ŷ sufferedst wyth my father in al his afflictions. And so Salomō put awaye Abiathar frō beyng prest vnto the lord: to fulfil the wordz of the lorde which he spake ouer the house of Eli in Siloh. Then tydinges came to Joab: for Joab had turned after Adoniah but not after Salomon. Wherupō he fled vnto ŷ tabernacle of ŷ lord & caughte * t hand fast on the hornes of the aultare. And it was tolde kyng Salomon how ŷ Joab was fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lord and stode by the aultare. Then Salomō sent Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada sayng: go & smyte him. And when Banaiah was come to the tabernacle of ŷ lorde he sayd vnto him: thus sayth the king, come out. And he sayde naye: But I wyl dye euen here. And Banaiah broughte the kyng worde sayinge: thus sayd Joab and thus he answered me.

And the kyng sayd: do euen as he hath sayd: smite him & burie him, & take awaye the bloud (which Joab shed causelesse) frō me & from ŷ house of my father. And the lord bring his bloud vpō hys owne heed, for he smote two men righter wyser & better thē he, & slue them with the swerde, my father vnwetyng: euē Abner the sōne of Ner captayne of the host of Israel, & Amasa ŷ the sōne of Jether captayne of the host of F Juda. And their bloud returne vpō ŷ hed of Joab & on the heed of his seed for euer. And prosperite be vnto dauid, & vnto hys seed, & vnto his house, and vnto his seate, of the Lorde for euer.

And Banaiah ŷ sōne of Jehoiada wēt vp & smote him and slue him & buried him in his owne house in ŷ wyldernesse. And ŷ king put Banaiah ŷ sōne of Jehoiada in his rowm: ouer the host, & put Sadock ŷ preast in the rowme of Abiathar.

Then the kinge sente & called Semei, & sayd to him: buylde the an house in Jerusalē & dwell there & se that thou go not once thēce anye whether. For be ŷ sure of it, the daye ŷ goest oute & passeste ouer the riuer of Cedrō, thou shalt die for it, & thy bloude shalbe on thyne owne heed. And Semei sayd vnto the king: it is wel sayd: as my Lord the kyng hath sayde, so wyll his seruaūt do. And Semei dwelt in Jerusalem many a day. And it chaunced at the ende of thre yere ŷ two of the seruaūtz of Semei cāme awaye vnto Achis sōne of Maacah kynge of Geth. And one tolde Semei sayinge: se, thy seruauntes be in Geth. And Semei stode vp and sadled his asse & gat him to Geth to Achis, to seke his seruauntes, & came & broughte thē agayne from Geth.

But it was tolde Salomon how that G Semei had gone from Jerusalē to Geth and was come agayne. And the kyng sent & called Semei & sayd vnto him: Did I not adiure the by the Lord, & testified vnto the sayinge: be sure when so euer thou goest out & walkest abrode any whether, thou shalt dye for it? And thou āswerest me, it is good tydinges that I haue hearde. Why then hast thou not kept the othe of the Lord and the cōmaundement that I commaunded the? i.ee.xvi.b.

And then the kynge sayde to Semei* thou remembrest al the wickednes which thyne herte knoweth that thou dydest to Dauid my father. The Lord therfore rēder agayne thy wyckednesse vpon thyne owne heed: & kynge Salomon be blessed, & the seate of Dauid be stablyshed before the Lord for euer. And the kyng cōmaūded Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada: which went out and smote him that he dyed. And so was the kyngdome settled in the hand of Salomon.

I dyd beare. And the other woman sayde it is not so: But the lyuinge is my sonne; and the dead thyne. And she sayd agayne: thou sayest vntrue, for the dead is thy son pleated before the kinge. Then sayde the kynge: the one sayeth, thys that is a lyue other sayth nay: But thy sõne is the dead and the lyue chyld is myne. Then sayd the kyng: bring me a swerde. And they brou-ghte a swerde before the kynge. And then the kinge sayd: Deuyde the lyuing chyld in two, and geue the one halfe to the one, & the other to the other.

Then spake the woman whose the ly-

And Hiram king of Tire sent his seruauntes vnto Salomō for he had heard that they had anoynted him king in y rowme of his father. And therto Hirā was euer a louer of Dauids. ✶ And ii. par. ii. a. Salomō sent agayne to Hiram saying: I

When Hirā heard the wordes of Salomon, he reioysed greatly & sayd: Blessed be the Lord this day which hath set dauid a wise sōne ouer this mightie people. And Hiram sent agayne to Salomō saying: I C haue accept the request whych thou sentest to me for, & wyl satysfye al thy lust, concer ninge tymber of Cedar trees & fyrre. My seruauntes shal bring thē frō Libanon to betwene Hiram & Salomon & they were cōfedered together. And kyng Salomō a reysed a tribute thorow out al Israel. And the tribute was. xxx. thousand men, which he sent to Libanō, ten thousand a moneth by course, so that they were one moneth in Libanon and two monethes at home.

And Adoniram was ouer the trybute.
And Salomon had thre skore & ten thou bylte the house and fynisshed it and syled the walles of the house wythin, wyth tybbes of Cedar tree: euen from the pauemēt vnto the rouffe dyd he syle it wythin, and borded thee floore of thee house with plan kes of fyrre.

And he syled .xx. cubites in the ende of ÿ tēple both floore & walles with Cedar, and dressed it wythin to be the quere and place moost holy. And the fyrst house, that is to saye, the bodye of the tēple was .xl. cubites longe. And the Cedar of the house wythin C was kerued wythe knoppes and grauen wyth flowres, and all was Cedar tymber, so that no stone was sene. And the quere that was wythin thee temple, he prepared to sette there the Arcke of the appoyntmēt of the Lorde. And the queare was twen-tye cubytes longe, and twentye in bredthe and twentye in heyghte. And he syled it wythe pure goulde, and borded the aultar wyth Cedar.
And Salomon syled the house with in also wythe pure goulde. And he made goulden barres runne a longe the queare, which he hadde couered wyth gould. And the whole house he ouerlayde wyth gould vntyll he hadde ended it. And the aultare that was in the quere he ouerlayde wythe goulde also.
And wythin the quere he made twoo * Exo.xxv.b pece, & euery winge fyue cubites longe: so that frō the vttermost parte of one wynge vnto the vttermost part of the other were ten cubites.

And the other Cherub was ten cuby-tes hye also: so that bothe thee Cherubes were of one measure and one syse. The heyghte of the one Cherub was ten cuby-tes, and so was it of the other. And he putt the Cherubes in the myddle of thee ynner D house. * And the Cherubes stretched their Exo.xxv.b wynges, so that the one wynge of thee one touched the one walle, and the one wynge of the other touched the other walle. And the other two winges of them touched one āother in the myddes of the house. And he ouerlayde the Cherubes wyth gould.
And all the walles of the house rounde about, he garnesshed wyth worcke of Cherubes and paulme trees and grauen flow res, bothe wythin in the queare and wythoute in the temple. And the floore of thee house he couered wyth goulde bothe wyth in, in thee quere and also wythoute in thee temple. And in the enteringe of the queare he made two dores of olyue tree, wyth the vpper and twoo syde postes fyue square.
And the two dores of oliue tree, he graued wyth grauinge of Cherubes and paulme trees and graued flowres, & couered them wythe goulde, and layde goulde ouer thee Cherubes and also the paulme trees. And in lyke maner vnto the dore of the temple he made postes of olyue tree .iiii. square, & two dores of fyrre tree, & ether doore with twoo foldynge leues and graued thereon

A AND Salomō bylte his owne house in thyrtene yeare space and full fynisshed it. And he bylte ther house of the wood of Libanon, an hundred cubytes longe and fyftie broade, and thyrtie hye, foure square wythe rowes of Cedar pyllars, and Cedar beames along vpō the pyllers. And the rouffe was Cedar aboue an hye vppon the beames that laye an hye on the pyllers, whych pyllers were fourtie and fiue in nomber, fiftene on a rowe, and the spaces betwene the pillers were one a-gaynst another thre folde. And all the dores with the syde postes were foure square one agaynst another thre folde.
And he made a porche of pillers fyftye cubytes longe and thyrtie cubytes broade and yet a porche before that wyth pyllers, and a thycke pyller before that. Then he made a porche to sytte and iudge in, syled wyth Cedar thorow out all the pauemen-tes. And his owne house where he kept resydence in another courte wythoute that porche was of the same worcke. And then B Salomon made an house for Pharaos iii. Re. iii. a se was it in the ynner court of the house of the Lorde and of the porche of the temple.

ii. Par. ii. c * And kynge Salomon sent and fett one Hiram oute of Tire, a wedowes sonne of the trybe of Nephthalim, hys father beinge of Tire. Whych Hiram was a craftes man in brasse, and full of wysdomme, vnderstandynge and connynge to worcke all maner of worcke in brasse. And he came to kynge Salomon and wroughte all hys worcke. He caste two pyllers of brasse of xviii. cubytes a pece hye, and a strynge of xii. cubytes myght compasse ether of them aboute. And he made two head peces of molten brasse to sette on the toppes of the pyllers, of fyue cubites longe a pece, with garlandes of brayded worke and whopes of chayne worcke for the heads peces that were on the pyllers seuen for thee one and seuē for the other. And he made the pillers and for ether of the head peces a garland, C wyth two rowes of pomegranettes to couer them wyth al. And the head peces that were on ỹ toppes of ỹ pyllers were wroughte wyth lylies in the porche the space of foure cubites of them. And the pomegra-nettes aboue & beneth on the wrethē chay-nes that compased the myddle of the head peces were in nōbre two hundred on ether head pece. And he set vp the pyllers in the porche of the temple, and when he had set vppe the ryghte pyller, he called the name therof Iachin, and when he had set vppe D the lefte pyller he called thee name therof Boaz. And the toppes of the pyllers were thus wroughte wythe lylyes, and so was theyr workemanshyppe fynisshed.
Then he caste a see of brasse, ten cubytes wyde from brym to brym and roun de in compasse, and fyue cubytes hye. And a strynge of thyrtie cubytes myghte compasse it aboute, and vnder thee brym of it as it were apples compased and enbrased the sea of ten cubytes wyde in two rowes cast wyth it when it was caste. And it stode on twelue oxen: of whyche thre looked Northe, thre West, thre Southe, and thre Easte, and the see on hye vpon them, and all theyr hynder partes were inward. And it was an hand breadeth thicke, & the brim wrought lyke the brym of a cup with flow res of lylies. And it contayned * two thou ii. Pa. iii. [illegible]

And he made .x. botomes of brasse, foure cubites longe & .iiii. cubites broade a pece, & thre hie. And the workes of the botomes was on this maner ỹ the sydes were as it were flat bordes betwene the ledges. And on the

C on the flatte bordes betwene the ledges were lyons, oxen & Cherubes. And vpon the ledges that were aboue & beneth the li ons and oxen, was ioyned pendant worcke. And euerye bottom had foure brasen wheles, whose axeltrees were also of brasse. And in the foure corners were vn-dersetters vnder ỹ lauetorie caste eche ouer agaynst his felow.

And the stalck of the lauetorie was in the middle of the bottome one cubit hye, & a cubyte and an halfe roūd, & it had knop pes ther on in the bare places which were foure square not rounde. And vnder the D syde were foure wheles and theyr axeltrees ioyned fast to the bottome. And the height of euerye whele was a cubyte and an halfe. And the worckeman shipe of the wheles was lyke the worcke of a charette whele. And the axeltrees, ỹ nauelles spokes & shaftes were al moultē. And ỹ foure vndersetters in the foure corners were of the verye bottomes.

And vnder the stalcke of the lauatorie in the myddes of the bottome was there a rounde fote of halfe a cubyt hye. And ther on playne places and ledges of the selfe.
And he graued in the playne & also on the ledges, Cherubes lyōs & paulmetrees, e-F uery where round about. And on this ma ner he made the ten bottomes cast worck: al of one measure and one syse. Then he made ten lauers of brasse cōtaynyng four tye Bathes a pece, and they were of foure cubites a pece, for euery one of ỹ botomes a lauer. And he put fyue of those bottomes on the right corner of the temple, and other fiue on ỹ lefte: And put the see on the ryght corner of the tēple Eastwarde & towarde the South.

And Hiram made pottes, shouelles & basens, and so finisshed all ỹ worcke that he made kynge Salomon for the house of the Lord: that is to saye, two pyllers & two skalpes of the hedes that were on the toppes of the two pyllers, and foure hundred pōgranetes vpō two wrethes, two rowes on ether wrethe, to couer the two skalpes of the hedes ỹ were on the top-pes of ỹ two pillers: And the tē bottomes of brasse wt ten lauers vpō thē: & a see wt G twelue oxē vnder it: & pottes, shouelles & basins. And all these vesselles whych Hiram made to kyng Salomon for ỹ house of the lord were of bright brasse. And in ỹ plaine of Iordā dyd the king cast thē euē in the claie of the erth betwene Socoh & Zarthā. And Salomō left all the vessel-les vnwayed, for the exceding aboundāce of brasse that was in them.

And Salomon made al the vesselles ỹ pertayned vnto the house of the Lord: the Aultare of goulde, and the table of goul-de wheron the shewe breed was put: And fyue candelstyckes, for the rightsyde, and as many for the lefte, before the quere, of pure goulde: wt flowres, lāpes, & snuffers of goulde: and Bolles, Psalteries, basōs, spones and fyre pannes of pure goulde: and hynges of gould bothe for the dores of the quere, the place most holy, & for the dores of the temple also.

And so was ended al the worck ỹ king Salomon made for the house of the Lor de. And then * Salomon broughte in the ii. Par. v. a thynges whych Dauid his father had de dycated in syluer, goulde and other vessel les, & put them to the treasure of the house of the Lorde.

The. viii. Chapter.

Then Salomon gathered the elders of Israel al the hedes A of the trybes and auncyente Lordes of the chyldren of Israel, vnto hym to Ierusalē, to brynge vppe the Arke of the appoynt ment of the Lord out of the cytye of Da-uid which is Sion. And al the men of Is rael assembled vnto kynge Salomon to the feast that falleth in the moneth * Etha * that is, September nim whiche is the seuenth moneth. And whē al the elders of Israel were come, the preastes toke vp the Arck of the Lorde, & brought it & also the tabernacle of witnes & al ỹ holy vesselles ỹ were therin. And ỹ prestes & the leuites brought thē vp. And king Salomō and al the congregaciō of Israel that were assembled & were wyth him before the arcke dyd offer shepe and oxen ỹ coulde not be tolde nor nombred for multytude.

And so the prestes brought the ark of ỹ apoyntment of the Lorde vnto his place: euẽ into the quere of the temple and place most holy, vnder the wynges of the Che= rubes. For ye Cherubes stretched out their wynges ouer the Arcke, and couered both it & also the staues therof a hye vpon it.

Howe be it the staues were so longe yt the endes of thẽ appered out of the holy place before the quere, but were not sene wout.
B And ther they be vnto this day. And ther was *nothyng in the Arcke saue the two tables of stone which Moses put ther at Horeb, when the Lord made an appoynt= mẽt with the children of Israel after they were come out of Egypt.

And when the preastes were come out of the holy place, then a cloude fylled the house of the Lord, that the preastes could not endure to minister because of ye cloud for the glorye of the Lorde had fylled the house of the Lord. Thẽ spake Salomõ: the Lord sayde, yt he wolde dwel in darck= nesse. I haue bylt the an house to dwel in, & an habitaciõ for the to abide in for euer.
And the kyng turned his face & blessed al the congregacion of Israel, al the congre= gacion standyng. And he sayde.

Blessed be the Lorde God of Israell, which hath fulfilled with his *hand, that he spake wt his mouthe vnto Dauid my father sayinge: from the daye I brought my people Israell out of Egipt, I chose no citie amõg any of the tribes of Israel, to buylde an house, yt my name mighte be ther: But I haue chosen Dauid to be ru= ler ouer my people Israell.

*That is wt his power.

And it was in the hert of Dauid my fa= ther, to bilde an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. But the Lord God sayde vnto Dauid my father: in yt it was in thyne hert to byld an house for my na= me, thou dydest wel yt thou wast so myn= ded. Neuerthelesse thou shalt not bild the house, but thy sõne that shall come out of C thy loynes, he shal bylde an house for my name. And the Lord hath made good his word that he spake. For I stode vp in the rowme of Dauid my father, & sate on the seate of Israel, as the lord promesed, & ha ue bylt an house for the name of the lorde God of Israell. And I haue prepared therin a place for the Arcke wherin ye coue naũt of the lord is, which he made wt our fathers, after he had brought thẽ oute of the lãd of Egypt. And Salomõ stode be fore ye aultare of ye lord in ye sight of all ye congregaciõ of Israel & stretched out his hãdes to heuẽ & said: lord God of Israel, ther is no god like ye in heuẽ aboue or in the erth benethe, yt kepest appoyntemente & mercye wt thy seruaũtes that walck be= fore the wt al their hertes: which also hast kepte withe thy seruaunte Dauid my fa= ther, that yu promesest him. Thou spakest wt thy mouthe & hast fulfilled wt thine hã de, as it is come to pas this day. And now Lord God of Israel, kepe wt thy seruaũt Dauid my father, that yu promesedst hym saying: thou shalt not be withe out one or other before me, syttyng on the seate of Is rael: How be it yf thy chyldren shall take hede to their waies that they walck before me, as thou hast walcked beforeme. Now then O Lorde God of Israel, let thy wor hys seruaunt and of hys people Israel euermore, that al nacyons of thee erth may G know that the Lorde, he is God and none but he. And I pray God that youre hertes may be sounde with the Lorde oure God, to walke in his ordinaunces & to kepe his lawes as we do this daye.

And the kyng & al Israel with him, of ii. Pa. vii. a ferED offeringes before the lord. * And the peaceofferinges yt Salomō offered vnto ye Lord, were. xxii. thousand oxen & an hūdred & twentye thousand shepe: And so ye kyng & al the chyldren of Israell dedicated the house of the Lorde. And the same day the kynge halowed the myddle of the court yt is before the house of the lord: for there he offered burntofferinges & meate-offeringes & the fat of the peaceofferinges, because ye brasen aultare that was before the Lord, was to lytle to receaue ye burntofferynges and meateofferynges and the fatt of the peaceofferinges.

And Salomon helde that same tyme ye tribute, which king Salomō raised, to byld the house of the Lorde and his owne

house,

house, & Melo & the walles of Jerusalē, and Hezer, and Magedo and Gazer.

For Pharao king of Egipt went vp & toke Gazer & burnt it with fyre, and slue the Cananites þ dwelt in the cytie, & gaue it for a present vnto his daughter þ was Salomons wyfe. And Salomon bylte Gazer and Beth Horon the nether: and Baalath and Thamar in the wildernes þ is in the lande: & al the stoore cities þ Salomon had, & cyties for his charettes, & cities for his horsemen & al þ hys luste was to bylde in Jerusalē and Libanon & in al the land of his kyngdome.

And all the people that were left of the Amorites, Hethites, Pheresites, Heuites & Jebusites, which were not of the childrē of Israel, the children of the sayd nacyōs that were lefte in the land, because the children of Israell were not able to destroye them, dyd Salomō make trybutaries vnto thys daye. And of the chyldren of Israell dyd Salomon make no bondemen. But they were men of warre and his ser-

D uaūtes and his lordes & Captaynes & rulars of his charettꝫ & of his horsmē. And these many lordes þ ouersawe the worcke had Salomon, fyue hundred and fyftye, whiche ruled the people that wroughte in the worcke.

And pharaos daughter came vp out of þ citie of Dauid vnto þ house which Salomō had bilt for her. And after þ he bylte Melo. And thrise a yere did salomō offer burntofferinges & peaceofferinges vpon the aultare which he had bilt vnto þ lord, to burne the fat therō: which aultare is before the Lorde.

And when king Salomō had made the house perfect, he made shippꝫ in Asiō Gaber which is beside Eloth, on the brinck of the red see, in the lād of Edō. And Hiram sent by shippe also of hys seruauntes, þ were shipmen & expert in the see, wyth the seruaūtes of Salomon. And they wēt to Ophir & fet frō thēce goulde, to þ summe of .iiii. hundred & .xxii. talētes, & broughte it to Salomon.

¶ The Quene of Saba cometh from the uttermost endes of the land to heare and se the wisdom of Salomō. The yerly reuenues and rentes of Salomon. His throne, vessiles of gould, charettes, horsemen, and aboundaunce of sylver.

The .x. Chapter.

And þ quene of Saba heard of the wysdome of Salomō cōcerning the name of the lorde and came to proue him wt rydelles. And she came to Jerusalem wt a mightie great multitude of Camelles that bare swete odoures and goulde exceadynge moche, and precyouse stones. And when she was come to Salomō, she comuned with him of al that was in her herte. And Salomon expounded her all her questiōs, that ther was not one thynge hydd from the kynge which he expounded her not.

And when the quene of Saba had sene all Salomons wisdome & the house that he had bylt, & the meate of his table, & the syttinge of his seruauntes, & the stādyng of hys seruytoures & their apparel, & hys buttelers, and hys sacryfyce that he offered in the house of the lord, she was astonied. Then she sayd to the kyng: the word I harde in mine owne lande of thy dedes and wisdom, is true. How be it I beleued it not, tyll I came and saw it wyth myne eyes. And se, the one halfe was not tolde B me: for thy wysdome and goodnes exceadeth the fame which I hearde. Happy are thy men: and happye are these thy seruaūtes, which stande euer before the and heare thy wysdome. And blessed be the Lorde thy God whyche had a luste to the, to sett the on the seate of Israell, because the Lorde loued Israell for euer, and therfore made the kynge, to do equyte and ryghtwysnesse.

And she gaue the kynge an hundred & .xx. talentes of goulde, & of swete odoures exceding moch, & preciouse stones. There came neuer after soche aboundaunce of swete odoures as þ Quene of Saba gaue to kyng Salomō. And therto þ shippꝫ of Hirā that brought goulde frō Ophir, brought from Ophir greate plentye of * Almuge tre & preciouse stones. And king Salomō made of the Almuge trees pyllers in the house of þ Lord in the kynges palace, & made harpes & psalteries for syngers. There came no moare Almuge trees so, nor was any more sene vnto this daye. And kynge Salomon gaue vnto the Quene of Saba al her desyre that she asked of him: besides þ he gaue her wt hys beatē gould, vi. C. sycles of gould wēte to a bouckelar. And he made thre. C. shyldes of beaten gould, thre pound of gould goy inge to a pece, and putt thē in the house of the wood of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great seate of Irychesse & wisdom. And al the world resor ted to Salomon, to heare hys wysdō, whi che god had put in his hart. And brought him euery man hys present, vessels of syluer and of gould, & of raymente, harnesse, swete odoures, horsses & Mules, yeare by yeare. And Salomon geathered together charettes and horssemen: so that he had a thousand and .iiii. hundred charettes, and xii. thousand horsemē, whych he bestowed in the charett cyties and wyth the kyng at Ierusalem.

* And the kyng made syluer in Ieru-ij. Par. i. b. salem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar as plēteouse as the mulbery trees ỹ grow in the valeyes. And Salomons horsses came out of Egipt from Keua: The mar-chauntes fett thē from Keua at a pryce. A charet came out of Egipt for .vi. hundred sicles of syluer, & an horsse for an hundred and fyftie. And euen so by the handes of the sayde marchauntes, horsses were brou ght out for all the Kinges of the Hethites and for the kynges of Siria.

hert was not perfect with the lord his god as was the hert of Dauid his father.
And Salomon folowed Astharoth the B

Hadad being yet a lytle lad. And they aro se out of Madian & went to Pharan & to ke men wyth them out of Pharan and came to Egipt vnto Pharao kynge therof, which gaue him an house, & apoynted him vitayles and gaue hym landes.

And Hadad gatte greate fauour in the syghte of Pharao, so that he gaue hym to wyfe the syster of his owne wyfe, þ syster of Thahaphnes the quene. And þ sister of Thahaphnes bare him Genubath his sõ-ne. And Thahaphnes wened him in Pha raos house. And he was in Pharaos house amõg the sonnes of Pharao. And when Hadad heard say in Egipt þ Dauid was D layd to slepe with his fathers, & that Joab the captayne of the host was dead also, he sayd to Pharao let me depart, þ I may go to myne owne coũtrey. Thẽ sayd Pharao vnto him: what lackest thou here with me, that thou woldest go to thyne owne countrey? And he sayd, nothing: howbeit let me go. And god stered vp another aduersary one Razon the sonne of Eliada, which fled from Hadadezer king of Zobah his mayster. Which Razon gethered mẽ vnto hym & became captayne ouer the cõpanie, when Dauid slue them. And they wente to Da-masco and dwelte therein, and raygned in Damasco. And he was an aduersarye too Israell all the dayes of Salomon, wythe the euell that Hadad dyd, whych abhorred Israell and raygned in Siria.

And Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat an

The.xii.Chapter.

A And Rehoboam went to Si-chē: for all Israell were come to Sichē to make him king.
And whē Jeroboā the sonne of Nabat hearde of it being yet in Egipte: for he fled to Egipt for feare of Salomon, and dwelt in Egipt. And they sent and called him: and so Jeroboam and al the congregation of Israel came ⁊ spake vnto Rehoboam saying: thy father made oure youcke greuouse, but now ma ke thou the greuouse seruice of thy father and hys sore youcke which he put vpō vs lyghter, ⁊ so we wyl serue the. And he sayd vnto them: depart yet for the space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.
And kyng Rehoboā toke councel wyth the olde men that stode before Salomon his father, while he yet lyued, ⁊ said: what coūcel geue ye to āswere thys people with B al? And they sayd vnto him: Yf thou shalt be a seruaunt vnto thys people thys daye and serue thē and answere thē ⁊ speake kin de wordes to thē: they wyl be thy seruauntes for euer. But he left the councel that ẏ olde men had geuē hym, ⁊ counceled with the young men that were nourished vp w hym, ⁊ had wayted on hym.
And he sayd vnto thē: what councel ge-ue ye, to answere this people withal which haue cōmuned with me saynge: make the youcke which thy father dyd put vpō vs, lyghter? And the younge men that were brought vp with him, answered hym sayinge thus: this people that haue sayd vnto the:
thy father made oure youcke heuye, make C thou it vs lighter: thus answere thē. My little finger shalbe wayghtier then my fathers loynes. And nowe where my father put a greuouse youcke vpon you. I wyll make it heuyer. For where my father corrected you wyth scourges, I wyl chastyse you with scorpions. And whē Jeroboam ⁊ al the people were come to Rehoboā the thyrde day, as the king apoynted thē, sayinge: come to me agayne this day thre day es: the king āswered the people churlishly ⁊ left the aduise that olde men gaue him: ⁊ spake to thē after the councel of the youn-D ge mē saying. My father made your you ke greuouse, but I wyl make it greuouser For where my father chastised you wyth whippes, I wyl chastise you with scorpions. And so the king herkened not vnto ẏ people: for the turning awaye was of the Lord, * to performe hys sayinge, which ẏ Lord sayd by Ahiah ẏ Silonite vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat.
And whē al Israel saw that the kynge regarded thē not, the people answered the kyng agayne saying: we haue no parte in Dauid, nor enheritaūce in the sonne of Isai. * To your tentes therfore Israel, and nowe se to thyne owne house Dauid. And so Israel departed vnto their tētes. How beit ouer ẏ chyldrē of Israel which dwelt in the citie of Juda, dyd Rehoboā raygne styl. Thē kinge Rehoboam sent Aduram the receauer of the tribute. And al Israell E stoned him to death with stones. But kin-ge Rehoboā made spede ⁊ gatt him vp to hys charet ⁊ fled to Jerusalē. And so Isra ell departed frō the house of Dauid vnto this daye. And whē al Israel heard ẏ Jeroboā was come agayne, they sent ⁊ called hym vnto the congregatiō and made him kyng ouer Israel: so ther folowed the hou se of Dauid, but the trybe of Juda onely * And when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, he geathered all the house of Juda and the tribe of Ben Jamin an hūdred and foure score thousandes of chosen mē and good warryoures, to fyghte agaynst the house of Israel: and to bringe the kyn gedom kyngdom agayne to Rehoboam the sõne of Salomon.

Then came the word of the Lord vnto Semeiah the man of God saying: speake F vnto Rehoboam thee sonne of Salomon kynge of Juda, and vnto all the house of Juda and Ben Jamin, and the remnaunt of the people and saye. Thus sayth the Lor de: go not nor yet fyght agaynst your bre= thren the chyldren of Israell, but returne euery man to hys house, for this doynge is of the Lord. And they obeyed the word of the Lord and returned and departed ac cording to the worde of the Lord. Thẽ Je roboam bylt Sichem in mount Ephraim and dwelt therein. And wente from thence and bylte Phanuel.
And Jeroboam thought in his hert: now might thee kingdõ returne to the house of Dauid agayn. For yf thys people shal go vp & do sacrifice in the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem, then shal theyr hertes turne agayne vnto theyr Lord Rehoboam king of Juda. And so shal they kyl me and goo agayne to Rehoboam kinge of Juda. *
Wher vpõ the kinge toke councel & made two calues of gould & sayd vnto the peo= ple: ye shal not nede to go any more to Je= rusalẽ. Behold your Gods Israel whych brought you oute of the lande of Egipte.
G And he put the one in Bethel and the other in Dan. And that doynge was a cause of synne. And the people went before the one as farre as Dan. And he made houses of hill aultars, and made of the lowest of the people prestes which were not of þ sonnes of Leui. And Jeroboam made a feast the xv. daye of the. viii. moneth, lyke vnto the feast that was in Juda, and offered on the aultare. And so dyd he in Bethell, to offer vnto the calues that he had made. And he put in Bethell the priestes of the hyll aul= tars, which he had made. And he offred v= pon the aultare whych he had made in Be thel, the. xv. daye of the. viii. moneth, why= che he had ymagened of hys owne herte: and made a solempne feast vnto the chyl= dren of Israel, and wente vp to the aultar to burne sacrifice.

¶ Jeroboam sacrifying vnto Calues is reproved of the Prophet. His hãd dryeth vp whẽ he putteth it out agaynst the Prophet. The Prophett is kylled and buryed.

The. xiii. Chapter.

And behold, there came a man A of God out of Juda with the worde of God, to Bethell, as Jeroboã stode by the aultare to offer, & cried agaynst þ aul tare at the cõmaundemẽt of the Lord and sayd: aultar, aultar, thus sayth the Lorde: Behold a childe shalbe borne of the house of Dauid, Josiah by name, whych vppon the shall offer the Prestes of the hyll aul= tars that sacrifyce vpon the, & shall burne mennes bones vpon the. And he gaue the the same tyme a signe sayinge: thys is the sygne of that the Lord hath promysed. Be holde the aultar shall rente and the asshes that are in it shall falle out.
And when the kynge hearde the say= inge of the man of God which he cryed a= B gaynste the aultar in Bethell, he stretched out hys hande from thee aultare sayinge: holde hym. And hys hande whych he putt forth towarde hym, dryed vp, that he coul de not pull it in agayne to hym & the aul= ter claue and the asshes canne oute of the aultare accordinge to the token whych the man of God had geuen at the commaũde= ment of the Lord. And the king answered and sayd vnto the man of God: Oh pray vnto the Lord thy God & make intercessi= on for me, that my hande maye be restored me agayne. And the mã of God besought the Lorde, and hys hande came to hym a= gayne as well as before.
Thẽ said the king vnto þ man of god:
come home with me & refresshe thy selfe, & I wyl geue the a reward. But the man of God answered þ kyng, yf þ woldest geue me halfe thine house, I wolde not go wt þ nether wold I eate meate or drinke water in thys place. For so was it charged me, C thorow the word of God & said to me: eate no bread nor drinke water nor turne agay ne by the same waye thou wentest. And so he wẽt another way & returned not by the waye he came to Bethel. And ther dwelte an olde Prophet in Bethel, whose sonnes came & tolde hym all the workes that the mã of God had done that day in Bethell, & the wordes which he spake vnto þ king they tolde theyr father also. And their fa= ther sayd to thẽ: what way wẽt he? for hys sonnes had sene what way the mã of god went whyche came from Juda. Thẽ sayd he to his sōnes: sadle mine Asse. And they sadled hym an Asse. And he gat him vppe theron and went after the man of god, and found him syttyng vnder an Ocke & sayd vnto him: art thou the man of god that ca mest frō Juda? And he sayd: yee.

D Then he sayd to him: come home wyth me & eate bread. And the other said agayn J may not returne with the, to go with the nether may J eate bread or drincke water wyth the in thys place. For it was sayd to me by the cōmaundemēt of the Lord, eate noo bread nor drincke water in thys place, nor turne agayne by the waye thou wentest. And the olde Prophet sayd vnto him J am a prophet as well as thou, & an Angel spake vnto me wyth the worde of thee Lord saying: bring hym agayne wyth the to thyne house, and let him eate bread and drinke water, & yet lyed vnto him. And so the other went agayne wyth hym and ate bread in hys house and dranke water.
E And as they sate at the table, the worde of the Lorde came vnto the Prophet that brought him agayne. And he cryed vnto ẏ man of God that came frō Juda, saying: thus saith the Lord: because thou hast disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde, & hast not kept the cōmaūdemēt which the Lord thy God cōmaunded the, but camest backe a-gayne & hast eatē bread & drōke water in ẏ place in whych he bade that thou shuldest eate noo bread nor drincke water: therfore thy carkasse shal not come vnto the sepulchre of thy fathers.
And whē he had eatē bread & drōke, he sadled an Asse for the Prophete whych he had brought agayne. And as he iourneyed a Lyon met him by the waye & slue hym, & hys carkasse laye a long in the waye & the Asse stode therby, & the Lyon stode by the coorse also. And men that passed by, sawe F the carkasse caste a longe in the waye and thee Lyon standinge thereby, and wente and tolde it in thee Towne where the olde prophet dwelte. And when the prophete ẏ brought him backe agayne frō the waye, heard therof, he sayde: it is the mā of God whic disobeyed ẏ mouth of ẏ Lord. And therfore ẏ lord hath delivered hym vnto ẏ Lion which hath rent him & slayne him, ac cordinge to the worde of the Lord, whych he sayd to him. And he sayd to hys sonnes sadle me an Asse: & so they did. And he wēt & found the body cast along in the waye & the Asse & the lyon standing therby. And ẏ Lyon had not eaten the carkasse nor hurte the Asse. And he toke vp the body of ẏ mā G of God & putt it vpon the Asse & brought it agayne, & came to the cytie of the old pro phete to lamente hym, and too burye hym.
And he layde his body in hys owne graue and lamēted ouer him, Oh my brother. *
And when he had buried him, he spake to hys sonnes sayinge: when J am dead, se ẏ ye burye me in thee sepulchre wherein thee man of god is buried, & laye my bones by hys. For the saying whiche he cryed at the bydding of the Lord agaynst the aultare in Bethel, & agaynst all the houses of hyll aultares which are in the cyties of Sama rie, shal come to passe.
Howbeit for al that, Jeroboam turned not frō his wicked way: but turned away and made of the lowest of the people priestes of the hyllaultares. Whosoeuer wold he fylled theyr handes, & they became prie stes of the hyllaultares. And thys doyng was synne vnto thee house of Jeroboam, euē to destroye it and to put it away frō of the face of the earth.

¶ Jeroboams wyfe asketh counsel of Ahiah the prophet, which prophesieth vnto her ẏ deth of her child & the destructiō of al the Realme. Jeroboam dyeth.
Sesak king of Egipt robbeth the house of ẏ Lorde Rehoboam dyeth and Abiam succedeth him.

The. xiiii. Chapter.

At that tyme Abiah the sonne of Jeroboam fell syche. And A Jeroboā sayd vnto his wyfe vp a felowship & chaūge thy-ne apparel ẏ thou be not kno wen to be the wife of Jeroboam, & get the to Siloh. For ther is Ahiah the Prophete whych tolde me * that J shuld be kynge ouer thys people. * And take wyth the ten loaues and cracknelles and a cruse of honye, and go to him: for he wyl tel the what shall come of the ladde. And Jeroboams wyfe dyd so: she arose and went to Siloh and came to the house of Ahiah. But Ahi ah coulde not see, for hys eyes were waxen dymme for age.
And the Lord sayd vnto Ahiah: behold the wyfe of Jeroboā commeth, to questyon wyth the about her sonne which is syche.
Thus wyse & thus wyse answere her. And when

B when she came, she feyned her self to be an other woman. But whã Ahiah hearde the sounde of her fete as she came to the dore he sayd: come in þ wyfe of Jeroboam, why feynest thou thy selfe to be another? I am sent to the a cruel messenger.

Go & tel Jeroboam, thus sayth the lord God of Israel: for as moche as I exalted the from among the comen people & made the prince ouer my people Israel, and dyd rent the kingdom a way from the house of Dauid & gaue it the: & thou hast not bene as was my seruaunte Dauid, which kept my cõmaũdemẽtes & folowed me with all his herte, to doo that onelye whych semeth right in myne eyes: but hast done euel abo ue al that were before the, and hast gone & made the other Gods & ymages of metall to prouoke me, & hast cast me behynde thy C backe: therfore beholde I wyl brynge euel vpon the house of Jeroboam and wil stroy he frõ Jeroboam al that * pysseth against the wall, & what soeuer is in prison or forsaken in Israel, and wyl take a way the rẽnaunt of the house of Jeroboam, as men take awaye a dong hyll, tyll it be cõsumed * And whosoeuer of Jeroboams house dye in the towne, hym shal the dogges eat and hym that dyeth in the felde, shall thee fowles of the ayre eate: for the Lord hath sayd it, vp & get the to thine house, and as D sone as thy fote entereth the cytie, the ladd shall dye. Howbeit al Israel shal mourne hym and burye hym, for thys onely of all Jeroboam shall come to the sepulchre, because in hym there is founde goodnesse to warde the Lord God of Israel in the hou se of Jeroboam.

Moreouer the Lord shal stere hym vp a king ouer Israel which shal destroye the house of Jeroboam in that day. And what is that, that is now in hãd? And the Lord shal smyte Israel, as a rede that groweth in the water is shakẽ, & wyll wede Israell oute of this good lande whych he gaue to their fathers, & wyll skatter thẽ beyounde Euphrates, because they haue made them groues to angre the Lord. And he wyl ge ue Israell vp, because of the synne of Jeroboam wherwith he dyd synne and made Israel synne therto.

And Jeroboãs wyfe arose & departed E and went to Thersah, and be that she was come to the tresshold of the dore, the ladd was dead. And al Israel burye hym & lamented hym, accordinge to the worde of þ Lorde whych he spake by the hand of hys seruaunt Ahiah the Prophet. And the rest of the dedes of Jeroboam, how he warred and how he raygned, are written in the bo ke of the stories of the kynges of Israell And the dayes which Jeroboam raygned were twentie and two yeare. And thẽ he rested wyth his fathers, and Nadab his son ne raygned in hys steade.

And Rehoboam the sonne of Salomõ F raygned in Juda and was .xli. yeare olde when he beganne to raygne, and raygned xvii. yeare in Jerusalem the cytye whyche the Lorde had chosen oute of al the tribes of Israel, to put hys name there. His mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite.
* And Juda wrought wyckednesse in the syght of the Lord and angred hym aboue al that theyr fathers dyd, with theyr synne which they synned. For they also made thẽ hyll aultares & Images & groues on euerye hye hyll & vnder euery grene tree. And therto ther was a stues of * malechyldren in the lande, & they dyd accordyng to al the abhominations of the nacions whych the Lord cast out before the chyldrẽ of Israel G And the fyfte yere of king Rehoboã came Sesak king of Egipte vp to Jerusalem, and toke away the treasure of the house of the Lord, & the treasure of the kinges hou se and al that was to be had. And he toke a way the shyldes of gould * which Salo mon made. In whose steade kynge Reho- iii. Reg. x. b boam made brasen shyldes & putt them in the kepinge of the captaynes of the garde whyche wayted at the dore of the kynges house. And as ofte as the kinge went into the house of the Lorde, they of hys garde bare them, and euer brought them agayne into the garde chamber.

The rest of the Actes of kyng Rehobo am & al he dyd, are wrytten in the boke of the Actes of the kinges of Juda. And there was warre betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam all theyr lyues. And Rehoboam layde hym to rest wyth hys fathers, & was buryed wyth hys fathers in the cytie of Dauid. And hys mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Abiam hys sonne raygned in hys rowme.

¶ Wicked Abiam raygneth ouer Juda, & righteous Asa succedeth in his rowme. The battel betwen Asa and Baasa. Jehosaphat succedeth Asa. Nadab succedeth Jeroboam. Baasa kylleth Nadab.

The .xv. Chapter.

A The .xviii. yere of king Jeroboi.Pa.xiii.a am the sonne of Nabat, rayg-ned kyng Abiā ouer Juda, & ruled thre yere in Jerusalem.
His mothers name was Ma-acah the daughter of Abesalō. And he walked in al the synnes of his father which he dyd before him, & his herte was not whole with the Lord his god, as the hert of Da-uid his father. Neuerthelesse for Dauids sake did ẏ Lord his God geue him a light in Jerusalē, that he set vp hys sonne after hym, to continewe Jerusalē. Because that Dauid did that which pleased the Lord & turned frō nothinge that he commaunded ii.Re.xi.a. hym all the dayes of hys lyfe, * saue one-B ly in the matter of Urias the Hethite. And ther was warre betwene Rehoboam & Jeroboam as longe as he lyued. And the rest of the dedes of Abiam & al that he dyd, are writtē in the boke of the dedes ẏ were done in the dayes of the kinges of Juda. And ther was warre betwene Abiam & Jeroboam. And Abiam rested with his fathers, & they buried him in ẏ cytie of Dauid. And Asa hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The .xx. yere of Jeroboā king of Israel began Asa to raygne ouer Juda, & ruled in Jerusalē .xli. yere. And his mothers name was Maacah the daughter of Abesa-lom. And Asa dyd that semed ryght in the eyes of the Lord, lyke Dauid hys father.
And he made the stues of males depart the land, & put awaye al the Idolles that hys fathers had made. And therto he put dow-ne Maacah his * mother frō beeing rule, C because she had made an Idol in a groue.
And Asa destroyed her Idol & burnt it by the broke Cedron. But he putt not downe the hyl aulters. Neuerthelesse Asas harte was whole with ẏ Lord al his dayes. And he brought in that his father had dedicat, and the thinges dedicat vnto the house of the Lord, syluer, golde and Jewelles. And there was warre betwene Asa and Baasa kyng of Israel al theyr dayes.

And Baasa king of Israel went vp against Juda & buylt Ramah, because ẏ he wold let none of Asas people king of Juda, go in or out, Thē Asa toke al the siluer & gould that was lefte in the treasure of ẏ D house of the Lord, & all the treasure of the kinges house & delyuered it vnto hys seruauntes, & sent thē to Benhadad the sōne of Tabremon the sonne of Hesion kynge of Siria that dwelt at Damasco, saying: ther is a bond betwene the & me as was be-twene thy father & myne. Therfore I send the both gold & syluer for a gift, that thou go & breake the appoyntmēte betwene the and Baasa king of Israel, that he may de- C parte from me. And Benhadad herkened vnto kyng Asa and sent the captaynes of the hostes which he had agaynst the cytyes of Israel, and smote Ahion, Dan, Abel called Beth Maacah & al Cenereth wyth all the lande of Nephthali. And when Ba-asa hearde that, he lefte buyldinge of Ramah and dwelte in Thersah. Then kynge Asa made a proclamacyon thorow out al Juda, that none shoulde be excused. And they toke the stones of Ramah & the tymber wherwyth Baasa hadde buylt, & king Asa bylte therewyth Gabaah in Ben Jamin and Maspbah.

And the remnaūt of al the dedes of Asa and of al his myghte & of all that he dyd, & the cyties whych he bylt, are written in the chronicles of the actes done in ẏ dayes of the kinges of Juda. Neuerthelater in his F olde age he was diseased in hys fete. And Asa laide him to rest with his fathers, and was buryed wt hys fathers in the cytie of Dauid his father. And Jehosaphat hys sōne raigned in his rowme. And Nadab ẏ sōne of Jeroboā began to raygne vpō Israel the second yere of Asa king of Juda, & raygned vpon Israell two yere. And he dyd euel in the sight of the Lord & walked in the waye of his father and in hys synne wherwith he made Israel synne. But Ba-asa the sonne of Ahiah of the house of Is-car cōspired against him, & slue him at Gebethō a citie of ẏ Philistines for Nadab & all Israell laye at seage before Gebethon.
And it was the thyrd yere of Asa kinge of Juda, whē Baasa slue him, & raygned in G his stede. And as sone as he was kyng, he slue al the house of Jeroboam & left hym naught that brethed, vntil he had put him cleane out, agreeing vnto the saying of the Lorde whyche he spake by hys seruaunte

Ahiah

Abiah the Abolonite, for the sinne of Jeroboam wherwith he synned & made Israel synne, and for hys angeryng wherwyth he angred the Lorde God of Israel.

The rest of the deades of Nadab, and al he dyd, are wrytten in the chronycles of the kinges of Israel. And ther was warre betwene Asa and Baasa kynge of Israel al their dayes.

In the thirde yere of Asa kyng of Juda, Baasa the sonne of Ahiah beganne to raigne ouer al Israel in Therzah, & cōtynewed.xxiiii.yere. And he dyd that whych displeased the lord, for he walked in ỹ way of Jeroboam and in his synne wherwyth he made Israel synne.

The.xvi. Chapter.

3 Then came the word of the lord to Jehu the sonne of Hanani against Baasa saying: for as moch as I exalted the out of the dust & made ỹ captaine ouer my people Israel, and thou hast walked in the waie of Jeroboam and hast made my people Israel sinne, to angre me wt their synne: therfore I wil make cleane riddance of Baasa & of al his house, & wil make his house lyke the house of Jeroboā ỹ sōne of Nabat. * And he ỹ dyeth of Baasa in ỹ citie, him shal dogges eate: and him [illegible]
ỹ dieth in the feldes, shal the fowles of the

The reste of the deades of Baasa, and what he dyd and his power, are wrytten in the boke of the histories of the kynges of Israel. And Baasa fel on slepe wyth hys fathers & was buried in Therzah. And Elah hys sonne raygned in hys steade. And therto thorow the Prophet Jehu the sonne of Hanani, the worde of the Lord came agaynste Baasa and agaynste hys house, because of all the wyckednesse that he dyd in the syght of the Lord, in angeryng him with ỹ workes of his handes, that he shul be lyke the house of Jeroboam, because he had kylled Nabat.

The.xxvi.yere of Asa king of Juda be- C gāne Elah ỹ sonne of Baasa to raigne ouer Israel in Therzah, and cōtynued two yere. And hys seruaūt Zābri captayne of halfe hys charettes, cōspired agaynst him, as he was in Therzah drinkinge of strōg drinck, in the house of Arsa stuard of hys house in Therzah. And Zamri came and smote hym & kylled hym the.xxvii.yere of Asa kinge of Juda, & raygned in his stea-de. And as sone as he was kinge & * sat on Exod.xx.b. Deu.v.b. hys seate, he slue all the house of Baasa & lefte not a pisser agaynst a wall.

And therto he slue all his kynne & frendes, and so Zamri destroyed all the house of Baasa, accordyng to the worde of the Lord whyche he spake to Baasa thorowe Jehu the Prophet, for al ỹ sinnes of Baasa & synnes of Elah hys sonne, wherwyth they sined & made Israel sinne, to angre ỹ Lord of Israel wt their vanities. The rest of the deades of Elah & al he did, are wryttē in the chronycles of the kynges of Israel.

The.xxvii.yere of Asa kyng of Juda, Zamri raygned.vii.dayes in Therzah, ỹ people beseygynge Gebethon a citie of the Philistines. And when the people that lay D in the seage, hearde saye how Zamri had conspired, and how he had slayne the king also: then all Israell made Amri the captayne of the men of warre kynge ỹ same daye ouer Israel euen in the hoste. And Amri departed from Gebethon and al Israell wythe hym, and beseaged Therzah. And when Zamri saw that the citie must nedes be takē, he went into the palayse of the kynges house, and set the kynges house a fyre vpon hym self and there dyed, for hys synnes whyche he synned in doynge wyckednesse in the syght of the Lord, and for walking in the way of Jeroboam and in hys synnes which he dyd and made Israell synne.

The rest of the Actes of Zamri & the treason that he wrought, are wrytten in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Israell. Morouer that same season was Israel deuyded in twayne. for halfe the people folowed Thebni the sōne of Gineth, to make hym kynge. And the other halfe folowed Amri. But ỹ people that folowed Amri, preuayled agaynste thē that folowed Thebni the sōne of Gineth. And so

so Thebni dyed and Amri raygned.

The.xxxi.yere of Asa kynge of Juda, beganne Amri to raygne ouer Israel.xii. yere & he ruled.vi.yere in Therzah. And he bought the hill of Samaria of one Semar for two hundred talentes of syluer, & bylt in the hyll, and called the name of the citie whych he had buylt Samaria after þ name of Semar þ Lord of þ hil. And this
F Amri wrought wyckednesse in the eyes of the Lorde worsse then al that were before him, and walked in al þ wayes of Jeroboam the sōne of Nabat, & in hys sinne wherwith he made Israel sinne, to angre þ lorde god of Israel wyth their vanities. The rest of the actes of Amri which he did, and his power that he vsed, are writtē in þ chronicles of þ kynges of Israell. And Amri laid him to rest with his fathers, and was buryed in Samaria, and Ahab his sonne raygned in his steade.

G The.xxx viii.yere of Asa kynge of Juda, beganne Ahab the sōne of Amri to raigne ouer Israel, and raygned in Samaria.xxii.yere. And he dyspleased the Lorde aboue all þ were before him. For it semed hym a light thing to walke in the sinne of Jeroboam. But toke Jesabell þ daughter of Ethbaal kinge of the Sidonites to iiii Re.x.d wife, and * wēt & serued Baal and bowed vnto him. And he rered an aultar to Baal in the house of Baal whych he had made in Samaria. And Ahab made a groue, & proceded ferther in angerynge the Lorde God of Israel, then all the kynges of Israel that were before hym.

In his daies Hiel of bethel bilt Jericho. And it * cost him Abirā his eldest sōne whē he layd the foūdacion, and hys youngeste sōne whē he set vp þ gates, agreing vnto the woord of the lorde whyche he spake by Josua the sonne of Nun.

¶ Eliah is nourished and fedd of Rauens, and after is send to the woman of Sarephtha: whose child he rayseth to lyfe.

The.xvii. Chapter.

A AND Eliah the Thesbite whyche was of the Enhabiters of galaad, said vnto Ahab: * as truly as the lord god of Israel liueth, before whome I stande, there shalbe nether dewe nor raine these yeres, saue as I appoynt it.

Ecc.xlviii c. Jacob.v.d

And þ word of god came to him saying: gett the hence & turne the estwarde, & hyde thy self in the brooke Karith that lyeth before Jordan: drynck of the ryuer for I haue cōmaunded the rauens to fede the ther. And he went and dyd accordyng vnto the worde of the Lorde: he went & dwelte by þ brooke Karith that lyethe before Jordan.
B And the rauens brought hym bred & flesh euery mornynge and euery euenynge, and he dranke of the broke. And it chaūced after a while that þ brooke dried vp, because ther fell no raine vpon the erth. Thē came the worde of the Lorde vnto him sayinge:
* vp and gett the to Sarephtha a citie of Sidon, & dwell there. Beholde I haue cōmaūded a wydow ther to sustayne þ. And he arose & wēt to Sarephtha. And whē he came to þ gate of the citie, there was a widow there geatherynge stickes. And he called to her and sayde: * fet me I pray the, a litle water in a dyshe that I maye drincke. And as she went to fett it, he cryed to her & sayde: brynge me I praye the, a morsel of breed in thine hand. And she answered: as surely as the Lorde thy God liueth, I haue no breed, but euen an hand ful of Mele in a pitcher, and a litle Oyle i a cruse. And se, I haue geathered a fewe styckes for to go and bake it for me and my sonne, that we may eate it and then dye.

Luke.iiii. Jo...

C And Eliah said vnto her: feare not, but go and do as thou hast sayd: but make me therof a lyttle cake fyrst of al, and bring it out to me: and after warde make for the & thy sonne. For thus saith the Lord god of Israel: þ pitcher of Mele shall not be wasted nether shal thy oyle cruse be wyth out oyle, vntyll the Lord haue sent rayne vpō þ erth. And she wēt and did as Eliah bad. And she & he & her house did eate a good space, & the pitcher of Mele wasted not nether was the oyle cruse without oyle accordyng to þ word of þ lorde whych he spake thorowe Eliah.

And after these thinges, it happend þ the sonne of the wife of þ house fell sicke. And his sicknesse was so sore, þ there was no breath left in him. Then sayd she vnto Eliah what haue I to do with þ, O thou man of God: art thou come vnto me, that my sinne shuld be thought on & my sonne D slayne: And Eliah said vnto her: geue my thy sōne. And he toke him out of her lappe

and

and caryed him up into a loft wher he lay, & layde hym upon hys owne beed, and cal led unto the Lorde and sayd: O Lord my God, hast thou bene so euell unto the we-dow wyth whome I soiourne, y^t thou hast [illegible] slayne her sonne?* And he stretched him selt upon the lad thre times, and called un to the Lord and sayde: O Lord my God, B let the laddes soule come into him agayne.
And the Lorde heard the voice of Eliah, & the soule of y^e lad came into him agayne & he reuyued. And Eliah toke the boye and brought him downe out of the chambre in [illegible] to the house and delyuered hym unto hys mother and sayd: se, thy sonne lyueth. The the wyfe sayd to Eliah: now I know that thou arte Gods man, and that the worde of the Lorde in thy mouth, is truthe.

Eliah is sent to Ahab. Abdiah hydeth an hundred Prophetes and fedeth them. Baal can not heare al though the people crie very loude. Eliah kylleth al Baals Prophetes and after obtayneth rayne.

The. xviii. Chapter.

AND at the last y^e woord of the A Lorde came to Eliah y^e third yere sayinge: go shew thy selt unto Ahab, that I maye sende rayne upon the erthe. And Eliah wet to shew him self unto Ahab, for ther was a great famyshment in Samaria. Wherfore Ahab called Abdiah y^e go-C uerner of his house: whych Abdiah feared God greatlye: in so moche that when Jeza bell destroyed the Prophetes of the lorde, he toke an hundred of the Prophetes and hid them, fiftie in one caue & fiftye in a no ther, & prouided bred & water for the. And Ahab sayde unto Abdiah: walke thorowe the land, unto all fountaynes of water and unto all brokes, to se whether anye grasse may be found, y^t we may saue the horses & the Mules, that we destroye not the beastes. And they deuyded the lande betwene them to walke thorow it. Ahab wente one waye by hym selfe, and Abdiah went another by hym selfe.
B And it chaunced as Abdiah wete in the way y^t Eliah met hym. And Abdiah knew him & fell on his face and sayde: art not y^u my Lord Eliah. And he sayd unto him: I am he. Go & tell Ahab that Eliah is here.
And the other answered: what haue I sin ned, y^t thou woldest delyuer me into y^e had of Ahab, to sley me? As surely as the Lord thy God lyueth there is no nacyo or kingdome, whether my Lord hath not sente, to seke the. And when they sayde thou waste not there, he tooke an othe of y^e kyngdome and nacyon because he foud the not. And now thou sayest: goo tel thy Lorde, Eliah is here. And as sone as I am gone from the, the spirite of y^e Lord shall carye the away whether I shall not knowe: and then when I haue gone and tolde Ahab, & then he can not fynde the, he shall sley me. And yet I thy seruaunte haue feared the lorde from my yonge age. Was it not tolde my C lorde, what I dyd, when Jezabell slue the prophetes of the lord how I hidde an hu-dred of y^e Lordes Prophetes, fiftie in one caue and as many in another, & prouyded them of breed & water? And yet now thou sayest, goo shew thy Lord, y^t Eliah is here, that he shulde sleye me.
Then Eliah sayde: as truly as the lord of Hostes liueth, before whome I stande: I wyll shew my selfe unto hym this day.
And ther upon Abdiah wete to Ahab and tolde hym. And Ahab wente agaynst Eli-ah. And whe Ahab saw Eliah, he said unto him: art thou he that troubleth Israel?
And he sayde: it is not I that trouble Israel, but thou & thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the comaundementes of the Lord, & hast folowed Baal. But now sende and geather to me all Israell unto mount Carmel & y^e prophetes of Baal .iiii. hundred and fyftie, & the Prophetes of y^e groues foure hundred, whiche eate of Je zabels table. And Ahab sent for al y^e children of Israel, and gethered y^e Prophetes D unto mount Carmel.
And Eliah came unto all the people & sayde: why halte ye betwene two opynyons? If the Lorde be the very God, folowe hym: or yf Baal be he, the folow him. And the people answered him not one woorde.
Then sayde Eliah unto the people: I only remaine of the lordes Prophetes, & Ba als Prophetes are foure hudred and fyftye. Let two oxen be geuen us, and let the chose the one and cut him in peces and lay hym on wood, & put no fyre under, And I wyl dresse the other and put him on wood, and wyl put no fyre under. And call ye on the name of youre god, and I wyll cal on the name of the Lorde. And then the God that

To forsake the comaundementes of God is to trouble the people of god that āswereth by fyre, he is the very god.

E *And al the people sayd: it is wel spo[illegible] ken. Then sayd Eliah vnto the Prophetes of Baall, chose you an oxe and dresse hym fyrst (for ye are many) and cal on the name of your god, but put no fyre vndre.
And they toke the oxe ẏ was geuē them & dressed it, & called on ẏ name of Baal frō mornyng to none sayinge: O Baal heare vs. But ther was no voyce nor answere.
And they lepte aboute ẏ aulter ẏ they had made. And at none Eliah mocked thē and sayde: call lowde (for he is a god: but he is talking or occupied, or in the way, or hap-pely he slepeth) that he may awake. And F they cried lowde, and cutt them selues, as their maner was, with kniues & launcers, tyll the bloud folowed on them. And whē myddaye was passed, they prophesied vn tyll it was tyme to offer. But there was nether voyce ner answere ner any that regarded them.

Thē Eliah sayd to all ẏ folke: come to me. And all ẏ people came to hym. And he mended the aulter of ẏ Lorde ẏ was broken. *And he toke .xii. stones accordynge Jos.iiii.a to the noumbre of the .xii. tribes of the son-nes of Jacob, vnto whom the word of the lord came saying: *Israel shalbe thy na-gen.xxxii.f me. And with ẏ stones he made an aultar in the name of the Lorde. And he made a gutter rounde about the aulter, able to receaue two peckes of corne. And he put the wood in order, and hewed the oxe in pe-ces, and put hym on the wood, & sayd: fyl foure pitchers wyth water and powre it on ẏ sacrifice and on ẏ wood. And he sayde: do so agayne. And they did so againe.
Then he sayd: do it the thyrde tyme. And they did so the thirde tyme. And the water Jezabel ranne rounde about the aulter, & the gut-Azahell. ter was ful of water also.
Jehu

And whē offering tyme was come, Eli ah the prophete went to & sayde: Lord god of Abraham, Isaac & of Israell, lett it be knowē thys daye, that thou art the god in Israel, & ẏ I am thy seruāt, & that I do al these thinges at thy cōmaundement. Hea re me, O Lorde, heare me, that this people may know, that thou Lord, arte ẏ God, & ẏ thou hast turned their hertes backwarde. And there fell fire from the Lord & cōsumed the sacryfice and the wood and the stones and the dust, and lycked vp the wa ter that was in the gutter. And whē al the people saw that, they fell on their faces & sayde the Lord he is God, the Lorde he is God. Then sayd Eliah vnto thē, lay han des on the Prophetes of Baal, let not one of them escape. And when they had taken thē, Eliah broughte them downe vnto the brooke Kison, and slue them there.

Thē Eliah said vnto Ahab, get the vp and eate & drincke, for ther is a sound of moch raine. And whē Ahab wēt vp to ea-te & to drynck, Eliah wēt vp to the toppe of moūt Carmel. *And bowed him selfe to yerth, & put his face betwene his knees, [illegible] & sayd to hys seruaunt: go vp & looke to-warde the see. And he went vp and loked, and said: here is nothyng. And he sayd go agayne .vii. tymes. And the seuenth tyme he sayd: beholde, there aryseth a lytle cloude out of the see, lyke the palme of a mannes hande. Then he sayd: go and saye to Ahab, put the horsses in the charet, & gett the downe that ẏ rayne stoppe ẏ not. And win a litle while, heuen was blacke wyth cloudes and wind, & ther was a great raine. And Ahab rode & wente to Jezrahell.
And ẏ hād of the lord was on Eliah, & he girded vp his loines & rāne before Ahab, tyll they came to Jezrahel.

¶ Eliah fleinge from Jezabel is nourished of ẏ Angel of God. He complayneth that he is left a lone, & ẏ they seke his life to. He is cōmaunded to annointe Azahel, Jehu and Eliseus.

The .xix. Chapter.

AND Ahab tolde Jezabell, all ẏ Eliah had done, and altoge ther how he had slaine ẏ prophetes with the swerd. Then Jezabel sent a messenger vnto Eliah sayinge: *so do God to me & so therto, except I make thy soule like one of [illegible] theires, by to morowe thys tyme: when he saw ẏ, he arose & went for his life, & came to Bersabe in Juda, & lefte his lad there.
And he went a dayes Journey into ẏ wil dernesse, and whē he was come sat downe vnder a Ginaper tree, and desired for hys soule that he myght die, & said, *it is now [illegible] ynough O lorde, take my soule, for I am not better then my fathers.

And as he lay and slept vnder the Ginaper tree: beholde, ther came an angell & touched him, & sayde vnto him: vp & eate.

B And he looked aboute hym: and se, there was a loffe of broyled breade and a cruse of water at his heed. And he ate and dranc-ke and layde hym downe agayne to slepe.
And the Angel of the Lord came agayne ÿ seconde tyme and touched him, & said: vp and eate, for thou hast a long Iourney to go. And he arose & dyd eate & drynck and went in the strength of that meate fourtie dayes and fourtie nightes, vnto Horeb ÿ mount of God, & entered ther into a caue and lodged ther all nyght.
And then ÿ worde of the Lorde came to him & sayde what doest thou here, Eliah?
And he answered: I haue bene *z thorow angry for ÿ lord god of Hostes sake. For the chyldren of Israel haue forsake thy co uenãte, & haue broke downe thine aulters & slayne the Prophetes with the swerde, & I onlye am lefte, & they seke my soule to haue it too. And he said come out & stãd be fore the Lorde. And beholde, the lord wẽte C by & a mightie strõge wynde that rent the mountaynes & brake ÿ rockes before hym.
But ÿ Lord was not in the wynd. And after the wind came an erth quake. But the Lord was not in the erthe quake. And after the erthe quake, came fire: but the lord was not in the fyre. And after ÿ fyre, came a small still voyce. And when Eliah hear-de it, he couered his face with his mantle, & went out & stode in the mouthe of ÿ caue.
And se, there came a voyce vnto hym and saide: what doest thou here Eliah? And he answered: I was gelouse for the lord god of Hostes sake: because ÿ childrẽ of Israel haue forsaken thyne appoyntment and haue cast downe thyne aulters and slayne thy prophetes with ÿ swerde, & I only am lefte, & they seke my soule to haue it. Then ÿ Lord sayde vnto him: go and turne thy way to the wildernes of Damasco, & go & annoynte Hazael to be kynge of Siria.
And Iehu the sonne of Namsi, annoynte to be kynge ouer Israel. And Eliseus the D sonne of Saphat of Abell Mehulah annoynte to be Prophete in thy rowme. And whoso escapeth ÿ swerd of Hazael, hī shal Iehu slaie: & yf any man scape the swerde of Iehu, hym shal Eliseus slaie. And ther to I haue lefte me seuẽ thousãd in Israel, of which neuer man bowed his knees vnto *Baal nor kissed him with his mouth.

And he departed thence and found Eli seus the sonne of Saphat plowyng with twelue yock of oxen before him, and he ẘ the twelue. And Eliah wẽte to him & caste his mãtell vpon him. And he lefte the oxẽ & came after Eliah & sayde: let me I pray the, kysse my father & mother, & thẽ I will folow the. And he sayde to hym: go backe agayne, for what haue I done to ÿ? And he went backe agayne from after him and toke a yocke of oxen and slue them, & dressed the fleshe with the instrumentes of the oxen and gaue it the people, and they dyd eate. And then he arose and went after Eliah and ministred vnto him.

The Notes.

*z Anger is not here take for soche as is betwene enemies, but soch as procedeth of feruẽt loue, as whẽ ÿ father is angrye with ÿ sonne not because he wolde him euill: but sheweth thereby that he loueth hym better, for in correctyng him he prouydeth that he fal not to do worsse. Soche an anger, zeale or Ialousie had phinehes also. Nume. xxv. b.

*z Baal was (as some thynck) a cõmen name of al straung gods, because it cõmenly signifieth lord or master: and therof came the goddes of the gentyles their names as Baall Phegor or phogor, or Baall peor, ÿ is, the Lorde or master of Phegor. etc. Psal

¶ The first and seconde time that Samaria was be seged of Benhadad kyng of Siria.

The. xx. Chapter.

AND Benhadad kyng of Si-ria geathered all hys hoste to A gether, and .xxxii. kynges ẘ hym, wyth horse and charett: and went vp and beseged Samaria and warred agaynst it. And he sent messengers to Ahab kinge of Israell into the cytye, and sayde vnto hym: thus sayth Benhadad. Thy syluer and thy gould is mine, & the best of thy wiues, and the best of thy chyldrẽ be myne. And ÿ kin ge of Israel answered and sayde: my lord king according to thy saying, I am thine wyth all I haue.
And the messengers came agayne to A hab and sayde: thus sayth Benhadad. I haue therfore sent vnto the, sayinge: dely-uer me then thy syluer and thy gould, and thy wiues, & thy chyldren. Or els I wyll sende my seruauntes vnto the by to mo-row this time: & they shal serch thine house, & ÿ houses of thy seruauntes, which shal take all that is glorious in thyne eyes, and bringe it awaye withe them. Then B the kinge of Israell sent the elders of the land and sayde: take hede I pray you & se, howe

how thys felowe goeth aboute myscheue. For he sent vnto me, for my wyues & my children, and my syluer and my goulde: & I denyed hym nothynge of it. And all the elders of Israel & all the people sayd: herken not to him nor consent.

Wherupon he sayde vnto the messengers of Benhadad: tel my Lorde the king all that he sent for the fyrste tyme, that I wyll do: but this requeste I maye not do. And the messengers departed & broughte hym worde. Then Benhadad sent vnto him and said: thus do the gods to me & so therto, yf ye dust of Samaria be ynoughe for al the people that folow me, that euery man maye haue an handefull. And the kyng of Israel answered and sayde: tell him, let not him that putteth on hys harnesse bost him self, as he ye putteth it of*. And when Benhadad hearde that tydynges, as he and the kinges were drinckinge in ye pauyllios, he sayde vnto hys seruauntes: put ye in aray. And they put them selues in araie agaynst the cytye.

Understād after the victory obtayned.

C And behold there came a Prophet vnto Ahab kig of Israel, & said to him: thus saith the Lorde. Seyst thou al this great multitude? behold, I wyl deliuer thē into thyne hād this day, that thou mayst knowe ye I am the Lorde. And Ahab sayd, by whome? And he sayd thus sayth the lord: euē by the men of the gouernoures of the shires. And Ahab sayd: who shal ioyne batayle? And he sayd, thou. Then he nōbred the men of the gouerners of the shyres: & they were two hundred & .xxxii. And after thē he nombred all the people, and all the chyldren of Israell were seuen thousand. And they went out at none whē Behadad was a drynckinge strōg drincke in the pauyllios wyth the .xxxii. kinges that holpe hym. And the mē of the shyrifes of ye shires went out fyrste.

And Benhadad sēt out, & they shewed him saying: ther came mē out of Samaria. And he sayd: yf they come out for peace, take thē a lyue. And also yf they come D for warre, take them yet alyue. And when those mē of the shyrifes of the shires were come out of ye cytie and ye host after them, they slue euery one of them hys mā. And the Siriens fled, and Israel folowed after them. And Behadad the kynge of Siria scaped on a horsse wyth his horsemen. And the kynge of Israel went out & smote horsse and charett, & slue a great slaughter of the Sirians.

Thē ther came a Prophet to the kinge of Israel, and said to him: go forth & playe the man, be wise and take hede what thou doest: for whē the yere is about, the kynge of Siria will come agaynste the agayn. Then sayd the seruauntes of the kynges of Siria to him: the goddes of the hylles are their Gods, and therfore they had the better of vs. But let vs fyght with them in the playne, & for what ye wyll, we shall haue the better of them. And this do: take ye kiges away euery mā out of hys place, & put dukes in theyr rowmes. And do ye nobre ye an host, lyke ye hoste ye thou hast lost, & horse for horse & charette for charette, & let vs fight wt thē in ye plaine, & for a wager, we get ye better of thē. And ye king herkened vnto their voyce and dyd euen so.

And as sone as the yere was about, Benhadad nōbred ye Siriens & went vp to Apheck to warre wt Israel. And the children
E of Israel were nombred & prouided of vitayle, & went against thē, & pitched before them lyke two lytle flockes of kiddes: but the Sirians fylled the countreye. Then there came a man of God & sayde vnto ye kyng of Israell thus sayth the Lord. Because the Siriens say, ye the Lord is but a God of the hilles, & not God of ye valeys: therfore will I delyuer all thys greate multitude into thyne hand ye ye may knowe ye I am the lord. And they pytched one ouer against ye other .vii. dayes, and the seuenth daye ioyned batayle. And the children of Israel slue of the Sirians an hundred thousād fote mē in one daye. And the rest fled to Aphek into the citie. And ther fel a wall vpō .xxvii. thousād of thē that were left. And Benhadad fled & went into ye citie, from chambre to chambre.

Then sayd his seruauntes vnto hym: beholde, we haue hearde saye, that the kinges of the house of Israel are mercyfull kynges. Let vs put sack cloth about our loines & ropes about our heedes, & go out to ye king of Israel: happly he wyl saue thy lyfe. And they girded sack clothe about their loines & put ropes about their heedes, & went out to the kynge of Israel

and sayd: thy seruaunte Benhadad sayth, F I praye the let me lyue. And he sayd: is he yet a liue? what he is my brother. And they toke the worde for good lucke and hastelye caught it out of hys mouth & sayd yee thy brother Benhadad. Then he sayd: go and brynge hym. And Benhadad came out to hym, and the other toke hym vp into the charett. And Benhadad sayde: the cytyes whych my father toke from thy father, I wyll restore agayne. And thou shalt make streates for the in Damasco, as my father dyd in Samaria. And I wyll make an apoyntment wyth the and sent the awaye.
And so made an appoyntment wythe him and sent hym awaye.

Then a certen man of the chyldren of ÿ Prophetes sayde vnto hys felowe wythe the worde of the Lord, smyte me I praye the. And the mã wold not smite him. And he sayde, because thou hast not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde: beholde, as sone as ÿ art departed from me a lyon shal slay the.
And as sone as he was departed frõ him, a Lyon found him and slue him. Thẽ he founde a nother man & saide to him: smite me I pray ÿ. And ÿ man gaue him a good stripe & wouded him. And ÿ prophete wẽt forthe & wayted for the kyng by the waye & put asshes vpõ his eyes, & put him selfe G out of knowledge. And when the kynge came by, he cried vnto him & sayd, thy ser-uaunt wẽt out in the myddes of the battel.
And se, ther was one beganne to flee. And there came a man to me & sayde: kepe thys mã. And if he be missed thy life shal go for hys, or else thou shalt paye a talente of syluer. And as thy seruaunt had here & there to do, he was gone. And the kyng of Israel said vnto him: euẽ so shal thy iudgemẽt be as thou haste defined it thy selfe.

And he hasted & toke the asshes awaye from his eies: & the kinge of Israel knew him, that he was of the prophetes. And he sayd vnto the kinge, thus saith the Lorde: because thou hast lett go a mã that ought to haue dyed, thy lyfe shal go for hys life, & thy people for his. And the king of Isra el wente to his house waywarde & heuie, & entred into Samaria.

Jesabel cõmaundeth to kyl Naboth, for ÿ vineyard that he refused to sell Ahab. Heliah reproueth Ahab, and he repenteth.

The.xxi. Chapter.

After these thinges were done, it chaunced that Naboth the A Jesrahelite had a vyneyarde in Jesrabel hard by the palace of Ahab king of Samari a. And Ahab spake vnto Naboth saying: lett me haue thy vyneyarde, to make me a gardẽ of yerbes therof, because it lyeth so nye my house: and I wyll geue the a better vyneyard for it: or yf it playse ÿ I wyl geue the, ÿ worth of it in syluer. But Na-both saide to Ahab: the lord forbidde that from me, ÿ I shulde geue the enheritaũce B of my fathers vnto the.

Then wẽt Ahab vnto hys house wayward and euel apayde, because of the wor-des which Naboth ÿ Jesrahelite had spo ken to him saying: I wyll not geue to the, the enheritaũce of my fathers. And he lai-de hym downe vpon hys beed & turned a waye hys face, and wolde eate no meate.
And then Jesabel his wyfe came to hym, & sayde vnto him: why art thou so frowar de, that thou eatest no meate? And he sayd vnto her, I spake vnto Naboth ÿ Jesrahe lite, & sayd vnto him: geue me thy vinepar de for syluer, or else yf thou wylte, I wyll C geue the another vyneyarde for it. And he sayde: I wyl not geue the my vyneyarde.

Thẽ sayd Jesabel hys wife vnto him: what a goodly kyngdome wher thou able to make in Israel? vp & eate meate & sette thyne hert at rest, for I wil geue ÿ, the vine yarde of Naboth the Jesrahelite. And she wrote a letter in Ahabs name and sealed it wt his seale, & sẽt it vnto the elders & chefe men of hys cytie that dwelt wher Naboth dwelte. And she wrote in the letter saying: proclayme fastynge and sette Naboth on hye among the people, and set two vnthrif tes before hym, and let thẽ testifie against hym sayinge: thou dydest curse bothe god and the kynge. And vpon that carye hym out and stone hym to deeth.

And ÿ elders & nobles of his citie, why-che dwelt in his citie, did as Jesabel had sẽ D te vnto thẽ, & as it was wryttẽ in the letter which she had sent vnto them. They proclaimed fasting, & sett Naboth an hie amõ ge the people, & ther came in two vnthryf-tie persones & sate before hym. And ÿ two vnthriftie persones witnessed agaist Na-both before ÿ people sayinge Naboth did

curse

Act.vii.b curse God and the king. * And vpō ẏ they caried him out of the citie & stoned him wt stones to deeth. And then they sente to Jezabel sayinge: Naboth is stoned to deth.
E And when Jezabell hearde that Naboth was stoned to deeth: she sayd to Ahab: vp and take possessyō of the vyneyard of Na both the Jezrahelite, which he denied to ge-ue the for syluer, for Naboth is not a liue, but deed. And when Ahab heard that Na both was deed. He stode vp to go down to the vyneyard of Naboth the Jezrahelite, to take possession of it.
And ẏ word of ẏ lord came vnto Eliah ẏ Thesbite saying: vp & go downe to mete Ahab kyng of Israel which is in Samaria Beholde, he is in the vyneyarde of Na both: for he is gone downe thyther, to take possessyon of it. And saye vnto hym: thus sayth the Lord, thou haste killed & thereto gotté possessyon. And saye moreouer vnto him thus sayth the Lord: in ẏ place where F dogges lapped the bloud of Naboth, shal dogges lapp euen thy bloud also. And Ahab said to Eliah: hast thou foūd me thine enemye at any tyme? And he sayde yee, because thou art vtterly geuen to worck wic kednesse in the syght of the Lorde. Beholde, I wil bryng euel vpon the, & wil make cleane riddance of the, & wil destroye vnto Ahab all ẏ pysseth agaynst the walle, and yt ought be presoned or forsaken in Isra el: & will make thine house, lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, & lyke the house of Baasa ẏ sonne of Ahiah, for the angeryng wherwyth thou hast angered and made Israel synne.
And thereto against Jezabel came ẏ wor de of the Lord sayinge: dogges shall eate Some rede poss. sion. Som valey Jezabel, vnder the * walles of Jesrahell.
And he ẏ dyeth of Ahab in the towne, him shall dogges eate: and he that dyeth in the feldes, him shal the foules of the ayre eat.
For ther was none at all like Ahab, ẏ was so vtterly geuē to woorcke wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde and that because Je zabel his wyfe prycked him forward. And therfore he dyd exceding abhominably, in folowing Idoles in al thinges like as did the Ammorites which ẏ Lord cast out before the children of Israel.
Gen.xv.d When Ahab hearde those wordes, * he rent his clothes & put sackecloth about his flesh: and fasted, and laye in sack and wēt cōfortlesse. And the word of the lord came to Eliah the Thesbite sayinge: seyste thou how Ahab humbleth him selfe before me? because he so submytteth hym selfe before me, I wyl not bringe that euel in his day-es: but in his sonnes dayes, I wyll bringe euel vpon his house.

¶ Foure hundreth false Prophetes do cousel Ahab and Jehosaphat to warre against Ramoth: only Micheah prophesyeth the truthe, for which he is smitē and put in prison.

The.xxii. Chapter.

And they contynued thre yere wythout warre betwene Si- A ria and Israel. * And ẏ third yere Jehosaphat kyng of Ju- ii.Para. da, came to the kynge of Israel. Then sayd the kynge of Israel vnto his seruauntes, know ye not that Ramoth in Galaad is oures, and we sytt stylle and take it not oute of the handes of the kyng of Siria? And he sayd vnto Jehosaphat: wylte thou go with me to batayle, to Ra-moth in Galaad? And Jehosaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: * I will be as iiii.Re.iii. thou art, & my people shal be as thine, and my horsses as thyne.
And Jehosaphat sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: aske councell I praye the of the Lord to daye. And then the kynge of Isra el gathered of the prophetes together, vp on a foure hundred men, and sayde vnto them: shal I go to Ramoth in Galaad to batayle, or be still? And they sayd, go: for ẏ Lord shall delyuer it into the handes of ẏ kynge. And Jehosaphat sayd: is there neuer a Prophet of the Lordes here moare, B that we might enquyre of him? And ẏ kin ge of Israel sayde to Jehosaphat: there is yet one, by whome we maye aske councell of the Lord, one Micheah the sonne of Je lah. But I hate hym: for he neuer prophe-syeth good vnto me, but euell. And Jehosaphat sayde: let not the kyng say so. The the kyng of Israel called vnto one of his chamberlaynes and sayde: fett Micheah ẏ sonne of Jemlah hyther atonce.
And the kynge of Israell and Jehosaphat the kynge of Juda satte ether in his seat and their apparell on them, in a voide place beside the entring of the gate of Sa maria, & all the Prophetes prophesyinge before them. And Zedekiah the sonne of Canaanah made hornes of yron & sayde: thus sayth the Lord: wyth these hornes ye shalt wynowe the Sirians vntyl thou ha ue made an ende of them. And all the Pro C phetes prophesyed euen so, sayinge: go to Ramoth in Galaad and prosper, for the LORDE shall delyuer it into the han-des of the kynge,

And the messenger that was gone to cal Micheah, sayd vnto hym: se, the wordes of the prophetes speake good vnto the kyng with one voyce: let thy wordes I pray the be lyke the wordes of one of them, & speake that is good. And Micheah sayd: as surelye as the Lorde lyueth, what the Lorde putteth in my mouthe, that wyll I speake. And when he was come to the kynge, the kynge sayde too hym: Micheah, shall we go to Ramoth in Galaad to batail, or shal we be styl? And he sayde vnto hym: * go & prosper, the Lorde delyuer it into the handes of the kynge. And the kinge sayd vnto hym, how often shall I adiure the, that thou tell me nothinge but truth, in the name of the Lorde?

Then he sayd I saw al Israel scattered vpon the hylles, as shepe that haue no shepardes. And the Lord sayd: those haue no mayster, let them returne, euery man to hys house in peace. Then sayd the kyng of Israel to Jehosaphat: dyd I not tell the, that he wolde prophesye no good vnto me, but euil? And Micheah sayd: here therfore the word of the Lord. I saw the Lord syt on D hys seate & al hys companion of heauen stan dinge about hym, on his ryghte hand & on hys left. And the Lord sayd: * who shal deceaue Ahab that he may go & be slayne at Ramoth in Galaad? and one sayd on thys maner & another on that. Then came forth a sprite and stode before the Lord & sayde I wyll deceaue hym. And the Lord sayd: where wyth? And he sayde: I wyll go oute and be a false sprete in the mouthes of all his Prophetes. And the Lord sayde, thou shalt deceaue him & also preuayle go forth and do euen so. Nowe therfore beholde, the Lorde hath putte a lyinge sprete in the mouthe of all these thy Prophetes: when in verye dede the Lorde hathe spoken euel towarde the.

Then Sedechiah the sonne of Canaanah wente to & smote Micheah on the cheke, & sayd: how is the sprete of the Lorde gone from me, to speake in the? And Micheah sayd: behold, thou shalt se in that day, when thou shalte go from chambre to chambre to hyde the. And the king of Israel sayd: take Micheah and carye hym backe agayne vnto Amon the gouernour of the cytie, and vnto Joab the kynges sonne, & saye: thus sayth the kynge. Put ye this felow in the preson house and fede hym wyth bread & water scarsly, vntyll I returne in peace.
E Then Micheah sayde, yf thou come safe agayne, the Lorde hathe not spoken in me. And he sayde moreouer, herken to ye people euery one of you.

And so the kynge of Israel & Jehosaphat the king of Juda went vp to Ramoth in Galaad. And the king of Israel said to Jehosaphat * chaunge the & get the to war- (that is, disgese the) re: but put on thyne owne apparell. And ye kynge of Israel chaunged hym selfe, and went to battell also. But the kyng of Siria had commaunded the captaynes of hys charettes of whych he had. xxxii. sayinge: fyght nether wyth small or greate, saue wt the kynge of Israell onely. And when the Captaynes of the charettes sawe Jehosaphat, they thought he had bene the kynge of Israel, and therfore turned to hym too fyght. But Jehosaphat cryed oute. And when the captaynes of the charettes sawe that he was not the kynge of Israell, they turned backe from hym.

And a certen man drew a bowe * ignorantly and smote the kynge of Israel betwene the rybbes of his harnesse. Wherfore the kinge sayde vnto the dryuer of hys charet, turne thy hand and carye me out of the host, for I am hurte. And the battel encreased that daye, & the kyng continued in his charet before the Sirians, and died at euen. And the bloud came out of the wound into the botome of the charet. And ther went a proclamacion thorow out the hoste after the sunne was downe sayinge: euery man to hys cytie & to hys owne countrey. And F when the kynge of Israel was dead, they came to Samaria and buried hym there. And whyle they wasshed the charett in the pole of Samaria, the dogges licked vppe hys bloude, and harlottes wasshed him according vnto the worde of the Lord whiche he spake.

(That is at vnwares or at al aduentures: entendyng no thinge lesse than to haue hytted the kynge)

The rest of the dedes of Ahab, & all he dyd, & the Juorye house which he made, & the cyties that he buylte are wrytten in the boke of the chronicles of the kinges of Israel. And whē Ahab was layd to rest with his fathers, Ohoziah hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

Jehosaphat the sonne of Asa began to raygne vpō Juda, ẏ fourth yere of Ahab king of Israel, & was .xxxv. yere olde whē he began to raygne and raigned .xxv. yere in Jerusalē. And hys mothers name was Azubah the daughter of Salahi. And he walked in al the wayes of Asa hys father & bowed not therfrō. But did ẏ was right in the eyes of the Lord. Onely he dyd not put the hylaulters out of the waye: for the people offred & burnt theyr sacrifices yet, in the hyllaulters. And he had peace wyth the kyng of Israell.

G And the reste of thee dedes of Jehosaphat, and the might that he vsed, and how he warred, are wrytten in the Boke of thee Chronicles of the kynges of Juda. And the remnaūt of the stues of the males, whyche remayned in thee dayes of hys father, he put cleane out of the lande. There was then no kinge in Edom, the kyng was but a debyte. And Jehosaphat made shyppes in the see, to goo to Ophir for goulde, but they went not: for the shyppes brake at Azion Gaber. Then sayde Ohoziah the sonne of Ahab vnto Jehosaphat: let my seruauntes go wyth thyne in the shyppes. But Jehosaphat wold not. And Jehosaphat layde hym to slepe wyth his fathers, & was buried wythe hys fathers in the citie of Dauid his father. And Jehoram hys sonne raygned in hys rowme.

The fyrst Chapter.

Ohoziah the sonne of Ahab began to raygne vpō Israel A in Samaria, the .xvii. yere of Jehosaphat kinge of Juda, and was kynge ouer Israell two yeare, and dyd euel in the syght of the Lorde, and walked in the waye of hys father and in the waye of his mother, and in the waye of Jeroboam thee sonne of Nabat whyche made Israell synne. And he serued Baal and bowed hym selfe to him and angred the Lorde God of Israell, in all thynge, as dyd hys father. And ẏ Moabites rebelled agaynst Israell after thee death of Ahab.

And Ohoziah fel thorow a lattese wyndow out of an vpper chābre that he had in Samaria, & fel sycke. Thē he sent messengers sayinge vnto thē: go and enquyre of at Beelzebub the God of Akaron, whether J shall recouer of thys dysease. But the Angell of the Lorde spake too Eliah thee Thesbite, vp and go agaynst the messengers of the kyng of Samaria & say vnto them: Js it because there is no God in Israell, that ye go to aske thorow Beelzebub the God of Akaron. Therfore thus sayth the Lord: thou shalte not come downe frō the bed on whych thou arte gone vpp, but shalt die. And Eliah departed.

And the messengers turned back agayn B vnto him. And he said vnto thē: why are ye thus come agayne? And they sayde vnto hym there came a man agaynst vs & sayd vnto vs: goo and turne agayne vnto the king that sent you, & say vnto him. Thus sayth ẏ lord. Js it because ther is no God in Israel, that thou sendest to enquire thorow Beelzebub ẏ God of Akarō? Therfore thou shalte not come downe frō the bed on whyche thou arte gone vppe, but shalt surely dye. And he sayd to thē: what maner a man was that which met you & told you these wordes? And they sayd vnto hym: It was an heary mā & gyrde wyth a gyrdle of a skynne about his loynes. And he said vnto them: It is Eliah the Thesbite.

Thē the king sent vnto him a captayne ouer fyftie wt his fyftie. And whē the captayne was come to him, beholde: he sat on ẏ toppe of an hyl. And the captayne said vnto him: man of God, the king byddeth the C come downe. And Eliah answered & sayd to the captayne ouer ẏ fyftie: yf I be a mā of God, fyre come downe frō heauē & consume the & thy fyftie. * And ther came fire
...b.s downe frō heauē & deuoured him and his fyftie. And the king wēt agayne & sent to hym another captayne ouer .l. wyth hys .l. which answered & said vnto him: O mā of God, thus sayth ẏ king make hast & come downe. And Eliah answered & sayd vnto thē: yf I be a mā of God, thē let fyre come downe frō heauē & cōsume the & thy fiftie. And there came fyre downe frō heauē and consumed hym and hys fyftie.

And the king sent agayne the thyrd captayne ouer fiftie. And when the thyrd captayne ouer fyftie was come vp too him, he fel on his knees before Eliah & besoughte
D him & sayd vnto him: Oh mā of God, lett my lyfe & the life of these fiftie thy seruauntes be preciouse in thy syght. Behold ther came fyre downe frō heauē & burnt vp the two fore captaynes ouer fyftie with theyr fyfties. But let my lyfe nowe be preciouse in thy syght. Then sayde the angell of the Lord vnto Eliah: goo downe with him, & be not afrayd of him. And he went downe wyth hym vnto the kynge.

And he sayd vnto the king, thus sayth ẏ Lord: for as moch as thou sentest messengers to aske thorowe Beelzebub the God of Akarō, as though ther had ben no God in Israel to aske thorow his word: therfore thou shalt not come of the bed on which thou art ascēded, but shalt surely dye. And so he dyed according to the word of ẏ Lord which Eliah spake, & Jehoram was made king in his stede, ẏ second yere of Jehorā sonne of Jehosaphat king of Juda, because he had no sonne. The reste of thee dedes of Ohoziah which he dyd, are writtē in the chronicles of the kynges of Israell.

The .ii. Chapter.

And it chaūced whē the Lorde wold take vp Eliah to heauē A in a whorlewind, that Eliah & Eliseus were goyng frō Galgal. And Eliah sayd to Eliseus, tarye here, I praye thee, for the Lorde hath sent me to Bethel. But Eliseus said: * as surely as the Lord lyueth and as thy soule liueth, I wyl not leaue the. And whē i.Re.xxviii b. they came to Bethel, the chyldrē of the prophetes that were at Bethell came oute to Eliseus & sayd to hym: knowest thou not how that the Lord wil take away thy master frō the this daye? And he sayd, I knowe it, holde your peace.

Thē said Eliah to Eliseus: tary heare a felowship, for the Lord hath sent me to Jericho. B
And he sayd: as surely as the lord lyueth, & as surely as thy soule liueth, I wil not leaue the, and so they went to Jericho. And the chyldrē of the Prophetes ẏ were at Jericho came to Eliseus and sayd vnto hym: art thou not ware that ẏ Lorde wyl take away thy master frō ẏ this day? And he āswered: I know it also, hold your peace. And Eliah sayd to him: tary I pray the here, for the Lorde hath sent me to Jordā. But he sayd: as surely as the Lord lyueth and as thy soule lyueth, I wyl not leaue ẏ And so they went both of them to geather. And fyftie men of the sonnes of the Prophetes went & stode in syght a farre of, as they two stode by Jordan.

And thē Eliah toke his mātel & wrapte it together & smote the water, and it deuided it selfe, parte the one waye & parte the other, & they two wēt ouer on the drye lād And as sone as they were ouer, Eliah sayde to Eliseus, aske what I shal do for the yet I be take awaye frō the. And Eliseus sayd: let me I praye the, haue thy spryte * double in me. And he said: thou hast asked an harde thinge. Neuertheles yf thou se me whē I am taken away frō the, thou shalt haue it so: yf thou do not, it shall not be. And as they went walking & talkinge and talking: behold, ther came a charett of fyre & horsses of fyre & put them a sondre.

C And Eliah went vp in the whorlewynd to heauen. And Eliseus sawe & cried: O my father, O my father, the charet of Israell and the horsmē therof, & saw him nomore and therfore toke hys owne clothes & rent them in two peces.

And thē he toke vp the mantell of Eliah that fell frō hym, & wente backe agayne & stode by Jordās syde, & toke the mantel of Eliah that fell frō hym, & smote the water and sayd: wher is the Lord God of Eliah where is he? And when he had smitē ẏ water it deuided part this waye & part ẏ way and Eliseus went ouer. And the chyldren of the Prophetes of Jericho whych sawe hym frō a farre, sayde: the spryte of Eliah doth reste on Eliseus, and wente agaynst hym & bowed to the earth vnto hym. And they sayde vnto hym: se, there be amonge thy seruauntes fyftie lustye men: let thē go and seke thy master: happely the sprete of the Lorde hath taken hym vp & caste hym vpon some mountayne or in some valeye.
And he sayde: sende not. Neuerthelesse yet they laye vpon hym, tyll he was ashamed, and sayd: sende. and they sente fyftye men which sought hym thre dayes & thre nigh-tes but founde hym not. And they came a-gayne to hym, for he taried at Jericho. And he sayde to them, dyd I not saye vnto you D that ye shulde not go.

Thē the mē of Jericho said to Eliseus behold the citie standeth plasantly as my Lorde seyth, but the water is naught and the ground barē. And he sayd: bring me a newe cruse and put salte therin. And they brought it to hym. And he wente vnto the springe of the water & cast the salt in thy-ther, & sayd thus sayth the Lorde: I heale thys water, ther shall not come henceforth ether deathe or barennesse. And the water was helthsome euer after according to the saying of Eliseus whych he spake.

And he went frō thence vp to Bethell.
And as he was goyng vp in the way, ther came lytle laddes out of the citie and mocked hym, and said to him: go vp thou bald head, goo vp thou bald head. And he turned backe and looked on them and cursed them in the name of the Lorde. ✠ And ther came two Beares oute of the wood and tare .xlii. of the boyes. And he wente from thence to mount Carmel, and from thence went agayne to Samaria.

✠ That is, that the same spyrte may do more by my preaching than it hathe done by thyne: or that I may haue two partes more than the other Prophetes that shal receaue the same spyrite.

✠ The contempt of godlye mē, chefely preachers is an offence most greuouse: whose authorite oughte to be most holy & reuerēt to al the people whō they teach, or agayne sayth, reiecteth or reiecteth god. ¶ The kinges of Israel Juda & Edom lack water, whē they shuld fyghte agaynst Moab: whyche they obtayne through ẏ prayer of Eliseus. The kinge of Moab loseth the fylde & after sacrificeth hys sonne.

The .iii. Chapter.

JEhorā the sōne of Ahab begā to raygne vpō Israel in Samaria the .xviii. yere of Jeho- A saphat king of Juda, & cōti-nued .xii. yere. And he wrought that was euel in the syght of the Lord but not lyke hys father or hys mother, for he put awaye the ymage of Baal that his father had made: Neuerthelesse he conty-nued in the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat whych made Israell synne: and shronke not therfrom.

And Mesa king of Moab whych was riche of shepe (& was wont to render vnto the king of Israel an hūdred thousand lā-bes & as many rāmes with the wolle) rebelled againste the kinge of Israell after the death of Ahab. And king Jehorā wēt out of Samaria the same ceason, & nōbred al Israel. And thē wēt & sent to Jehosaphat king of Juda saying: the king of Moab hath rebelled againste me, wilt thou go wyth me agaynst the Moabites to battell? And he sayd: I wyl go, & wyll be as thou, & my people shalbe as thyne, and my horsses as thyne. And he sayd: what way shal we go?
And the other answered: the waye thorow B the wyldernesse of Edom.

And ẏ king of Israel toke his iourneye with the king of Juda & the king of Edō.
And whē they had cōpased the way seuen dayes, ther was no water for the hoste nor for the cattel that they had with thē. Then sayd the king of Israel: Alasse, the Lorde hathe called togeather these thre kynges to delyuer thē into the handes of the Moabites. But Jehosaphat sayde: is there
here

heare no prophete of the Lordes, that we may enquire of the Lord by him? And one of the kyng of Israels seruaūtes answe= red and sayde: here is Eliseus ỳ sonne of Saphat which * powred water on the han des of Eliah. And Jehosaphat said ỳ wor de of the Lord is with him. And so the kin ge of Israel, and Jehosaphat and ỳ kyng of Edom went downe to him.

And Eliseus sayd to the king of Israel: what haue I to do wyth the? Gette the to the prophetes of thy father & of thy mother.
And ỳ kyng of Israel sayd vnto him: Oh naye, but hathe the Lorde called these thre kynges to delyuer thē into the handes of the Moabites? And Eliseus said, as sure as the Lorde of Hostes lyuethe (in whose syght I stād) and it were not that I regar de ỳ presēce of Jehosaphat ỳ king of Juda, I wold not loke toward the, nor yet se C the. But now bryng me a mynstrel. And as the minstrel played, the hand of the Lorde was vpō him. And he said: thus biddeth ỳ lord, make this broke ful of dyches. For thus saith the Lord: ye shal se nether wind nor rayne, and yet this broke shalbe filled wyth water, that ye maye drincke, and youre beastes & youre catell also. And this is yet but a small thing in ỳ sight of ỳ lord: But he wyll geue the Moabites in to your hādes also. And ye shall destroye all stronge townes and all goodlye cytyes, and shall falle all pleasaunte trees and stoppe al the welles of water, and marre all good plattes of grounde wythe stones. And in the mornyng about offeryng tyme there came suche a water ỳ waye frō Edom ỳ the con-trey was filled with water.

And whē al the Moabites heard that ỳ kynges were come to fight against them, they gethered together, frō the youngest ỳ was able to put on harnesse and so vpwar de, and wayted in the borders.

And they beyng vp erly in the mornyng, ỳ sonne arose & shone vpō the water. And whē ỳ Moabites sawe ỳ water a farre of, as red as bloude, they sayd: it is bloud, the kinges haue fought together & one slaine another. Now therfore ye Moabites gett D you to the spoyle. And whē they came to ỳ hoste of Israel, the Israelites stode vp & laide on the Moabites, ỳ they fleed before thē. And so they entred ỳ lād & destroyed ỳ Moabites. And they ouerthrew the cities, & on euery good parcell of land, cast euery man his stone & ouer couered it, & stopt al the welles of water, and felde al the good trees. And as lōg as the stones therof dyd remaine in ỳ walles of * Bricke ỳ slingers went vpon it and bette it.

Some rede of Harre seth.

And whē the kyng of Moab saw, that the battel was to strōge for him, he toke wyth with him seuē hūdred men ỳ drew the swer de, to haue brokē vp vnto the kyng of Edom. But they could not. And thē he toke his eldeste sonne ỳ shulde haue raigned in his steade, & offered him for a burntoffe-ring vpō ỳ walles. And ther came so grea te wrath vpō Israel, ỳ they departed from him and returned to their owne land.

¶ God geueth a certen pore womā oyle & floure by Heliseus. Heliseus obtained of god a childe for hys hostesse: which dieth & is after raised to lyfe thorow him. He maketh swete the potage & multiplieth the loues.

The. iiii. Chapter.

AND ther cryed a certen womā A of the wyues of the childrē of the Prophetes vnto Eliseus sayig: thy seruaūt my husbā-de is deed, & thou knowest that thy seruaunt dyd feare the Lorde.

And the creditor is come to fett my two sonnes, to be his bondemen. And Eliseus sayd to her: What shal I do for the? Tel me, what hast thou in thine house? And she sayde thine handmayde hath nothinge at all in her house, saue a pytcher wyth oyle.
And he sayd: Go & borow the in other pla ces, of all thy neyboures, emptye vesselles and that not a fewe. And thē go and shutt the dore to the and to thy sonnes, & powre out into all those vesselles, and putte the full alwaye a syde.

And she wēt frō him, & shut the dore to B her & to her sōnes. And they brought to her, & she powred out. And when the vesselles were ful, she said to her sonne: bryng yet a vessel. And he sayd: ther is no mo. And thē the oyle ceased. Then she came & tolde the mā of god. And he said: go & sel the Oyle and paye thy creditor. And liue thou & thy chyldren of the rest.

And it fell on a day, that Eliseus came to Sunam, where was a ryche woman ỳ toke him in for to eate bread. And as ofte as he came that waye, he turned in thether to eate breed. And she sayde vnto her husbande: se, I perceaue that the man of god is perfecte, & cometh alway by vs. Let vs make hym a chambre wyth a lytle wall, & let vs set him there a beed, a table, a stole & a candelstycke y^t he maye turne in thither, when he cometh to vs.

And it fortuned one a tyme y^t he came C thyther & turned into the chambre and lay there. Then he sayde to Gehezi his seruaũ te: cal this Sunamite. And he called her, & she came before him. And Eliseus sayde to him, saye to her I pray the: se, thou hast made all thys prouision for vs, what shal we do for the? woldest thou be spoken for to the king or to the captaine of y^e host?
(That is, I am there wt that I haue) And she sayde * I dwell amonge myne owne people. Then he sayde, what is to be done for her? And Gehezi sayd: verely she hath no chylde, and her husbande is olde.
And he sayd: call her. And he called her.
And she came and stode at the dore. Then he sayd: by soch a tyme, as sone as y^e frute can liue, thou shalt enbrace a sõne and she saide, Oh naye my Lorde thou mã of god do not lie vnto thine hãdmaid. And y^e wife conceaued and bare a sonne y^e same ceason that Eliseus had said vnto her as sone as the frute coulde haue lyfe.
And when the ladd was great, it fell on a daye, that he went out to his father to y^e haruestmẽ. And there he cõplayned to his D father, my heed my heed. And his father sayde to a ladd, carye hym to his mother.
And he toke him & brought him to his mo ther. And he sat on her knees til none & thẽ dyed. And she caryed hym vp & layd hym on the bedde of the man of god, and shut y^e dore to him, & wẽt out, and came to her hus bãde and sayde: sende me one of y^e young men & an asse that I maye rũne to the mã of God. And he saide: wherfore wylt thou go to him to daye, whyle it is nether newe mone nor Saboth daye. And she sayd: be content. Then she sadelled an Asse & sayd to the ladd: leade awaye and make me not cease rydyng, vntyll I byd the.
And so she went & came vnto the man of god, to mount Carmel. And whẽ the mã of God saw her a farre, he sayde to Gehezi hys seruaunt: se, wher oure seruaunte cometh. Now rũne against her, * & aske her, (In y^e next Chap. b) whether it be all well wyth her, and wyth her husbãd and with the lad. And she say- E de: all is wel. Thẽ she wente to the man of god vp to y^e hil and caught him by y^e fete.
And Gehezi wẽt to her, to thrust her away.
But the man of god said: let her a lone, for her soule is vexed, and the Lord hath hyd it from me and hath not tolde it me. Then she sayde: dyd I desyre a sonne of my lorde? dyd I not saye, that thou shuldest not brynge me in a foles Paradyse.
Then he sayde to Gehezi: gyrde vp thy loynes, and take my staffe in thyne hãde & awaye. If anye man mete the, salute hym not. And yf any salute the, ãswere him not agayne. And put my staffe vpon the boy.
Not withstandyng: the mother of y^e chylde sayde: * as sure as the Lorde lyuethe, & as thy soule lyuethe, I wyl not leaue the.
And then he arose and folowed her. Gehe-zi went before them and put the staffe vp on the ladd. But there was nether voyce nor attending. And then he wẽt agayne against his master and told hym saying: it hath not a waked the ladd.
When Eliseus was come to y^e house: Be holde, y^e ladd was deed & layde vpon hys bed. And he went in & shut the dore to the lad & him, & prayed vnto the Lord. * And F he wẽt vp & laye vpon the ladd, & put hys mouth on hys mouth, and his eyes on hys eyes, & the palme of his handes on the pal me of hys hãdes, and sprede him self vpõ y^e lad that the flesh of the child waxed war-me. And wẽt agayne & walked once vp & downe in y^e house, and thẽ went vp & spred him self vpõ him. And thẽ the lad nesed se uẽ times & opened hys eyes. And he called Gehezi & said: cal for this Sunamite. And he called her. And whẽ she was come to hi, he said: * take thy sõne. Thẽ she wẽt & fel at his fete & bowed her self to the groũd, & toke vp her sõne & wẽt out. Whẽ Eliseus was come to Galgal agayne, there was a dearth in the lande, and the children of the prophetes dwelt wyth him. Then he sayd G to his seruaũt, put on a great pot, & make pottage for y^e children of y^e prophets. And one wẽt out into the felde, to geather her-bes, & found as it were a wylde vyne, and gethered therof Coloquintydaes his lap-ful, & came & shred thẽ into the pott of po-tage, they vnwetynge. And they powred out for the men to eate. And whẽ they had tasted

tasted of ẏ pottage, they cryed out ⁊ sayd: there is deeth in the pot thou mã of God, ⁊ could not eate therof. Thẽ he sayd: bryng meale. And he cast it in to the pot ⁊ sayde: fyl for the people that they maye eate, and there was no harme in the pot.

Ther came a man from Baalsalisa and broughte the man of God bredde of fyrst frutes, euen .xx. loues of barleye, and new corne in a cloth he had. And Eliseus bade put it before the people that they myghte eate. Then hys mynister sayd: what shul-de I set this before an hundred men? And he sayde: sett it before the people and lette them eate. For thus sayth the Lorde: they shal eate and leaue. And he sett it before them, and they eate and left according to ẏ worde of the Lorde.

¶ Naamã ẏ Sirie is healed of hys leprosie. Gehezi is stricken with a leprosie because he toke money ⁊ rayment of Naaman.

The .v. Chapter.

A Naaman captayne of the host to ẏ kīg of Siria, was great wᵗ his master ⁊ well taken: for thorow hym the Lorde saued Siria. And he was an actiue man, and yet a leper. And there had gone a companie of Souldyoures oute of Siria a runnyng, and had broughte oute of the countrey of Israel a lytle mayde, whyche was with Naamãs wife. And the Damo sell sayde vnto her ladye: I wolde my master were with a prophet that is in Samaria: he wolde deliuer hym of hys leprosye.
And she went ⁊ told her husband saying: thus ⁊ thus saith ẏ mayde ẏ is out of ẏ lãde of Israel. And the king of Siria said: go thy waye, and I wyl sende a letter vnto the kyng of Israel. And he went ⁊ toke B wyth hym ten talentes of siluer ⁊ .vi. thou sande peces of goulde, and ten chaung of raymentes. And he brought the letter to ẏ kyng of Israel cõtaynynge thys tenoure.
Now when this letter is come vp to ẏ: Be holde I haue sent Naaman my seruaunt to the, that thou shuldest rydde him of his leprosie. And when the king of Israel had rede ẏ letter, he rent hys clothes ⁊ sayd: * am I god, to sley ⁊ to make a lyue, that he shuld sende to me, for to delyuer a mã frõ his leprosie. But consider I pray you ⁊ se, how he pyketh quarelles wᵗ me. And whẽ Eliseus the man of God, hard howe that the kyng of Israell had rente hys clothes, he sent to the kynge sayinge: Wherfore hast thou rent thy clothes? let him come to me, that he maye knowe that ther is a pro phete in Israel.

And Naaman came with his horsses ⁊ C his charet, and stode at ẏ dore of Eliseus.
Thẽ Eliseus sent a messenger saying: go ⁊ washe the in Iordã seuẽ tymes, and thy flesh shall come agayne to the as before, ⁊ thou shalte be cleane. And Naaman was wroth and wẽt awaye, and sayd: Behold, I thought in my selfe, he wold haue come out, ⁊ stande ⁊ call on the name of the lord hys God, ⁊ put hys hande on the place of the dysease, and so take awaye ẏ leprosye.
Are not Abanah and Pharphar, riuers of Damasco, better then al the waters of Israel? Myghte I not rather washe in them and be cleane? And so he turned and depar ted in an anger. Then came his seruauntes D and commoned wᵗ him and sayd: Father yf the prophet had byd the done some great thyng, oughtest thou not to haue done it? how moche rather then shuldest thou do it, while he saith to ẏ onlie, wash ⁊ be clea-ne. * Then he wẽt downe ⁊ washed seuen Luke.iiii.e. tymes in Iordã, as the mã of God bade, ⁊ his flesh chaunged, lyke vnto the flesh of a lytle boye, and he was cleane.

Thẽ he turned agayne the mã of God ⁊ all his companye withe him, and came ⁊ stode before hym ⁊ sayde. Behold I know that there is no God in all the worlde, but in Israel. And now I pray the take a bles sing of thy seruaũt. But he said * as sure ly as ẏ lord lyueth before whome I stand, iiii.re.xvii.a.
I wyll receaue none. And the other wolde E haue cõstrained him to receaue: but he wol de not do it. And Naaman sayde, yf thou wylte not: yet I praye the, maye there not be geuen to thy seruaunte the burthen of two mules of erthe. For thy seruaunt wyl hencefor the offer nether burnesacryfice nor offerynge vnto anye other God, then to the Lorde. But herein the Lord be mercyful to thy seruaunte, for whẽ my master goeth into the house of Remõ to worshyp there, he * leaneth on myne hãd, ⁊ I muste worshippe in the house of Remon, lett the Lorde I praye the be mercyfull vnto thy seruaũt in this case. And he sayd to hĩ: go in peace. And when he was departed from hym

That is he taketh and wayteth for me him a furlong of groũd, Gihezi ỹ seruaũt of Eliseus the mã of god, said: se, my ma= ster hath kept of, this Sirien Naaman ỹ he wold not receaue of his hand ỹ he offe= red. As surely as the Lorde lyueth I wyl runne after hym & take somewhat. And so Gihezi went after Naamã. And whẽ Na= amã saw him come running after hym, he came downe of ỹ charet agaĩst him & said: Mi.x.c, Mt.d *is al well? And he sayd yee.

But my master hath sent me sayinge: se, ther be two young men come to me out of Ephraim of the chyldrẽ of the prophe= tes: geue thẽ I pray the, one talẽt of siluer & a couple of good garmẽtes. And Naa= C mã saide: auenture and take two talentes of syluer in two bagges, with two goodly garmentes, & delyuered them vnto two of his seruaũtes, to beare it before hym. And he went in the darcke & toke it of their hã des & bestowed it in the house, and lett the men go, and they departed.
Then he wente & stode before hys ma= ster. And Eliseus sayd to him: whence co= meth Gihezi? And he sayde: thy seruaunte wẽt no whether. And he said: wẽt not mine herte wt the, when the man turned & came of his charet agaynst the? Is it a tyme to receaue siluer & to receaue garmẽtes, oliue trees, vyneyardes, oxen, shepe menseruaũ tes and maydeseruauntes? The leprosye therfore of Naamã cleaue vnto the, & vn ii.pa.xvi.d to thy seede for euer. * And he wẽt out frõ him a leper as whyte as snow.

¶ Eliseus maketh yron to swymme aboue the wa= ter. The Sirians besiege Israel, so that .ii. womẽ a gree togather to eate their owne chyldren.

The .vi. Chapter.

Then sayde the children of the A prophetes vnto Heliseus: se, the place wher we dwel wt ỹ is to lytle for vs. Let vs ther take euery mã a beame & byl de vs a place ther, to dwel in. And he said: goo ye. And one sayde: begynne I praye the, and go with thy seruauntes. And he sayde: I will, and so wente with them.
And when they came to Jordan, they cutt downe wood. And as one was hewin= ge of a beame, ỹ axe heed fel into ỹ water.
And he cryed oute & sayde: Alasse master:
B for it was lẽt me. And the mã of god said: Where fel it? And he shewed him ỹ place.
And he cut an helue and cast it in thyther, and made the axe heed swimme. And he sayde: take it vp to the. And the other stret ched his hand and caught it.
And the king of Siria fought against Israell, and toke councell wythe his ser= uauntes saying: In soche a place and in soch a place wyll I pytche. And the man of God sent vnto the kyng of Israel say= inge: Beware thou go not by soche a pla= ce, for there are the Sirians gone downe.
And the kynge of Israel sent to the place whyche the man of God tolde hym and warned him of, & saued him self ther more then once or twyse.
And the hert of the king of Siria was troubled therwith, ỹ he sent for his seruaũ tes & sayde to them: * wyl ye not shewe me whych of vs telleth the kynge of Israell.
And one of his seruauntes sayd: naye my Lorde kyng: Eliseus the prophet that is in Israel, he tellyth the kyng of Israel the wordes that thou speakest in thy sleppyng chambre. Then he saide: go and spie wher he is that I may sende & fet him. And one C told the kynge sayinge: se, he is in Dothã.
And he sẽt thyther horse & charettes and a great host. And they came thither by night and compased the towne about.
And whẽ the seruaũt of the mẽ of god rose vp erly and was gone oute: Beholde: ther was an host rounde about the towne wt horses and charettes. Then sayde hys lad to him: Alasse master, what shal we do?
And he sayde: feare not, ther are mo wyth D vs then wt them. And Eliseus prayed and sayde: Lorde open the eyes of the younge man, & he sawe. And beholde, ỹ mouñtayne was full of horses and charettes of fyre rounde about Eliseus. And when the sou diars came downe to him, Eliseus prayed vnto the Lorde and sayd. Smite thys peo ple with blindnesse. And he smote them wt blyndnes accordyng to the desyre of Elise us. Thẽ Eliseus sayd vnto thẽ this is not ỹ way, nor this is not ỹ towne: But folow me and I wyll bryng you out to the mã ye seke. And he ledd them to Samaria.
Whẽ they were come to Samaria, Eli E seus sayde: Lord, open their eyes & let thẽ se. And the Lorde opened their eyes ỹ they saw. And behold they were in ỹ middes of Samaria. And then sayde the kynge of Israell vnto Eliseus when he sawe them:
shall shal I smyte the, shal I smyte the father And he sayd: smyte the not. But smyte the thou takest wyth thyne owne swerde and with thyne owne bowe. But set bread and water before them, & let them eate & drinke and go to theyr master. And he made grea te ordinaunce before them. And when they had eaten and droncke, sent the away, and F they went to theyr mayster. And so y Sou dyoures of Siria came noo more into the lande of Israel.

After this Benhadad kynge of Siria geathered all the hoste, and wet & beseged Samaria. And ther arose great dearth in Samaria: for they had beseged it, vntyll an Asses head was worth foure skore sy-cles of siluer, & the fourth part of a * Cab of doues dong worth fyue sycles. And as the kyng of Israel walked vpon the wal-les ther cryed a womā to him, sayng: help my Lord king. And he sayd: Nay, the lord helpe the. But wherwith shuld I help the, wyth corne or wyne? Then sayd the kyng to her: what ayleth the? And she answered thys womā here said to me, bring thy sōne and let vs eate hym to daye, & we wyl eate G myne to morowe. * And so we dressed my sonne & dyd eate hym. And I sayde to her another day, bring thy sonne that we may eate him. But she hath hid her sōne. Whē the king hearde the wordes of the woman he rent his clothes euē as he was walking on the walles. And when the people loked vpō him: se, he was clothed in sack vnder.
Thē he sayd: God do so & so to me: yf the head of Eliseus the sōne of Saphat tarie on him thys day. And as Eliseus satte in hys house and the elders wythe hym: thee kyng sent one from hym. But yet the messenger came at him, he sayde to the elders: se you not how the sonne of thys murtherar hath sent, to take of myne head? be cir-cūspect therfore whē the messenger cometh and shut the dore, & thrust him backe ther-withe: for the sounde of hys mayssters fete foloweth hym. And whyle he yet talked w them: Behold the messenger was come vn to hym. And he sayde: behold, thys euel is of the Lord, what moare shall we loke for of the Lorde.

¶ Eliseus prophesieth plenteousnes of vitayles and other thinges to Samaria. The Sirias came awaye & haue no mā folowing thē. The Lord that wold not beleue the word of Helizeus is troden to death.

The. vii. Chapter.

Then Heliseus sayd: heare the A worde of the Lorde: for thus sayth the Lorde: to morowe thys tyme a boushell of fyne flowre shalbe solde for a sicle & two boushelles of Barleye for a nother in the gates of Samaria. Then a greate Lorde on whose hande the king leaned, an swered the man of God and saide, though the Lord wold make windowes in heauē, yet wold not this be. And he said agayne: Beholde, thou shalte se it wyth thyne eyes and shalt not eate thereof.

And ther were foure lepers set with out the gate of Samaria. And they sayd eche to hys cōpanion, what sytt we here vntyll we die? though we thought that we might come into y cytie, yet is the dearth so great in y citie, that we shal ther dye. And yf we tarye here, we ar but dead also. Now therfore come & let vs fle to the Host of the Si riās: Yf they saue our lyues, we shal lyue And yf they kyll vs, thē are we dead. And so they arose in the darke to go to the host of the Sirians. And whē they were come B to the syde of the Hoste of Siria: se, there was no man there.

For the Lord had made the hoste of the Siriās heare a noyse of charettes & a noy se of horsses, & the noyse of a great Hoste.
In so moch that they sayd one to another: se, the kynge of Israel hath hyred against vs, the kynges of the Hethites & the kynges of Egypte, to come vpō vs. And vpō that they arose and fled in the darke, & left theyr tentes, theyr horsses, theyr Asses and the felde they had pitched euen as it was, and fled for theyr lyues. And when these lē pers came too the edge of the Hooste, they went into a tente and dyd eate and drinke and caryed thence syluer, gould & raymēt and wente & hyd it: and came agayne and entered into another, and caryed thence al so, and went and hyd it.

Then they sayd one to another: it is not wel that we doo, for this daye is a daye to bring tidinges. And yf we hold our peace & tarye tyl it be daye light, we shal finde a mischeue. Now therfore come, let vs go & tel the kynges housholde. And so they wēt C and called to the porter of the citie & tolde them sayinge: we came to the Pauylyons

of the Sirians: & se ther was no mā ther, neyther voyce of man, but horsses & Asses tyed, & the tentes euen as they were.
Then the porters called & tolde the kin ges house within. And the king arose in ẏ night and sayd to his seruauntes: I wyll shewe you, how the Sirians haue serued vs. They know that we ar oppressed with hunger, & therfore ar gone out of theyr pa uilions to hyde thē selues in the felde say inge: They wyll come out of the cytie, and thē we shal catche thē a lyue & get into the citie. And one of his seruaūtes answered & sayd: Let mē take fyue of the horsses that remayne & are left in the citie. Behold they are as good as all thee multitude that are left in the cytie: and as good as al the mul titude of the cytie that are consumed, and let vs send and se. And they toke two cha= rettes of horses, & the kinge sente after the hoste of the Siriens sayinge: go and see.
And they folowed after them euen vnto D Jordan: & se, all the waye was full of clo= thes and vessells which the Sirians had cast from them for haste.
And the messengers returned and told the kyng. And then the people went oute & robbed the tentes of the Sirians. And so a bushel of flowre was solde for a sycle, & two busshulles of barley for a sycle, accor dynge to the worde of the Lorde. And the kyng set the Lorde on whose hand he lea= ned, to kepe ẏ gate. And the people troade him in the gate, that he dyed, accordyng to the saying of ẏ mā of God whych he sayd when the king came downe to him. And it came to passe according to the word of the man of god to the king sayinge: two bus= shelles of barleye for a sicle & a busshel of flowre for another shalbe to morowe thys tyme in the gates of Samaria. And the Lord answered the man of God and sayd though the Lord made wyndowes in hea uen, yet wolde thys not be. And the other sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it with thyne eyes, & shalt not eat therof. And so it chaū ced: for thee people troade hym vnder fete in the gate, that he dyed.

¶ Eliseus prophesieth vnto the Sunamite ẏ derth of .vii. yeare. After the death of Benhadad raygneth Hasael in Siria. Iehoram the sonne of Iehosaphat raygneth in Iuda. Edom falleth fro Iuda. Ochoziah succedeth Iehoram.

The. viii. Chapter.

Then spake Eliseus vnto the womā whose sonne he had re A stored to lyfe againe, saying: vp & go both thou and thyne house, & soiourne where thou thinkest best, for the Lord wil cal a derth which shal come on the lande seuen yeare.
And the woman arose & dyd after the say= inge of the man of God, and wēt both she and her houshold & soiourned in the land of the Philistines seuē yere. And at ẏ seuē yeares ende, when the womā was come a= gayne out of the lād of the Philistines she went out to speake to the king for her hou se and for her land. And the kinge was tal B kinge wyth Gihesi the seruaunt of the mā of God sayinge: tel me I praye the, al the greate dedes whyche Eliseus dyd. And it chaunced as he was telling the kyng how he restored a dead body to life againe that the womā whose sonne he reuyued, cryed to the kyng for her house and land. Then sayd Gihesi: My Lord kynge, thys is the woman and thys is her sonne whych Eli= seus brought to lyfe agayn. And the king asked the woman, and she tolde him. And so thee kynge sente wythe her one of hys Chamberlaynes sayinge: restore all that pertayneth to her, wyth all the fruytes of the felde, sence the daye she lefte the lande vnto thys tyme.
After that Eliseus went to Damasco, Benhadad the kynge of Siria beynge si ke. And one tolde the kynge sayinge: The man of God is come herber. Thē sayd the kyng to Hasael: ✶ take a present with the C and goo agaynst the man of God and as= ke the Lord by hym whether I shall reco= uer of thys my disease or no. And Hasael went to mete him and toke presentes with hym, euen of all the good thinges of Da= masco, as moche as fourtie Camels could beare, and came & presented hym self befo re hym & sayd: thy sonne Benhadad king of Siria hath sent me to the, sayinge: shal I recouer of thys my disease.
And Eliseus said to him: go and say to him, thou shalt recouer, howbeit the Lord D hath shewed me that he shall surelye dye.
And the man of God began ✶ to loke ste= destly, in so moche that he was a shamed: and the man of God wepte. And Hasael sayde: why wepeth my Lorde? And he an= swered answered: for I know that thou shalt doo euel vnto the chyldꝛe of Israel: theyꝛ strōg cities thou shalt set on fyꝛe, ⁊ theyꝛ young men thou shalt sleye wyth the swerde, and shalt dashe oute the braynes of theyꝛ suckinge chyldꝛen, and all to teare theyꝛ women wyth chylde.

And Hazael sayd: what is thy seruaūte which am but a dog, that I shulde do this great thing? And Eliseus said for ẏ Lord hath shewed me, that thou shalt be king of Siria. And so he departed frō Eliseus ⁊ came to hys mayster, whiche sayd to hym.
What sayd Eliseus to the? And he sayde: he tolde me that thou shuldeste recouer.
And on thee moꝛowe he toke a roughe a† clothe and dypte it in the water and spꝛede it on hys face, and he dyed, ⁊ Hazael rayg-ned in hys steade.
The fyfte yere of Jehorā sōne of Ahab king of Israel, Jehosaphat being yet kīg of Juda, Jehorā the sonne of Jehosaphat E king of Juda, began to raygne. xxxii. yere olde was he whē he began to raygne, ⁊ he rayned. viii. yere in Jerusalē. And he wal ked in the way of the kinges of Israel, as did the house of Ahab for the daughter of Ahab was his wyfe, ⁊ he dyd that displea sed the loꝛd. Neuerthelater the Loꝛd wold not destroye Juda because of Dauid hys seruaūt, as he promysed hym to geue hym a lighte in hys chyldꝛen all waye.
And in his dayes Edō fel away frō vn F der the hand of Juda, ⁊ made thē a kyng of theyꝛ owne. And Jehorā went to Seir, ⁊ all hys charettes with hī. And he rose by night ⁊ layd on the Edomites, whych com passed him in, ⁊ ẏ captaines of his charet ⁊ the people fled into their tentes. And so the Edomites slipte away frō vnder the hand of Juda vnto thys day. And thē Lobnah slipt away to, euen that same tyme.
The rest of the dedes of Jehorā ⁊ al he dyd are wrytē in the chronicles of the kinges of Juda. And Jehoram rested wt hys fathers ⁊ was buried wyth his fathers in the citie of Dauid. And Oziah hys sonne raygned in his steade. The. xii. yere of Je horā sonne of Ahab king of Israel, did O hoziah the sonne of Jehorā king of Juda begin to raygne. Two ⁊ twentie yere olde G was Ohoziah whē he begāne to raygne, ⁊ raigned one yere in Jerusalē, his mothers name was Athaliah daughter of Amri, king of Israel. And he walked in the way of the house of Ahab: for he was a sōne in law to the house of Ahab.
And Jehorā the sonne of Ahab wēte to warre with Hazael king of Siria, at Ra-moth in Galaad, and the Sirians wounded hym. Wherfore kyng Jehoram went backe agayne, to be healed in Jesrahell of the woūdes whych the Siriās had geuē him at Ramoth, whē he fought wyth Ha-zael kyng of Siria. And Ohoziah the son ne of Jehoram king of Juda wēt downe to se Jehoram sonne of Ahab in Jezrahel because he was sycke.

The Notes

a† Hazael brought this weat clothe to him, as though he wold therwith haue coled him ⁊ eased hī of his feruent heate: but dyd in dede strangle hym, after Josephus. He had heard of the pꝛophet ẏ Benhadad shuld recouer, ⁊ so shuld it haue bene longe or he had raygned: therfoꝛe dyd he rydde hym, to thyntent that he myght soner come by the kyngdom.

¶ Jehu is made king of Israel, and kylleth Jehorā the king therof, ⁊ Ohoziah kynge of Juda also: and therto causeth Jezabel to be cast downe forthe of a wyndowe, whom dogges eate.

The. ix. Chapter.

And Eliseus the prophete cal- A led vnto one of the chyldꝛē of of ẏ pꝛophetes, ⁊ sayd to him gyrde vppe thy loynes ⁊ take this boxe of oyle in thyne hād and get the to Ramoth in Galaad, ⁊ when thou comest thether, thou shalt ther se Jehu the sonne of Jehosaphat thee sonne of Namsi, ⁊ go to him, ⁊ make him aryse vp frō among his brethꝛen and carye hym to a secrete chamber. And take ẏ boxe of oyle and powꝛe it on hys heade and saye, thus sayth the Loꝛd: I haue anoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel. And thē open the doꝛe and flee, ⁊ tary not. And the seruaūt of the Pꝛophet get hym to Ramoth in Galaad, ⁊ whē he came, the captaynes of the hoste were syttyng togyther. And he sayd: I haue an errand to the O kīg captayne. And Je B hu sayde, vnto whyche of all vs? And he he sayde: to the O captayne. And he arose and went into the house.
And the other powꝛed the oyle on hys head and sayde to hym, thus saith ẏ Loꝛd God of Israel: I haue anoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel the people of the loꝛde that thou sleye the housholde of Ahab thy mayster. For I (sayeth the Loꝛde) wyl auenge the bloude of my seruauntes the pꝛo phetes, ⁊ the bloude of all the seruauntes Jezabel.

of the Lorde, of the hand of Jezabel (for þ whole house of Ahab shall be destroyed) and I wyll destroye vnto Ahab what pisseth agaynste the walle, and so moche as the presoned or that is forsaken in Israel, and wyll make the house of Ahab lyke the house of Jeroboam sonne of Nabat, and lyke the house of Baasa the sonne of Ahiah. And as for Jezabell the dogges shall eate her in the felde of Jezrahell, and none shall burye her. And he opened the dore and fled.

And when Jehu was come oute to the seruauntes of his Lorde, they sayd to hym: C is all peace? wherfore came this mad fe-lowe to þe? And he sayd to them: ye know the persō and his cōmunicatiō. And they said: it is not so. But tel vs a felowshippe. And he sayd, thus and thus spake he to me say inge. Thus sayth the Lorde: I haue anoin ted the to be kynge ouer Israell. And they hasted and toke euerye man his mantell & put vnder hym on an hye benche at the top of steppes, & blewe a trompett and sayde: Jehu is kynge. And so Jehu the sonne of Jehosaphat the sonne of Namsi cōspired agaynst Jehoram. And Jehorā had bene waytinge at Ramoth Galaad, and all Israel with hym, for feare of Hazael kyng of Siria and was returned to be healed in Jezrahel of þ woundes which the Siriās had geuē hym as he fought wyth Hazaell kynge of Siria.

Then sayde Jehu: If it be youre myndes, then let no man escape out of the citie, D to goo & tell in Jezrahell. And Jehu rode and wente to Jezrahell: for Jehoram laye there, and Ohoziah kynge of Juda was come to Jehoram. And þ watcheman that stode on the towre in Jezrahel, spied the cō pany of Jehu as he came, and sayd: I se a companie. And Jehorā said: take an horsman and sende agaynst them, and let hym aske whether it be peace. And ther wēt one on horsbacke agaynste him and said: thus sayth the kyng: is it peace? And Jehu an-E swered: what hast þ to do wt peace? turne and come after me. And the watchmā tolde saying: the messenger came to them but he cometh not agayne.

Then he sent out another on horsback, which came to them and sayde, thus sayth the kyng: is it peace? And Jehu answered what hast thou to do with peace? turne and come after me. And the watchman tolde sayinge: he came to them, but he cometh not agayne, & the driuyng is lyke the driuing of Jehu the sonne of Namsi, for he dri ueth as he were mad.

Then sayd Jehoram, make redye. And they made readye his charet. And Jehorā king of Israel, & Ohoziah kyng of Juda wēt out ether in hys charet agaynst Jehu, and mett him in the furlong of Naboth þ Jezrahelite. And when Jehoram saw Jehu, he sayd: is it peace Jehu? And he sayd, what peace shulde there be, so long as the whordomes of thy mother Jezabell & her wytchcraftes are so greate? And Jehoram turned his hand and fled, & said to Ohozi-ah; there is falshed Ohoziah. And Jehu toke a bowe in hys hande and smote Jeho ram betwene the shoulders, that the arow came out at hys breast. And he fell downe thre folde in his charett. Then he sayde to Badakar a lorde of hys, take & cast hym in the plat of grounde of Naboth þ Jez-rahelite. For I remembre as I & thou roade to gether after Ahab hys father, how þ Lorde spake these wordes agaynste hym: I haue sene yesterdaye the bloude of Na both & of his sonnes, sayde þ Lord, and I wyl quyte him in this groūd, sayth the lor F de. Now therfore take and cast him in the plat of grounde accordyng to the word of the Lorde. And when * Ohoziah the kyng of Juda sawe that, he fled the waye to the * garden house. And Jehu folowed after him in hys charet at the going vp to Gur by Jeblaam, and he fleed to Mageddo and ther died. And his seruaūtes caried him to Jerusalē, & buried him in his sepulchre wt his fathers in þ cytye of Dauid. And in þ xi. yere of Jehoram sonne of Ahab, begā Ohoziah to raygne ouer Juda. And whē Jehu was come to Jezrahell, Jezabel her de of it, & starched her eies & tired her heed & looked out at a wyndowe. And as Jehu entred at þ gate she said: had Zamri pea ce which slew his master? And he lyfte vp his eyes to the wyndow & sayde, who is of my syde who? And there loked out to him two or thre lordes that were chāberlaines. G And he said: Throw her downe. And they threw her downe, And he sprinkled of her

The .x. Chapter.

Ahab had .lxx. sonnes in Sa-

And when he was departed thence he D hym and sayd to hym: is thyne hert right, as myne hert is with thyne. And Jehona ue a great sacrefice to do to Baal: ⁊ ye any be missed, he shal not liue. But Jehu dyd it for a sotelltie, to destroye the seruauntes of Baal. Wherfore Jehu sayd: Apoynt a so solempe feast for Baal, & they proclamed it.

Then Jehu sent thorow oute all Israell.
And al the seruauntes of Baall came, that ther was not a man left behynd that came not. And when they were come in to the tem ple of Baal, the temple was ful from one ende to another.
Then he sayd to the keper of the vestrie, brynge forth garmentes for the seruauntes of Baal. And he brought them out garmentes. And Jehu went wt Jehonadab sonne of Rechab in to the house of Baal: and sayde to the seruauntes of Baall: searche and loke that there be none here wt you of the seruauntes of the Lord, but ye seruauntes of Baal onlye. And they went in, to of fer sacrefyce & burntofferinges. But Jehu appointed him foure skore men without & sayd: If any of the men which I shal brin ge vnto your handes escape, he that letteth him go shal dye for hym.
F And as sone as he had made an ende of offeryng of burntsacrefyce, he sayde to them of the garde & to the Lordes: go in & sleye them let none come oute. And they smote them wt the edge of the swerde. And the garde & the Lordes cast them out, & went vnto the cytie of the house of Baal, & fette out the Image out of the house of Baal & burnt it. And they brake ye Image of Baal, and brake the house of Baal, & made a sege of it euer after. And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But from the synnes of Jero boam the sonne of Nabat which made Is rael synne with the goulden calues in Bethel and Dan, Jehu departed not.
Then the Lorde sayd to Jehu, because thou haste lustelye done that pleaseth me, and hast done to the house of Ahab al that [illegible] was in myne hert, therfore shall * thy chyldren in the fourth generacyon sytt on the seate of Israell. But Jehu cared not to G walcke in the law of the Lorde god of Israel with al hys hert: for he departed not from the sinnes of Jeroboam which made Israel synne.
In those dayes the Lorde beganne to cut Israel shorte, for Hazaell slue them in all the coostes of Israell, from Jordan Eastwarde: euen all the lande of Galaad the Gadites, the Rubenites and the Ma-nassites, from Aroer vpon the ryuer of Arnon, with Galaad and Basan. The rest of the actes of Jehu, and all he dyd, and all his power, are wrytten in the chronicles of the kinges of Israel. And when Jehu was layde to rest with his fathers, they buryed hym in Samaria, and Jehoahaz his sonne raygned in his stead. And the tyme that Jehu raigned vpon Israel in Samaria, was. xxviii. yere.

And the seuenth yere Jehoiada sent & fett the rulars ouer hundredes wt the captaynes and them of thee garde, and toke them into him into the house of the lord, and made a bonde with them, and toke an othe of them in the house of the Lord, and shewed them the kinges sonne. And he comaun-ded them saying: this is that ye must do: one third part of you shal come on ye Sabath

And the captaynes ouer the hundredes did al thynges as Jehoiada the preast cōmaūded, & toke euery mā his men, that is, them that came in the Saboth daye with them that went oute the Saboth daye, & went to Jehoiada the prest. And the preast gaue to the captaynes ouer hundredes the speares and shyldes that were kyng Da-uids & had remayned in the tēple. And the garde stode euery man with his wepon in his hand rounde aboute the kynge, frō the right corner of the tēple to the lefte a long by aultare & the temple. And he broughte C out the sonne of the king & put the crowne vpon him, and delyuered him the * witnes, and made hym kynge and anoynted hym.
And they clapte their hādes and sayd: god saue the kynge.
And when Athaliah heard the noyse of the runninge of the people, she came to the people in to the house of the Lorde. And when she saw the kynge stande by a pyler (as the maner was) and thee syngers & the trompettes by the kyng, and all the people of the lande reioysynge, and the blowyng of the trompettes, she rente her clothes & cryed, treason treason. And Jehoiada the preast commaunded the Captaines of the hundredes that had the rule of the hoste, & sayde to them: haue her oute wythoute the ranges, and yf any folowe her, let hym dye wt the swerde: for the preast sayd, she may not be slayne in the house of the lorde. And they layde handes on her, and she wēt the way that the horses of the kynges wēt out and was slayne there.
And Jehoiada made abonde both bet-D wene the Lord and the king, & betwene the people and the Lorde, that they shuld be y Lordes people: & also betwene the kyng & the people. Then all the people of the lan de wente into the house of Baall, and destroyed hys aultares, and brake downe his Images lustely, and slue Mathan the preast of Baal before the aultar. And the preast set watch men in the house of the lor de, & toke y rulers ouer hūdredes & the cap taines & the gard & al the people of y land:
And they brought the kyng from the house of the Lord & went the waye of the gate of the garde of the kinges house. And he sat him downe on the seate of the kynges.
And all the people of the Lord reioysed, & the cytye was in quyette. And they slue Athaliah wythe the swerde in the house of the kynge.

¶ Jehoas maketh prouision for the repayryng of y temple. He is kylled by .ii. of his seruauntes, & Amasiah raygneth in hys steade.

Hys mothers name was Zebiah Bersabe. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde, as longe as Jehoiada the Preaste enfourmed hym. But they toke not awaye the hilaulters, for the people slue and offered styll in the hillaulters.
And Jehoas sayde to the preastes: all the syluer y is dedicat & brought to the house of the Lorde in curraunt money, that is to saye, the moneye that euery man * is set at, with al the moneye that euery mānes hert

The .xiii. Chapter.

A IN the .xxiii. yeare of Jehoas sonne of Ohoziah kinge of Juda, Jehoahaz the sonne of Jehu was made kynge ouer Israell in Samaria, and continued .xvii. yeare. And he wrought wickednes in the syght of the Lorde: for he folowed the synne of Jeroboā the sonne of Nabat whych made Israell sinne, & departed not therfrō. Wherfo re the Lorde was angry wyth Israel, and delyuered them into thee hande of Hazaell king of Siria, & into the hand of Benha-dad the sonne of Hazael al theyr dayes.
But Jehoahaz besought the Lorde, & the Lorde hearde hym. For he had sene the oppression of Israell, howe the kynge of Siria oppressed them. And therfore the Lorde gaue Israell a delyuerer and they went out frō vnder the handes of the Si rians. And the chyldren of Israell dwelte in theyr tentes as before tyme. Neuerthelesse they departed not from thee synne of B the house of Jeroboam whych made Isra ell synne, but walked therein. And there re mayned a groue also in Samaria styll: But ther were left of the people to Jehoa haz but fyftie horsemen and ten charettes and ten thousande fotemen for the kynge of Siria hadde destroyed them and made thē lyke thresshed chaffe. The rest of the actes of Jehoahaz, & al he dyd & hys power are wryttē in the chronicles of the kynges of Israell. And Jehoahaz rested wyth his fathers, and they buried him in Samaria and Joas hys sonne raygned in his stea-de. In the .xxxvii. yeare of Jehoas kynge of Juda, beganne Joas the sonne of Jehoahaz to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria, and contynued syxtene yeare, and dyd vnhappely in the syghte of the Lorde and departed in nothing frō the synnes of Jeroboam the sōne of Nabat that made Is- C raell synne, but walcked therein.
The remnaunt of the actes of Joas & all he dyd, and hys power, how he fought wyth Amaziah kynge of Juda, are wrytten in the chronicle boke of the kynges of Israel. And when Joas was layde to rest wyth hys fathers, Jeroboam sat vpō his seate. And Joas was buried in Samaria amonge the kynges of Israell.
When Eliseus was fallen sycke of the syckenesse whereof he dyed, Joas kyng of Israell came to hym and wepte to hym, & sayd: O father, father the charet of Israel & the horsemen of the same. And Eliseus sayd unto him, bring boow & arowes. And he brought to him boow and arowes. And he sayde to the kynge of Israell: put thyne hand upon the boow, & whē he had put his hand upon y boow, Eliseus put hys handes upon the kinges handes. Thē he said, opē a wyndow east warde: and he opened.

D And Eliseus said: shote, and he shott. And he sayd: the arowe of helpe of the lord, and the arowe of helpe agaynste the Syrians, for thou shalt bete the Syriens in Aphek til thou haue consumed them.

Then he sayde: take arowes: and he toke. Then he sayde to the kynge of Israell, smyte the grounde: and he smote thryse and ceased. And the man of god was angrie with him & said: thou shuldeste haue smitē fyue or syxe tymes, and thē thou had dest smytten the Syriens til thou haddest consumed them: wher now thou shalt bete them but thryse.

When Eliseus was deed and buryed the souldyares of the Moabites came into the lande, the yere folowynge. And it chaunced as they were buryeng a man, that they spyed the Souldyares, and therfore caste the man into the sepulchre of Eliseus. And as sone as the man came and touched the bones of Eliseus, he reuiued and stode up on hys fete.

And Hazael oppressed Israel, al the dayes of Jehoahaz. But the Lorde had mercye on them and pitied them and turned to thē, because of his appoyntmēt made with Abrahā, Isaac & Jacob, and wolde not destroye them, ether cast them frō him as yet. And when Hazel king of Siria was deed, Behadad his sonne raygned in his steade. And when Joas the sōne of Jehoahaz wēt agayne & toke out of the hande of Benhadad sonne of Hazael, the cyties whyche he had taken awaye out of the handes of Jehoahaz his father, with the warre. of Jehoahaz kynge of Israel ii.Pa.25.a raygned Amaziah the sōne of Jehoas kīg of Juda: he was.
xxv. yere olde whē he began, & raigned.xxix. yere in Jerusalē, his mothers name was Jehoadan, and was of Jerusalem. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde, yet not lyke Dauid his father: but dyd in all thynges as Joas his father dyd. Nether toke they awaye the hillaulters. But the people slue and offered styll in the hillaulters. And as sone as the kyngdome was setelled in his hand, he slue his seruaū B tes that kylled the kynge hys father. But the chyldren of those murtherars he slue not, as it is wrytten in the boke of the law of Moses, where the Lorde commaunded Deu.xxiiii.c saying: *the fathers shal not dye for y chil ii.Pa.25.b.

But Amaziah wolde not heare. And so Joas kinge of Israel went up, and he and Amaziah kynge of Juda sawe ether other at Bethsames in Juda. And Juda was put to the worse before Israel, & they fledd euery man to his tēte. And Joas kynge of D Israel toke Amaziah kynge of Juda, sōne of Jehoas sonne of Ohoziah, at Bethsames. And thē he wēt to Jerusalem, & brake downe of the walle of Jerusalem from y gate of Ephraim to y corner gate, foure hundred cubytes. And he toke al the goulde & syluer & all the vessels that were foūd in the house of the Lord, & in the treasure treasure of the kynges house, and hostages thereto: and then returned to Samaria agayne.

The rest of the actes of Joas whych he dyd, and his power, and how he fought wt Amaziah kyng of Juda, are wrytten in the Chronycles of the kynges of Israell: and Joas layde hym to reste with his fathers and was buried at Samaria amonge the kynges of Israel: and Jeroboam hys sõ-ne raigned in his rowme.

E Amaziah the sonne of Jehoas kyng of Juda lyued after ẏ deeth of Joas sõne of Jehoahas kynge of Israell, fyftene yere.
And the remnaunt of the dedes of Amaziah, are wrytten in the chronicles of the kinges of Juda. And they cõspired great trea son agaynste him in Jerusalẽ, & he fled to Lachis. And they wente after hym to Lachis and slue him there. And they brought him on an horse and he was buried at Je-rusalẽ wt his fathers in the citie of Dauid.
*And al the people of Juda toke Azariah, which was .xvi. yere olde, & made him kin-ge for hys father Amaziah. And he bylte ter that the kynge was layde to rest wythe his fathers.

The .xv. yere of Amaziah sonne of Jehoas kynge of Juda, was Jeroboã sonne of Joas made kynge ouer Israel in Samaria, and raygned .xli. yere, and wrought wyckednesse in the syght of the Lorde: for he turned in nothyng from the synne of Je roboam the sonne of Nabat whyche made Israell synne. He restored the costes of Is rael from the enterynge of Hemath vnto the see, in the wilde feldes, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde God of Israell why-che he spake thorow hys seruaũt Jonah ẏ G sonne of Amithai ẏ prophete, whiche was of Geth Opher. For the Lorde had sene how that the affliction of Israel was excedyng bytter, in so moche that the presoned and the forsaken were at an ende. And ther was no helper vnto Israel. And the Lord had not yet sayde that men shulde put out the name of Israell from vnder heauen.
And therfore he holpe thẽ by the hãd of Jeroboam the sonne of Joas.

The rest of the dedes of Jeroboã, & al he dyd, and his power howe he foughte, & howe he restored Damasco and Hemath to Juda in Israel are wrytten in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Israel.
And Jeroboam layde hym to reste wyth hys fathers and wyth the kynges of Israell, and Zachariah hys sonne raygned in his steade.

¶ Azariah ẏ king of Juda becometh leprouse. And

The .xv. Chapter.

The .xxvii. yere of Jeroboam kyng of Israel, Azariah sõne of Amaziah kynge of Juda A beganne to raygne. Syxtene yere olde was he whẽ he was made kinge, and he raigned .lii. yere in Jerusalem, hys mothers name was Jecholi-ah, and was of Jerusalem. And he dyd ẏ pleased the Lorde in al thynges as did his father Amaziah: saue that they put not the hillaulters awaye: for the people offered and burned sat still in the hylaulters. And the Lorde smote the kynge, that he was a B leper vnto the daye of hys dethe, and dwel te in an house at lybertye, and Jotham the kynges house gouerned the house & iudged the people of the lande. The reste of the dedes of Azariah and al he dyd, are wryt ten in the chronicles of the kynges of Juda. And Azariah laid him to slepe with his fathers, and they buryed him with hys fathers in the citie of Dauid, and Jothã his sonne raigned in his steade.

In the .xxxviii. yere of Azariah kyng of Juda, was Zacheriah the sonne of Jeroboam made kinge vpon Israel in Sama ria, and raygned syxe monethes, and dyd that displeased the Lorde, as did hys fathers, and turned not frõ the synnes of Je roboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israell synne. And Selum the sonne of C Jabes conspired agaynste hym, and smote him before the people, and killed him, and raygned in his steade.

The rest of the dedes of Zachariah are wrytten in the chronicles of the kynges of Israel. This is the saying that the Lorde spake vnto Jehu, saying: *thy sõnes shall syt on the seate of Israel in the fourth ge-neracion. And it came so to passe.

Selum

Selum the sonne of Jabes beganne to raygne the thyrtie and nyne yeare of Azariah kynge of Juda, and he raygned a moneth in Samaria. For Manahem the sonne of Gadi, came vp frō Therzah and wente to Samaria and smote Selū the sonne of Jabes in Samaria, and slue hym, and raygned in hys steade. The reste of thee dedes of Selum and thee treason, which he conspired are wrytten in the chronicles of the kinges of Israell. The same tyme Manahem destroyed Thaphsah, & all that were therein, and the costes thereof from Therzah (because they opened not to

The .xxxix. yeare of Azariah kynge of Juda, beganne Manahem thee sonne of Gadi to raygne vpon Israell, and continued ten yere in Samaria. And he dyd euell in the syghte of the Lorde, and turned not all hys dayes from the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israel synne. And Phul kyng of Assiria came vpon the lande. And Manahem gaue Phul a thousand talentes of syluer, to helpe hym to stablishe his kyngdō. And Manahem raysed the money in Israel, vpō al men of substaunce, for to geue the kynge of Assyria fyftie sycles of syluer a pece. And the king of Assiria turned back agayne & taried not there in the lande.

E The rest of the dedes of Manahē and all he dyd, are wrytten in the chronicles of the kynges of Israell. And whē Manahē was layd to rest wyth hys fathers Phakeiah hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The fyftieth yeare of Azariah kyng of Juda, began Phakeiah the sonne of Manahem to raygne ouer Israell in Samaria and continued two yere, and wrought wyckedlye in the syghte of the Lorde and lefte not of from the synnes of Jeroboam sonne of Nabat which made Israel synne And Phakeh ye sonne of Romeliah a Lorde of hys conspired agaynst hym and slue hym in the palayse of the kynges house, wyth Argob and Ariah and fyftye men with hym that were Galaadites: and whē he hadde kylled hym, raygned in his rowme. The reste of Phakeiah and all he dyd

F are wrytten in the chronicles of the kinges of Israell.

And the fyftie and two yeare of Azariah kynge of Juda, beganne Phakeh the sonne of Romeliah to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria and continued .xx. yeare, and dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde, & turned not frō the synnes of Jeroboam sone of Nabat that made Israel synne, In the dayes of Phakeh kynge of Israell, came Teglath Phalasar kynge of Assiria, and toke Aion, Abel, Beth, Maacah, Janoah, Kades, Hazor, Galaad, Galile, and all the lande of Nephthali, and caryed thē awaye to Assyria.

And Hosea the sonne of Elah conspyred treason agaynste Phakeh thee sonne of Romeliah and smote hym and slue him and raygned in his steade, the twentie yeare of Jotham the sonne of * Oziah. The reste of the actes of Phakeh, and al he dyd are wrytten in the storyes of the kinges of Israell. * Other wyse Azariah, or as som wyl Uzziah.

G The second yeare of Phakeh sonne of Romeliah kynge of Israel, beganne Jotham the sonne of Oziah king of Juda to raygne. Fyue & twentie yeare olde was he when he began to raygne, and he raygned xvi. yeare in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jerusa thee daughter of Zadok. And he dyd that was ryghte in the syghte of the Lorde: euen in al thinge as dyd hys father Oziah, dyd he. But they putte not awaye the hyllaulters: for the people offered and burnte incense styll in the hyllaulters, he bylt the hyghest dore in the house of the Lorde. The reste of the dedes of Jotham and all he dydde, are wrytten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda. In those dayes the Lord beganne to sende agaynste Juda, Rasin the kyng of Syria and Phakeh the sonne of Romeliah. And Jotham rested with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the citie of Dauid hys father, and Ahaz hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

¶ Ahaz king of Juda offereth his sonne in fyre & hath many battels agaynst the king of Israel. He causeth an altar to be made lyke vnto [illegible] of Damasco. In ye stede of Ahaz reygneth [illegible] his sonne to Jerusalem to fyghte. And they beseged Ahaz, but coulde not ouercome hym. At thee same tyme Razin kynge of Syrya broughte Ailath agayne too Siria, and rydde the Jewes thence. And the Sirians wente too Ailath and dwelte therein vnto thys daye.

Then Ahaz sente messengers to Teglath Phalasar kynge of Assyria, saying: I am thy seruaunte and thy sonne, come and delyuer me oute of thee hande of thee kynge of Siria, and oute of the hande of the kynge of Israell, whyche are rysen agaynste me. And Ahaz toke the syluer and the gould that was found in the house of the Lorde and in the treasure of the kynges house, and sente it for a rewarde to the kynge of Assyria. And the kynge of Assyria herkened to him, and went to Damasco, and toke it, and caried the people away to Kir, and slue Razin.

And kynge Ahaz wente agaynst Teglath Phalasar kynge of Assyria, to Damasco. And when he sawe a certeyne aultare that was at Damasco, he sente to Vriah the Prieste thee patern of the aultare C and the facyon of all thee workemanshyp thereof. And Vriah the Prieste made an aultare in all poyntes lyke too thee patern whyche kynge of Ahaz hadde sente from Damasco, and had fynished it by the kinges commynge from Damasco. And when the kynge was come from Damasco and sawe the aultare, he wente to it and offered there on. And he burnte hys burntofferinge and spinkeled the bloud of hys peaceofferynge, and powred hys drinckeofferinge and sprinkeled the bloude of his peaceofferinges vpon the sayd aultare. And the brasen aultare that was before the Lord, ✣ ‡ he sette from before the house, from betwene the aulter and thee house of the Lorde, and putte it on thee Northesyde of the sayde aulter.

And thee kynge commaunded Vriah the Prieste sayinge: vpon the greate aulter sette on fyre, in the morning burntofferynges, and in the euen meatofferinges and thee kynges burntsacryfyce and hys meatoffring, and the burnte offeringes of all the people of the lande and theyr meat offerynges and theyr drinckeofferinges, and powre thereon all the bloude of al maner offeringes. But the brasen aultar shal be for me, to enquyre wyth. And Vriah the D Prieste dyd all thynges as kynge Ahaz commaunded hym. And kinge Ahaz brake the sydes of the botomes and toke thee lauers from of them, and toke downe thee see from of the brasen oxen that were vnder it, and putt it vpon a pauemente of stone. And therto the pulpit for the Saboth that they hadde made in the house, and the kynges entrie wythoute turned he to thee house of the Lorde, for feare of the kynge of Assyria. The reste of the dedes of Ahaz whyche he dyd are wrytten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda. And Ahaz layde hym to reste wyth his fathers, and was buryed wyth hys fathers in the citie of Dauid: and Hezekiah hys sonne raygned in hys rowme.

The Notes.

✣ ‡ That is, he remoued it oute of the temple, that it shulde not stande betwene the aultar and the house of the Lorde.

¶ Hosea kynge of Israell is taken. And he and all hys realme brought to the Assyrians.

The. xvii. Chapter.

In the. xii. yeare of Ahaz king of Juda, Hosea sonne of Elah begane to raygne in Sa- a maria vpon Israell, and continued nyne yeare, and dyde that displeased the Lorde, but not so euill as dyd the kynges of Israel that were before hym. And Salmanasar king of Assyria came vpon him, and Hosea became hys seruaunte and gaue hym presentes. And the kinge of Assyria founde treason in Hosea, because he hadde sente messengers to Sua kynge of Egypte, and sente no presentes vnto the kyng of Assyria, as he was yearely wonte to do. Therfore the

kyng

kyng of Assyria beseged him & put him in pryson. * And then the kyng of Assyria ca me thorowout al the lande, & came to Samaria & beseged it thre yere. And in the .ix. yere of Hosea, ye king of Assyria toke Sa maria & caryed Israel away vnto Assiria & put them in Hala, in Habor on the ryuer B of Gosā, & in the cities of the Medes. For the children of Israel had synned agaynst the Lord their GOD which broughte them out of the lād of Egipt, frō vnder the hād of Pharao kyng of Egipt, & feared other Gods. And they walked in the ordinaūce of the hethen which the Lord cast out befo re the chyldren of Israel, & in the thynges which the kīges of Israel had made. And D the chyldrē of Israell wrapte them selues in thinges that were not well towarde the Lord theyr God. And they bylt thē hylaul ters in al theyr cytics, bothe in the * towres where they kepte watche and also in thee stronge townes. And they made them Images and groues on euery hye hyll and vnder euery grene tree. And there they sacrificed in the hylaulters, as dyd the hethē whych the Lord caryed away at theyr com myng, and wroughte wicked dedes, to anger the Lord wyth al. And they serued Idolles, whereof the Lord had sayd to thē: ye shal not do so.

And the Lorde testified to Israell & to Juda, by al the prophetes & by all ye sears saying: Turne frō youre wycked wayes & kepe my cōmaundemētes & mine ordinaū ces accordynge to all the lawes whyche I cōmaūded youre fathers, and as I sent to you by my seruauntes the Prophetes.
C Notwythstandinge they wolde not heare, D but hardened theyr neckes, lyke to the nec-kes of theyr fathers that dydde not beleue the Lord theyr God. And they refused his cōmaunces and hys appoyntment that he had made wythe theyr fathers, and the wytnesse whych he had wytnessed to them and folowed vanite and became vayne, ly ke to the hethen that were rounde aboute them, of whych the Lord had charged thē that they shoulde not doo lyke them. But they lefte thee commaundementes of thee Lorde theyr God and made them Imma ges of metall, euen two calues: and made groues and bowed thē selues vnto all the * hoste of heauen, and serued Baal. And they sacrefyced theyr sonnes and theyr daughters in fyre, and vsed wytchecrafte and enchauntementes, and were solde too worcke wyckednesse in thee syghte of thee Lorde, for to angre hym.

Wherfore the Lorde was exceadinge wroth wyth Israel & put them out of hys syght, that there was lefte but the tr[illegible]e of Juda onely, & thereto Juda kepte not the cōmaundementes of the Lorde theyr god but walked in the ordinaunces of Israell D whych they had made. Therfore the Lord cast vp al the sede of Israel and vexed thē and delyuered them into the hādes of spoy lers, vntyl he had cast thē out of hys sight And Israel deuided them selues from the house of Dauid, and made Jeroboā thes sonne of Nabat kyng. Which Jeroboam thrust Israell awaye from the Lorde and made thē synne a greate synne. And so the chyldrē of Israel walcked in all the synne of Jeroboam whych he had set vp, and de parted not therfrom, vntyl the Lorde had putte Israell awaye oute of hys syghte, as he sayde by all hys seruauntes the pro phetes. And so he translated Israel out of theyr land to Assyria, euē vnto thys daye.

And the kinge of Assyria brought frō Babilon and from Cutha, and from Aua and from Hemath and from Sepharuaim, and putt them in the cytties of Samaria in steade of the chyldrē of Israel. And E they possessed Samaria and dwelte in the cytties thereof. But at the beginninge of theyr dwelling, they feared not the Lorde.
Wherfore the Lord sente lyons vpon thē whych slue them. Then men told the king of Assyria, sayinge: The nacions whyche thou hast translated and put in the cytyes of Samaria, knowe not the maner of the God of the land, and therfore he hath sent lyons vpon them, which slaye them, becau se they knowe not the maner of the God of the lande.

Then the kyng of Assyria cōmaūded saying: carye thether one of ye prestes why che ye brought thence, & let him go & dwel ther, & teache them the facion how to serue the God of the contrey. And thē one of the prestes which they had caried thence, wēt & dwelt in Bethel, & taught thē howe they shulde feare the Lorde. Howbeit euerye nacion made theyr owne GODS & putt thē a day of tribulatiō, rebuking & rayling. E uē as whē the chyldrē are ready to be borne & the mothers haue no power to be deliue-red. Oh that the Lord thy god wold heare al the wordes of Rabsakeh whō the kyng of Assiria his master hath sent to rayle on the lyuing God, & to rebuke him with wor des which the Lord thy God hath hearde.

Wherfore lyfte vp thy prayer for the rem naūt that are left. Whē the seruauntes of B king Hezekiah were come to Isaiah: Isaiah sayd to thē. So shal ye say to your ma C ster. Thus sayth the Lord: be not afrayde of the wordes yͭ thou heardest, wherwith the yon ge men of the king of Assyria haue rayled on me. For I wyl send hym a blast that he shal heare tydinges, and so returne to hys owne lande: And I will ouerthrowe hym with the swerd, euē in hys owne lande.

And Rabsakeh wēt backe agayne and foūd the king of Assiria fighting agaynst Lobnah: for he had hearde, how yͭ he was departed frō Lachis. And he heard tydin-ges of Therhakah king of the black Mo res, how that he was come out to fyght a-gaynst him. And ther vpon he departed & sent messengers vnto Hezekiah sayīg, thus saye to Hezekiah king of Juda, let not thy God carie the out of the way, in whō thou so trustest saying: Jerusalē shal not be de liuered into the hād of the king of Assiria C Behold thou hast heard what the kinges of Assiria haue done to al lādes, how they haue vtterly destroyed thē. And how then shuldest thou escape? hath the gods of the hethen delyuered them which myne aunce tries haue destroyed: as Gozan, Haran, Re zeph, & the children of Eden which were in Thelasar? where is the king of Hemath, yͤ king of Arphad, the kinge of the cytie of Sepharuaim, and the kinge of Ana and the kyng of Auah.

Whē Hezekiah had receaued the letter of the hand of the messengers & had red it: he went into the house of the Lord & layde it abroade before the Lord. And Hezekiah prayed before the Lord & sayd: Lord god of Israel which dwellest betwene the Che rubes, thou art god alone ouer al the king domes of the earth, & thou hast made both heauē & earth. Lord, bowe thine eares and heare: Opē Lord thine eyes & se: & heare yͤ wordes of Sennaherib which hath sente to rayle on the lyuing god. But of a truth Lord, the kinges of Assyria haue destroyed naciōs & theyr lādes, & haue sett fyre on theyr Gods. For they were noo Gods, but Ca. the worke of the handes of mā: euē wood and stone. And therfore they destroyed thē.
Now therfore Lorde our God, saue thou D vs out of his hand yͭ al the kingdōs of the earth may know, that thou Lord art God alone. And Isaiah the sonne of Amoz sent to Hezekiah saying: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel, that, that thou hast prayed to me cōcerning Sennaherib king of Assyria, I haue hearde it. Thys is the thing yͭ the lord saith of him: he hath despysed yͤ, O virgin daughter of Sion: he hath sha ked his head at the, yͤ daughter of Jerusa lem, whō hast thou rayled on, & whō hast thou reuyled? Against whō hast thou exalted thy voyce, & hast lyfte vp thine eyes so hye? Euen agaynst the holy of Israell.
By the hād of thy messēgers thou hast rayled on the Lord & sayde: with the multitude of my charettes, I am come vp to the heyght of the mountaynes euen along E by the sydes of Libanon, & haue cut of the hye Cedar trees & yͤ lustie fyrre trees ther-of euen to the wood of Carmel yͭ belōgeth therto. I haue digged & dronke straunge waters, & haue dried vp with the soles of my fete poles enclosed.

But hast thou not heard how I haue or deyned soche a thing a great whyle a goo, & haue prepared it frō yͤ beginning? And now I bring it forth & it shalbe to destroy & to bring strong cyties in to rude heapes of stones. And the enhabiters of the shall be of little power, & faynt herted & cōfoun ded. They shalbe lyke the grasse of yͤ feld & grene erbes, & as the heye on the toppes of the houses which wethereth or it come to any heyght. I wote where thou dwellest F & thy coming out & goyng in know I to, and howe thou settest vp thy brystelles a-gaynste me. And because yͭ thou settest vp thy brystelles agaynst me, & that thy rageinge is come vp to myne eares: therfore I wyll put a rynge in thy noyse & a bytt in thy lyppes, and wyll bringe the backe agayne the same waye thou camest.

And this shalbe a sygne vnto the: eate this yeare of the frutes of the sede that fel out, & the next yere, that wexeth of it selfe.

And the thyrd yere sowe ye ⁊ reape, plant vyneyardes ⁊ eate the frutes therof. For the * daughter of Juda that is escaped ⁊ [illegible] lefte, shall yet agayne take rotinge downe warde ⁊ bare frute upwarde. For oute of G Jerusalē shal go a remnaunt, ⁊ a nombre that shal escape out of mounte Sion: the [illegible] zele of the Lorde of * Hostes shall brynge thys thinge to passe.

Wherfore thus sayth the Lord, of the kyng of Assyria: he shall not come to thys cytie, nor shote arowe into it, nor come before with shyld nor cast any backe against it: but shal goo backe agayne the waye he came, ⁊ shal not come at his citie sayth the Lorde. For J wyll defende thys citie ⁊ saue it, for myne owne sake ⁊ for Dauid my seruauntes sake.

And the selfe same nyght the Angel of the Lord wēt out ⁊ smote in the Hoste of ẏ Assyrians an hundred foure skore ⁊ fyue thousand. And whē they were up early in the mornyng: behold, they were al dead cor ses. And so Sennaherib kyng of Assyria auoyded and departed ⁊ wēt agayne, and dwelte at Niniueh. And as he was in hys deuotiō knelinge in thee house of Nisroch hys God, Adramelech and Saraesar smote hym wyth the swerde. And they escaped into the lande of Ararat, ⁊ Esarhadon his sonne raygned in hys steade.

The. xx. Chapter.

ABoute ẏ tyme Hezekiah was sicke unto the death. And the 3 prophet Jsaiah sonne of Amos came to him and said to hym.
Thus sayth the lord: put thy ne houshold in an order, for thou shalt die and not lyue. And Hezekiah turned his fa ce to the walle ⁊ besought the Lorde saying: Oh lord, remēbre yet how J haue wal ked before the truly ⁊ wyth a perfect hert, and haue done that whiche is good in thy syght, and wepte a great peace.

And Jsaiah was skarce gone out into ẏ middle of the citie, but that the worde of ẏ Lord came to hym saying: turne agayn ⁊ tell Hezekiah thee captayne of my people.
Thus sayth the Lord God of Dauid thy father. J haue hearde thy prayer and sene thy teares. Beholde, J wyl heale the, ⁊ B this day thre dayes thou shalt go up into the house of the Lord. And J wyl lengthe thy dayes yet. xv. yere, ⁊ wyl delyuer both the ⁊ this cytie out of the hāde of the king of Assyria, and wyll defende this cytie for myne owne sake, ⁊ for Dauid my seruaūtes sake. And Jsaiah sayd: bring a lumpe of fygges. And they broughte ⁊ put it on the sore, and he recouered.

Thē sayd Hezekiah to Jsaiah: what is the signe, ẏ the Lorde wyl heale me, ⁊ ẏ J shall go up into the house of the Lord the thyrd daye? And Jsaiah sayde: thys signe shalt thou haue of the Lorde, that the Lor de wil do that he hath spokē: shal the shadow go forward ten degrees, or go backe agayne ten degrees? And Hezekiah sayd: it is a light thing for ẏ shadow to go dow ne. x. degrees. Therfore J wil not ẏ: but let the shadowe goo backeward ten degrees.
And Jsaiah the Prophet called to ẏ Lord [illegible]
* and he brought the shadow ten degrees backwarde by whych it had gone downe, in the dyall of Ahaz.

* The same season Berodach Baladā C the sonne of Baladan kynge of Babilon [illegible] sent letters ⁊ presentes unto Hezekiah, for he hearde howe that Hezekiah was sycke.
And Hezekiah harkened unto them ⁊ shewed them al that was in the spicery house ouse oyntmētes and his armorye ⁊ al that was found in hys treasure: there was no-thinge in hys house or in all hys realme, that he shewed them not.

Thē came Jsaiah ẏ prophet unto king D Hezekiah ⁊ sayd to hym: what saye these men ⁊ from whence come they to the? And Hezekiah sayd: they be come from a farre countreye, euen frō Babilon. And he said: what haue they sene in thy house? And He zekiah sayd: all ẏ is in my house haue they sene: there is nothing among my treasure that J haue not shewed them. And Jsaiah sayd to Hezekiah: heare the word of ẏ Lor de. Beholde the day shal come, that al that is in thyne house ⁊ that thy fathers haue layde vp in store vnto this daye, shalbe ca ried to Babilō, & nothing shalbe left saith the Lorde. And of thy sonne that proceded out of the, which thou begattest, shall ther be caryed awaye, and shal be made chamberlaynes in the palace of the king of Ba bilon. And Hezekiah sayde to Isaiah: wel come be the word of the Lord which thou haste spoken: so that peace and trueth be kepte in my dayes.

The remnaūt of ẏ dedes of Hezekiah & al his power, & howe he made a pole and a conduite & brought the water into the cy-tie, are writtē in the boke of the chronicles of ẏ kinges of Iuda. And Hezekiah layd him to rest with his fathers, & Manasseh his sonne raygned in his steade.

preastes therof. He kepeth passouer. He was kilied in Magedo, and his sonne Jehoaas raigneth in his stead. Whan after he was take, his sonne Jehoakim was made kynge.

And then the kynge sent and geathered vnto hym al the elders of Juda and of Jerusalem. And the kynge wente vp in to the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda and all the enhabitoures of Jerusalem wyth him, & the Preastes and the Prophetes and all the people both smalle and greate. And he red in the eares of them all the wordes of the boke of the couenaunt, whych was found in the house of the Lorde. And the kyng stode by a piller and made a couenaūte before the Lord that they shuld walke after the Lorde, and kepe hys commaundementes and hys wytnesses and hys ordynaunces wyth all theyr hertes and all their soules, and make good the wordes of the sayd appoyntment þ were writtē in the forsaide boke. And al the people consented to the appoyntmente.

And the kyng commaunded Helkiah þ hye preast and the inferioure preastes and the kepers of the dore, to brynge out of the temple of the Lorde, all the vesselles that were made for Baal & for the groue & for all the * hoste of heauen. And he burnt thē without Jerusalem in þ feldes of Cedron & caryed the asshes of them in to Bethell.

* Aboue xvii. c.

And he put downe þ * Camarites which þ kinges of Juda had set to burne offerynges in þ hilaulters in þ cities of Juda roūde about Jerusalem and also thē þ burnt sacrifices vnto Baall to the sunne & to the mone & to the planettes, & to all the hoste of heauen. And he brought out the groue frō the temple of the Lorde without Jerusalē vnto the broke Cedron, and burnt it at the broke Cedrō & stāpte it to poulder, & * cast the dust therof vpō the graues of the people of the countreye. And he brake downe the celles of the malchores that were in the house of the Lorde, where þ wemen woue lytle houses for the groue.

* This dyd he to the detestation of thē þ hadde worshypped thē in theyr lyfe tyme.

And he brought al the prestes oute of þ cities of Juda, and defyled the hillaulters wher the prestes dyd burne sacryfyce, euē frō Gabaa to Bersabe. And he brake downe the hillaulters of the Gates, that were in the enteringe of the gate of Josua þ gouernoure of the cytie, whiche were on þ lefte hande of the gate of the cytye. Neuertheles the prestes of the hillaulters myghte not come at the aulter of the Lord in Jerusalē, saue only thei did eate of þ swete bread amonge their brethren.

And he defiled * Thopheth also, whyche is in þ valey of the childre of Hennom, because no man shulde offer hys sonne or hys daughter in fyre to Moloch: he put downe þ horses that the kinges of Israell had geuē to the sonne at the entring of the house of the Lord, in the chambre of Nathāmelech the chamberlayne whych was of Paruarim, & burnt the charettes of the sonne with fire. And the aulters that were on þ topp of the parloure of Ahaz whych þ kīg of Juda had made, & þ aulters whyche Manasseh had made in the two courtes of the house of the Lorde, the kyng brake downe, & came thence and cast the dust of them into the broke Cedron.

And the hillaulters that were before Jerusalem on the ryght hand of the mounte of Mashith, which Salomō kynge of Israel built to Astharoth the abhomynacyō of the Zidons and to Chamos the abhominacion of the Moabites, and to Milchom the abhomynaciō of the childrē of Ammō, þ kynge defiled: & brake the ymages & cut downe the groues and fylled the places wt the bones of men.

Moreouer the aulter that was at Bethel, the hillaulter made by Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat whych made Israell synne: bothe the aulter and also the hyl he brake downe and burnt the hill and stampte it to powder, and burnte the groue.

And as Josiah turned him selfe, he spied thee graues þ were in the mounte and sent & fett the bones out of the graues & burnt them vp on the aulter & polluted it accordyng to the worde of the Lorde that the man of God had proclaymed, which openly had denoūced the same thynges.

Thē þ kynge sayde: what meaneth yonder graue stone that I se. And the men of the cytye tolde hym, it is the sepulchre of the man of God, whych came from Juda and openly denounced the selfe same thynges that thou hast done to þ aulter of Bethel. And he sayde let hym be: se þ no man moue moue his bones. And so hys bones scaped wyth the boones of a Prophete that came out of Samaria.

And thereto al the houses of the hylaulters of the cyties of Samaria whyche the kynges of Israel had made, to anger with all: Josiah put out of the way & dyd to them in all poyntes as he dyd in Bethel. And he sacrificed al the Priestes of the hilaulters that were there euen vppon the aulters, & burnt mens bones vpon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

E And ŷ kinge cōmaunded all the people saying: * kepe ŷ feast of passeouer vnto ŷ lorde your god, as it is writtē in ŷ boke of this couenaunt. For ther was no passeouer holdē lyke ŷ, frō the dayes of the iudges ŷ iudged Israel, & thorow oute al the dayes of the kinges of Israel & of Juda. And in the .xviii. yere of king Josiah was this passeouer holden to the Lord in Jerusalem.

Deutro. xvi. b.

And thereto workers wt spirites, sothsayers, Images of witchcraft, ydoles & all other abhominaciōs ŷ were spied in ŷ land of Juda & in Jerusalē, Josiah put out of the way, to make good the wordes of the lawe, whiche were written in the boke that Helkiah the priest found in the house of ŷ Lord: like vnto him was ther no kinge before hym, that turned to the Lord wyth all his hert, withall hys soule & al his myghte, according to al the lawe of Moses, nether after hym arose there any soch.

F Notwithstandinge the Lord turned not frō his fearce & greate wrath wherwith he was angrie agaynst Juda vpō al the prouocaciōs that Manasseh prouoked hym. But the Lord sayd: I wyll putt Juda to, out of my syghe, as I haue done Israel, & wyl cast of this citie Jerusalē which I haue chosen, & ŷ house of which I haue said, my name shalbe there.

The rest of the dedes of Josiah & al he dyd are writtē in the boke of the stories of the kinges of Juda.

[illegible] * In hys dayes Pharao Necoh kynge of Egipt went againste the king of Assiria to the riuer of Euphrates. And king Josiah went agaynst him, and was slayne of hym at Magedo when he hadd sene hym. And his seruauntes caried hym dead from Magedo & brought him to Jerusalē and buried hym in hys owne sepulchre. And ŷ people of the land toke Jehoahaz ŷ sōne of Josiah & anoynted hym and made him kynge in hys fathers rowme.

And Jehoahaz was .xxiii. yere olde whē he began to raygne and raygned thre monethes in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name was Hamitall the daughter of Jeremiah of Lobnah. And he dyd that displesed the Lord, in al thinges as his fathers had done.

G And Pharao Necoh putt hym in bondes at Reblah in the lande of Hemath * in the tyme of his raygne in Jerusalē, & putt the land to a tribute of an hūdred talentes of syluer & a talent of golde. And Pharao Necoh made Eliakim the sōne of Josiah kynge in the rowme of Josiah hys father and turned his name to Jehoakim, & toke Jehoahaz awaye whych when he came to Egipte dyed there.

The Ebre. reade, ŷ he shulde not raygne.

And Jehoakim gaue the syluer and the gold to Pharao: how beit he taxed the lād to geue the moneye at the cōmaundement of Pharao & as euery man was sett at, so he requyred the syluer & the goulde of the people of thee lande, to geue Pharao Necoh. Jehoakim was .xxv. yeare olde when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned .xi. yeare in Jerusalem. Hys mother was named Zebdah ther daughter of Phadaiah of Ramah. And he dyd that was euell fauoured in the syghe of the Lord, like in all thinges as dyd hys fathers.

The .xxiiii. Chapter.

In his dayes came Nabuchodonosor king of Babilō, & Jehoakim became his seruaunt thre yere, & thē turned & rebelled agaynst him. And ŷ Lord sent vppon him men of warre out of Caldeye, oute of Siria, out of the Moabites, and frō the chyldren of Ammon, and sent them A them into Juda, to destroy it, accordinge to the sayinge of ẏ lord which he spake by his seruauntes thee prophetes. Only at the byd dinge of the lord happened it so to Juda, to put thē out of his sight, for ẏ synne of Manasseh accordynge to al he dyd: and for ẏ innocēt bloude that he shedde and fylled Jerusalē ẇ innocent bloude, which ẏ Lorde wolde not forgeue.

B The rest of the dedes of Jehoakim and al he dyd, are wrytten in the chronycles of the kynges of Juda. And Jehoakim layde hym to slepe ẇ hys fathers, & Jehoacin his sonne raigned in his steade. But ẏ kinge of Egipt came now no more out of his lande: for the kynge of Babilon had takē from the ryuer of Euphrates, all that pertayned to ẏ kyng of Egipt. Jehoacin was xviii. yere olde when he begāne to raigne, & raygned in Jerusalem thre monethes. His mothers name was Nehustha ẏ daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. And he dyd ẏ dyspleased the eyes of the Lord in al poyntes as his father dyd.

And he caryed out thence al the treasure of the house of the Lorde, and the treasure of the kynges house, and brake al the vessells of golde whyche Salomon king of Israel had made, in the temple of the Lorde, as the Lord had sayd. And he caryed away all Jerusalem, and al the Lordes and all the men of myghte, to the nombre of ten thousande in to captyuytie and all craftes men and Joyners, none remaynyng saue

D the poore people of the land. And he caried awaye Jehoacin to Babilon, & the kinges mother, & the kinges wiues, & his chambrelaynes, & the myghtie of ẏ lande caryed he away frō Jerusalē to Babilon. And al the mē of actiuitie to ẏ nōbre of seuen thousād, & craftesman and Joyners a thousand, all strong & apte for warre, dyd ẏ king of Babilon bring to Babilon to dwell. * And ẏ kyng of Babilō made Mathaniah hys fathers brother, kynge in his steade, & chaunged his name and called him Zedekiah.

Zedekiah was. xxi. yere olde when he begāne to raigne & he raigned a. xi. yere in Jerusalē. His mothers name was Hamital ẏ daughter of Jeremiah of Lobnah. And he did euel in the syght of the lord, in al poyntes like to Jehoakim. For through ẏ wrath of the Lord it so chaunced to Jerusalem & Juda, vntyll he had cast them oute of hys sight. And the sayde Zedekiah rebelled agaynst the kynge of Babilon.

¶ By the rebellyng of Zedekiah is the towne of Jerusalem besaged of Nabuchodonozor. The towne & the temple are bothe burnt. The sonnes of Zedekiah are slayne before his eyes, & after ar hys eyes put out. Juda is brought to Babilon, and after is Jehoacin exalted.

The. xxv. Chapter.

Wherfore in the ninthe yere of hys raygne, the tenthe day of A the tenthe monethe came Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon wythe all hys power to Jerusalem: and pitched agaynste the towne and made engynes agaynste it on euery syde. And the citie continued beseged vnto the. xi. yere of kynge Zedekiah. And the nynthe day of the fourthe monethe of that yere, there was so greate hongre in the cytie, that there was no sustynaunce for the people of the lande.

And therto the citie was broke vp: wherfore all the men of Armes fled by night, by away thorow a gate, betwene two walles harde on the kynges garden: the caldeyes lyenge aboute the cytye.

And ẏ kyng wēt straight towarde the B desert. And ẏ host of the caldeyes folowed after hym, & toke him in the deserte of Jericho all his armie beynge scatered awaye frō him. And whē they had taken him they brought him to Nabuchodonozor ẏ kinge of Babilon to Reblah. where they * treasoned withe him. And they slue the sonnes of Zedekiah before his eies, and put out the eyes of Zedekiah, and fettered hym, and caryed hym to Babilon.

And the seuēthe day of the fifth monethe which was in the nyntenth yere of kynge Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon came Nabusaradan seruaunt of the kynge of Babilon and * chefe Marshal, vnto Jerusalem: & burnte the house of the Lorde

Lorde and the Kynges house and all the houses of Jerusalē, and all greate houses burnt he wᵗ fire. And al the host of the Caldeyes that were wᵗ ÿ chefe Marshal: brake downe ÿ walles of Jerusalē rounde about. And the rest of ÿ people that were lefte in the citie, & them that were fledd to the Kinge of Babilon, and the remnaūt of the C comen people, Nabusaradan ÿ chefe Marshall caryed awaye, & lefte of the poore of the lande to dresse the vynes and to tyl the grounde.

And the pyllers of brasse that were in the house of the Lorde and the botomes, and the brasen see that was in the house of the Lorde the Caldeyes brake, and caryed the brasse of them to Babilon. And the lauers, shouelles, & dressyngeknyues, ladelles, and the mynistring vesselles of brasse, they caryed awaye. And the fyrepannes, &

D basens that were ether of golde or syluer, thē toke the chefe Marshal awaye with the two pillers and the see of brasse and the botomes whyche Salomon had made in the house of the Lorde. The brasse of al these vesselles was wythoute wayghte. The height of the one piller was .xviii. cubites, and the heed theron was brasse and thre cubites long with a wrethe & pomegranetes rounde about vpon the heed, all of brasse. And of the same fasshiō was the second pyller with a wrethe.

E And the chefe Marshal toke Saraiah the chefe preste, and Zophoniah the hyeste preste saue one, & thre kepers of the dore. And out of the citie he toke a certayne chāberlayne that had the ouersyght of the mē of warre, and fyue men that were euer in ÿ kynges presence, whyche were founde in the cytye and Sopher the captayne of the host that taughte the people of the lād to make warre, & thre skore men of the people of the land that were founde in the cytie also. And Nabusaradā the chefe Marshall toke them & brought thē to the king of Babilon to Reblah. And the Kyng of Babilō smote them and slue them at Reblah in the lād of Hemath. And so Juda was caried awaye out of their lande.

F And ouer the people that remayned in the lande of Juda, whyche Nabuchodonosor king of Babilon lefte, he set Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam thee sonne of Saphan.

And when all the captaynes of the men of warre and the men hearde that the Kynge of Babilō had made Godoliah gouernere there came to Godoliah to Mazphah: Ismaell the sonne of Nathaniah and Johanā the sonne of Kareah & Sariah the sōne of Thanehumeth ÿ Netophathite & Jezoniah ÿ sōne of Maachati & their mē. And Godoliah sware to them and to theyr men and sayde to them: feare not ye the seruauntes of the Caldeyes. But dwelle in the lande and serue the Kyng of Babilon and ye shalbe in good condycion.

But it chaūced the seuenth moneth after, that Ismael the sōne of Nathaniah ÿ sonne of Elisama of the kynges bloude came, & ten men with hym and smote Godoliah that he dyed: and so did he the Jewes & the Caldeys ÿ were wᵗ him at Mazphah. G Then vpon al the people bothe smalle and greate and the captaynes of the men of warre arose & wēt to Egipte: for they were afrayed of the Caldeyes.

Notwithstanding yet the .xxxvii. yere after Jehoacin Kyng of Juda was caried awaye, the .xxvii. daye of the twelueth monethe, dyd Euilmerodach Kynge of Babilō lifte vp the heed of Jehoiacin Kyng of Juda out of the presone house, and spake kyndelye to hym and set hys seate aboue the seate of all the Kynges ÿ were withe hym in Babilon, & chaunged hys presō garmētes. And he dyd euer eate breade before him al the dayes of his life. And a contynual porciō was assigned hī of ÿ king, day by daye as longe as he lyued.

The Genealogie of Rubé and Gad & of the halfe trybe of Manasseh

The. v. Chapter.

A The sonnes of Rubē the eldest Gene. xlix. a. sonne of Israel: for he was ÿ Exodi. vi. b. eldest. * But because he defy Numeri. xxvi. a. led his fathers bed, his birthryght was geuē vnto the son nes of Ioseph the sonne of Israel, & so he is not rekened vnto the byrth ryghte. For vnto Iuda which was mightie amōg his brethren, was geuen the principalitie befo re hym. But the byrtherighte was geuen Ioseph. The sonnes then of Ruben the el dest sonne of Israel, were Henoch, Phalu Hezron and Carmi.

The sōnes of Ioel: Samaiah, & a this sonne Gog, & hys sonne Semei, and hys sonne Micah, and thee sonne of hym was Reaiah, and hys sonne was Baal, & Bee-rah was hys sonne. Whyche Beerah Thiglath Phalneser kyng of Assyria ca-ryed awaye: for he was a greate Lorde amonge the Rubenites. But vnto hys brethren in theyr kynredes, when they at reke ned after theyr byrth, were Ieiel & Zacha riah the chefe heades.

And Bala the sonne of Asan the sonne of Sema the sonne of Ioel, dwelte in A-roer and so forthe vnto Nebo and Baal-maon. And eastwarde he enhabited vntyl the wyldernesse, euen vpon the ryuer Eu-B phrates, for theyr cattel was moche in the lande of Galaad.

And in the dayes of Saull they war-red wyth the Hagarites which were ouer-throwen by theyr handes. And they dwelt in theyr tentes thorowe out al the eastland of Galaad.

And the chyldren of Gad dwelte ouer agaynst them in the lande of Basan, euen vnto Selcah. And in Basan Ioel was the chefest and Sapham the nexte, then Iaanai and Saphat. And theyr brethrē in the diell the sonne of Guni the head of an aun cient housholde amonge them. And they dwelte in Galaad and in Basan and her townes: & in all the Suburbes of Sarō, euen vnto the ende of theyr borders.

And they were al rekened by kynredes in the dayes of Iotham kinge of Iuda, & 6 in the dayes of Ieroboam king of Israel The sonnes of Ruben of Gad & of halfe the trybe of Manasseh, euen of fyghtinge men able to beare shylde and swerde and shotte wyth bowe, and taughte to make warre were foure & fourtie thousande seuen hundred & thre skore that went out to battel. And they fought with the Hagarites & with Ietur, Naphis & Nodab. And they were holpe agaynst them, & the Haga rites were delyuered into theyr handes & al that were with the Hagarites. For they cryed to God in thee battel, and he hearde thē, because they trusted to hym. And they toke of theyr cattell fyftie thousande Camelles, and two hundreth and fyftie thousande shepe, and two thousand asses, & of the people an hundreth thousand: for ther fell manye dead because the warre was of God. And they dwelte there in theyr steades vntyll the tyme that they were ca ryed awaye.

And the chyldren of halfe thee trybe of Manasseh dwelt in the land from Basan D vnto Baal Hermō & Sanir & vnto moū te Hermon, & they were manye. And these were the heades of the auncient houshol-des of thē: Epher, Iesi, Eliel, Azriel, Ieremiah, Hodaiah, Iehadiel, men of great po wer, men of name & heades of the auncīet housholdes of them.

But whē they had trāsgressed agaynst thee God of theyr fathers and had gone a whoringe after the Gods of the people of the land, which God destroyed before thē, God stered vp the spirite of Phul king of Assyria and the spryte of Thiglath Phal neser kyng of Assyria, and caryed awaye the Rubenites, the Gadites and the hal-fe trybe of Manasseh, and broughte them

¶ The battel of Saul agaynst the Philistynes: in whych he dyeth and hys sonnes also.

The .x. Chapter.

A And the Philistines fought agaynst Israel. And the men of Israel fled before y^e Philistines & were ouerthrowen & slayne in Mount Gelboe. And y^e Philistines folowed Saul & his sonnes & slue Jehonathan, Abinadab and Melchisua the sonnes of Saull. And the battell went sore against Saul, in so moche that y^e shotters met him, & he was wounded of y^e shotters. Then sayde Saul to his weapon bearer * draw thy swerde & thrust me thorow therwythe, that these vncyrcumcysed come not and do me shame. And his weapon B bearer would not, but feared excedyngly. Wherupon Saul caught a swerde & fel vpon it. And whe his harnesbearer sawe y^e Saul was deed, he fel on a swerde also and dyed.
C And thus Saull and hys thre sonnes and all hys house died together. And when all the men that dwelt in the valeyes, saw how they fled, and that Saull and hys sonnes were deed they forsoke theyr cyties & ranne away, and the philistines came and dwelt in them.
And on the morow whe y^e Philistines came to strype the deed bodies, they founde Saul and hys sonnes ouerthrowen in mount Gelboe. And when they had stript hym they toke hys heed and hys harnesse and sente them in to the lande of the Philistines rounde aboute to shewe tydynges vnto theyr Gods and to the people. And they put hys harnesse in ỹ houses of theyr Gods. But hys skulle they hanged in the house of Dagon.

D And when al they of Jabes in Galaad hearde al that the Philistines had done to Saul, al ỹ mẽ of warre arose & fet awaye the body of Saul, & ỹ bodies of his sõnes and brought them to Jabes & buryed the bones of thẽ vnder an ocke in Jabes, & fasted seuen dayes.

And so Saul dyed for his trespace that he trespased agaynst the Lorde, in that he kepte not the worde of the Lorde, and in that he asked councell of a woman that wrought with a spryte, & asked not of the lorde. And therfore the Lord kylled hym & turned the kyngdome vnto Dauid the sonne of Jesai.

¶ After the deeth of Saul is Dauid annoynted in Hebron. The Jebusites rebel agaynst Dauid, frõ whiche he taketh ỹ towre of Sion. His mighty men are nõbred.

The .xi. Chapter.

Thẽ al Israel gethered thẽ sel
A ii.Reg.v.a ues to Dauid vnto Hebron, & sayde: se we by thy bones & thy flesh. And moreouer in tyme past, euẽ whẽ Saul was king, thou leddest Israel out and in. And the Lord thy God sayde vnto the: ỹ shalt fede my people Israel, & thou shalt be captaine ouer my people Israel. And when al the elders of Israel were come to the king to Hebron, Dauid made a couenaunte wt them there before the Lorde. And they anoynted Dauid kynge ouer Israel accordinge to the woorde of the Lord by the hãde of Samuel.

B And Dauid & al Israel went to Jerusalem whyche is Jebus: for there dwelte the Jebusites thee enhabiters of the land. And ỹ enhabiters of Jebus sayde to Dauid, thou comeste not here. Neuerthelater Dauid wanne the castel of Sion, whych is called ỹ cytye of Dauid. Then sayde Dauid: whosoeuer smyte the Jebusites first, shalbe ỹ principal captayne & a lord. And Joab the sonne of Zaruiah wẽt first vp, & was therefore ỹ chefe captayne. And because Dauid dwelte in the castel, therefore it was called the citie of Dauid. And he built ỹ cytie on euery syde euẽ from Millo rounde aboute. But Joab repared the reste of the cytie. And Dauid prospered & waxed greate, and the Lorde of Hostes was wyth hym.

* These are the principal mẽ of powre ỹ claue to Dauid in his kyngdome wyth al C Israel to make hym kyng vpõ Israel accordyng to the word of the Lord. And this is the nũbre of the mighty men which Dauid had: Jsabaam the sonne of Hachamoni the chefe of .xxx. he lyfte vp his spere agaynst thre hũdred & slue thẽ at one time.

And after hym Eleazar the sõne of Dodo an Ahothite which was one of ỹ thre mighyest. He was with Dauid at Phasdamin where the Philistynes were geathered to battell. And there was there a parsell of ground ful of barley, and the people fled for feare of the philistines. And they stept forth into the myddes of the furlong & saued it and slue the Philistines. And ỹ lord gaue a great victorye.

And the thre of ỹ .xxx. chefe wente to a D rocke to Dauid at the caue Odolam. And the hoste of the Phylystines had pytched in ỹ valey of Raphaim. And Dauid was in an holde. And there was a garison of the Philistines at Bethlehẽ that same tyme. And Dauid longed & sayd: * Oh that one wolde geue me of the water of the wel of Bethlehẽ that is in ỹ gate, for to drincke. And the thre brake thorow the host of the philistines and drew of the water of ỹ well of Bethlehem ỹ was in the gate, & toke it & brought it to Dauid. Neuertheles Dauid woolde not dryncke of it, but offered it to the Lorde, & sayde: God forbyd it me, that I shuld do thys thyng, ỹ I shuld drynck the bloude of these men that haue put their liues in Jeopardye (for with the Jeopardie of their liues they brought it) and therfore he wolde not drinck it. This dyd the thre myghtyest.

And Abisai the brother of Joab was C captayne of the thre, and he lyfte vp hys spere agaynste .iii. hundred and slue them, and had a name amonge the thre. And he was moche more nobler then anye of the thre, and was theyr captayne. But was not lyke to any of the thre in actes.

Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada ÿ sonne of a stronge man ÿ had done great dedes & was of Cabzeel: he slue two strōg lions of Moab, & went downe and slue a Lyon in a pit in time of snow. And he slue an E-gipcian whyche was a man of a syze, euen fyue cubytes longe, and in his hāde had a speare lyke a weuers beame. And the o-F ther went to hym with a waster and plucked the speare out of the Egipcians hād, & slue hym withe his speare. Soche thyn-ges dyd Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, and had a name with the thre mightiest, & was the glorioussest of thyrtye: but attained not vnto the thre. And Dauid made hym of hys secret councell.
And these were the best men of warre of the hoste: Asahel the brother of Joab and Elhanā the sonne of Dodo out of Bethle hem. Samoth the Harodite, Helez ÿ Pha lonite: Ira the sonne of Akes ÿ Thekuite, ri ÿ sōne of Azbai: Joel the brother of Na than: Mibahar the sōne of Agari: Zelec an Ammonite & Naharai a Berothite ÿ bearer of the harnesse of Joab ÿ sōne of Zar uiah: Ira the Jethrite & Gareb a Jethrite Uriah the Hethite: zabad ÿ sonne of Oholai: Adina the sonne of Siza a Rubenite & an heed amonge the Rubenites and. xxx aboute hym: Hanan the sonne of Maacah and Josaphat a Mathanite: Ozeah an As tarothite: Sama and Jaiell the sonnes of Hothan an Aroerite: Jediall the sonne of samri and Joha his brother Thosites: Eliel a Mahumite. And Jeribai and Josoiah the sōnes of Elnaam and Jethmah a Moabite. Eliel and Obed and Jasiell of Masobaiah.

¶ What they were that went with Dauid whē he fledde from Saul.

The. xii. Chapter.

AND these folowenge came to Dauid to ziklag, whyle he yet * kepte hym selfe close for feare of Saull the sonne of Cis: and they were of the mē that socoured the battell, weponed wythe bowes, & coulde handle stones, and wes & bow as well wyth the lefte hand as wythe the ryght, and were of Sauls brethrē, euen of the trybe of Beniamin. The che-fest were Ahiezer and Joas the sonnes of Samaah a Gobaonite, & Jasiel a Pha lite, the sonnes of Azmoth. Beracah and Jehu of Anathoth. And Jsamaiah a Gabaonite as myghty as any of thyrtie and moste myghtye to. And Jeremiah, Jeha ziel, Johanan & Josabad of Gedor. Eleu sai, Jerimoth Baaliah Samariah and Sapharia: Haraphites Elcanah, Jesi-ah, Azrael, Joezer, Josoboā of Karehim.
And Joelah and zabadiah the sonnes of Jeroham of Gedor.

A that is, with hym selfe

And of the Gadites there separated thē selues vnto Dauid whē he kept an holde B in ÿ wyldernes, mē of myght & men apte for warre & could hādle shylde and speare, whose faces were lyke the faces of Lyōs, & they were therto as swyft as the Roes of the mountaynes: Ezer the fyrst, Obdiah the second, Eliab ÿ thyrd, Masmānah the fourthe Jeremiah the fyfte, Ethi the syxt, Eliel the seuenth, Johanā the eyghte, Elsabad ÿ. ix. Jeremiah the tenth, & Macabbanai the. xi. These were of the sonnes of Gad, & were captaynes ouer the men of warre, the small ouer an. C, & the greate ouer a thousand. These are they that went ouer Jordā in the fyrst monethe, when he had fylled ouer al hys bancke. And they put to flyght th[illegible] of the valey both of the eastsyde and also the West.
And ther came of the chyldren of Ben- C iamin & Juda to ÿ holde of Dauid. And Dauid went out to them & answered and sayde to thē: If ye be come peasably vnto me, to helpe me, myne hert shalbe to gether wyth you. But and yf you come to begyle me and to be mine aduersary, seyng there is no wyckednes in mine hādes, the God of oure fathers loke thereon & rebuke it.
And

And the spirite came vpon Amasai a captayne ouer .xxx. and he sayde, thyne are we Dauid, & on thy syde thou sonne of Jesai:
*peace be with the, & peace be with thine hel-Tho.x.i.d pers, for thy God helpeth the. Then Da-uid receauethe them & made thē heedes of companyes of the men of warre.
D And there fell of Manasseh to Dauid whē he went with the Philistines agaynst i.Re.xxix.a Saul to battel, *but holpe them not. For the lordes of the Philistines toke councel and sent him away saying: he wyll fall to his master Saul to the Jeopardye of our heedes. And as he went to Ziklag ther fel to hym of Manasseh: Ednah Jozabad, Jediell, Michael of Jozabad, Elihu and Zalthai, heedes of the thousandes of Manasseh. And they holpe Dauid agaynste those routers. For they were al mighty mē and Captaynes in warre. And there came one or other to Dauid daye by daye to helpe him: vntyll it was a great hoste, lyke the hoste of God.
And this is the nūbre of the heedes prepared to battell, that came to Dauid to Hebron, to turne the kingdō of Saul to hym, accordynge to the mouthe of the Lorde.
The chyldren of Juda that bare shyld & speare were syxe thousande and eyghte hundred trymmed to warre. Of the chyldren of Simeon, men of myghte to warre, E seuē thousande and one hundred. And of the chyldren of Leui were foure thousand and syxe hundred. And Jehoiada was the chefe of thē of Aaron & with him thre thousande and seuen hundred. And Zadock a yoūg mā of great power had hys fathers houshold wyth Captaynes .xxii. And of the childrē of Beniamin the brethren of Saul, were thre thousād. And a great part of thē dyd yet folow the house of Saul.
And of the childrē of Ephraim, were .xx. thousand and eight hūdred, mē of myghte and named men in the housholdes of their fathers. And of the halfe trybe of Manasseh .xviii. thousande which were appoynted by name to go to make Dauid kyng.
F And of the childrē of Isacar which were mē that had vnderstanding in the right time to know what Israel ought to do: The hea-des of thē were two hūdred, and all theyr brethrē at their wil. And of Zabulon that wēt out wyth the hoste and procceded in the a-raye to battell withe all maner of wepons of warre, fyftye thousande that kept in ordre wythe one accorde. And of Nephthali a thousande Captaynes, and wythe them with shylde & speare .xxxvii. thousād. And of Dan prepared to battell, were .xxviii. thousande and .vi. hundred. And of Asser that wēt out wt the host to make battel, four-tye thousand. And of the othersyde Jordā, of the Rubenites, Gaddites & of the halfe trybe of Manasseh wyth all maner of instrumentes of warre an hundred and twē-tye thousande.
All these beynge men of warre able to G ordre the araie, came to Hebron with pure herte, to make Dauid kynge vpon al Israel. And therto al the rest of Israel was of one accorde to make Dauid kynge. And there they were with Dauid thre dayes eatyng & drynckyng: for their brethren prepared for them. Moreouer they that were nie to thē, as Isacar, Zabulō and Nephtha-li brought bread on Asses, Camels, mules & oxen, & meate: floure, figges, reasynges, wyne, oyle, oxen, & shepe aboūdātlye. For there was myrthe in Israel.

¶ The arcke is brought againe frō Kariath Jarim to Jerusalem. Oza dyeth.

The .xiii. Chapter.

AND Dauid counceled with the Captaynes of thousandes & A hūdredes, and with al the lor-des, and sayde vnto all the cōgregacyon of Israell: If it seme you good and also to be of the Lord our God: Let vs take & sende vnto the renaunt of oure brethren thorow out al the lād of Israel, & to the preastes and Leui-tes with thē, in their cytyes and suburbes, & geather thē to geather to vs. And let vs brynge agayne the Arcke of the Lorde to vs: for we regarded it not in the dayes of Saul. And all the congregacyon was cōtent so to do, for the thyng semed good in the eyes of al the people.
And Dauid geathered all Israel toge- B ther frō *Sihor in Egypt vnto Hemath, to bring the arcke of the lord frō Kariath Jarim. And Dauid wēt vp & al Israel to Baalah, & so to Kariath Jarim that is in Juda, to fet thēce the arcke of the God & lord that sitteth on the Cherubes. Where hys name is called on. And they caryed the arck

C of God in a new cart out of yͤ house of Aminadab. And Oza & his brother draue yͤ carte. And Dauid & all Israel played before god with al their myght, with syngin ge, harpes, psalteries, tymbrelles and trõ-pettes. And whẽ they came on yͤ thressyng flowre of Chidon, Oza put forth hys hã-de to holde the Arcke, for yͤ oxen stombled.
And the lord was wroth wͭ Oza & smote hym, because he put hys hãde to the Arck.
And ther he dyed before god. And Dauid D was displeased, because yͤ Lord had rẽt a rẽt in Oza, and called the sayd place * Pe rez Oza vnto this daye. And Dauid was so afrayed of God that day, that he sayde, how shal I brynge the Arck of god whom to me. And so Dauid brought not yͤ Arck home to him to yͤ cytie of Dauid: But tur ned it into the house of Obed Edom a Ge thite. And yͤ Arck of God was with Obed Edom in his house, thre monethes. And yͤ Lord blessed the house of Obed Edõ & al that he had.

Hiram sendeth wodde & workemẽ to Dauid. Da uid begetteth chyldrẽ after he had taken hym wyues he hath .ii. victoryes of the Philistines.

The .xiiii. Chapter.

A After that Hirã kyng of Tire sent messengers to Dauid & tymbre of Cedar trees wyth masõs & Carpenters, to buyl de hym an house. Whereby Dauid perceaued that the Lorde had pre pered hym to be kyng vpõ Israel, in yͤ his kyngdome was lifte vp an hye, because of hys people Israell. And Dauid toke yet moo wyues at Ierusalem & begat mo sõ-nes & daughters. And these are the names of his children which he had borne him at Ierusalem: Samua, Sobab, Nathan, & Salomon: Iebhar, Elisua & Eliphalett, Noga, Nepheg & Iaphiah. Elisama, Ba liada and Eliphelet.
B And whẽ it was knowne among the phi listines that Dauid was anoynted kynge vpon all Israel all the Philistines wente vp to seke Dauid. And Dauid hearde of it & went out agaynst them. And the Philistines came & praunced in the valeye of Raphaim. And Dauid asked god saying: shall I go agaynst the Philistines & wyle yͤ deliuer them in to mine hãdes? And the Lord sayd to hym: go, for I wyll delyuer C the into thyne hand. And when they were come vp to Baall Pharazim, Da-uid bett them ther. And Dauid sayd: god hath deuided myne enemies with mine hã de as a mã wolde deuyde water. And ther fore they called the name of the sayde place Baall Pharazim. And they lefte theyr Gods there, whyche Dauid badde to be burnt with fyre.

Some take the playne, or valey

And the Philistines came agayne & rã ne abroade in the valeye. Then Dauid as D ked God: And God sayde to hym: go not after thẽ, but turne away frõ them, & come vpõ them straight frõ the peretrees. And when thou hearest a sounde go in the top-pes of the peretrees, thẽ go out to battel: for God wyll go out before the to smyte yͤ hoste of the Philistines. And Dauid dyd as God commaũded him. And they smote the hoste of the Philistines al the way frõ Gabaon to Gazer. And yͤ fame of Dauid went out into all landes, and the lord made all nacyons feare hym.

The Leuites bring agayne the Arck of the coue-naunt of the Lord. Dauid daunsing before it is des pysed of hys wyfe Michol, the daughter of Saul.

The .xv. Chapter.

And Dauid made hi houses in yͤ citie of Dauid, & prepa-A red a place for yͤ arck of god, & pytched for it a tente. And then Dauid sayd, yͤ arcke of god ought not to be caried but of the leui-tes. For thẽ hath the lord chosẽ to beare yͤ Arcke of the Lord and to mynystre to him for euer. And therfore Dauid gethered al Israel to Ierusalem, to fetche the arcke of yͤ Lord vnto yͤ place which he had ordeyned for it. And Dauid brought togeather yͤ chyldrẽ of Aaron & the Leuites. Of the sonnes of Cahath: Vriell the chefe, and of hys brethren an hundred and .xx. And of the children of Merari: Asaiah the chefe, & of his brethrẽ .ii. hundred and .xx. And of the sõnes of Gerson Ioel the chefe, & of hys brethren an hundred and thirtie. And of the childrẽ of Elisaphan: Semeiah the chefe & of hys brethren two hundred. And of the sonnes of Hebron Eliel the chefe, & of his brethrẽ .lxxx. And of the sonnes of Oziell, Amminadab the chefe, & of hys brethren an hundred and .xii.
And Dauid called to Zadock and Abi athar yͤ prestes, & to the Leuites Vriel, A- B saiah Ioel, Semeiah, Eliel & Amminadab:
and

& sayde vnto them: ye are y principal heedes of the Leuites, sanctefye therfore youre selues & your brethren and brynge the Arcke of the Lord God of Israel vnto y place y I haue prepared for it. For because ye were not there at the fyrst tyme, the Lorde oure God made a rent among vs, for that we sought hym not as the fassiõ ought to B be. And the preastes and the Leuites sanc-tefied them selues to fett the Arcke of the Lorde God of Israel. And y childrẽ of the Leuites bare y Arcke of God vpon theyr shoulders wyth the staues theron as Moses commaunded accordynge to the worde of the Lorde.

And Dauid spake to the chefe heedes of the Leuites, that they shulde apoynte of their brethren to synge wt instrumentes of musycke psalteries, harpes & cymbales that sounded, and to synge on hye wt Joy-fulnesse. And the Leuites appointed Hemã the sõne of Joell: and of hys brethren, Asaph the sonne of Barachiah. And of the C sõnes of Merari their brethrẽ: Ethã the sõ ne of Cusaiahu. And wt them their brethren of the secõd degree: Zachariah, Ben, Jaa ziel, Semiramoth, Jahiel, Uni, Eliab, Ba naiah, Maasiah, Mathathiah, Eliphelehu, Makaniah, Obed Edõ and Jaiel, por ters. Heman, Asaph and Ethan sange wyth cymbales of brasse to make a sounde. And Zachariah, Oziel, Semiramoth, Jehiell, Uni, Eliab, Maasiah & Banaiah sange wt psalteries on an * Alamoth. And Matha thiah, Eliphelehu, Makeniah, Obed Edõ, Jeiel, & Ozaziah sang wt harpes an eyght aboue to courage wt all. And Conaniah y chefe of the Leuites was master of y song and taught to syng, for he was a mã of vn derstandynge.

* Or, alemoth it is the name of an instrumẽte of musyck.

And Barachiah and Elcanah kept y doore of the Arck. And Sacaniah, Jehosaphat, Nathanael, Amasai, Zachariah, Banaiah and Eliezer Preastes were blowers wyth D trompettes before the Arcke of God. And Obed Edõ and Jahiah were kepers of the dore of the Arcke.

* And Dauid and the elders of Israel & the Captaynes ouer thousãdes wẽt to fett the Arcke of the appoyntement of the lord out of the house of Obed Edõ with glad-nesse. And when God had holpe the Leui-tes that bare the Arcke of the appoyntmen te of the Lorde, they offered. vii. oxen & vii rammes. And Dauid had on hym an albe of bysse, and so had the Leuites that bare y Arck, and so had the syngers, and Conaniah y ruler of the sõg & of y singers. And Dauid had moreouer vpõ him an Ephod of lynen. And all Israel brought the Arcke of the Lordes couenaunt wt showtyng & blowynge of hornes, & wyth trompettes and cymbales that sounded, and with psal teries and harpes.

And as the Arcke of the appoyntmente of the Lord came into the cytie of Dauid: Michol the daughter of Saull loked out at a wyndowe: and when she sawe kynge Dauid daunsyng and playinge, she despy sed him in her hert.

¶ After the Arcke was brought with great solempnytie and melodie, Dauid ordeyneth mynisters, that is to wete, Asaph and his brethren to minister before the Lord. He hym selfe loweth and prayseth the Lorde God of Israel.

The. xvi. Chapter.

When they had brought in the Arcke of God they set it in the A tente that Dauid had pitched for it. And they brought burnte sacrefyce and peaceof feringes before god. And whẽ Dauid had made an ende of offerynges of burntofferinges and of peaceofferynges, he blessed the people with the name of the lorde. And he dealt all Israel bothe man and woman a cracknell of bredde, a pece of flesh and a flacke of soppes.

And he appoynted certen of the Leuites to mynystre before the Lord, and to repete, and to thanke and prayse the Lord god of Israel: euẽ Asaph the chefe, & next to hym zachariah then Jeiell, Semiramoth, Je-hiel, Mathathiah, Eliab, Banaiah, Obed-Edõ, and Jeiel with Psalteries & harpes.
But Asaph wyth soundynge cymbales & Banaiah & Jahasiel preastes with trompettes contynually before the Arck of the couenaunt of God.

And that same tyme Dauid dyd appoin B te chefelye to thanke the Lorde by Asaph & hys brethren. * Thanke the Lord, calle on hys name, make hys Actes knowen amon ge the people.

Synge vnto hym and play vnto hym: and recorde al hys wonderful dedes. Pray se hys holy name, and lett the hertes of them alwaye.

Remembre hys marueiles whyche he dyd, and his wonders, & the iudgementes of his mouth: The seed of Israell are hys seruaũtes: the chyldren of Iacob are hys chosen. He is the Lord our God: & in al kin des are his iudgemẽtes. Thynk on his ap poyntmẽt euer, & on the worde he cõmaun ded to a thousand generaciõs. Of his co uenaũt to Abrahã, & of his othe to Isaac: which he set before Iacob for a decree, & to Israel for an euerlastyng couenaũt, say ing: to ye I wyl gyue the lãd of Canaã, to be ye porciõ of your enheritaũce. Whẽ you were a smalle companye in numbre, euen but a few, and thereto straungers therein.
And they wẽt frõ people to people, & from C one kyngdom to another nacion. He suffe

Tel amonge the hethen of his glorye: & amõg al nacyons of his wõderful dedes.
For great is the Lord and to be praised excedingly: & terrible is he aboue al gods.
D For al the gods of the hethẽ are Idoles:
But the Lorde made heauen.
Prayse & honoure are in hys presence: strength and gladnes are in his place.
Ascribe to ye lord ye kinredes of people, Ascribe to the lord Glorye and strength.
Geue honoure vnto the Lordes name:

& soundyng symbales, & instrumentes of the melodye of God. And ye sonnes of Idu thũ were porters. And then al ye people de parted, euery mã to his house: and Dauid returned to salute hys houshold.

¶ Dauid is forbydde to bylde an house vnto ye Lor de, because of the bloudshedinge that he had shed.
Christ is promysed vnder the fygure of Salomon.

The .xvii. Chapter.

AND as Dauid dwelte in hys house he said to Nathã ye pro phete: loo, I dwel in an hou A se of Cedar tree: and the arck ii. reg. vii. a of the Lordes couenaũt dwel lyth vnder curtaynes. And Nathã said to Dauid: do all that is in thyne herte, for God is wyth the.
But the same nyght ye worde of God came to Nathã saying: go and tel Dauid my seruaunt, thus sayth the Lord, ye shalt not buylde me an house to dwel in. For I haue dwelt in no house sẽce I brought oute ye chyldren of Israell vnto this daye: But haue gone frõ tent to tẽt & frõ one ta bernacle to a nother. Nether in anye place wheresoeuer I haue walked thorow out al Israel, spake I euer one worde to any of the iudges of Israel which I cõmaũded to fede my people saying: why byld ye me not an house of cedar tree? Now therfore thus saye vnto my seruaũt Dauid: thus sayth the Lord of hostes I toke the oute B of the pasture frõ after shepe, yt thou shuldest be captayne ouer my people Israell.

And I haue ben with the in al thou tokest in hand, & haue weded out al thyne enemy-es out of thy syght, & haue made ye a name lyke the name of ye greatest mẽ of the erth.
And I wyl ordayne a place for my people Israel & will make it fast, & they shal dwel vnder it & shal moue nomore. Nether shal the chyldrẽ of wickednesse vexe them any more as at the beginning, and sence the tyme I commaunded iudges to be ouer my people Israel, & wyl brynge vnder al thy-ne enemyes (for I tolde the that the Lorde wolde buylde the an house.) But whẽ thy dayes be expired, yt thou C must go after thy fathers, I will set vp thi sede after the, which shalbe of thy sonnes & wyl settle his kingdõ. He shal buyld me an house, & I wyll stablyshe hys seate for euer. I wylbe hys father & he shall be my sonne, & I wyll not put my mercye awaye frõ him as I dyd frõ him that was before the. But I wyll sett hym in myne house & in my kyngdom for euer, & hys seate shal-be sure for euer.
Whẽ Nathã had told Dauid accordig to al these wordes, & to al this vision, king Dauid wẽt & sate him before ye Lord and sayd: what am I O Lord God & what is myne houshold, yt thou hast promoted me thus ferre. And yet this semed lytle in thy-ne eyes O God. But yt thou shuldest speake of thy Seruauntes house for a greate whyle to come: & hast loked vpõ me as vp-on a mã of hye degree O lord god. What cã Dauid desyre more of the, wherin thou shuldest make thy seruãt more glorious?
Thou knowest thy seruaũt: And lord for thy seruaunt sake, euẽ according to thyne owne hert thou hast done al this magnificẽce, to shew al bounteousnesse Lord, there is none like the, nor any God saue thou, according to al that we haue heard with our D eares. Moreouer what nacyon on the erth is lyke thy people Israel, which God wẽt and redemed to be hys owne people, & too make the a name of excellentie & terriblenesse, wyth castynge out nacyons from before thy people, for euer, and thou Lorde art become theyr God.
And now Lord the thing yt hast spoken cõcerninge thy seruaunt and hys house be true for euer, and do as thou haste sayde.
And thy name contynue & waxe great for euer, that it be sayde: the Lord of Hostes, the god of Israel is God in Israel, and ye house of Dauid thy seruaunt be stable before the. For thou Lord hast told thy seruaũt, that thou wilt buyld hym an house.
And therfore thy seruaũt hath foũd in his hert to praye before the. And now lorde yt art the verye God, and hast promised this goodnesse vnto thy seruaũte. Nowe therfore go to and blesse ye house of thy seruaũ-te, that it maye contynue before the for e-uer. For what yt blessest O Lorde that is blessed for euer.

C The battelles of Dauid agaynst ye Philistines

The .xviii. Chapter.

And after yt Dauid bet ye Philistines & subdewed them, & I toke Geth & the townes yt lõged therto, out of ye hãdes of ye Philistines. And he bet the Moabites, and ye Moabites became Da-uids seruauntes and payde hym trybute.
And Dauid bet Hadadezer kynge of Zo-bah vnto Hemath, as he wẽt to brynge his dominion vnto the riuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke frõ hym a thousãd charettes & seuen thousand horsemen & twẽtie thousande foremen and brake all ye charettes, saue that he reserued of them an hundred.
Thẽ came the Siriẽs of Damasco to helpe Hadadezer king of Zobah. And Dauid S slue of the Siriens .xxii. thousãd, and put garisõs in Siria Damasco: And the Si-riẽs became Dauids seruaũtes & brought hym trybute. For the Lorde helpe Da-uid in all that he went to.
And Dauid toke ye shyldes of gould yt were on the seruauntes of Hadadezer and brought thẽ to Ierusalẽ. And frõ Thebahath & Chũ, cyties of Hadadezer, brought Dauid exceadinge moch brasse. Wher wt Salomon made the brasen see and the pillers and the vessels of brasse.
And whẽ Thou king of Hemath, hear- E de how Dauid had bete al the host of Hadadezer kynge of Zobah, he sente Hadurã hys sonne to king Dauid, to salute hym and to blesse him, because he had foughte wt Hadadezer & beatẽ him (for Thou had warre wt Hadadadezer) and sent al maner of Iewelles of goulde, syluer & brasse wt hym.

hym. And kinge Dauid dedicated thé also vnto the Lord w the syluer & goulde ỹ he brought frō al naciōs, frō the Edomites, frō the Moabites, frō the chyldré of Ammō, frō the philistines, & frō the Amalecht D tes. And Abisai ỹ sonne of Zaruiah slue of the Edomites in the salt valey. xviii. thou sand, & put Soudiares in Edō, & al Edō became Dauids seruaūtes: for the Lorde kept Dauid in al that he toke in hād. And Dauid raigned ouer al Israel & did right & equite vnto al his people. And Joab the sonne of Zaruiah was ouer the host, & Je hosaphat thee sonne of Ahilud recorder, & Zadock the sonne of Ahitob & Abimelech the sonne of Abiathar were the priestes, & Susa was scribe, & Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada was ouer thee Cerethites & the Phelethites, and the eldest sonnes of Da-uid wayted at the kynges hande.

Hanon kyng of the sonnes of Ammō doth great iniurye to the seruauntes of Dauid.

The. xix. Chapter.

After this it chaūced that Na-A has king of ỹ chyldré of Am-ii. Reg. x. mon dyed, & hys sonne made kyng in his steade, Thé sayd Dauid, I wyl shew kindnes vnto Hanon the sonne of Nahas, because his father dealt kyndly with me: And ther vpō Dauid sente messengers to comforte him ouer the death of his father. And whé the seruauntes of Dauid were come into the land of the chyldren of Ammon to Ha non to comfort him, the Lordes of the chil dré of Ammon sayde to Hanon: thynkest thou that Dauid doth honoure thy father in thy sight, that he hath sent cōforters vn to thee? Naye, but it is to searche and ouer throw & to spye out the land, that hys seruauntes be come vnto the.
Wherupō Hanō toke Dauids seruaūtes B & shaued thé, & cutte of theyr cootes harde by theyr bottockes & sente thé awaye. And ther wét ỹ tolde Dauid howe the mé were serued. And the king sente to mete thé (for the men were exceadinglye a shamed) and sayd: tarye at Jericho until your beardes be growen, and then returne.
And when the chyldré of Ammō sawe ỹ they stāke in the nose of Dauid, Hanon, & the chyldré of Ammō sent a thousand ta-lentes of syluer to hyre thé charettes and horsemé out of Mesopotamia & out Sy- Ebre. aram Naharim ria Maacah and out of Zobah. And they hyred. xxxii. thousande charettes, & the kin ge of Maacah & his people, which came & pytched before Midba. And the chyldren of Ammon geathered thé selues together frō their cyties & went out to battell. And C as sone as Dauid hearde of it, he sent Joab wyth al the hoste of strong men. And ỹ chyldré of Ammō came out & putte thé in araye to battel before the gate of the cytie.
And the kynges that were come kepte thé by them selues in the felde.
When Joab saw that the front of the battel was before him & after, he chose out of al the youth of Israel & put thé in aray agaynst the Siriās. And the rest of ỹ peo ple he delyuered vnto Abisai hys brother, that they shuld put them selues in aray against the chyldré of Ammon & sayd: Yf ỹ Sirians be to strong for me, succour me, and yf the chyldren of Ammon be to good for the, I wyl helpe the. Plucke vp thyne herte & lett vs playe the men for our peoples sake and for the cyties of our God, & the Lorde do what semeth hym beste. And Joab and the people that were wyth hym drue nye to the Syrians, to fyghte, & they fled before hym. And when the chyldren D of Ammō saw that the Siriens were fled, they ranne awaye lyke wyse frome Abisai his brother & gat them into the cytie. And Joab came to Jerusalem.
And when the Syriens sawe that they were put to the worse of Israell, they sent messengers and fet out the Siriens that are beyonde the ryuer wyth Sophach the Captayne of thee hoste of Hadadezer before them. Whych when it was tolde Da uid, he geathered al Israell, and wét ouer Jordan & went & set vpon them. And Da uid put him selfe in araye agaynst the Sy riens, and they fought wyth hym. But the Siriens fledde before Israel, and Dauid destroyed of the Syriens. vii. thousande charettes, and slue fourtie thousand fotemen, and kylled Sophach the Captayne of the hooste. And when thee Seruaūtes of Hadadezer saw that they were putte to the worse of Israel, they made peace with Dauid and serued hym. Neyther woulde the Syryans helpe thee chyldren of Ammon any more.

¶ The thre most victoriouse battels of Dauid.

The. xx. Chapter.

A ii. Reg. xi. c AND the yere folowing about a talẽt of gould, & ther were precious stones in it, & it was set on dauids head. And he brought out also the spoyle of the cytye which was exceding moche. And he brou-ghte out the people that were in it & rained thẽ with sawes & harowes of yron & with brakes, & so dealt Dauid with al yͤ cytyes C of the childrẽ of Ammõ. And then Dauid and al the people came agayne to Jerusaof Haraphah at Geth and were ouerthro-wen by thee hande of Dauid and of hys seruauntes.

¶ The people are punished with pestilence, because Dauid caused thẽ to be nombred: so that thar dyed lxx. thousand men.

The. xxi. Chapter.

A AND Satan stode vp against Israell, & persuaded Dauid to numbre Israell. And Da-uid sayd to Joab & the rulers of the people, go ye & numbre Israell frõ Bersabe to Dan, and brynge it to me that I maye knowe thee numbre of them. And Joab answered: the Lorde make thy people an hundred tymes so many mo as they be be. But my Lord kynge are they not al my Lordes seruauntes? why then doth my Lorde requyre this thynge? why shulde my Lorde be a cause of trespa-ce to Israell?

Neuerthelater the kinges wordes preuayled agaynst Joab. And Joab toke his way & went thorowoute al Israel, & came to Jerusalẽ & gaue the nũbre of the count of the people vnto Dauid. And al Israel were in nũbre a thousand thousande & an hũdred thousand men that drue swerde: & Juda was. cccc. lxx. thousand men yͤ drue swerde. But the Leuites & Ben Jamin he coũted not amõg thẽ. For the kinges dede semed abhominable to Joab. And the Lord was displeased wyth thys thinge, & smote Israel. Then sayd Dauid to God: I haue synned excedingly in doyng this thing Neuerthelesse yet do away the wickednes of thy seruaunte, for I haue done aboue measure foolyshlye.

And yͤ Lord spake vnto Gad Dauids sear of visyõs saying: go & tel Dauid say- B ing. Thus sayth the Lord: I geue the the choyse of thre thinges: chose the one of thẽ that I may do vnto the. And Gad came to Dauid & sayd vnto him: Thus sayth the Lord. Chose the ether thre yeres famishe-ment, or thre monethes to be consumed of thyne aduersaries, yͤ swerde of thine enemies ouertaking the: or else the swerde of the Lord thre dayes & pestilẽce in the land, the Angel of the Lord destroyng thorowout all the costes of Israel. And nowe aduyse thy selfe what word I shal bring agayne to him that sent me. And Dauid sayde to Gad, I am in an exceding straite. But let me fal into the hãdes of the Lord, for passing great is his mercy, & let me not fal into the handes of men.

And the Lord sent pestilẽce vpõ all Israel, so yͤ ther were ouerthrowen of Israel lxx. thousand mẽ. And god sent the Angel to Jerusalẽ to destroye it. And as he was about to destroy, the Lord beheld and had cõpassion on the wretchednesse, and sayde to the Angel that destroyed, it is ynough, nowe cease thyne hãd. And the angel of the Lord stode by the threshing floure of Or- C nan the Jebusite, And Dauid lyft vp his eyes & sawe the Angel of the Lord stãd be-twene the erth & heauẽ with a drawẽ swerde in his hand stretched oute towarde Jerusalem. Then fell Dauid and the elders of Israel clothed in sacke vpõ theyr faces And Dauid sayde vnto God: Is it not I that cõmaunded to nũber the people? And I am he that haue synned & done euell in dede. But what haue these shepe done? let thyne hande therfore O Lorde God, be on me and on my fathers house, & not on thy people to destroye them.

And the angel cõmaunded Gad to say to Dauid, that Dauid shuld go & rere vp an aulter vnto the Lorde, in the thresshinge floure of Ornan thee Iebusite. And Da-uid went at the sayinge of Gad which spa ke in the name of the Lorde. And Ornan turned about and sawe the Angel, and his foure sonnes wyth hym, & hyd thẽ selues: for Ornan was threshing whete. And Da uid came to Ornan. And whẽ Ornan loked & saw Dauid, he wẽt out of the thresshing floure & bowed hym selfe to Dauid with his face to the grounde.
And Dauid sayde to Ornan: geue me the place of thee threshinge flowre, that I may buyld an aulter therin vnto the Lord Let me haue it for as moche moneye as it is worthe, that the plage may cease frõ the D people. And Ornan sayde to Dauid: take it to the, and let my Lord kyng do that semeth good in his eyes. Se, I geue the oxen for a burntsacrifice, & the threshing slea des for wood, & wheate for meate offring: I geue it all. But kynge Dauid sayde to Ornã: not so, but I wil bye it for as moch money as it is worth. I wyl not take that whyche is thyne, for thee Lorde, and offer burntoffringes wythout coste.
And so Dauid gaue to Ornan for the place sicles of goulde. vi. C. by wayghte.
And Dauid buylt ther an aulter vnto the Lord & offred burntoffringes & peaceoffringes & called vnto the Lord & he hear-de him frõ heauẽ in fyre vpõ the aultar of burntoffringe. And the Lord cõmaunded the Angel to put vp his swerde agayne in to the shethe of it. At that tyme whẽ Dauid saw, y the Lord had heard him in the threshing flowre of Ornan the Iebusite: he vsed to offer ther. For y tabernacle of y Lor de which Moses made in the wildernesse, & the aulter of burntoffring were at y cea son in the hyl at Gabaõ. And Dauid coul de not go before it to seke God, because he was aferde of the swerde of the Angell of the Lord. And Dauid sayd: this is y house of the Lord God, & this is the burntof fringe aulter for Israel.

¶ Dauid wylleth hys sonne Salomon to bylde the temple of the Lord which thynge he hym selfe was forbidden to do.

The .xxii. Chapter.

AND Dauid cõmaũded to gea ther the straũgers y were in y A land of Israell, & sett hewers to hew stone, to buyld the hou se of God. And Dauid prepared plentie of yron for nayles to the dores of the gates & to ioyne wyth al, & abou dance of brasse without wayghte, & of Cedar trees without nũbre. For the Zidons and they of Tire broughte moche Cedar wood to Dauid. For Dauid thus thought Salomon my sonne is younge & tender, B and the house that is to be buylte for the Lorde, muste exceade in greatnesse, that it maye be spoken of and praysed in all landes. I wyll therfore make ordinaunce for it. And so Dauid prepared aboundaunce before hys death.
And he called Salomõ his sõne & charged him to buyld an house for y Lord god of Israel: And Dauid sayd to Salomõ:
* my sonne, I had in myne hert to buylde [illegible] an house vnto y name of the lord my god.
But the word of the Lord came to me say inge: thou hast shed moche bloude, & haste made many battels. Thou shalt not bylde an house for my name, for thou haste she-moch bloud to the erth in my sight. Behol de a sõne shalbe borne the which shall be a mã of rest, for I wyl geue him reste frõ al hys enemyes round about. And his name shalbe * Salomõ: for I wil sende rest and Salomõ is as moch to say by interpretaciõ as peaceable peace vpõ Israel in his dayes. He shal byl de an house for my name, & he shall be my sonne, & I wyl be his father, & wyl stablish the seat of his kingdõ vpon Israell for e- C uer. Now my sonne, the Lord be with the, y thou mayste prosper & buylde the house of the Lord thy God, as he hath sayd of y And the Lord geue the wisdõ & vnderstã-ding, & make y gouernour of Israell, & to kepe the law of the Lord thy god. For thẽ thou shalt prosper: If y shalt be diligẽt to do the ordinaũces & lawes whych the lord charged Moses with, to deliuer to Israel.
Plucke vp thyne hert & be stronge, dread not nor be discouraged. Beholde in myne aduersite I haue prepared for thee house of the Lord an hũdred thousand talentes of gould & a thousand thousãd talẽtes of syluer, & as for brasse & yrõ it cãnot be nũbred, it is so moche. And I haue prepared timber & stone, & þ shalt prouide more therto. Moreouer þ hast workmen ynough &

D masõs & carpẽters to worke in stone & timber, & al maner of wise mẽ for whatsoeuer worke it be. And of gould, syluer, brasse & yron there is no number. Up therfore & set vpõ it, & the Lorde shalbe with the.

And Dauid cõmaũded al the Lordes of Israel, to helpe Salomõ his sõne saying: Is not þ Lord your god with you? & hath he not geuẽ you reste on euery syde? for he hath geuẽ the enhabitours of the lãd into myne hand, and the land is subdued before the Lord & before his people. Now therfore set your hertes & youre soules, to seke the Lord your god. And vp & buylde ye þ tẽple of the Lord God, to brynge the arcke of the couenaunt of the Lorde, & the holye vesselles of God into thee house so buylte for the name of the Lorde.

¶ Dauid beyng olde, ordeyneth Salomõ kynge. He causeth the Leuites to be nũbred, and assigned them to theyr offyces.

The .xxiii. Chapter.

A iii. Reg. i. c And whẽ Dauid was olde & strykẽ in yeres, he made Salomõ his sonne kyng ouer Israell. And thẽ he gathered together all þ lordes of Israell with the Prestes & the Leuites. And þ Leuites were nũbred frõ .xxx. yere & aboue, & the tale of them in men polle by polle was .xxxviii. thousand. Of whiche .xxiiii. thousand were set to further the worke of the house of the Lord. And .vi. thousand were officers & Iudges. Foure thousand were porters & foure thousand prayred the lord with such instrumẽtes as Dauid had made to prayse wyth all.

And Dauid put an order amõg the children of Leui: Gerson, Cahath & Merari: Of the Gersonites was Laadã & Semei. The sonnes of Laadã: þ chefe was Iehiel
B & the Zethã and Ioel, thre. The sonnes of Semei, Salomith, Haziel, and Harã, thre These were the auncient heades of Laadã And the sonnes of Semei were also Iahath, Zinah, Iaus & Bariah: these foure were the sonnes of Semei. And Iahath was the chefe, Zinah the seconde: But Iaus and Bariah had not many sonnes: and therfore they were rekened for one auncient housholde.

The sonnes of Cahath: Amram, Izahar, Hebrõ & Uziel, foure. * The sõnes of Amram: Aaron & Moses. And Aarõ was appoynted to cõsecrate in the place moost holy, with hys sonnes for euer: & to burne the offringes before the Lord, and to minister, & to blesse in hys name for euer. And as for Moses the man of God, hys chyldren were named wyth thee trybe of Leui. The sonnes of Moses: Gerson & Eliezer. And of the sõnes of Gerson: Sabael was the chefe. The sonnes of Eliezer: Rohabiah the chefe. And Eliezer had no nother sõnes: But the sõnes of Rohabiah were very manye. And of the sonnes of Izahar: Salomi, the chefe. The sonnes of Hebron C Ieriahu the fyrst, Amariah the second, Iahaziel the thyrde & Iecmaam the fourthe. The sonnes of Uziel: Micah the first and Iesiah the seconde. The sonnes of Merari: Mahali & Musi, the sonnes of Mahali: Eleazar & Cis. And Eleazer dyed & had no sonnes, but daughters only, which theyr brethrẽ the sonnes of Cis toke. The sonnes of Musi: Mahali, Eder, & Ierimuth, thre. These are the childrẽ of Leui in the housholdes of their fathers the auncient heades, vewed & nũbred by name & polle by polle frõ .xx. yere & aboue, to worke in the seruice of the house of the Lorde. For Dauid sayd: the Lord god of Israel hath geuen reste vnto his people, and they shal dwell in Ierusalem for euer.

Moreouer the Leuites shuld nowe no more beare the tabernacle & al the vessels þ pertayned to the seruice therof. But at þ D last cõmaũdemẽte of Dauid, the Leuites were numbred frõ .xx. yeare & aboue, & to wayte at the handes of the sonnes of Aaron in the seruice of the house of the Lord and to haue the ouersight of the courtes & of the store houses, & of the purifying of al holy thinges, and of the worke of the thinges that serued for thee house of God, as the shewe bread, the fyne floure, the meate offringes, the Wafers of swete bread, and of the thinges baken in the fryinge panne or broyled on the grydyron, and on al maner measures and sise, and to wayte euery euery mornynge to thanke and prayse the Lorde, and lykewyse at euen. And to way te on euery offeryng of burntesacryfyces vnto the Lord, the Sabbothes and fyrste dayes of the monethes, and other festfull dayes by numbre and custome, was theyr offyce euer before ẏ Lorde. And that they shuld waite on the tabernacle of wytnesse & on the holy place, & on the sonnes of Aaron their brethren, in the seruice of ẏ house of the Lorde.

The Notes.

ge Dauid. And Jehonathã Dauids brothers sonne, a mã of coũcel, a mã yt taught wisdom, & a wryter he & Jehiel the sõne of Hachamoni waited on the kinges sonnes.
And Ahitophel was of the kinges coũcel.
And Husai ye Arachite was ye kinges cõpa niõ. And next to Ahitophel was Jehoiada the sonne of Banaiah, & Abiathar. And ye captaine of the kinges warre was Joab.

¶ Because Dauid was forbidden to build the tẽple, he exhorteth Salomon & the people to performe it.

The .xxviii. Chapter.

And Dauid gathered to ge- A ther al the lordes of Israel: ye Lordes of the tribes, the Lor des of ye companies that my-nistred to the king by course, the lordes ouer the thousandes & ouer the hũdredes, & the lordes ouer al the goodes and catell of the kinge and of his sonnes, wt the chamberlaynes warryoures and al actiue men vnto Jerusalẽ. And kyng Da uid stode vpon his fete and sayde.

Heare me my brethren & my people: I had in myne hert to buyld an house of rest for the Arck of the couenaũt of the lord, & a fotestole for oure God, and had made redye to buylde. But God sayde to me: yu shalt not buylde an house for my name, be cause thou art a mã of warre & hast shed bloude. Moreouer the lord god of Israel chose me of al the house of my father, to be kyng ouer Israel for euer, for he chose Ju B da to be a captaine: & in ye house of Juda ye house of my father, & of the sonnes of my father he had a lust to me, to make me kin ge ouer al Israel. And of al my sõnes (for the Lord hath geuen me many sonnes) he hath chosen Salomon my sonne, to syt in the seate of the kyngdome of the lorde ouer Israel. And he said vnto me: Salomõ thy sonne, he shal build my house and my courtes, * for I haue chosen him to be my i. Paral. sonne, & I wilbe his father, & wil stablysh his kigdom for euer, If he wil harde him selfe to do my cõmaundementes, and my lawes, as it goeth thys daye.

And now I say vnto you before al Isra el the cõgregacion of ye lord, & in the audience of our god: kepe & seke for al ye cõmã dementes of the lord youre God, yt ye maye enioye a good lãd & enherete youre childrẽ after you for euer. And yu Salomon my sonne: know God thy father & serue hym Psal. wt a pure hert and lust of soule. * For the 6 lord seecheth al hertes & vnderstandeth al the Imagynacyons of thoughtes. If yu C shalt seke him, he wilbe founde of the. But & yf yu forsake hym, he wyll cast the of for euer. Take hede now, for the Lorde hath chose the, to build an house of thy Sãctuarye. Be stronge and do it.

And David gave Salomon his sōne ye paterne of the porch & of ye houses ye lōged therto, and of the store houses, vpper chābres, ynner parlours & of the house of ye mercieseate: & the example of all that was in his mind, both of the courtes of ye house of ye Lord & of the treasure houses round about, for ye treasures of ye house of God & for the treasure of the dedycate gyftes, & of the companyes of the preastes & Le-uites that wayted by course, & of al worke mā shype, that shuld serue for the house of the lord & for al vessels that shulde serue in the house of ye lord. And appointed him what wayghte of goulde shulde serue for thynges of gould thorow out all vessels for what soeuer vse it serued: and what wayght of sylver shulde suffice for al ma ner of vessels of sylver, for whatsoeuer purpose they serued.

And the wayghte of the goulden candel stickes and of their lampes of goulde the wayghte for euery candelsticke & for their lāpes. And for the candelstickes of sylver by wayght, bothe for the cādelstyck & also for her lampes accordinge to the offyce of euery cādelstick. And ye wayght of gould D for ye tables of shewbreede, table by table: & lykewyse sylver for the tables of sylver.
And for fleshehokes, basens & drynckyng pottes of pure goulde. And for cuppes of gould by waight, cuppe by cupp. And for cuppes of siluer by waight, cupp by cupp:
And for the aulter of incēse of tried gould by waight. And the symilitude of the seat of the Cherubes that stretched ouer theyr wynges and couered the arcke of the coue naunt of the Lorde. Al was geuen me by wrytyng of the hande of the Lord, whych made me vnderstād al the workmāshipp of the paterne.

E And David sayde to Salomō his son ne: harde thy selfe and be strōg and do it, feare not nor let thyne hert dyscourage ye.
For the Lord God my God is wythe the,
and shal not leaue the nor forsake the, vn tyll thou hast fynysshed al the worke that must serue for the house of the Lord. Be holde the prestes and Leuites deuyded in thre thousande bathes.

And he ma de ten lauers: & put fyue on the right hand & fyue on the left, to washe withal. And in thē they thrust the fleshe of the burntofferinges. But the see was for the Priestes to washe in. And he made ten candelstickes of goulde in theyr facyōs, & put them in the temple: fyue on the ryghte hand & fyue on he lefte. And he made also ten tables & put them in the temple: fiue on the right syde and fyue on the left. And C he made an hūdred ba sens of goulde. And he made the courte of the priestes, and the great courte & dores to it: & ouerlayde thee dores of them with brasse. And he sett the see in the ryght syde of yͤ East ende, towar de the Southe. And Hiram made pottes, shouelles and basens.

And Hiram finisshed the worke he made for king Salomō vnto the tēple of God: The two pillers with theyr scalpes of the two heades yͭ were on the toppes of yͤ pyl-lers: & the two wrethes to couer yͤ two scal pes of the heades yͭ were on the toppes of the pyllere: & foure hundred pomegranates for the two wrethes, two rowes of pomegranates for euery wrethe, to couer the two scalpes of the heades that were on the pyllers. And he made bottomes, & lauers vpon the bottomes: & the see withe twelue D oxē vnder it. And therto pottes, shouelles fleshe hokes, & al theyr vessels dyd Hiram Abi make for kyng Salomō for the hou se of the lord of bright brasse. In the play ne of Jordā dyd the kyng cast them, in the thicke erth, betwene Socoth & Zaredatha And made of al these vesselles so mightye great aboūdāce, that the weyght of brasse could not be rekened.

And Salomō made al the vessels that pertayned to thee house of God: the goulden aultar & the tables with the shewbred vpon thē, the candelstickes with theyr lam pes to burne after yͤ maner before the que er, and that of pure gould, and the floures and the lampes, & the snoffers were gould and that perfect gould: & the dressing kny ues, basens, spoones and censers of pure goulde. And the inner dores of the place moost holy, and the dores of the temple to, were gould. And so was al the worck that Salomon made for the house of the Lorde fynished.

And whē the worke yͭ Salomon made in the house of the lord was fynesshed: thē Salomō brought in the giftes dedicat by Dauid his father, the syluer & the goulde and all the Jewelles, & put them amonge the treasure of the house of God.

¶ After the Arke, the other houses & the arke were put in the temple, the glorye of the Lord fylled the temple.

The .v. Chapter.

THen Salomō gathered the el- A dren of Israel, vnto Jerusalē: to bring the arke of the couenaunte of the Lord out of the cytie of Dauid whiche is in the tabernacle. And kynge Salomon and all thee congregation of Israell that were assembled vnto him before the arcke offered shepe and oxen, so many that they coulde not be tolde or numbred for multi-

And the Priestes brought the arke of yͤ appoyntmēt of the Lord vnto his place in the quere of the tēple & place most holy: e-uē vnder the winges of yͤ Cherubes, that the Cherubes stretched oute theyr winges ouer the place of the arke & couered yͤ arke and her staues aboue on hye. And the sta-made good his sayinge ye he hath spoken,

For I arose in the rowme of Dauid my Lord promised, & haue buylt an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. And therin I haue put the arcke wherin the co=

¶ The fyre cõsumeth the sacrifyce. The Lorde ap-

The .vii. Chapter.

AND when Salomon had ma de an ende of prayenge, there A came downe fyre from heauẽ and consumed the burntoffe ringe and the sacrifices. And the glorye of the Lord fylled ye house: that the priestes coulde not goo in to the house of the Lorde, because the glorye of the Lorde hadde fulfylled thee house of thee Lorde. And al the chyldren of Israel saw howe the fyre came downe and the glorye of the Lorde vpon the house, and stouped with theyr faces to the earth vpon the pauement & bowed them selues and cōfessed vnto the Lord, that he was good and that hys mercye lasted euer.

B And the kynge & all the people offered offeringes before the Lord. So that kinge Salomon offred.xxii.thousand oxen, and an hundred and twentie thousande shepe.
And so the kynge and all the people halowed the house of God. And the Preestes wayted on theyr offyces, and the Leuytes wyth instrumentes of musyck of the Lorde whyche kynge Dauid made to confesse vnto the Lord that hys mercy lasteth euer when Dauid gaue prayse thorowe theyr fast by them: & al Israel stode. Moreouer Salomō halowed the middle of the court that was before the Lord: for ther he offered burntofferinges & the fatt of the peace offringes, because the brasen aulter which Salomon had made, was not able to receaue the burntofferinges and the meatofferinges and the fatte.

And Salomō kept a feast the same sea Hemath vnto the ryuer of Egipt. And the eyght daye they made a gatherynge. For they kept the halowynge of the aulter.vii.

daye of the seuenth moneth, he let the people departed vnto theyr tētes glad & merie in hert for the goodnes that the Lord had shewed to Dauid, to Salomon & to Israel his people. * And so Salomon fynys- iii. Re. ix. a shed the house of the Lord and the kinges house and al that came in his hert to make in the house of the Lord and in hys owne house, and that prosperously.
And the Lord apeared to Salomon by night & said to him: I haue heard thy peti ciō & haue chosen thys place for my self to be an house of sacryfyce. Moreouer yf I shut vp heauē that ther be no rayne, or yf I cōmaūde the locustes to deuoure the land or yf I send pestilēce amonge my people: yet yf my people that are named after my name, shall hūble thē selues & make inter-cessiō & seke my presence, & turne frō theyr D wicked wayes, then wyl I heare frō heauē and be mercyfull to theyr synnes, and wyl heale theyr lande. Therto myne eyes shal be opē & myne eares atent vnto ÿ prayers made in thys place. And finallye I haue chosen & sanctified this house, that my na me be ther for euer, & myne eyes and myne hert shalbe there perpetually.
And yf ÿ shalt walke before me as Da-uid thy father walked, to do accordinge to al that I haue cōmaūded the, & shalt obser ue myne ordinaūces & my lawes, thē I wil stablyshe the seat of thy kyngdome, accordinge to the couenaunt I made wyth Da uid thy father, saying: * thou shalt haue ii. Re. vii. d uer one or other that shall rule in Israell. b But & yf ye turne awaye & forsake myne ii. Pa. vi. ordinaunces & my cōmaundemētes which I haue set before you, and shal go & serue other Gods and bowe your selues to thē: then wyl I plucke thē vp by the rotes out of my lande whych I haue geuen thē, & yet wyl cast this house which I haue sanctify ed for my name out of my syght, & wil ma ke a prouerbe & a tale of it amōgal naciōs And this house that is so hye, shalbe a wō der to al that passeth therby that they shal saye: why hath the Lord dealt on this fas-syon with this lād & with this house? And it shalbe answered thē, because they forsoke the Lord God of theyr fathers whyche brought thē out of the land of Egipt, and caught holde on other Gods, & bowed to them & serued thē: euen therfore brought he on them all thys euell.

with walles gates & barres. And Baalath & al the stoare cities that Salomon had, & all ẏ charet cities & the cytyes of horsemē, B & all that Salomon had lust to buylde in Ierusalē and Libanon, & thorowout all ẏ lande of his dominion.

And al the people that were lefte of the Hethites, Amorites, Pheresites, Heuites & Iebusites, which were not of the childrē of Israel: euen the children of thē, whyche were lefte after them in the lande, & were not cōsumed of the chyldren of Israel, thē did Salomō make tributaries vnto this day. But of ẏ chyldrē of Israel dyd Sa-lomō make no bondemē in his worke: but they were mē of warre & rulers & great lor des wᵗ him, & captaynes ouer his charettes and horsemen. And king Salomōs officers that ouersaw & ruled the people, were two hundred and fyftie.

C And Salomō brought the daughter of Pharao out of ẏ citie of Dauid īto ẏ hou se ẏ he had made for her. For he sayde: my wife shal not dwel in the house of Dauid king of Israel, for it is holye, because the Arcke of the Lord came into it.

And from thenceforthe Salomon offe red burntofferinges vnto the Lorde on ẏ aulter of the Lord which he had builte before the porche to offer daye by daye accor dyng to the commaundement of Moses, & in the sabbotes & newe mones, and ẏ thre solempne feastes of the yere, the feaste of swete bread, the fest of wekes and ẏ feaste of bothes.

And Salomon put the sortes of prea-stes in companyes as Dauid hys father had ordered thē, vnto ẏ offyces, & the leui-tes vnto their wayte, for to prayse & myni stre before the preastes day by day, & ẏ porters by course at euerye gate. For so had D Dauid ẏ man of God cōmaunded. And ẏ cōmaundement of the kyng vnto the prestes & ẏ Leuites cōcernynge what soeuer cause it was, & concernynge the treasures, was not disobeyed.

And al the worke of Salomon wente lustely forwarde euē vnto the daye of the foundacion of the house of the Lord was layde: & from thence till he had fynysshed it, that the house of the Lord was perfect.
And then went kynge Salomon to Ezio Gaber and to Eloth and to the sees syde in the lande of Edō. And Hiram sent him by the hande of his seruauntes shyppes & seruauntes that could skyl of the see: whiche went wyth the seruauntes of Salomō to Ophir, & brought thence foure hundred & fyftye talentes of gould, and brought it to kynge Salomon.

there was nothynge hyd from Salomon, which he tolde her not.

And when the quene of Saba had sene the wysdome of Salomon and the house that he had buylt, and the meate of hys ta-and hys parloure out of which he went in to the house of ẏ Lord, ther was no moa-

And thē she sayd to ẏ kyng: the sayinge B which I heard in mine owne lād, of thyne actes and of thy wisdom, is trueth. But I beleued not ẏ wordes of thē, vntil I came & mine eies had sene it. And se, ẏ one halfe of thy wysdom was not told me: thou ex-ceadest the fame that I heard, happye are Jerusalẽ ⁊ raigned. And Rehoboā was.

xli. yere olde whẽ he was made kyng, ⁊ he raygned.xvii. yeres in Jerusalem the citie which the lord had chosẽ out of al yͤ tribes of Israel to put hys name there. And hys mothers name was Naamah an Ammo= nite. * And he dyd euel: for he prepard not his hert to seke the Lorde.
The actes of Rehoboam fyrst and last are written in the sayinges of Semeiah yͤ Prophete ⁊ of Ado the sear of visions, so moche as his genealogye and the perpetu all warre that was betwene Rehoboam ⁊ Jeroboam during their lyfe. And Rebo= boā layd hī to slepe wͭ hys fathers ⁊ was buried in yͤ citie of Dauid, ⁊ Abiah his sõ ne raygned in hys steade.

¶ The vyctorye of Abiah agaynst Jeroboam.

The.xiii. Chapter.

The.xviii. yere of kyng Jero= A boam begā Abiah to raygne ouer Juda, ⁊ he raigned thre yere ĩ Jerusalẽ. His mothers name was Michaiah yͤ dau= ghter of Uriel of Gabaah. And ther was warre betwene Abiah and Jeroboā. And Abiah made a battel wyth an host of figh tyng men of foure hundred thousand cho sen men. And Jeroboam put in araye to fyght agaynst him, wͭ.viii. hundred thou sand pycte men and stronge.
And Abiah stode vp vpõ Zemaraim an hil in moūt Ephraim ⁊ said: heare me yͤ Jeroboā and al Israel. Becommethe it not you to know how that the lord god of Is rael gaue yͤ kingdom of Israel to Dauid for euer, euẽ to hym ⁊ to his sonnes, wyth a * salted couenaunt. But Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat the seruaunt of Salomõ the sonne of Dauid, rebelled agaynst the Lord. And there geathered to hym lewde B men and vnthryftes, and preuayled a= gaynst Rehoboā yͤ sõne of Salomon: for Rehoboam was younge and tender harted & not stronge ynough for them.

And now ye thinke to preuayle agaynst the kyngdō of the Lord in the hand of the sonnes of Dauid, because ye be a greate multitude & haue wyth you the golden cal ues which Jeroboam made you for Gods And haue ye not cast out the prestes of the Lorde the sonnes of Aaron, and the Leui-tes, & haue made you Prestes lyke the na-cyons of other landes: euen whosoeuer co meth and fylleth hys hande wyth an oxe & seuē rammes, the same is made Preste to them that are no Gods.
C But with vs is the Lord our God who we haue not forsaken, & the priestes of the sonnes of Aarō ministring vnto the Lord & the Leuites in offyce, burninge vnto the Lord euery morning & euery euē burntof frynges & swete cense: & the shew bred put in ordre vpō a pure table: & the candelsticke of gould wyth the lampes of the same, to be lyght euery euē. For we kepe the wat che of the Lord our God: but ye haue forsaken hym. Moreouer se, God is with vs in the forewarde, and hys prestes, and the roring trompettes to crye alarum against you. Ye chyldren of Israel fyght not with the Lorde God of your fathers: for it wyl not prosper wyth you.
But for al that Jeroboam sent mē pry uely about to come behinde vpon thē: & so they were before Juda, and thee layers in wayte were behind thē. And whē Juda tur ned & sawe the battel behind & before, they cryed vnto the Lord, & the Priestes blewe the trōpettes and the men of Juda gaue a showte. And as the men of Juda showted D god smote Jeroboā & al Israel before Abi ah & Juda. And yͤ childrē of Israel fled be fore Juda, & the lord delyuered thē into the handes of Juda. And Abiah & his people slue a great slaughter of thē: so yt ther were strikē downe dead of Israel. v. C. M. cho senmē. And so the children of Israel were broughte vnder at yt tyme, & the chyldrē of Juda preuayled: because they leaned vnto the Lord god of their fathers. And Abi ah folowed after Jeroboā & wāne certaine cities frō him: Bethel with the townes be-lōging therto, & Jesanah with the townes that longed therto, & Ephrō with her townes. And Jeroboam recouered not stregth agayne in the dayes of Abiah. And at the last the Lord plaged hym, that he dyed.
And Abiah waxed mightie, & toke hym xiiii. wyues, & begat. xxii. sonnes and. xvi. daughters. The rest of the actes of Abiah and hys wayes & hys doynges are writtē in the storie of thee Prophete Ido. And when Abiah was layde to slepe wyth hys fathers, they buryed hym in thee cytye of Dauid, and Asa his sonne rayned in his steade. In whose dayes the lande was quyet ten yeare.

¶ Abiah dieth after whom succedeth Asa.

The. xiiii. Chapter.

AND Asa dyd that was good & ryght in the eyes of the Lorde A hys God, and toke awaye the iii.reg.xv.b aultars of straungers and the hylaulters, & brake the Images and cutte downe the groues, and commaunded Juda to seke the Lorde God of theyr fathers and to do according to the law & commaū dement. And he put awaye out of al the cy-ties of Juda, the hilaulters & the ydolles: for the kingdome was quyet before hym.
And he buylte stronge cytyes in Juda: be cause the lande was in reste, and he hadde no warre in those yeres. For the Lord had geuen hym reste.
And therfore he sayd to Juda: lette vs buyld these cyties and compasse thē wyth B walles & towres, gates & barres, while we haue the land quyet. For we haue soughte the Lord oure God: and because we haue sought hym, he hath geuen vs rest on eue-ry syde. And so they built & prospered. And Asa had an Armye that bare shyld & spere oute of Juda thre hundred thousand, and out of Ben Jamin that bare shylde & drue bowes two hundred and. lxxx. thousand, & were al stronge men.
And ther came out against thē zarah the C Morian with an Host of. x. hūdred thousand, & thre hundred charettes, & came as ferre as Maresa. And Asa wēt out to him & they put in araye to battell in the valeye of Zephatah besyde Maresa. And Asa cryed vnto the Lord his God & sayd: Lor de it is all one wyth the to helpe them that haue no power, wyth fewe or with manye helpe vs O Lorde oure God, for we trust to the, and in thyne name be come agaynst thys multitude. Thou arte the Lorde our God,

Jehosaphat.
God, let not man preuayle agaynst the.
D And the Lord smote the blacke Mores before Asa & Juda, that they fled. And Asa & ye people that was with him, folowed after thē as ferre as Gerar. And ye blacke Mores were ouerthrowen, that there bode none a lyue of thē, but were destroyed of ye Lorde & of his hoste. And they caryed awaye a myghtye greate praye. And they smote al the cities roūd about Gerar. For the feare of the Lord came vpon thē. And they robbed al the cities for ther was exceding moch to be robbed in them. And ther to they smote the tētes of cattel and caried awaye plentie of shepe and camelles, & returned to Jerusalem.

¶ King Asa by the monition of the Prophet Azariah after he had put do one the Idolles, sacrifieth to the Lord, He deposeth his mother of her dominion.

The. xv. Chapter.

A And the spyryte of God came on Azariah the sōne of Obed A And he wēt out agaynst Asa & sayd to him: heare me Asa & al Juda & Ben Jamin. The Lord is wyth you, whyle ye be wyth hym, and yf ye shal seke him, he wylbe found of you: but & yf ye shall forsake hym he wyll forsake you. Ther wyll come many dayes in Israel, in which ther shalbe no true god nor Priest that teacheth, nor any law. And in theyr tribulation they shall turne vnto the Lord God of Israel & shall seke hym, and he shalbe found of them. And in those dayes ther shalbe no peace to thē that goo out and in. But great vexation vpō the en habiters of al landes. For one nacion shal destroye another, & one cytye another: for God wyl trowble them wyth al aduersyte B But plucke you vppe your hertes and lett not your handes faynte, for youre workes shalbe rewarded.

When Asa hearde those wordes & the Prophesye of Azariah the sonne of Obed
